Gossip About Probable Organization of the Legislature.

NEW SUPERVISOR OF BILLS.

THE NAME NOT KNOWN AND A CLOUD ON THE OFFICE.

The Upper House Will Be Composed of Able and Experienced Men on Both Sides—No Necessity for Partisan Legislation Now—Young Men in the Assembly May Develop Ability.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 1—The slate arranged by the Republican leaders for the organization of the Legislature shows no signs of cracking yet, and it may as well be understood now as later on that Mr. Johnson, of Bergen, will be elected president of the Senate, and Mr Jones, of Essex, speaker of the House. Augustus S. Barber, Jr., of Gloucester, who served as secretary of the Senate last year, will be reappointed, and the clerkship of the House will go to James Parker, of Passaic. These high offices thus disposed of and in a manner which gives satisfaction apparently to the politicians of the important Republican circles of the State, the subordinate offices are left for the consideration and decision of the regular caucuses of both Houses. Mercer and Camden may wage a contest for the office of sergeant-at-arms of the Senate, while Middlesex and Monmouth will be heard from with reference to the same position in the House. There are six more Republican Assemblymen this than last year, and they must be provided for so that as far as possible an equitable division of the offices may be made among the faithful.

A question has been raised as to the constitutionality of the law passed last winter authorizing the Governor to appoint a supervisor of bills for both Houses. This is a new office, and it takes the places hitherto filled by the engrossing clerks. It is held to be unconstitutional because it encroaches on the right of the Legislature to choose its own officers, as provided by the organic law. It is not within the prerogative of the Governor, it is contended, to appoint an officer for the Legislature. And it would seem that the point is well taken according to a paragraph in the Constitution concerning the appointment of legislative officers. However, as the Governor is presumed to know the law, and as he has an able adviser in the person of the Attorney General, there is no fear that any entanglements will occur over the matter.

The next Senate will be composed of able and experienced men on both sides, and as a body it will compare favorably with the Senates of former years, when seats were occupied by such intellectual giants as Sewell, Hobart, Griggs, Abbett, Magie, Gardener, McPherson, Stone, Potts, Werts and John W. Taylor. There will be young leaders in the next Senate who may become as distinguished in affairs of the State as those whose names have been just mentioned. On the Republican side there is good Gubernatorial material in Stokes, Johnson, Pitney, Cross, Reed and McCarter, and on the Democratic side McDermott's brilliancy as a lawyer and his marked ability as a politician are unquestioned. Then there are Senators Braun, Martin, VanCleef and Cornish, who are possessed of ability above the common. The interests of the State and the taxpayers should be safe in the hands of those men, provided partisanship does not sway those in the majority. But there seems no necessity far partisan legislation at this time. The Republicans are safely entrenched in power, and any attempt to disturb the laws now governing the State in order to reach out for additional patronage might prove unsatisfactory to the people, who would resent such a radical proceeding at the first opportunity. "Leave well enough alone" is a good old axiom, and doubtless the conservative element of the party in power will follow it.

Wife Arranged the Surprise.

Last Wednesday evening Frank W. Bailey, of 86 Duer street, was given a complete surprise by a number of his friends. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Bailey, and she invited their friends and neighbors to the number of twenty-nine, to spend a pleasant evening with them.

THE NEW TROLLEY LINE.

THE CARS WERE CROWDED WITH PASSENGERS YESTERDAY.

Two Second Hand Cars Received From Brooklyn Today—Official Trip of Inspection is to be This Afternoon.

From Scotch Plains to Cranford the novel sight of the trolley tempted many out yesterday for their first ride. The cars were run over the line of the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company from this city to the B. & O. crossing east of Cranford, yesterday. The two cars were run at half-hour intervals and were well patronized.

Two of the cars purchased second hand in Brooklyn, arrived this morning on flat cars by the Jersey Central Railroad. They were unloaded this morning Truckman A E. Hoagland and put on the tracks of the local system. They will be used this afternoon for the official inspection of the road by the directors of the company.

These cars have been repainted and bear the name of the company on the side. The peculiar spelling of "Elizebeth" has caused some comment. They have four wheel trucks and are slightly longer than the Plainfield company's cars. They have an electric head-light on the top of the car.

BEHIND THE MASK.

Every character of history and romance, from Mephisto down to the Rough Rider, was to be seen at the masquerade ball of the Twilight Social Club, held in the Crescent Rink, Thanksgiving Eve.

It was the fifth masquerade that the Twilight Club has held and was considered a great success. There was nearly a thousand present during the evening. Fancy costumes were more numerous among the women than among the men. Some were quite elaborate and attracted much attention.

Two clowns, impersonated by athletically inclined young men, entertained the crowd with a series of gymnastic stunts during part of the evening. There was an exhibition cake-walk cleverly executed by Miss Higgins and Michael Higgins. The grand march came shortly after 10 o'clock and was led by Miss Higgins and Michael Higgins.

The dancing continued until an early hour yesterday morning. The ball passed off without any trouble to mar the success of the affair.

THANKSGIVING EVE WEDDING.

Miss Anna Griffen Becomes the Wife of Robert Stevens.

Last Wednesday evening there was a pretty wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Batts, 62 Somerset street, when Miss Anna Griffen, formerly in the employ of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McGee, of Washington Park, and Robert Stevens, of 94 Manning avenue, and employed by Wm. A. Garrigues, were united in marriage by Rev. Scott Wallace, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church. The house was tastefully and appropriately decorated and was filled with friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The ceremony was performed at 8:30 o'clock and was followed by hearty congratulations from the guests.

The bride was attended by Miss Lemy Coles as bridemaid, while Oscar Carey was the best man. Both the bride and her attendant were gowned attractively and carried bouquets of flowers.

Following congratulations a wedding supper was served and the bride and groom left the city for a short honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside at 94 Manning avenue, where the groom has furnished a home that awaits their coming. A great many nice presents were received by them, especially from their employers, including handsome clocks, lamps, pictures, toilet sets, and many articles too numerous too mention. They are popular young people among their acquaintances, and they start their married life with every good sign of success.

NO FOOTBALL GAME.

Knickerbocker Field Club Unable to Keep Its Engagement Yesterday.

There was no football game on Martine Common yesterday morning. Late Wednesday evening Captain Roy T. Phillips received a telegram from the manager of the Knickerbocker Field Club saying that that team would not be able to go to Plainfield for the game scheduled for Thanksgiving. It was then too late to get another team and the game was therefore called off. The Alls boys are very much disgusted at the treatment and it promises to go hard with the Knickerbocker Field Club in the near future should they ever want any favors from the local eleven.

BLACKFORD A BIGAMIST?

Plainfielder Confronted By Two Wives.

ARRESTED THIS MORNING

JOHN L. BLACKFORD, RAILROAD DETECTIVE, IS IN TROUBLE.

Married Miss Ulrich in Plainfield Ten Years Ago—Wedded Miss Morgan in Westfield Last Week—Arrested at Hotel Marlborough On His Honeymoon, Claims to Have Secured a Divorce In Dakota.

John L. Blackford, the well known private detective in the employ of the Jersey Central Railroad who lives at 926 Putnam avenue, was arrested early this morning at the Hotel Marlborough, New York, on the charge of bigamy. The complaint was made before the New York authorities by Mrs. Blackford, No. 1, who was wedded to Blackford in this city ten years ago. She was a Miss Ulrick. At the time of his arrest, Blackford was on his honeymoon with with Mrs. Blackford No. 2, whom he wedded a week ago at Westfield. Her name was Alice Morgan, sister of Mrs. Charles Brenscholtz, of Summit avenue, Westfield.

Blackford has been living with his wife in Plainfield up to the time of his last marriage. He formerly lived on East Fifth street, near Franklin place, but moved from there to Putnam avenue, nearly a year ago. He was on night duty for the Central Railroad and usually returned home in the morning about 8 o'clock. Neighbors say that their domestic life was not always peaceful.

The first that Mrs. Blackford heard of her husband's second marriage was when a friend told her that a man of the same name was to be married in Westfield. Then she received several papers with the announcement. Yesterday morning Mr. Brenscholtz happened to visit Plainfield. He is the brother-in-law of the second wife. He easily found where Blackford lived and was much surprised on reaching there to be received by a woman who claimed to be Blackford's wife.

Explanations followed and last night, Mrs. Blackford No. 1, and Mr. Brenscholtz went to New York where a complaint was made against Blackford on the charge of bigamy. He was arrested at the Marlborough with his bride at 4 o'clock this morning.

He admitted that he had been married before but declared that he had secured a divorce out in Dakota and that the second wife was now his legal spouse. Mrs. Blackford denied that there had ever been any divorce but did not want her husband punished. She merely wanted him to return to her. Mrs. Blackford became hysterical when her supposed husband was arrested but declared that she had implicit trust in him and believed that he was right.

Drink Evil From the Bible Standpoint.

"The Drink Evil From the Bible Standpoint" will be the subject of an address tonight in the Seventh-Day Baptist church at 7:45 o'clock, by Rev. W. VanKirk, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y. All interested persons are cordially invited to attend.

Another Thanksgiving Service.

This evening the Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church will meet and hold a Thanksgiving service. The topic will be "Our Return for the Lord's Benefits." David M. Runyon, president of the society, will lead.

Tonight at 8 o'clock in Trinity Reformed church will be held the regular preparatory service, preceding the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper on Sunday morning.

END OF HILLSIDE SEASON

NO MORE MATCH GAMES OF GOLF ON THAT COURSE.

Play for the Gilbert Cup Was the Attraction Yesterday—No one Has Won it Enough Times to Become Permanent Owner.

The golf season which closed yesterday at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club grounds was one of the most successful in the history of the club, as the records made through the year are such that the members can feel proud of them. The list of events have all been interesting and the competitive list has been large The season's play has brought out some fine material and numbered among the contestants are some of the best in this section. No doubt that next year great advances will be made in golf at this popular course and some big records will be looked for.

There was a large crowd at the course yesterday, the attraction being the mixed foursome play for the Gilbert cup. Under the rules the lady becoming a permanent owner of the cup is obliged to win it three times and have her name inscribed thereon as many times. This makes the fourth contest for the trophy and no one lady has won it more than once. Those who won it are: Miss May Evans and H. D. West; Miss Shepard and R. M. Shepard; Miss Grace Kaufman and Whitney Baker; Miss Gladys Kaufman and W. T. Kaufman. The last two named were the winners yesterday. As will be seen by the scores which follow, there was some fine playing. The scores were rather close and there was not such a great difference between anyone of the contestants. As matter now stand it will take a long while for a person to secure the cup permanently, but the contest for it will be watched with considerable interest in the future. Yesterday's scores follow:

MARRIED TWENTY YEARS

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED BY MR AND MRS. MARTIN.

One Hundred Relatives Were Present to Give Joy the Event—Many Handsome Presents Received by Celebrants.

It was twenty years ago yesterday that Mr. and Mrs. Horace J. Martin, of Jackson avenue, were united in marriage by the late Rev. Dr. Robert Lowry in what was known as the Central Baptist church, but which is now the old Seventh-Day Baptist church. This event was celebrated last evening at the home of the bride and groom. There were fully one hundred and fifty relatives and friends present to join in wishing the celebrants many happy returns of the day. The home was appropriately decorated for the occasion and Mr. and Mrs. Martin received their guests cordially.

During the evening there was instrumental music by Andrew Carpenter and Mrs. J. M. Smalley, vocal music by Miss Marisona, and several vocal selections by Robert M. Clark, Edward O. Clark, Lyman Spencer and Joseph Martin.

Those who poured tea in the dining room were Mrs. John Bailey, of Manasquan, and Mrs. Robert M. Clark, of the borough, assisted by Miss Nellie Fenner and Mrs. David Richards, of this city. Between the hours of 8 and 12 o'clock the house was thronged with guests. Supper was served under the direction of W. J. Pride, caterer.

The presents received by the bride and groom were of every variety, and were both costly and handsome. These tokens of esteem were greatly appreciated by the recipients.

Horace Martin, Jr., and Willard Martin, assisted in receiving the providing for the comfort of guests who were present from Newark, Jersey City, Elizabeth, Philadelphia, Point Pleasant, Manasquan, Piuckamin, Dunellen, Roycefield, Bound Brook, Raritan and this city.

PARK CLUB GOLFERS ENDED THE SEASON.

Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Dryden Won Mixed Foursome.

HYDE CUP TO MR. CROWE.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT LINKS ON THANKSGIVING DAY.

Chas. E. Faber and Herbert Crowe Qualified for Final Round, Match Play, in Hyde Cup Competition—Crowe Won 5 up and 4 to Play—Six Couples in the Mixed Foursome—Informal Tea Held.

Thanksgiving Day was a lively day on the links of the Park Golf Club. It marked the ending of the active season there and two events were arranged for the day. The Hyde Cup, a men's handicap competition, was won by Herbert Crowe. The victors in the mixed foresome were Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Dryden.

There have been comparatively few of the members who have been at all regular in their attendance at the course during the past month. With the arrival of the really cold weather and the early nightfall, the number of devotees has been largely reduced. Despite that fact, there was a large attendance at the course all yesterday.

The event of the morning was the qualifying round for the Hyde Cup, a silver trophy offered to the club by Charles W. Hyde. There were over twenty entries but only ten cards were finally handed in. Besides the competitors out, there were many who took no part in the contest. The caddies were speedily engaged and many were compelled to go over the links without them. The ladies were out in considerable numbers.

It was expected that the competitors to qualify would be from those who have been in regular attendance lately. Charles E. Faber put up a good game and recorded the lowest net score. Herbert Crowe was one stroke behind. W. de la R. Anderson, the club champion, played in remarkably good form and finished third, four strokes behind Crowe. He made the first round in 49 and the second in 51, making a total of 100. That was the lowest gross score of the day. J. H. Howell tied him for third place. Gifford W. Cooley was next in line with 106 net. Senator Charles A. Reed was on hand again, but lack of practice was evident in the score.

The final round, match play, was played in the afternoon. Faber gave Crowe a handicap of three strokes on every round. From the start it was evident that Faber was not in condition to do his best work. Crowe made some remarkable drives and played a steady, conscientious game, that won him the match and the cup. Faber was off his usual form. At the end of the first round Crowe was five up. In the second round Faber braced up somewhat and prevented his opponent from increasing his lead. Crowe won five up, four to play.

The scores handed in for the qualifying round were as follows:

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
Charles E. Faber	119	24	95
Herbert Crowe	126	30	96
W. de la R. Anderson	100	0	100
J. H. Howell	118	18	100
G. W. Cooley	115	9	106
Charles W. Hyde	135	24	111
W. J. R. Thiers	124	9	115
Charles A. Reed	141	24	117
Samuel Townsend	142	24	118
S. St. J. McCutchen	138	14	124

The other event of the afternoon was a mixed foursome for a prize offered by the club. Six pairs entered and all turned in their scores. The event was arranged especially to furnish a contest in which the ladies would take part. It was a handicap, nine holes, medal play. There was much interest shown in the play and small-sized "galleries" follow the players. First honors went to Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Dryden. Miss Daish Elsberg and Allan B. Laing were second.

The scores were as follows:

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
Mrs. Meredith Dryden, Meredith Dryden	67	16	51
Miss Daisy Elsberg, Allan B. Laing	79	20	59
Miss Adelaide G. Ball, W. R. Faber	75	14	61
Mrs. Herbert Crowe, Aubrey Crowe	78	13	65
Miss Saidee M. Howell, Gifford W. Cooley	73	7	67

The course was in excellent condition. It will remain open this week. Saturday will be the last opportunity to play. The club house will then be closed and the greens covered for winter. It is not probable than any arrangement will be made to have temporary greens for winter play as there is very little demand for it. W. B. Mitchell, the club professional, goes to Pinehurst, N. C., next week, for the winter. He will probably return to Plainfield again in the spring.

TALENT IN STAR COURSE.

CLEVER ENTERTAINERS SEEN AT THE Y. M. C. A. LAST NIGHT.

One of the Best Entertainments Ever Given by the Association—A Big Audience—The Best Features of Programme.

The second of the Y. M. C. A. star course of entertainments last evening at the cosy hall of the association was the best yet given under the auspices of this organization. The hall was filled to its limit and the entertainment was of a high order.

The Blanche Friderici Concert Company of New York is composed of a class of entertainers which it is a pleasure to listen to. Miss Blanche D. Friderici's monologues are indeed gems of the elocutionist's art, and the lady displays a taste that while clever is far removed from the course of vulgar. Her charming and artistic interpretations of the various characters she personated won for her unstinted applause from an audience of culture. Should Miss Friderici be induced to pay a second visit to Plainfield she can be assured of meeting a cordial reception.

As for the musical portion of the programme much might be written in praise. Miss Bond, who took the place of Miss Turton, who is ill, has a wonderfully powerful contralto, of vast compass, but sweet in tone. Her graceful manner and sweet expression was satisfactory evidence of her musical ability. Master Fanelli, the harpist, and Miss Snell, the pianist, are also artists in their various lines. The latter's execution of the grand piano was much admired for its delicacy of grace and shows her to be a master of technique and execution.

Space is not avilable to write more fully of the ability of these skilled musical artists, but it is safe to say that their performance was highly appreciated. It was a musical treat which will not soon be forgotten.

EMPLOYERS WERE HOSTS.

Woodhull & Martin Entertained Their Guests in One of Their Stores Last Evening.

Woodhull & Martin, the popular dry goods merchants, again evidenced their generosity when they provided a pleasant Thanksgiving reunion last night for their clerks and the members of their families. The affair was celebrated in their new carpet department, where there is every convenience. It was held from 4 o'clock in the afternoon until nearly 11 o'clock last night. There were about fifty people present, including persons from Newark, New York, Morristown and Lake Hopatcong. The guests assembled about 4 o'clock and after a social time spent all were invited to the basement, where a genuine Thanksgiving dinner was served. The tables were tastefully decorated, while they held the turkeys and all the good things that accompany them.

After the inner man was well filled the guests arranged themselves in a semi-circle, when a flash light picture was taken by Letter-Carrier Demarest. Then all adjourned to the upper floor where music, dancing and the playing of games helped to pass an evening of pleasure. There was piano music by Irving Martin and violin music by E. C. Martin. When the guests departed for their homes they thanked Messrs. Woodhull & Martin for the very pleasant time they permitted them to participate in.

ENDEAVORERS ARE THANKFUL.

A Special Service Was Held by the Local Union Yesterday Morning.

The Christian Endeavor Thanksgiving service held every year by the Plainfield Local Union, has come to be recognized as one of the features of its work. The meeting held yesterday morning in the Crescent Avenue church, and led by Miss Ernestine C. Smith, secretary of the Union, was of unusual interest and helpfulness. There was a good attendance, nearly all of those present offering earnest prayer and testimony. The offering received will be turned over to the Christmas fund of the Children's Home.

Organ Blower Had a Fit.

Abram Staats, organ blower at the First Baptist church, had a fit yesterday morning during the service while the choir was singing an anthem. It was toward the close of the selection, and the organ being without wind, Howard Case, the organist, hastened to the organ loft to learn the cause. He found Mr. Staats suffering from a fit and he succeeded in bring him about all right. In the meantime the choir continued singing and completed the selection, and very few persons present knew that anything was wrong. Mr. Staats is subject to these spells, but this is the first one he has had while performing his work at the church.

SIGNIFICANCE OF THE DAY.

SPLENDID SERMONS BY REVS. GARDNER AND O'DONNELL.

Origin of the Custom of Observing Thanksgiving Explained, and Conclusions Drawn so That Admonition to Christians Came in Opportunely—Americans Have Much to be Thankful For.

The usual Thanksgiving service which was held at the First Baptist church yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock was very well attended by worshippers. The service was one of the most inspiring held. Seated on the platform were Rev. Dr. Yerkes, pastor of the church; Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, of the First M. E. church; Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, of Trinity Reformed church, and Rev. G. W. Gardner, of Grace M. E. church. The latter preached the sermon.

The regular church choir assisted at the service and two beautiful anthems were rendered, in addition to a pleasing duet by Miss Harris, soprano, and Mrs. Ward, contralto, and solos by George Smith, tenor, and William Holmes, baritone.

Dr. Yerkes opened the service with Scripture reading and prayer, and Rev. Mr. Gardner read the fourth chapter of Paul's Epistle to the Phillipines. This was followed with an impressive and beautiful prayer by Dr. Schenck. Interspersing the opening exercises there was selections by the choir and the singing of hymns, after which the sermon was delivered by Mr. Gardner. It was helpful and powerful discourse, although the speaker did not deal so much in national affairs. His text was taken from Psalms 92-1: "It is a good thing to give thanks unto God."

Mr. Gardner then went on to tell why it is a good thing to render thanks. He said that it is fitting that a proclamation should be issued setting apart one day for thanksgiving. He rehearsed history showing the origin of the custom and how it had been kept for so many years. He contended that where the faith of the people is strong there will be much thanksgiving. He spoke of the sturdy Pilgrim Fathers whose faith never failed. He told of how there was a renewed activity in Thanksgiving day after the great religious awakening in 1864, and he voiced the sentiments of Senator Lodge who remarked recently in Boston that a strong faith in the country is a source of great strength. He said that all rejoiced in Dewey's victory in Manila Bay, but what is needed is a strong faith in God. He was glad that the sturdy pioneers of New England put in practice the Thanksgiving custom. It means a home festival, and if God be in it there is great sacredness there, and he hoped that the custom of reunion would never become obsolete, when parents, grandparents, children and grandchildren meet and join in the festivities of the occasion.

The speaker said that a well known person had remarked that goodness is uninteresting because there is so much of it. If a snake should invest a city park there would be two columns in the newspaper about it, yet nothing is said about the beatiful birds that fly here and there and warble their sweet songs. He urged all to form habits of giving thanks, thankfulness for everything. He then recited a portion of President McKinley's proclamation showing how prosperous the country had been and the reason why all should be thankful, and closed his remarks by saying that surely all ought to give their lives for those for whom God gave his life. Those to whom he referred were the millions of people that inhabit the country's new possessions.

The service closed with the taking of the collection of the Plainfield Relief Association, a prayer by Dr. Snodgrass, a duet by Miss Harris and Mrs. Ward and the benediction by Dr. Yerkes.

The Union Thanksgiving services at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday morning were but fairly well attended. The pastor, Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, was assisted by Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, pastor of the Monroe Avenue Methodist church; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, and Rev. Dr. A. E. Main, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

The invocation was delivered by Dr. Main with Scriptural reading by Rev. Mr. Goodrich. A feature of the services was the reading by Dr. Rich-

CREWS ARE SUSPENDED.

WHOLE FAMILY KILLED.

Engineer's Reckless Speed Is Said to Be Responsible For the Disaster at Paterson—One More Victim Likely to Be Added to the Fatal List—The Wreckage Cleared Away.

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 1.—One more victim is certain to be added to the six killed in the wreck on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western road, physicians at St. Joseph's Hospital pronouncing the case of George H. White, of Ithaca, hopeless.

Of the injured at St. Joseph's Hospital, J. Sterling Smith, a nephew of General Joe Wheeler, is in the worst condition, next to White. Smith's left leg has been amputated at the hospital. He worried much over the loss of a portfolio containing valuable papers until he was shown the receipt for the parcel by one of the Sisters of Charity.

He was in a very weak condition and continually moaned for his wife. He said he was sure she had been killed by his side, in the second from the last coach. At first the hospital nurses told him his wife was not hurt. When finally told of her death he began to rave and his shrieks could be heard in the hospital grounds. It is expected that he will recover unless he sustained internal injuries.

The officials of the road extended every facility to relatives and friends of the injured and the newspaper men in the obtaining of information. General Superintendent E. G. Russell and Division Superintendent R. Du Puy were in Paterson the greater part of the day Thursday personally attending to those who came to inquire after the victims of the disaster in St. Joseph's Hospital.

"I do not believe in a policy of suppressing the facts in a case of this kind," said Mr. Russell. "The friends of those injured in a railroad accident are entitled to the fullest information, and so is the public. That is why every opportunity is afforded the reporters to get the information they seek. That has always been my policy, and always will be, although I hope it will be a very long time before there shall be a repetition of Wednesday night's fatal accident."

The list of the dead given out on Wednesday night was largely incorrect. The corrected list is as follows:

Alexander Craig, Scranton, Pa., business manager of the Scranton Tribune; Mrs. Esther S. Craig, his wife; Miss Esther Craig, 15 years old, their daughter; Miss Jessie Craig, 11 years old, another daughter; Mrs. May B. Roe, wife of David Roe, of Ithaca; Walter Jacob Brock, 19 years old, a Cornell student of No. 899 West End avenue, New York city.

It was not until Thursday that the identification of the two children killed was made positive. Passengers had said they were with Mr. and Mrs. Roe, but relatives of the Craig family came here from Brooklyn and identified them as those of the Craigs. The accident wiped out the whole family. They were on their way to spend Thanksgiving with relatives in Brooklyn.

Trying to Place the Blame.

New York, Dec. 1.—General Superintendent E. G. Russell, of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railway, has given out the following official statement in regard to the wreck of the Buffalo Express on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railway:

"Train No. 96 overtook No. 6 at Dover and picked up a flagman, who had been sent back. It overtook No. 6 again at Lincoln Park, a few miles west of Paterson, and the No. 6 flagman returned to his train. Those in charge of train No. 96 were fully cognizant of the whereabouts of No. 6. Notwithstanding this, No. 96 seems to have entered Paterson at a careless rate of speed and to have run into No. 6, which was doing her regular discharging of passengers.

"I understand that the head of No. 6, which was a long train, was at the station. The cars telescoped were day coaches, but the five ahead were a sleeper, two chair coaches, a baggage car and a smoker. Under the circumstances those in charge of No. 96 seem to be wholly culpable. All the crew have been suspended and the fullest investigation will be made."

Conductor E. Burritt and Engineer Riordan of train No. 96 both declare that the last signal between West Paterson and the Barclay street station was twelve miles away. Thinking that the Buffalo train was safely out of the way, and being eleven minutes behind time, they said they went ahead at a little more than full speed, and knew of no trouble until they saw Snedaker of No. 6 waving the red lantern. Then the engine was reversed and the brakes applied, but the train was going at such a rate of speed that the collision could not be prevented.

A flagman had been sent back to signal train No. 96, but he had not gone far enough to allow Riordan time to stop. Riordan remained on his locomotive and escaped injury. His fireman, Daniel Maxwell, of Hackettstown, jumped and in this way received severe injuries.

Those most seriously injured and who are being cared for at St. Joseph's and the General Hospital are:

Samuel Mendelsohn, of No. 32 North Henkel street, Wilkesbarre, Pa., both legs broken; David Roe, of Ithaca, N. Y., badly injured about the leg.

J. Sterling Smith, No. 173 Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, nephew of General Joseph Wheeler, left leg broken and crushed, leg had to be amputated.

F. H. White, Ithaca, N. Y., legs crushed, hurt internally, may die; H. John White, son of F. H. White, left leg broken, cut by flying glass and bruised; F. O. Affeld, of Chicago, legs broken, injured internally; Louis V. S. Baron, Dover N. J., badly cut about the head and arm injured.

In all there were about twenty injured and all, with the exception of F. H. White, of Ithaca, N. Y., are reported to be doing well.

WAS SAVED BY AGUINALDO.

Filipino Leader Would Not Allow Gillmore to be Shot.

Manila, Dec. 1.—When the landing party from the United States battleship Oregon, under Lieutenant Commander McCrackin, took the town of Vigan, Province of South Ilocos, on last Sunday, they found there an escaped prisoner, A. L. Sonnenshein, who furnished the first authentic account of the experience of Lieutenant James C. Gillmore of the United States gunboat Yorktown, who with a party from the Yorktown was captured last April by the Filipinos near Baler, on the east coast of Luzon, while making an examination of the mouth of the river in an armed boat.

Mr. Sonnenshein was imprisoned at Abra for a long time with Lieutenant Gillmore and seven sailors, but contrived to escape, carrying a concealed note, written in naval cipher, dated at Abra, November 19, addressed to "Any Naval Officer," and saying, "You may have perfect confidence in anything the bearer says." The note was signed "Gillmore."

According to Mr. Sonnenshein, when Lieutenant Gillmore's launch entered the river from Baler Harbor under cover of Ensign W. H. Stanley's gun, the landing was received with three volleys. Two of the Americans were killed and two mortally wounded.

Lieutenant Gillmore received a flesh wound in the leg and his foot stuck fast in the mud. It was a choice between surrender and being slaughtered.

Lieutenant Gillmore asked the terms of release. The natives proposed that he should procure the delivery to them of the arms and munitions of the Spanish garrison, undertaking, if this were accomplished, to send the Spaniards and Americans to the Yorktown.

A sailor of Lieutenant Gillmore's party carried this proposition to the garrison. The Spanish commandant replied that it was an insult to Spanish arms, and expelled the sailor, a Spanish soldier firing upon him as he went.

The Americans were then bound hand and foot and taken to San Isidro, where General Luna ordered their execution. They were marched to the plaza and, in the presence of a great crowd, were lined up to be executed.

Lieutenant Gillmore said:

"As an American officer and gentleman, I protest against being shot with my hands tied."

Aguinaldo then interfered and prevented the execution.

When General Lawton approached San Isidro last June the Americans were removed to Abra, where they were kept confined in cells for two months. Subsequently they were allowed greater liberty.

General MacArthur now is in Bayambang, preparing to sweep the country on both sides of the Manila-Dagupan Railroad. General Wheaton is in San Fabian and General Lawton in Tayug.

The cordon from San Fabian to San Isidro covers all the roads and occupies all the towns on the lie. The American policy is to prevent any more insurgents escaping to the north, and to force them toward the country west of the railroad.

Major March, formerly commander of the Astor battery, with a battalion of the Thirty-third infantry, occupies Vigan, having made a forced march from San Fabian. The rest of the regiment is on the way.

Loss Greater Than First Stated.

Philadelphia, Penn., Dec. 1.—It now transpires that the property destroyed by the fire which consumed the large building occupied by Lippincott & Co., and several other business structures here on Wednesday, was only partially covered by insurance. Lippincott & Co., the heaviest losers only carried about $1,500,000 insurance and their loss will foot up fully $500,000 more than this. Partridge & Richardson, the Baily glassware House and the Rosenberg Millinery Company sustained losses aggregating about $1,500,000, on which there was an insurance of only about one-half that amount. All of the buildings will be rebuilt at once.

The Nebraska Senatorship.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 1.—Reports received at the capital indicate that Senator-elect M. L. Hayward has but a few hours to live. Politicians have been busy in Nebraska for some time figuring out the successor to be appointed. There have been thus far four names mentioned prominently for the position—ex-Senator W. V. Allen, W. J. Bryan, Gilbert A. Hitchcock, and Gov. Poynter. It is believed that W. J. Bryan could have the place if he wishes to accept it.

The Crisis in Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 1.—The Goebelistes no longer make it a secret that they are confident of being able to control the State Board of Election Commissioners and to compel the issuance of certificates of election to Goebel and the other Democratic candidates. They are betting freely on the outcome and give every other indication that a majority has been brought into line to throw out the votes of the contested counties, and, on the face of the showing left, issue the certificates.

Taylor Will Speak Anyway.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 1.—Gen. Taylor, claimed by the Republicans to have been elected Governor, is preparing an inaugural address, and will deliver it in the State house yard December 12, whether he is given a certificate of election by the State Board or not.

Many Chicago Bankrupts.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 1.—The month just closed shows the largest business in bankruptcy matters ever conducted in the United States District Court here. Since Nov. 1 the number of petitions in bankruptcy filed with Clerk T. C. MacMillan amounted to 252, compared with 187 the preceding month. The number filed since the first of the year up to Aug. 1 was 1,450. During the month of November the total of indebtedness scheduled by the petitioners was $7,000,000.

Young Girl Gets a Fortune.

Findlay, O., Dec. 1.—Little Jennie McCormick, formerly of this city, has fallen heir to about $30,000 left to her by a maiden aunt in Vermont. After a long search the girl has been located with her grandparents at Charlotte, N. C.

THE INDIANS VICTORIOUS.

Carlisle Pigskin Chasers Defeat Columbia Easily.

HUDSON'S PRETTY KICK.

New York, Dec. 1.—Carlisle's great team of red men trouced Columbia's kickers before a Thanksgiving crowd Thursday afternoon in a manner humiliating to Seth Low's pupils.

From start to finish Columbia was never a factor in the game, and the quality of football put up by the Indians was gilt-edged.

Columbia students filled the west stand and began early to implore their eleven to get out and hustle hard for the sake of the college on the hill.

The air rang with the cheers of the students, and now and then they borke forth into song, the burden of their complaint being that they wanted touchdowns early and often.

Columbia's line was decidedly weak and looked like a cast-off sieve after the Indians' repeated onslaughts. The features of the game were the pretty goal-kicking of Hudson and Columbia's lamentable inability to check a single Indian rush.

As the game drew near to its close the pall of night dropped kindly over the scene and hid Columbia's last agony from the throng of spectators and under the cover of darkness the paleskin eleven withdrew from the scene of their defeat.

Final score, Carlisle 45; Columbia 0.

Wisconsin Defeats Michigan.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—For the first time since the severance of athletic relations in 1893 the football elevens of the Universities of Michigan and Wisconsin met Thursday.

It was said that arrangements had practically been concluded for a game between Wisconsin and the University of Chicago December 9, and this fact gave added interest to the game, as in the event of a Wisconsin victory the Western championship would be decided on that date.

Wisconsin was without the services of her regular centre and left guard, the veterans Comstock and Roy Chamberlain, and was compelled to use Wilmarth, the regular quarter, as a substitute half in case Larson gave out. But the eleven, as made up, was, nevertheless, considered one of the strongest ever sent out from Wisconsin.

One of the largest crowds that ever gathered at a football game in Chicago witnessed the struggle. The gates were opened fully an hour before the game was called and from that time until after the whistle sounded, a stream of ribbon-bedecked football partisians entered through the gates.

Excursion trains were run from Madison, Marinette and Milwaukee, Wis., and Ann Arbor and Menominee, Mich., and more than four thousand out-of-town admirers of the two teams lent their voices to the cheering, which was incessant from the beginning of the game.

The game was full of interest from the start and ended with a score of 17 to 5 in favor of Wisconsin.

Cornell Beaten By Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 1.—In the football game here Thursday afternoon between the Cornell and Pennsylvania elevens, the latter won by a score of 29 to 0. There was an immense crowd present and the players on both sides were cheered heartily by their admirers from start to finish of the game.

McGovern Defeats Sprague.

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 1.—In a bout scheduled to go twenty rounds Terry McGovern, champion bantamweight of the world, made short work of Eddie Sprague of Streator, Ill., in the Nutmeg Athletic Club Thursday afternoon. McGovern finished his man in less than one minute after the opening of the second round. He practically disposed of him in the first round, when, after a fierce exchange he landed a heavy blow on the solar plexus that laid the Streator lad on the flood.

McGovern outgeneraled his opponent from the call of time until the finishing touches were put on the Canadian.

Old Physician Passes Away.

Sag Harbor, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Dr. Edgar Miles, one of the best known practising physicians in Suffolk County, died at his home here Thursday. He was seventy-five years old and had practised in Sag Harbor and vicinity for fifty-five years. He was the father of Clarence C. Miles, Coroner of Suffolk County.

Canada's Champion Beaten.

New York, Dec. 1.—At the Greenwood Athletic Club, Brooklyn, Thursday afternoon, George McFadden, of New York city, knocked out "Bobby" Thompson in three rounds. Thompson claims to be the lightweight champion of Canada, but he was no match for McFadden.

Statement of Bank of France.

Paris, Dec. 1.—The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes: Notes in circulation increased 152,875,000 francs; treasury accounts current increased 19,800,000 francs; gold in hand decreased 4,425,000 francs; bills discounted increased 194,275,000 francs; silver in hand decreased 1,200,000 francs.

New York Salesman Robbed.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 1.—S. E. McClelland, traveling salesman for the Moore & Schaefer Clothing Company of New York City, lost his pocketbood, containing $2,000, and his diamond stud, worth $500. He thinks he lost them while watching the newsboys eat a Thanksgiving dinner in Wolf's store.

The Statendam Ashore.

Rotterdam, Dec. 1.—The Holland-American Line steamer Statendam, Capt. Bonjer, from New York Nov. 19, via Boulogne 29th, for this port, is aground at Maasluis, ten miles below here, and must lighten to float.

THAT'S THE IDEA!
You ought to see what we can do for you before doing anything for yourself. Painting depends upon the paint and the painter. Better preparations than ours were never put on by a brush. Wherever paint is put, it should be put there to stay long enough to make it worth while to do the job. The warring elements have no effect on our durable mixtures.

"You see, to start with," said a Cleveland, Ohio, compositor, my work—that of setting type at the case—allows me little chance for exercise, and is too confining for anybody who is in the least subject to indigestion or dyspepsia. That has been my trouble for years, and I attribute the recent noticeable improvement in my physical condition to the occasional use of

I first heard of them through a fellow-workman who, on hearing my tale of woe, one day offered me a Tabule and said he would guarantee it to act on the liver. I took it under protest, but was surprised with the result. It was gentle but effective, and since then I have gradually noted an entire change in the working of my system, and I think that Ripans Tabules are the best remedy for liver and stomach troubles this side of anywhere. They are really in my case a substitute for physical exercise."

IN A FEVER OF ANXIETY.

Great Britain Expects News of More Dangerous Work.

METHUEN IS WOUNDED.

Full List of Casualties in Latest Battles Not Yet Received in London—News Held Back By Too Strict Censorship—More Serious Fighting in Store For the Boers and British.

London, Dec. 1.—Gen. Lord Methuen, commander of the army marching to the relief of Kimberley, was wounded in the thigh at the battle of Modder River. The War Office has announced that a bullet struck him in the thigh inflicting a slight flesh wound.

Gen. Lord Methuen has sent to the War Office his first report of the British losses in the battle of Modder River Tuesday. The principal officers killed were:

Lieutenant Colonel Horace R. Stopford, Coldstream Guards; Lieutenant Colonel Henry P. Northcott; Captain Sydney Earl, of the Coldstream Guards. Among those reported severely wounded is a cousin of Queen Victoria, Count Gleichen, a Major in the Grenadier Guards, who is the only son of Prince Victor of Hohenlohe-Langenburg and the Princess, who was Miss Laura E. Seymour, a daughter of Sir George E. Seymour. Eight officers in all were wounded.

Gen. Methuen has asked that re-enforcements be hurried to him with all possible haste, as more dangerous and severe fighting is looked for in the next few days than has yet occurred.

Authentic Despatches Scarce.

London, Dec. 1.—Only two authentic dispatches have been received since Thursday by the War Office, or the newspapers, from the columns of Lord Methuen, Clery, Hilyard, or Gatacre, excepting the one telling of the wounding of Lord Methuen. It is known that this is not due to interrupted cables. The only other cause is the censorship, and the silence is taken to mean that very important strategic movements are under way.

A striking example of the strictness of the censorship is revealed in the conversation between the editor of a leading London paper and a high official of the War Office. The former was anxious to learn something about a certain correspondent, from whom nothing had been received in a week. Fearing, perhaps, that he had been killed or wounded, the editor made inquiries at the War Office.

"Oh, he is all right, and is cabling your paper every day," said the official, "but you won't get any of his despatches for some time."

An extraordinary diversity of opinion seems to exist as to whether the Modder River battle was fought on the north or south bank of the river. When Methuen's telegram was first received, it was the opinion at the War Office that the action had been fought on the south bank, but the opposite view was taken by many military experts.

Now opinion at the War Office is much divided. The supposition that the forces were on opposite sides would be the official one, but this cannot be reconciled with some of the phraseology of Lord Methuen's telegram. Had the Boers elected to fight with the river at their backs, defeat must have spelt annihilation, as it is inconceivable how the passage of the stream could have been made with safety, with a determined enemy pursuing them.

A short distance to the east of the railway the rivers Riet and Modder make a fork, running roughly northeast and southwest. It is very possible that the Boers awaited the British attack on the eastern side of this fork, the right resting on the Modder and the left on the Riet.

Battled For Ten Hours.

London, Dec. 1.—The War Office has received the following despatch from General Buller, dated Cape Town, Tuesday, November 28:—

"General Methuen reports:—

"Reconnoitred at five A. M. enemy's position on River Modder and found them strongly entrenched and concealed. No means of outflanking the river.

"Full action commenced with artillery, mounted infantry and cavalry at half-past-five. Guard on the right, Ninth brigade on the left.

"'Attacked position in widely extended formation at half-past six, and, supported by the artillery, troops found themselves in front of the whole Boer force, eight thousand strong, with two large guns, four Krupps, &c.

"'The naval brigade rendered great assistance from the railway.

"'After desperate, hard fighting, which lasted ten hours, our men, without water or food and in the burning sun, made the enemy quit his position.

"'General Pole-Carew was successful in getting a small party across the river, gallantly assisted by 300 sappers.

"'I speak in terms of high praise of the conduct of all who were engaged in one of the hardest and most trying fights in the annals of the British army. If I can mention one arm particularly, it is two batteries of artillery.'"

Estcourt Cut Off Again.

Estcourt, Nov. 24 (Delayed in transmission.)—Communication has been cut again. There was a fight yesterday (probably the one at Beacon Hill) in which the British carried the enemy's position at dawn. It was not held, however, and our troops returned to the camp at 9 o'clock. Our loss was fourteen killed and seventy-one wounded. Major Hobbs, of the West Yorkshire, is a prisoner, but not wounded. The Boer artillery had a range superior to the British.

President's Quiet Thanksgiving.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Thanksgiving Day was closely observed at the national capital. All the executive departments, district offices and business houses were closed. At the White House the President and his household spent the day in the usual quiet way. Mr. and Mrs. Abner McKinley came over from New York to dine at the White House, and accompanied the President to church.

Men who are always in a hurry, and most men are, want a soap for the toilet that will lather quickly and freely in hot or cold water. Other soaps than Ivory may have this quality, but will likely contain alkali, which is injurious to the skin. Ivory Soap is made of pure vegetable oils, no alkali, produces a white, foamy lather, that cleanses thoroughly and rinses easily and quickly. Money cannot buy a better soap for the toilet.

MADE MANY HOMES HAPPY.

Mrs. Howard Gould Remembers the Poor on Thanksgiving Day.

New York, Dec. 1.—Mrs. Howard H. Gould made poor families happy Thursday with a fine Thanksgiving dinner. When she was Katherine Clemmons, the actress, she thought out a novel plan for this holiday charity, one that would leave no tinge of bitterness behind for those who received it.

Now that she is Mrs. Gould she has a list of her friends among the poor. There are families of workingmen who cannot work, or cannot find it; of widows whose labor barely pays the rent and supplies the common necessaries, whom she has been helping. These people think a good deal of Mrs. Howard Gould.

She gave them a genuine Thanksgiving Day feast. But it was not served for them as a crowd in a hall somewhere, with patronizing, well-dressed men and women to look on with benevolent superiority to see unfortunate creatures enjoy a good dinner.

Instead a hamper containing a fine turkey roasted and stuffed, a plum pudding and all the fine things that ought to go along with these noble dishes, were sent around at dinner time to the houses of the people on her list. "With Mrs. Howard Gould's compliments."

Reardon Dies in a Police Cell.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 1.—A prisoner locked up for being drunk in the Eleventh and Race street station died in his cell. He was Cornelius Reardon, aged thirty-seven years, of No. 206 Mervine street, an Assistant Appraiser in the Custom House and a widely known politician in the Tenth Ward, but the police had failed to recognize him. Reardon's life might have been saved but for the difficulty the police had to get a doctor to attend him. The man when arrested was in an advanced stage of inebriation and appeared totally unable to make his way homeward or take care of himself.

The New Orleans at Colombo.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The cruiser New Orleans has arrived at Colombo on her way to Manila. This brings her up to the cruiser Brooklyn for the first time since their ocean race to the Philippines began. The Brooklyn arrived at Colombo Wednesday, and will coal probably in time to get away ahead of the New Orleans. The latter has been gaining of late, however, and has bettered her position by two days against the Brooklyn since leaving Aden. At this rate the indications are that the New Orleans will be the first to arrive at Manila.

Hon. William L. Wilson Ill.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 1.—William L. Wilson, formerly Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House and later Postmaster General, now President of Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Va., is in very bad health. Dr. Janeway, the New York specialist, has directed Mr. Wilson to spend the winter in the arid deserts of Southern Arizona. Mr. Wilson is now planning to leave for that country, and does not expect to be back in Virginia before April.

Alleged Murderer Captured.

Elkhart, Ind., Dec. 1.—Newton Doman, wanted in Morgan County, West Virginia, for the alleged murder of Absolom Kesler and Ann Doman, in September, and also for an alleged postoffice robbery in the same state, has been arrested by Sergeant Whiteman, of Elkhart, and Sheriff Elliott, of this county, at Syracuse, Ind. Holland Kalor, wanted as an accessory who was also here a short time ago, is still at large.

Fast Mail's Quick Trip.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 1.—The fast mail, No. 35 on the Lake Shore road, has made a record breaking run from Albany. It left Albany five hours late and made up two hours and four minutes on the run to Cleveland. The regular schedule is as fast as that of any train on the road and this run breaks the record for so long a distance. The run from Buffalo was within three minutes of the new record made last week.

General Wheeler is Coming Home.

Florence, Ala., Dec. 1.—General Joe Wheeler, in a letter to W. M. Bunting, editor of a local paper, says: "Will you please state in your valuable paper that letters addressed to me at Washington about matters of Congressional business will be attended to, as I expect to be there very soon."

Two Killed By Coal Gas.

Sandusky, O., Dec. 1.—Peter Schmid and Mrs. Genrose Gehri, brother and sister, aged 79 and 74 respectively, have been found dead in their residence here, having been asphyxiated by coal gas.

In Respect to Mr. Hobart.

City of Mexico, Dec. 1.—The annual Thanksgiving ball of the American residents here was postponed to the 1st of January on account of the death of Vice-President Hobart.

Wolcott's Partner Denies It.

Denver, Col., Dec. 1.—Joel F. Valle, law-partner of Senator Wolcott, indignantly denies the report which links the Senator's name with that of Mrs. Maud, who is now suing her husband, W. De S. Maud, in Akron, Ohio, for divorce. He says: "There is about as much truth in the report as there was in the story of the Dewey breach of promise suit. You may say positively that, when either the Senator of Mrs. Wolcott desires to apply for divorce, he or she will do so here in Denver. I do not think it is proper or decent to link the Senator's name with that of another woman, as is being done in this instance."

The Molineux Jury Complete.

New York, Dec. 1.—When court adjourned for Thanksgiving the jury in the Molineux trial was complete and Monday the taking of testimony will begin. Molineux spent his Thanksgiving within the dismal walls of the Tombs, but the day was made as pleasant for the prisoner as possible by his father, mother and his wife, who were allowed to visit him in the jail and to take him luxuries for a Thanksgiving feast. Imprisonment is telling on the young man wonderfully and he says he will be glad when the end of the trial is reached.

Attacked Them With an Axe.

Boston, Dec. 1.—Charles G. West, of Roxbury, has been arrested here for an alleged assault upon three persons with an axe. The victims are Emma R. Sanaine, John Bairnard and Lillian M. Jennings. It is feared that the Sanaine woman and Bairnard are fatally injured. The third victim, also, was seriously wounded, but it is thought she may recover. The affair is believed to have resulted from a quarrel over money matters. Bairnard is seventy-nine years old.

Lumber Very Scarce in Canada.

Toronto, Dec. 1.—So much lumber was exported to Buffalo during the last season that there is a scarcity of it in Canada. Already the box lumbermen have put up their rates 100 per cent. higher than they were at a corresponding time last year, and to meet that the box manufacturers of Toronto will advance prices 50 per cent.

CITY OWNERSHIP.

[FROM "MUNICIPAL MONOPOLIES."]

Under private ownership of electric lights Watertown, New York, population 20,000 pays $82.12 per annum rental for street arcs. Water power is used.

Under public ownership Bangor, Maine, population 20,000 pays $58.04 per annum for street arcs which includes 5 per cent for depreciation of plant. Water power is used.

The Trenton correspondent of the Philadelphia Record informs the readers of the Record that as a counselor in North Jarsey who can "arrange and settle all kinds of political troubles, and to make suggestions on local political affairs, Mr. Hobart's mantle will undoubtedly fall on Wm. Riker, of Essex, clerk of the State Supreme Court, a gentleman of wealth and who possesses many of the diplomatic qualities which marked the late Vice-President."

During the month of November there were chartered 173 companies by the State of New Jersey. The receipts in filing fees were $32 800. This shows a falling off in the receipts of about $10,000, as compared with October. There were eleven concerns each with a capitalization of $2,000 000 or more incorporated during the month.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Senator Kean's added responsibility of being the successor of Garret A. Hobart as the Republican leader in the northern section of the State is not worrying him to any perceptible degree. He takes to it naturally and with a vigor. The change is destined to alter existing conditions within a few months. Men who were not always included in the party councils will come to the front and some others will subside, and before a long period has elapsed a few of the last shall be first and the first shall be last. Mr. Kean is said to have a marvelous memory, which, of course, includes both friends and enemies.—New York Press.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Some time ago there arose a dispute between J. A. Clark and Robert Guttridge, of this city, as to whether Abraham Lincoln passed through Elizabeth when he was on his way to Washington to be inaugurated President for the first time. Mr. Clark contended that he did, and he was strongly opposed by many friends who thought differently. It was finally agreed that the matter should be left to the New York Sun for decision. That paper answered the querry by saying that "Several friends write that Lincoln passed Elizabeth on his way to be inaugurated, but only two of them really know that he did. The Elizabeth Daily Journal quotes Mr. Lincoln's speech from the New Jersey Journal of Tuesday, February 26, 1861. Lincoln was in Elizabeth on Thursday, February 21, 1861. That he left the train does not appear from the account." This decision therefore wins the bet made by Mr. Clark with Mr. Guttridge for the former. Mr. Clark remembers securing leave of absence from school to see the train go through, and Justice Mosher was among those who went to Washington to attend the inauguration.

—A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend the Thanksgiving service this evening at the Crescent Avenue church under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society.

—The stand pipe belonging to the Plainfield Water Supply Company and located on the mountains, is now all right and does not leak. The tank is filled with water ready to be used in case of emergency.

Prevented a Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs. Geo. Long, of New Straitsville, Ohio, prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her, and she writes this marvellous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of the matchless merit of this grand remedy for curing all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1 00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store.

Gifts For Pastor Jackson.

After the union praise and Thanksgiving service held Wednesday evening at the Mt. Olive Baptist church, the King's Daughters, led by Mrs. Lelia Fields, and the missionary society, led by Miss Lula Reede, marched into the parsonage and richly supplied the pantry. They also presented the pastor with a purse of money. The trustees of the church came along soon afterwards and gave the pastor a fine turkey.

To Cure a Cold in One Day.

Our facilities for making clothing enables us to place on our tables clothing ready to wear at prices below what the average retailer would have to pay for it, that is the secret of our increasing business.

Our $3.25 Men's suits are as good as the average $5.00 suit.

Our $4.25 Suits compare with the average $6.00 suit. And so on along the line—

Our $8 50, $9.00, $9.50, $9.75 and $10.00 suits are made from pure stock, they are stylish in cut and superbly tailored. We particularly call the attention of the dressers to this line.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(By a Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 1.—Miss Ada Boelson of Bayonne, has returned to her home after a visit with friends in town.

A representative of the Central railroad was in Dunellen Wednesday to see Silas J. Peney and Wm. Waldron, who were injured by the cars at the Grove street crossing a few weeks ago. It is understood that a settlement will be made with the men for the injuries sustained at that time.

Rev. A. I. Martine, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will preach to the members of William G. Holton Council, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, and also to the Lakeview and Lakeside Councils, Daughters of Liberty, on Sunday evening.

Prof. Messerole had as his guests on Thanksgiving Mr. and Mrs. Fry, son and daughter, the parents of Mrs. Messerole, and Prof. Richard Morris, of Rutgers College, who was formerly superintendent of the Dunellen public schools.

The house of Cornelius Taylor was broken into Tuesday night but nothing was stolen. There are many tramps prowling about between this borough and New Market.

Services are to be continued every evening this and next week at the Seventh Day Baptist church. Rev. Martin Sindall is delivering discourses at these meetings.

The social given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Douglass on Tuesday evening proved a pleasant affair.

Rev. Dr. E. S. Jamison pastor of the Methodist church, preached at the Union Thanksgiving services yesterday in the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

Thomas Thomas, a student at Princeton University, spent Thanksgiving with his mother and sister.

Mr. and Mrs George Wiegand, of Pluckamin, spent Thanksgiving with relatives in town.

New sidewalks have been laid on Lincoln avenue between North avenue and Front street.

The public schools of the borough will reopen Monday morning.

SCOTCH PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, December 1.—An exciting football games was played yesterday morning when the local eleven met the Pond Tool Works team on the gridiron in the rear of the school. During the first half neither side was able to score, but when time was called Scotch Plains had the ball within a yard of the goal, but were unable to get the ball over. The team showing seemed to give the whole eleven new life and encouragement, and on their kick-off in the second half they carried the Pond team along towards the coveted goal and in eleven minutes had made a goal and touchdown. Play was resumed, but the Pond eleven were unable to score, while the Scotch Plains eleven made another touchdown and goal, making the final score 10 to 2.

The death of Mrs. Frederick Rose occurred at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gibbs yesterday morning, shortly after 11 o'clock. Mrs. Rose had been a sufferer for a long time from consumption, but her family and friends hoped that signs of improvement, which appeared at times, would be lasting, but they only proved to be temporary, and the end, though looked for for several days, was a sad blow to her family and friends who loved her for her loving ways and Christian forbearance during her long and tedious illness. Mrs. Rose leaves a husband and one child, who have the sympathy of their many friends in their sad breavement.

The three-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Frentz met with a painful accident while playing at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Frentz Wednesday afternoon. The little fellow had climbed upon a chair and was playing with his aunt when in some way he missed his footing and fell to the floor, breaking his arm at the wrist. Dr. Westcott was called and set the injured member, and the little sufferer is doing very nicely but it will be a long time before he will have the use of the arm again.

The little juniors of the Baptist church filled a barrel of clothing, grocers, etc at their donation meeting in the church Tuesday afternoon. The barrel was forwarded to Miss Currie, a missionary doing slum work through the east side of New York city. The members of the society are meeting with the Juniors of Plainfield at a meeting being held in the Park Avenue Baptist church this afternoon.

Union services of the Methodist, Episcopal and Baptist churches was held in the Baptist church Thanksgiving morning at 10:45. Rev. G. M. Shott of the Baptist church preached the sermons of the day.

Mr. and Mrs Charles Frentz, of New York, spent Thanksgiving day with Mr. Frentzs' parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Frentz, of Westfield avenue.

The pupils of the public school are enjoying a four day's vacation, school not re-opening until Monday morning.

Miss Mamie Merseirs, of Plainfield, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Merceir yesterday.

Property Transfers.

The following property transfers have been recorded at the county clerk's office, Somerville, between Nov. 13th and 17th: Geo. F. T. Carter et ux to Bessie B. Fullerton, North Plainfield, $1; Sarah Bird and husband to Addie Dietrick, North Plainfield, $1; Betsy French et al, to John H. Hock, North Plainfield, $1; Hippolyte Tenier et ux, to John H Koch, North Plainfield, $1; Lizzie Mitze and husband to Henry Harington, Jr., North Plainfield, $1; Alfred C. Johnson et ux, to Seth G. Babcock, North Plainfield, $75.

Reading Railroad to Increase Wages.

The Philadelphia and Reading Railroad will grant an increase of pay to all employes today. This has been rumored on the street for several days, but no confirmation of it could be had until Tuesday afternoon. The scheme includes a system of pay for overtime which employes on the main line have been demanding for some time. It is said that the increase will average 12½ per cent.

Petit Jurors in Somerset.

The following persons from North Plainfield have been selected as petit jurors to serve at the December term of court at Somerville: Charles Sebring, Lewis R. Bird, Gustav Winckler, Daniel Ackor and Wm. H. Morris. Those from Warren are Frank Codington, George Gaddis, John Gunton, J. R. Mundy, Frank Aliette and John C. Cooper.

Miss Gassner, of Central avenue, spent yesterday with friends in New York.

Robert Love, of Duer street, is detained at home with a severe attack of lumbago.

Prof. E. H. Lewis, of Chicago, has been visiting relatives in Plainfield for a time.

John Naylor, of East Third street, who is ill with pneumonia, is reported as slightly improved.

Miss Mary Brown, of Washington avenue, has returned from a visit with Brooklyn relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Pope, of West Fourth street, are entertaining Miss Gertrude Wood, of Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Leonard, of Perth Amboy, have returned after a short visit with Plainfield relatives.

Rev. Mr. Johnson and family, of Staten Island, former residents of this city, spent yesterday with relatives in town.

Harry Thompson, of Newark, representing the New York Metal Company, has been stopping in Plainfield for a short time.

C. C. Cokefair, of Crescent avenue, who has been in Duluth, Minn., for sometime on business, is spending a few days at home.

T. S. Armstrong and family, of Duer street, are at Camden enjoying a family reunion at the home of his mother. They will not return until Monday.

Bert Rogers, of this city, who has been working for sometime past on contract work in New Brunswick, spent Thanksgiving in Plainfield with his family.

Rev. and Mrs. Harry M. Lowry, of Rahway, who were called to Plainfield on account of the death of his father, and who have been making a brief visit here, have returned home.

Bismark's Iron Nerve

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

So completely is "The Dazzler" changed this season, that it might well have a new name. Music and dancing constitute about three-fourths of any farce comedy, and when the curtain rises upon Cosgrove & Grant's comedians in that well known farce comedy at Music Hall Saturday matinee and night the audience may be prepared to see something that bears but very little resemblance to last year's "Dazzler." It is true that Zake Pipes will will be there and he will worry poor old Ratz just as he did last year, and everybody will be glad to recognize the rough tramp and a few other familiar characters; but the clothes upon their back and songs they sing, the dances they do will all be new, bright and fresh. Theatre goers who have seen "The Dazzler" five or six times can see it again and go away feeling that they have seen a new show, nothing but the name of the old one remaining.

The famous and ever-welcome Diamond Brothers' Big Double White Minstrels, fifty strong, opens at the Music Hall next Monday night and there is no doubt but that the attractions will pack the house and please everybody who sees it. This minstrel troupe has always been a favorite on account of the excellence of the show presented. This season it is not only larger but brighter than ever. The first part is said to be a marvel of beauty; the costumes and scenery are not only magnificent, but the singers and comedians are among the foremost entertainers in the line of minstrels. The olio consists of an array of vaudeville artists, all of whom are entertainers of high merit. Watch for the noon-day street parade Monday.

* * * * *

A play, which illustrates truthfully New England life, is "The Village Postmaster," which will be seen at Music Hall, next Wednesday night. The postmaster figures conspicuously throughout the play, still it is not on him alone that the merit of the play depends, for most of the other characters are equally as strong. Wesley Rosenquest, manager of the Fourteenth Street Theater, has given to it a quaintness and a touch of simplicity of that will commend it to all theater goers. It is full of human nature and heartiness with a course of a pretty love story running through it. The title role of "Seth Huggins, the Village Postmaster," is in the hands of Archie Boyd, one of the best character actors in the country. The complete New York production will be given here, cast, scenery, property, etc.

A GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs Frederick Scheelen Have Been Married Fifty Years.

Mr. and Mrs Frederick Scheelen, of Jerusalem road, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home yesterday afternoon in a befitting manner. The home of the happy couple was thronged with the members of the family and friends, who called to extend congratulations upon the auspicious occasion. During the afternoon a collation was served by the hostess. Mr. and Mrs. Scheelen received a number of pretty and valuable presents in honor of the event which had called the merry company together.

Preußen.

Provinz Brandenburg.

Berlin. Eine Marmorbüste von Ludwig Bamberger ist dieser Tage in der Reichsbank aufgestellt worden. Die Büste ist von dem Bildhauer Reinhold modellirt und von einer Anzahl Freunde des um unsere Reichswährung so verdienten Mannes der Reichsbank als Geschenk überwiesen.—Die hiesige Staatsanwaltschaft hat hinter dem angeblichen Bostoner Professor Heinrich Unverhau, der verschiedener Betrügereien beschuldigt wird, einen Steckbrief erlassen.—In Folge eines Streites darüber, wer den Flottenbund gegründet hat, hat der Berliner Fabrikant Stroschein den Fürsten zu Wied, den Präsidenten, und Viktor Schweinburg, den Sekretär des deutschen Flottenvereins, wegen Beleidigung verklagt.—Eine originelle Bewegung ist unter den Berliner Hausdienern im Gange. Sie verlangen die Abschaffung der althergebrachten Gewohnheit, daß die Hausdiener in Geschäften vom Chef wie vom Personal beim Vornamen genannt werden, und protestiren ferner dagegen, daß einzelne Vornamen wie „Friedrich," „August" u. s. w. bei einzelnen Firmen gewissermaßen erblich sind und den Hausdienern ohne Rücksicht auf ihre richtigen Namen beigelegt werden.

Charlottenburg. Eine eigenartige Anfrage an den Magistrat haben 13 hiesige Stadtverordnete gerichtet. Sie lautet: „Hat der Magistrat ein Verbot erlassen, daß die Stadtverordneten einen im Bau begriffenen Bauplatz nicht betreten dürfen?"

Spremberg. Hier starb Kapitän zur See a. D. Saeckel, der die deutschen Truppen befehligte, die am 28. Dezember 1888 von der Kreuzerkorvette „Olga" auf Samoa gelandet wurden, sich aber vor der Uebermacht der Eingeborenen, die von dem Amerikaner Klein geführt wurden, unter großen Verlusten zurückziehen mußten, worauf eine stärkere Abtheilung gelandet wurde, welche die Eingeborenen vertrieb.

Provinz Hannover.

Hannover. Beim Abladen von Kohlensäureflaschen vor der Schweizerherberge in der Köbelingerstraße explodirte mit furchtbarem Knall eine derselben. Sie flog wie eine Granate durch ein Fenster des oberen Stockwerkes und bohrte sich in die Decke einer Schlafstube des Hauses Nr. 44 ein. Durch ihr beträchtliches Gewicht löste sie sich und fiel auf ein darunterstehendes Bett, das soeben erst verlassen war.

Provinz Hessen-Nassau.

Kassel. Von der Strafkammer des Landgerichts ist der Landes-Rentmeister Barthelmes wegen fortgesetzter im Amte begangener Unterschlagungen zu 4½ Jahren Gefängniß verurtheilt worden.

Frankfurt. Dieser Tage fand hier die Einweihung des neuen Serum-Instituts in Gegenwart des Kultusministers sowie von Vertretern der staatlichen und städtischen Behörden und der Universitäten Gießen und Marburg statt.

Provinz Pommern.

Stettin. Der frühere Vorsitzende des Aufsichtsrathes der National-Hypotheken-Kredit-Gesellschaft, Graf Arnim-Schlagenthin, ist aus der Untersuchungshaft, in der er vor einigen Wochen wegen des gegen die früheren Mitglieder der Verwaltung jener Gesellschaft schwebenden Strafverfahrens genommen war, entlassen worden. Die Entlassung erfolgte auf Grund ärztlicher Gutachten, wonach ein ernstes Leiden, mit dem Graf Arnim behaftet ist, die Fortsetzung der Haft unthunlich erscheinen ließ. Wie es heißt, hat Graf Arnim zuvor eine Sicherheit in Höhe von 200,000 Mark leisten müssen.

Podejuch. Der Händler August Groth wurde, als er seinem Pferde Futter eingeben wollte, von diesem in den Unterkiefer gebissen und ihm die Unterlippe fast vollständig losgerissen.

Provinz Posen.

Posen. Die Stadtverordneten genehmigten den endgiltigen Vertrag über die Eingemeindung der Vororte Jersitz, St. Lazarus und Wilda, die am 1. April n. J. mit Posen vereinigt werden. Durch das Ausscheiden der Vororte wird der Kreis Posen-Ost in seiner Leistungsfähigkeit so beschränkt, daß er Theile der benachbarten Kreise zugewiesen bekommen soll, wozu die Genehmigung des Landtages erforderlich ist.

Rawitsch. Der Propst Dulinski wollte bei der Vereidigung der hiesigen katholischen Rekruten die Fahne als nicht geweiht nicht zulassen. Er gerieth darüber mit dem kommandirenden Offizier in Zwist. Eine Untersuchung ist eingeleitet.

A Big Whistle.

A whistle that can be heard at a distance of forty miles has just been constructed. It consists of three whistles made of bell metal of bronze and arranged between two discs of steel. The mouth of the largest is turned upward and the mouths of the other two are turned downward; the steam is conveyed through openings in the discs. The whistles are tuned to chord, and they harmonize as accurately as a well-tuned piano. The sound emitted is not harsh, as one would expect in a whistle that is audible at such a distance, but is quite soft and low.

Wall paper that has become bruised or torn off in small patches, and cannot be matched, may be repaired with ordinary children's paints. Mix the colors until you get as nearly as possible the desired shade and lightly touch up the broken places, and at the distance of a foot or two the disfigurement will be quite unnoticed.

"You've got an awful cold, Smithers. Why don't you go to a doctor and get him to give you something for it?"
"Give me something for it? Man, he can have it for nothing, and welcome."

GOTHAM'S PHILANTHROPIC FARCE.

How a Woman With More Money Than Brains Amuses Young Women Whom She Calls "Her Working Girls."

BY BESSIE DOW EATES.

The funniest thing in New York happens on Friday nights every week. It is already a good many months old and promises to live to a good old age. And it has been funny—the very funniest thing in all this big city—ever since its beginning, and it will continue to be a screaming farce as long as it lives.

The funniest part of it all is that its instigator and central figure does not have the faintest idea that there is anything funny about it.

I have told the story to a number of New Yorkers who have lived here for years and who know the city thoroughly, and, although they greeted my statement that it was "the funniest thing in New York" with skeptical smiles, they have always agreed with me when they have heard the story.

In a fashionable up town street, a few doors from Fifth avenue and not very far from Central park, there lives a very rich woman who likes to think and is anxious for her friends to believe that she is graciously charitable in a unique and original way.

She is the wife of a wealthy man, the daughter of a very rich man whose sporting tastes have made his name well known and the sister-in-law of a famous member of England's house of lords.

She wanted something to do, did this rich woman, whereby she could make the sunshine of her gold gleam down into the paths of the poor. She wanted to do something that would refine and elevate and purify that portion of New York that works for its living.

She scorned the "flannel petticoat idea." No. What the working women of New York need, she thought, is something that will educate and elevate their æsthetic instincts.

So she got together a club of "working girls." She receives the club at her house on every Friday evening and endeavors to educate the æsthetic instincts of its members by showing them her good clothes, not her dresses and bonnets—oh, no; that would be too much like vulgar display—but such refining and elevating portions thereof as her lace petticoats.

She takes the club members through the drawing room sometimes and lets them look at the pictures and bric-a-brac, taking care to explain as they pass along what each one is. She tells them about the opera and about life and matters among the Four Hundred and attempts to talk literature, art and political economy.

The girls are admitted at the area door, where the French governess receives them and gives them a French lesson—sometimes. If madam is ready for them to go up stairs, there is no French lesson, because she does not like to wait. If she isn't, the lesson varies in length from ten minutes to an hour, lasting only until she is ready for them to meet her in the dining room.

Nearly all the young women who attend this remarkable club do so simply and solely for the sake of a lark. They are bright, sensible, intelligent and capable women who maintain themselves in comfort and enjoy not a few luxuries. Scarcely one of them but is by far the superior of madam in common sense, shrewdness, intelligence and information, and they take keen delight in making her show off her vanity, her ignorance and her feeling of superiority. Then they go away and make all manner of fun of her and her assumptions.

SHOWING HER GOWNS.

One evening madam had her little son brought in and said to him, "Tommy, these are mamma's working girls." Ever since then they call themselves "mamma's working girls," although not in her presence.

Very frequently it happens that madam prefers to go out, and then the girls are invited into the dining room, and madam appears before them in all the glory of evening dress, rustling in silks and flashing with jewels. She goes away feeling very happy and complaisant over the help she has given to the influences that are working to elevate the "lower classes," and the girls have hard work to keep their faces straight until they get into the street again.

I went to one of the meetings of this club, and I know whereof I speak when I say that it is the funniest thing in New York. There were present that evening a student in Barnard college and two newspaper women, who were there out of curiosity and for the sake of the fun; the wife of a well known artist whose family belong to the Four Hundred and whose name and lineage are very much better than madam's own, who also, though rather a frequent attendant, goes for the sake of the lark; a number of public school teachers possessed of bright, keen understanding and a daredevil spirit, who go regularly every week and thoroughly enjoy themselves making madam say ridiculous things, and, finally, one single meek mannered little thing who took it all seriously and seemed to be much edified by the proceedings.

Madam never asks who her club members are, nor what they do, nor where they live, nor what their circumstances are, nor in any way shows any interest in their lives. To her they are simply, en masse, "working girls" and subjects upon whom to apply the elevating lever of her information, intellect, taste and possessions. Her manner toward them is an indescribable mixture of affability and hauteur, as if she were trying to make them feel that she believed they were her equals and at the same time hugging her evident consciousness of immeasurable superiority.

A LECTURE ON POLITICAL ECONOMY.

Their manners toward her were an admirable piece of acting. They were quietly admiring, respectful, submissive, grateful and occasionally even a little apologetic, and it was worth being subjected to the stream of trash which madam talked for two solid hours to see the quiet, innocent looking way in which they set traps for her and made her lay bare her ignorance and vanity.

"Have you ever read Gibbon's 'Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire?'" one girl demurely asked. "No," said madam, "but I have read Carlyle's."

She tried to talk political economy and naively confessed at the start that she knew nothing about it "except that the middle man is the one who ought to be strung up by the neck." But that did not hinder her from attempting to enlighten their minds for one long hour on the subject. Any one of them could have told her a great deal more than she knew about it.

She spoke of a paper she had heard, read in the parlors of one of her society friends which had referred to Henry George. "I think that is his name," she hesitated. "Henry—yes, Henry George. I didn't know anything about his theories," she rattled on while more than one head was bent down to conceal a smile.

Madam has traveled a great deal, and she was telling her "working girls" one evening about Paris. "Oh," exclaimed one, "I so want to go to Paris! But I don't suppose I ever shall."

"You must not despair," madam replied encouragingly. "You may go as a lady's maid some time, and you may marry a rich man, and then you can go. You never can tell what's going to happen in this country, you know. Why, you may be the president's wife yet. You know, the president's wife very often comes from just such people as you."

One evening madam told them long and volubly about the glories of the opera. Finally she said, with her inimitable little manner of affability, condescension and reserve: "But I suppose you go to the theater sometimes, don't you? Isn't there some place, some theater, where you can go?"

She had kept them quite late on one occasion, and one girl exclaimed a little as she looked at the clock.

"Oh," said my lady, "you need not be afraid, even if it is 11 o'clock! Nobody will speak to you, of course, for you are just working girls!"

She Wants It Stopped.

Mrs. Estelle G. Mauff, a young and handsome Chicago woman, has begun a suit in the circuit court of that city the outcome of which will be of special interest to women. In some mysterious manner her photograph came into the hands of a distilling company and is being used on the labels of bottles of liquor sold by the distillers. She asks the court for an injunction restraining the company from thus using her picture.

TRUE VALUE OF FOOD

IT IS NOT WELL-KNOWN BY ALL HOUSEKEEPERS.

Price is No Guide to the Amount of Nourishment—One Half Our Incomes Spent Blindly—Useless Expense That Fritters Away Money.

The current number of What to Eat contains an article by Laura Clark Rockwood on the "Pecuniary Value of Food," which is worthy of consideration. The greatest percentage of the earnings of the wage-workers of the country is spent for food but, unfortunately, the money is spent more or less blindly, she declares. That is, the man or woman who does the buying determines the purchase largely by taste or by chance, as the case may be, without regard to the nutritive values.

And this mistake is through no special fault of theirs, but because there is a great lack of general knowledge upon the subject of the pecuniary economy and nuitritive value of foods. The average income of the people of this country is small, not over $500 per annum, and statistics show that of this amount over one-half is spent for food. In many cases it has been found that less money might have been expended with better results; that is, the different members of the family might have been better nourished through a different selection of cheaper food. The most economical food is that which is best adapted to the requirements of the user, which will best nourish the body, which will "agree" with him, and which is the least costly.

It is all very well for those who can afford porterhouse steak to use it, but the rank and file cannot afford it, and what they need to know is a palatable way to prepare the cheaper cuts. A butcher in New York said that he had great difficulty in trying to convince a poor seamstress, who always bought tenderloin steaks at 60 cents a pound, that she might get just as much nourishment from the cheaper cuts. She was rather insulted at the idea, and said with some dignity that she always bought the best. Now this is certainly a case where the best is not always the cheapest.

For instance, bearing in mind that neck meat is richer in protein than tenderloin steak, let us consider the pecuniary value of each. With our lower prices here in the West we can purchase two pounds of steak for 30 cents, and this amount will make a meal for four people, there being, of course, considerable waste in the way of fat and trimmings.

This same 30 cents will buy four pounds of neck meat. In our household we cook it by thoroughly browning all sides of it in hot butter in which there is a slice of onion. This searing over the outside serves to retain the juice. Then boiling water enough to keep the meat from burning is added and the meat allowed to simmer for three hours. Add salt and pepper a short time before it is done. A half hour before dinner dumplings are made and added to the contents of the kettle. The result is as savory and nutritious a dish as one could wish. A second serving of the same meat appears as croquettes into which the gravy left from the first day is incorporated, and a third serving takes the form of hash, minced meat on toast or meat soufle, and thus the meat for three meals has been provided at a cost of only 30 cents.

Do not despise hash. It is a tempting dish when properly prepared. Chop the meat fine and put in the skillet with a little boiling water, butter, pepper and salt. Spread the chopped potato on top. Cover closely and let the potato steam through, but do not stir it into the meat until just before taking it from the stove. The nutritive value of whole wheat flour is not appreciated as it should be, for the food value of a pound of flour is much greater than that of a pound of meat, while its cost is very much less.

It is safe to say that many people spend much more for their food than is necessary. In a recent article in one of the leading magazines a percentage of over three-fourths of the income was given for necessities, and that when the income varied from $1,500 to $2,000. That ratio for a family of four was much too large, for in the West, where food is comparatively cheap, a family of four can live very well on $400 a year, judiciously expended for food. This sum, of course, does not include the cost of preparing the food; that is servants' wages.

Philippine Women.

The aristocratic Philippine matron and her daughters indulge in no greater bodily exercise, if they can help it, than that required for driving or shopping. But the peasant woman shares her husband's work, whatever it may be, laboring at the plow behind an ungainly carabao or water buffalo in the paddy field, or helping to pole huge lorcha, or cocoanut raft, up or down the river, besides attending to her domestic cares. Hundreds of girls are employed in the great cigar factories, and other in the convents labor to weave the far-famed pina lace of the Philippines, several at a time squatting on the floor around a single frame, picking and manipulating with deft fingers the infinitesimally delicate fibers. Sometimes they work for months to complete a single mantilla or handkerchief. These native women are rarely employed by European residents as domestic servants except in the capacity of lady's maid or children's nurse, and even these positions are occupied by boys. They are very reliable, and the utter absence of sense of gratitude, so characteristic of the entire Philippine race renders it an almost hopeless and very exasperating task to attempt to train them as servants.

A Giantess.

Ella Ewing, the giantess, has completed her residence near Gorin, Missouri. The house was built on a scale proportionate with Miss Ewing's needs. The doors are ten feet high, and the ceilings and windows look like those of fabled giant's castles. She is still growing and is now eight feet, four inches tall.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic.—"Until He come." The Lord's supper.—I Cor. ii, 23-28.

In this passage of Scripture we have Paul's description of the Lord's supper. He had not been present when it was instituted. He had not received it from Christ's disciples, but from Christ Himself. How or where he received the ordinance from Christ we do not know, but we do have his explicit statement, "I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you."

1. The Lord's supper is a divine ordinance. It was instituted by Christ Himself in the supper room in Jerusalem at the close of the Feast of the Passover. It was the Lord Jesus Himself who, the night He was betrayed, took bread and brake and blessed it and commanded it to be eaten in remembrance of Him, and the cup and blessed it, attaching to it the same command. This fact should attach peculiar interest and importance to this feast.

2. The Lord's supper is a memorial. "This do in remembrance of Me," said Christ. It is not only a memorial of Christ, but a memorial of that crowning act in His life by which the world was redeemed from sin—the death of Christ. "As often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup ye do show the Lord's death till He come." The necessity of such a memorial is due to the fact that the human heart is so prone to forget. We forget even our greatest benefactors with amazing ease. What a blessed thing it is, therefore, that Jesus instituted this ordinance to keep us in constant remembrance at least of the most stupendous event in the history of the world! Though we forget all else of the ages past, we should never forget the death of Christ.

3. The Lord's supper is a symbol. The bread and wine are not actually changed into the body and blood of Christ. Transubstantiation is superstition and absurdity. The elements of the communion are but symbols. They are material types of spiritual attainments. Christ is spiritually received by faith by those who partake of this ordinance in accordance with Christ's appointment. The Holy Spirit applies to our souls the blessings contained in this Christian festival. And thus alone can we be blessed in partaking of these sacred emblems. There is nothing efficacious in the elements or in him who administers them, but when properly received the Holy Spirit blesses them to the good of our souls.

4. The Lord's supper is a command. "This do," said Christ. He left no alternative. It is as direct a command as can be found in the word of God. The indifference of multitudes to it who profess to believe in Christ is inexplainable. Many never observe it, refusing to identify themselves with God's people in the church where alone it is observed. Others who unite with the church are often careless and indifferent to this great command. How can we neglect or ignore it?

5. The Lord's supper is a permanent institution. "Till He come," says Paul to the Corinthians. Christ has not come yet, and therefore until He does this sacred ordinance is binding upon His people. Let us appreciate this high privilege and find a joy and delight and profit in showing forth Christ's death "till He come."

Bible Readings.—Ex. xii, 1-14; Ps. xxiii, 1-6; c, 1-5; cxvi, 12-19; Isa. liii, 1-14; Mark xiv, 12-32; John xiii, 1-15; xiv, 18-21; Rom. v, 6-8; Acts, ii, 41-47; xx, 6, 7; Heb. vii, 25-28; I Pet. ii, 21-25; I John ii, 1, 2; Rev. ii, 10.

Disappointment.

God keeps a school for His children here on earth, and one of His best teachers is disappointment. My friend, when you and I reach our Father's house, we shall look back and see that the sharp voiced, rough visaged teacher, disappointment, was one of the best guides to train us for it. He gave us hard lessons; he often used the rod; he often led us into thorny paths; he sometimes led us down into the valley of the death shadow, but never did the promises read so sweetly as when spelled out by the eye of faith in that very valley. Nowhere did he lead us so often or teach us such sacred lessons as at the cross of Christ. Dear old rough handed teacher! We will build a monument to thee yet and crown it with garlands and inscribe on it, "Blessed be the memory of disappointment."—Rev. Dr. T. L. Cuyler.

For the Sake of Preaching.

Ministers often preach for the sake of preaching, not for the purpose of being heard. God's voice was mistaken for thunder. Men heard Him, although they failed to catch the meaning of what He said. There is a force in being heard. Great preachers have usually great voices. John the Baptist must have had a marvelous speech power to have been heard by the vast multitudes that thronged his ministry. The "still, small voice" could reach a single auditor alone in the mountain, but the multitudes are not moved that way.—Presbyterian Journal.

A Good Name.

Secure a good name to thyself by living virtuously and humbly, but let this good name be nursed abroad and never be brought home to look upon it. Let others use it for their own advantage—let them speak of it if they please—but do not thou use it at all but as an instrument to do God glory and thy neighbor more advantage. Let thy face, like Moses', shine to others, but make no looking glass for thyself.—Jeremy Taylor.

Enlisted For a Conflict.

Converting grace is a free gift, but it is not a crown. Just as soon as you give your heart to Jesus you are enlisted for a conflict that will continue until the last blow is struck. You will not get to heaven before your time.—Lutheran.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 3, "Until He Come"—Text, I Cor. xi, 23-28.

"As often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup ye proclaim the Lord's death till He come."

"The great memorial" we may well call the Lord's supper. Nelson's monument in Trafalgar square, London, does not so fittingly commemorate the deeds of that great commander and the debt of the British nation to him as this simple service shows the gift of God in Christ and our constant dependence upon Him.

From earliest times men have devised many schemes to perpetuate their own names and the fame of their achievements. Inscriptions and pictures on rocky cliffs, tablets of stone, clay and metal, buildings, statues, columns, pyramids, books and pictures, all are charged with the same purpose of transmitting to coming generations the story of the former times. A few survive the hatred of men and natural decay. The most part perish and are forgotten.

It is well it is so, for few have anything to tell of value to the race. The Christ story is worthy to be remembered. It has value for every one of humankind. Its importance is vital for well being to all on earth and all who shall come after these and for all ages in all changes and through all worlds. The message of redemption, the offer of salvation and eternal life, needs an adequate memorial. No writings or material constructions are sufficient to preserve and propagate it. What ceremonial can be devised of universal fitness for all men at all times and in all places and circumstances?

The Christian meal is an entirely appropriate and adequate memorial of the work of Jesus Christ on earth. All must eat and drink frequently to sustain bodily life. In doing so there is the active use of one's own powers in taking the food which only God could cause to grow. We receive what we cannot produce. We appropriate and use what no one could force upon us. So we grow and thrive. In spiritual life it is similar. God provides all gifts and graces ready for use, but all are valueless and dead until we appropriate and use and make them our own. The bread of life must be fed upon to produce life in us. In trusting and loving service we feed upon the Spirit of God as truly as in eating we feed on material provisions. This is fellowship with God.

Fellowship with men is another element in the ordinary meal. The family sits at the same table, and all eat of the same food to be strengthened for their common work. Their interests are united. So in the Eucharist the whole family of Christ meets to receive the same spirit and be fitted for united work. Christ, though invisible, is truly present in spirit to each one who sincerely looks for Him.

It is also a prophecy of the Lord's return. He has gone to prepare a place and has promised to return and receive His church unto Himself. He is preparing a home for His bride. The church is preparing herself for His coming and her new home. The Lord's supper keeps ever in memory the mutual pledge of fidelity until His return and gives inward grace and love to endure to the end.

Bishop Beverly Waugh.

His life of service covered the first half of the century. He was born in Virginia in 1789 and died in the city of Baltimore in 1858. He was buried in Mount Olivet cemetery, Baltimore, near Bishops Asbury, George and Emory. He was converted at 15 years of age and at 20 entered conference. He filled some of the most important charges in Baltimore conference. He was afterward made book agent at New York and in 1836 was elected bishop. On the death of Bishop Hedding in 1852 he became senior bishop. He was for 49 years abundant in labors. His travels before the age of railroads were very extensive, and in 22 years of service he was never absent from one of his conference sessions as bishop. His death was sudden, from an affection of the heart. He was dignified, simple in manner, kind hearted and of sweet disposition.

Select the Best.

It is a pleasing perplexity which comes each year with the Christmas holidays, this selecting presents for the loved ones. What memories of the past and plannings for the future! What consultations and secrecy! What making and buying! We wish to give each one the best and most appropriate present possible.

So should it be with our gifts to Christ. Shall we give less thought to Him and His claims than to these lesser friends and their pleasure? Give Him your best—the best moments of the day in heart devotion, the best words and smiles and songs and deeds. Select with greatest care your daily gifts for Him, for He has given you heaven's best.

NEW WAY TO FELL TREES.

Saws Fast Taking the Place of Axes in Maine Woods.

The lumbermen are making a decided departure this season in the method of cutting down trees, using saws instead of axes in felling them.

Up to last year the axe alone was used by the lumbermen in the Maine woods. Only the most expert men did this part of the work, and men spent years in the Maine woods before they were considered skillful enough to become part of the crew employed in felling trees. By the time a man became a chopper he felt like a second lieutenant. On account of the number of years spent in learning this part of the business the choppers intrusted with felling trees made unusual good wages, the best receiving nearly double the amount paid those who were a part of the crew who took care of the timber after it had fallen.

That method of felling trees has been found by the lumbering companies to be very expensive, both on account of the time required to fell each tree and the wages paid. Last year the experiment of cutting down the trees with saws was tried and found so successful that this year only a small share of the men sent into the woods are expert choppers, or if they are expert choppers they are not sent in with the understanding that they are to use their axes in cutting down trees, but rather in trimming the limbs after the trees have fallen, or in cutting up the trees into lengths for handling in the log drives.

There is another gain, that of time and wages. It is in the amount of timber saved on the stump. Formerly it was a common thing to see all over a lot stripped of tree stumps from one to three feet above the ground. This part of the tree was the very best, both because it was free from knots and because it was the largest part of the tree in girth. By using the saw the trees may be cut off nearer the ground and a big saving made.

The saw used is slightly different from the old cross-cut saw, the teeth being of a pattern fitted to that work.—Maine Special in Boston Herald.

Not a Heart Stimulant.

The idea that alcohol is a heart stimulant has been thoroughly shown to be a fallacy. Alcohol is an anesthetic, a narcotic and a depressing agent. It at first seems to increase the heart vigor by its paralyzing effect upon the vasomotor centers, resulting in dilatation of the small arteries, so lessening the work of the heart, but its real effect is to lessen sensibility and paralyze, no matter what the dose or the condition in which it is given. We do not want substitutes for alcohol, but we want something which will accomplish the effect of heat over the heart, as a flannel cloth wrung out of hot water has a wonderful stimulating effect upon the heart. Slapping the chest, applications of heat to the spine, hot and cold sponging to the spine, hot fomentations to the head, rubbing the surface from the extremities toward the heart—these are the most effective of all measures for stimulating a flagging heart. The writer speaks thus confidently, after having employed the measures named for the last 25 years, and with a degree of success which has left no desire to return to alcohol and other so-called stmulants.—Dr. J. H. Kellogg.

You Taste With Your Eyes.

The sense of taste is divided into three sections, each of which has under its charge the distinguishing of a special class of tastes. The fore part is chiefly sensible to pungent and acid tastes, the middle portion to sweets and bitters, and the back part to the flavor of roast meat, butter and rich and fatty substances. Recent experiments, however go to show that the tongue has less to do with what we call taste than is generally supposed. Our notions as to flavor are greatly helped by the sense of sight, smell and touch. Blindfold your eyes and hold your nose, and you will find it very difficult to tell whether you are drinking tea or coffee. Of course your tongue is absolutely helpless in distinguishing between one substance and another if your nose does not do its part, which is about four-fifths of the work. Thus you really taste with your eyes and nose.—Answers.

New Champion Globe Trotter.

It is, of course, only to be expected that the new championship for globe trotting should belong to an Ohio man. John W. Bookwalter, a rich manufacturer of Springfield, Ohio, has traveled all over America, Europe, Africa and most of Asia. He is now on his way to Thibet, the unknown land to the capital of which a white man has never been permitted to penetrate. In the last two years he has traveled 25,000 miles in Central Asia. Mr. Bookwalter will go to Thibet with an exploring party sent out by the Russian government. He not only expects to reach the Thibetian capital, but he is planning for an interview with the Grand Llama, the head of the Buddhist religion. Mr. Bookwalter believes that Russia is about to take possession of Persia and all the other countries bordering on India. He also predicts that Russia, China and England will form an alliance and divide Asia among them.

They Got Around the Will.

John Wagonmaker and Miss Alice Crookston were married at Palmyra, Pa., recently. By consent of the courts the groom instead of the wife changed his name, and he is now Mr. Crookston. This was effected because the bride was bequeathed a fortune by a relative who provided that no person not bearing the name of Crookston should inherit the money.

Prefer the Old Way.

The suggestion made by the Denver Humane Society that women gave up the use of side saddle and sit astride when riding horseback, is meeting with marked opposition. The most powerful, if not the principal objection, is that no dress could be devised for the innovation that would be as becoming as that now in use.

It has been discovered that the profession of prompter is more suited to women than to men, as their voices carry better across the stage and are less audible in the auditorium.

CURE FOR INSOMNIA.

New York Physician Finds a Way to Induce Sleep.

A well known New York physician who suffered from insomnia for many years, has found out a brand new method whereby sleep can be instantly obtained. The doctor has tried it on himself and on his patients, and has never known it to fail. It is essentially self-asphyxiation, and yet there is no possibility of danger.

A long breath is first taken and the air is kept in until positive discomfort is felt, which is slowly exhaled. This is repeated a second and a third time, and in a minute or so the patient will be asleep.

The theory of sleep that finds the widest acceptance is that sleep is occasioned by exhaustion of the nutrition of the brain, due to its functional activity when awake. During sleep there is a flow of nutrition to the brain, consequently an increase of blood to supply its deficiencies. By holding the breath the head and brain become intensely congested with venous blood loaded with carbonic acid. The carbonic acid and the other chemical products which venous blood contains act on the nerve tissues, producing sleep, and the same as ether and chloroform produce artificial sleep.

If you are truly brain weary do not try to replace the thoughts with others, but make the mind a blank as far as possible. If the brain is excited turn it to monotonous thoughts, recite poems or verses, or go over a journey which you very much enjoyed, recalling even the most trifling incidents. Physicians are more and more arriving at the conclusion that the way of treating insomnia is not by means of drugs. There is always the danger of forming the drug habit, and in most cases drugs are not necessary. If noises inside the house or outside disturb one, putting cotton in the ears will be found to give relief. Those who are troubled with sleeplessness should retire at a regular hour each night. If there is a fear of not being able to sleep that keeps one awake one should feign not to want it, and one will be surprised to find how quickly sleep comes. Always take a slight meal before retiring to rest. A vast number of cases of insomnia are caused by empty stomachs.

WHY SHE WAS CAREFUL.

Wasn't Certain That the Prisoner Was Her Daughter and the Reason.

Two days go there was at the police matinee an old negro woman who was a leading witness against a younger woman, who was said to be her daughter. The old woman had sworn that "Ter de best ob her b'lief the girl was not her daughter." This puzzled the Recorder no little, and it being necessary to get more witnesses, the case was postponed until yesterday.

Yesterday afternoon Miranda Johnson was again arraigned for acting in a disorderly manner and the old woman was present. Several witnesses swore positively that the prisoner was the old woman's child, and the Recorder turned to the old woman and said:

"Old woman, why did you appear to be in doubt about Miranda being your daughter the other day?"

"Lawd bless yer, honey, Ise still in doubt 'bout dat matter," was the reply.

"Why?" asked the Recorder who felt that he had a great mystery before him.

"Bekase," replied the old woman, "dar wus er misshur ob two babies er long time ago and de matter hain't cl'ar till this day. You see my little baby was born on de same day dat annudder nigger 'oman's baby was er born and jest to play a joke on Ike—dat's my ole man—dey put de two babies wid me and tole him dat he war de fadder ob twins. Dey got de babies kinder mixed, and dey jest gib me one ob dem and gibbed de udder 'oman de udder baby. And I doan know till dis day whedder dey gibbed me de right baby er not. Dat am de r'ason dat I hain't gwine ter sw'ar reckless like 'bout dis gal in de cote."

"I am going to fine Miranda $10.75," announced the recorder "and, old woman, if you think she is your daughter you can pay the fine, and if you think she is not, you can let her work in the stockade for three weeks."

The old woman gave herself the benefit of the doubt and Miranda is working three weeks in the stockade.—Atlanta Constitution.

Pockets in Stockings.

Stocking pockets are the latest fad, a New York dry goods man said the other day. They are made to hold a roll of bills, jewelry and valuables that can be stored away in a small space. The pockets are worked into the top of the hose, above the knee, and are made with a fastening, so that there is no danger of their contents falling out. There are so many sneak thieves who steal from bedrooms while the family is at dinner, from carriages and from other places where women are obliged to leave their money and jewelry when they are not in use, that the safe receptacle about the clothing of the owner is an absoute necessity. Pockets are not generally found in women's dresses, and the stocking pocket has suggested itself to some inventive genius. It looks as if these new pockets would be as safe as any that could be devised.

His Heart Displaced.

Dr. J. Sheldon Wright, who attended Martin Welge, 19 years old, after he was knocked down by a Brooklyn trolley car, was a witness for the boy the other day in his suit against the company to recover $25,000 in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn. The physician testified that when he was called to attend Welge he found his heart displaced. It was suspended by a fibre and vibrated like a pendulum, swinging fully two inches to and fro. When Dr. Sheldon was called in he had little hope of his patient's recovery. Since then he has somewhat improved.

Mushroom Vaccination.

A French scientist has found that some kinds of mushroom afford a vaccine against the venom of snakes. The juice of the mushroom renders a person immune against the poison for a month or two.

Proportion of Students.

In Germany one man in 213 goes to college; in Scotland, one in 520; in the United States, one in 2,000, and in England, one in 5,000.

DANCE AT THE PARK CLUB.

Given Thanksgiving Eve and Largely Attended by Young Society Folks of the Borough.

The first of the series of formal dances at the Park Club was held in the club house Wednesday evening. It proved to be a great success. Many of the young people were home from college for the holiday and were in attendance. The club house was crowded, even too much so for comfort. It promises a very active social season at the club if the events in the future have such a large represention of city and borough society in attendance. The patronesses were Mrs. J. H. Howell, Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen and Mrs. George Hallock. The dance was arranged by the regular entertainment committee.

WALTER GIBSON MARRIED.

Former Plainfield Boy Takes Paterson Girl for His Wife.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Paterson, Dec. 1.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel R. Hopson, of this place, on Thanksgiving Eve, took place the marriage of Miss Estella Hopson and Walter S. Gibson, of Passaic, but formerly of Plainfield. The wedding took place at 8:30 o'clock and was performed by Rev. Samuel R. Hopson, great uncle of the bride. The latter is an attractive blonde and she was gowned in white organdie and carried white roses.

There were about twenty-five of the immediate relatives present and after a wedding supper Mr. and Mrs. Gibson left for their home at Passaic, where the groom has a lucrative position with the C. R. Newman Electric Construction Company.

A Pleasant Surprise Party.

A surprise party was tendered Mrs. Elijah Stites, of 26 Chatham street, Wednesday evening, at which time a large number of friends were present. There were present guests from this city, Perth Amboy, New York and South Plainfield. At midnight supper was served.

Death of Mrs. Rose.

The death of Mrs. Rose, formerly of this city, but late of North Plainfield township, occurred last evening after a long illness with consumption. She was in her twenty-fifth year. She was formerly Miss Emma Gibbs, of Scotch Plains. The funeral will be private.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

What Can You Do With It?

This is a question we can answer better after we have seen the garment you want dyed. A THANKFUL SPIRIT IN LOCAL PULPITS.

ards of President McKinley's Thanksgiving Proclamation. In the absence of the choir Charles Lewis rendered very acceptably two baritone solos, his singing of "Where are the Reapers?" being especially well done. The offertory was for the poor of the parish, an annual custom at this church.

The sermon was by Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, who took his text from portions of the 32d and 33d chapters of Deuteronomy, which had to do with the song of Moses and the mercies of God toward His people. He said that the world is being made better owing to the glory of her men and women, who are being taught by the Bible, which today has come to be looked upon as the only true word of God.

Americans, he said, have much to be thankful for today owing to the great prosperity of the country which had been made possible by the divine providence of the Creator, who had so guided the affairs of the Nation backed by a wise administration, as to cause great rejoicing. When it is known that the export of flour from this country is so great that if the large numbers of barrels of that product shipped abroad were placed end for end they would extend across the great Atlantic ocean and half-way back again. This, to say nothing of the nearly $120,000,000 of surplus in the United States treasury, is another reason why the American people have just cause to be thankful today for the wise Providence which has brought about this era of prosperity.

The speaker than referred to the poor and the great charity of the American people who did not hesitate to give of their means—a fact that truly signified the graditude which they felt for God's blessings. The poorest man is by no means the one who has today to set down to a frugal meal; but it is the man who has lost faith in the words of Moses—the faithless man—who is the poor man.

In our enthusiastic patriotism the American's are apt to forget our gratitude to God and get over the line into that of bigotry. While we all have a natural love for our country we should not forget that while we are throwing up our caps and shouting for recent victories there is something back of all this. As a nation we cannot take all the credit—we must look to One higher in power and feel grateful to Him and His greatness.

Before closing Mr. O'Donnell spoke of the soldiers' monument which the citizens purpose to erect in the triangle of the Crescent church lot. He said that when passing the spot he could in his imagination see the tall shaft rising heavenward, in honor of the brave men who had given up their lives for their country and he hoped that his dream could yet be a reality.

Rabbit Club's Good Time.

The fifth annual jaunt of the Rabbit Club, composed of twelve members identified with the Brooklyn Bicycle Club, enjoyed a dinner yesterday at Campbell's Clubhouse. One of the features, which were fast and furious, was the slack-wire performance of Michael Burke, which was very clever.

VOTE FOR DEMOCRATS!

Democratic Candidates' Election Means Good Government.

A prominent Republican of this city said yesterday that he "believed as a taxpayer and citizen that a healthy opposition to his party in this city would be productive of much good; that we were fast drifting to a condition of affairs that would land us in the sad and sorry situation of Rahway and Elizabeth. He said: "I do not charge fraud, but our plans and methods are far too extravagant. It must be checked or we are doomed."

Voters, there is much for reflection in these words. It is ill time to increase salaries and appropriations as the present Council did, when the revenues of property holders are decreasing. The times and the people demand an economical administration. Cost of living is on the increase, while wages remain the same. The working man and middle salaried man who make our best citizenhood can bear no more burdens in the way of taxation. The most desirable class of citizens for a town or city are the middle people in life. They are consumers. This class will scrutinize taxes and tax values before locating.

Let us stop this wreckless course.

The Republicans ask for votes on on the record of their party in the administration of city affairs during the past year. One of their most important acts was to incrase the public expenses so that the tax rate is fourteen points higher this year than last. If a majority of their candidates are elected next Tuesday they will reason that the people do not object to high tax rates, and that if they raised the rate fourteen points last year and the people endorse then at the next municipal election, then they will be justified in going to the limit and even beyond next year.

Do the property owners of Plainfield want such a condition of affairs to continue another year?

The way to rebuke the extravagant and high-handed administration of the local government is to vote for the Democratic candidates, who are pledged to an economical administration of city affairs.

A vote for a Democrat next Tuesday will be on the safe side.

JERSEY JINGLES FOR YOUNG DEMOCRATS

And Other Feeble-Minded People.

There was a young fellow named Teel,
Who was great with a rod or a reel,
In sports very fit, but in politics nit,
This funny young fellow named Teel.

There was a big man named Burnett,
Who tried twice a nice job to get;
To be dumped by the cloth made our Charlie quite wroth,
But it's "Try, try again" says Burnett.

A daisy is young Denny Kane,
Selling badges from Jersey to Maine;
With a badge on his vest how he'll puff out his chest,
Three cheers and a tiger for Kane.

There's a corking young man named Brokaw,
Who is naturally built to make law,
He'll put Andy to rout, the tax rate wipe out,
For gracious' sake vote for Brokaw.

Hooray for our good friend De Witt,
In a Freeholder's chair he'll just fit:
He'll level all ridges, sell lumber for bridges,
And be a great man, will De Witt.

Our natty young friend Mr. Marshall,
To politics always was partial;
A dandy is he, though the heathen Chinee,
Hasn't very much use for young Marshall.

A health to our Councilman James,
Who can make bully good wagon frames;
In the Council no word he has said has been heard,
But "Bills are Correct." Vote for James.

For Justice we'll back up McGinley,
Whose knowledge of law is spread thinly;
The Omer C. Moores will give many loud roars,
If only we back up McGinly.

A fine old Celtic gentleman,
Is Mr. Hackman Callahan;
Just give him time, he'll wipe out crime,
And reign sublime, will Callahan.

Come put in your vote for J. Manning,
His party's dead hope he's now fanning;
Between you and me, he won't be 1, 2, 3,
He's dead against license, is Manning.

The Second Ward has put up Day,
Its future destinies to sway;
He'll get the job at home to stay,
And meet success some other Day.

Come, three times three for Atterbury,
Young and old, let's all be merry;
He will make our foes look chary,
Whoop 'em up for Atterbury.

Here's a health to our champion Hetfield,
Never to foe did he yet yield;
In the Big Six he learned a few tricks,
Which come in quite handy to Hetfield.

The Third ward's named our Willie C.
It's Justice of the Peace to be;
He'll run Neagle up a tree,
He's a peach, is Willie C.

And next comes along Charlie Mc.
Who is longing some folks heads to crack;
Just give him the power, and inside of an hour,
He'll have us all jugged, will young Mc.

Hurrah for our good Elmore D.
Who again wants to be J. of P.;
You'll elect him we trust, or he'll swell up and bust,
For he loves his posish, does E. D.

And last but not least cometh Mike,
As Constable he'll make a strike;
He'll hold up the law as never before,
Hooroo for our Constable Mike.

BOROUGH WANTS ALL OF ITS BACK TAXES

Effort To Be Made To Collect $3,000 Now Outstanding.

COUNCIL TO TAKE ACTION.

FINANCIAL MATTERS OF THE BOROUGH ARE ATTENDED TO.

Regular December Meeting of the Council Was Held Last Night—Collector Brown's Report Read—Several Petitions Received—Only $8.75 in Fines Collected in Police Court During Month of November.

The regular December meeting of the Borough Council was held last evening with Mayor Smalley and Councilmen Valiant, Burtis and Clark present. The evening was spent in considering routine business cheifly.

The monthly report of Collec or Brown is as follows: Taxes and interest, $3,726.63: Board of Health, $48.70; special school, $1,620.58; Watchung avenue, $17.50; rent from property sold for taxes, $36; rebate interest on state tax, $32 55; license, J. A. Gracely, $213.75; Germania Fire Insurance Co., $35; Frank Rowley, clerk, $22.50; fines, $4; sale of stone, $332; dog tax, 10 cents. Balance, November 1st, $10,571.75; total receipts, $16,528 98; disbursements, $10,463 68; cash on hand, December 1st, $6,065.30; borough, $5,860.08; Watchung avenue, $205 22.

A petition was received from Charles Bock, who owns the property at 27-29 Somerset street, and being an exempt fireman he asked the Council to grant him an exemption of $500 on the property. He stated that he had been paying the taxes on the property for the years '96, '97 and '98, and asked to have the matter adjusted. It was referred to the proper committee. C. L. Nichols, of Washington avenue, asked the Council to locate a crosswalk in front of the property at 21 Willow avenue, where he claimed one is needed. Ward, Edmunds & Boughton, accountants, of New York, asked for an opportunity to bid on the work of examining the books of the borough. The petition was laid on the table.

Clerk Frank Rowley reported the receipt of $8.75 from Recorder Long from fines collected during November. Mr. Clark, chairman of the street committee, presented his report. It showed an expenditure of $96 65 for labor; $79.92 for stone; $9 65 for putting a pipe in Washington avenue, and $87 for dressing Somerset street. The Plainfiel d Water Supply Company and Street Railway Company will stand the latter expense on Somerset street. There was expended in all $296.60, and there is now an unexpended balance of $415.30.

Mayor Smalley made inquires concerning the laying of pipes by the borough. He referred to the one laid on Washington avenue which cost the borough $9 65. He thought the Board of Freeholders should stand some of the expense. The matter will be investigated and settled definitely.

At this time a number of resolutions were offered by Mr. Valiant. One provided for the payment of a $1,000 note due December 5th, and another for a $1,600 note due December 8th. Another provided for the drawing of a warrant for $15 to pay for repairs to a property held by the borough and located corner of Somerset street and Park place. He offered another one providing for the payment of $12,486.34 to County Collector E. B Allen, and another one to meet a $1,600 note due January 2d, 1900. Still another resolution by the same member approved the action of Collector Brown in deducting $61 and $20 from the rent of property owned by the borough at 8 and 10 Craig place and 70 Manning avenue. This was due to the fact that the occupants had repaired the properties to the extent of the amount named. Another resolution by Mr. Valiant provided for the erasure of certain names from the tax list, as uncollectable. The last resolution by this member called for the drawing of a warrant for $625 to meet a fire department bond and pay the interest on the other fire department bonds.

The last matter considered was that regarding the 1898 delinquent tax list amounting to about $3,000. Mayor Smalley introduced this matter and stated that according to law the list would have to be advertised within two years, and as nearly half of those delinquent would have to be stirred up he thought it about time to begin to stir. Notice was given that next month the Council will take action looking toward the collection of the several amounts. His Honor realized that the matter of collecting taxes had been pushed rather lively, but he was not inclined to be too easy on those who could pay and were holding off until the last minute.

BY TROLLEY TO THE ELIZABETH CITY LINE.

Horses Pulled Electric Car Across B. & O. Tracks.

COMPLYING WITH TERMS.

TRIP WAS MADE FROM PLAINFIELD YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Superintendent Adlemann Was in Charge of the Party, Which Included Railway Officials and Invited Guests, Who Made the Trip—Line From Plainfield to Elizabeth City Limits Now in Operation.

The last and official opening of the Westfield & Elizabeth Street Railway Company's line from Plainfield to Roselle took place yesterday afternoon when two cars with the railway officials and invited guests went over the route.

The first car started from the station at 2:30 o'clock in charge of John Adlemann, superintendent of the new line. He acted as motorman, while the rear end was looked after by Charles Schleif, of Plainfield. The second car was manned with John H. Conway as motorman and S. Huffman, foreman of the Plainfield City Railway Company, as conductor.

The trip was without event until Cranford was reached when the cars were sidetracked and an open car, which had been following the other cars down from Plainfield, went ahead carrying E R. Collins, of the Newark Evening News; A. E. Pearsall, of the Union County Standard; Louie E. Hendrickson, of the Elizabeth Journal, and R. M. Sickle, of The Daily Press. This car proceeded to the crossing at the B.& O.Railroad tracks, where four horses were hitched to the car and an attempt made to pull it across the tracks but the horses could not move it until more horses were procured. After half an hour of work the car was landed on the other side, but it took fully two hours longer to get it on the tracks. When this had been done the car ran to the Elizabeth city line, as the ordinance granted the company reads that the line must be in operation by the first of December. The cars then returned to Plainfield.

The road is now running on regular time, the company having procured ten second-hand closed cars and with a coat of paint converted them into fairly good looking trolley vehicles.

The cars now run as far as the B.& O. tracks below Cranford but pasengers will be transferred acr oss the tracks if they wish. As soon as the proper iron work can be delivered an overhead bridge will be erected over the tracks. This bridge will be of a pretty design and will have a raise of about seven per cent. on both sides.

Col. E. W. Hine said to a Press reporter that large open cars would be placed in the service in the summer and that the small cars now in use would be transferred to the cross town line when that road is finished, which will before the summer traffic begins.

A BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Last Wednesday evening a birthday party was given to Miss Windham, of Fairview avenue, at which time a number of friends gathered and spent a pleasant evening. The house was handsomely decorated for the occasion by Henry Windham, who is an artist in this line. During the evening there was vocal and instrumental music and dancing. Those present included Mrs. Dentz, Oscar Philpitt, Miss Bertha Philpitt, Miss Mamie Philpitt, Mrs. Philpitt, Mr. Philpitt, Miss Carrie Dentz, Frank Dentz, Miss I. Fawn, John LuMare, Miss Buttie, Mr. Buttie, Mrs. Fawn, Mrs. Smith, Mr. Fawn, John and Chas. Daly, Miss Jessie Totten, Miss Ruth Dulsa.

"Great Men and Famous Women"

"Great Men and Famous Women" is the title of a work of exceptional value and interest among the countless publications of the day which combines the works of celebrated authors and artists. The work is being introduced in Plainfield by H. Weber, of Newark, who has interested the members of the Board of Education to such an extent that Probasco, the president of the board, has endorsed the work, and it will be used in the public schools. From an artistic standpoint the work is not excelled by anything in this line and the short biographical sketches of famous men and women are alike valuable and interesting.

CHARLES POTTER DIED THIS MORNING.

Printing Press Manufacturer Lived To Be 75 Years Old.

A LONG BUSINESS CAREER.

ONE OF THE FIRST PROMOTERS OF THE CYCLINDER PRESS.

In 1879 Mr. Potter Removed His Printing Press Plant to This City, Where It Has Grown into an Immense Industry—Prominent in The Seventh-Day Baptist Church—Loved by the Men He Employed.

Charles Potter, president of the Potter Printing Press Company, died early this morning at his residence, No. 427 West Seventh street, of a complication of diseases, after a few week's illness, aged 75 years.

Charles Potter was born in Madison county, N. Y., April 21st, 1824, being the son of Charles and Eliza Potter. His grandfather, Benjamin Potter, was a well-known publisher of Philadelphia, having come from Rhode Island. He early received a fair academic educaton, and when a young man went to Rhode Island, where for a time he taught in the district schools at Potter Hill. Later he became identified with the "Pawcatuck Manufacturing Company," at Westerly, R. I., which he conducted successfully for about three years.

In 1854 Mr. Potter became associated with George H. Babcock, of Westerly, Rhode Island, who had invented a printing press of about letter page size for printing several colors at one operation. An office was opened in New York, and there orders were taken for the construction of presses of larger size. At the end of seven months Mr. Potter sold his interest to Mr. Babcock, father of the inventor of the press. Some time afterwards Mr. Potter became interested in a printing press invented by Merwin Davis, of New York. Putting his services against that of the Pawcatuck Manufacturing Company he constructed and exhibited one of these presses at the Crystal Palace Fair in the fall of 1855, receiving a gold medal. The press afterwards received a silver medal at the Mechanics' Fair in Boston, and one at the Maryland Institute in Baltimore. A demand for these presses sprang up at once.

In 1856, while canvassing for a job press which George H. Babcock had invented, Mr. Potter saw that there was a demand for a cylinder press for newspaper work. He at once set about the construction of this style of press in a machine shop at Westerly, R. I. It was from this first step in the building of newspaper presses that the immense business of the concern sprang into activity. For some years Mr. Potter canvassed the United States and Canada, selling the cylinder and the Babcock & Davis job presses.

Upon the breaking out of the war he lost all he had accumulated, and found himself in debt owing to the Southerners repudiating their obligations for his sales. Misfortune did not come singly, however, for in April, 1863, while in the office of the Portland Press, Maine, he received a fall which resulted in the amputation of his left leg above the ankle.

About 1865 Mr. Potter associated with himself Mr. J. F. Hubbard, of Plainfield, and the firm of "C. Potter, Jr., & Co." was formed. The construction of presses was again resumed at Norwich, Conn., where arrangements were made with J. M. Huntington & Co. to manufacture them. Upon the death of Mr. Huntington in 1877 the manufacturing was transferred to Hope Valley, R. I. In 1879 Mr. Hubbard retired from the firm owing to ill health. Early in the same year the plant was removed to this city, where the present immense buildings were constructed, covering a ground space of about two acres. The business is very extensive, and gives employment to several hundred hands. The presses manufactured by the firm have an international reputation for speed, durability and reliability.

In 1850 Mr. Potter was married to Miss Sarah P. Wilcox, daughter of Martin and Mehetabel Wilcox, of Unadilla, N Y. Mrs. Potter, with three daughters, Mrs. David E. Titsworth, Mrs. Florence Potter Ross, Mrs. William C. Hubbard, all of this city survive him. Another daughter, Mrs Joseph M. Titsworth, died some years ago.

While not active in politics he was deeply interested in the material affairs of our city and had served as a member of the Common Council. He was a stockholder, director and ex-president of the First National Bank, of Plainfield, and one of the incorators of the Hillside Cemetery Association.

He was a staunch Seventh-Day Baptist and prominent in the church and denomination. He was president of the board of trustees of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of Plainfield, and it was largely through his influence and generosity combined with that of the late George H. Babcock, that the handsome church edifice of that denomination was erected here a few years since. He was president of the American Sabbath Tract Society and of the board of trustees of the Seventh-Day Baptist Memorial Fund, and a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist Mission Band. He was deeply interested in education and had liberally endowed the schools of his faith.

In recent years he had been a trustee and was a regular attendant at the services. It is largely due to Mr. Potter's generosity that the handsome church edifice of that denomination was erected a few years ago.

As an employer Mr. Potter was as much beloved as he was highly esteemed by all citizens. His thoughtfulness for those in his employ often found expression in his desire that they should not be deprived of their wages when he passed away, and in accordance with this wish the works will run as usual on Monday.

His death has removed a man whose personality was marked by integrity, uprightness and proverbial kindness toward all mankind.

The funeral services will be held from Mr. Potter's late home Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

OLD RESIDENT DEAD.

Martin Roth, Sr., the Shoemaker, Lived in This City for Fifty Years.

The death of Martin Roth, Sr., aged 65 years, one of Plainfield's oldest shoemakers, occurred yesterday at his home in Exchange alley, after an illness covering a period of about three years with stomach trouble. He was born in Germany, and came to this country when a young man. It was fifty years ago that he came to Plainfield and established a shoe shop. For fourteen years he has been in Exchange alley.

He was an orphan when he came here. He afterward was married, and a widow, two daughters, Mrs. Blaich and Mrs. Scheidecker, and two sons, Martin Roth, Jr., and John Roth, survives him. He was a member of the P. A. B., and that organization will attend the funeral in a body next Monday morning at 8:30 from the residence and at 9 o'clock from St. Mary's church, where a requiem mass will be said. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

FREE TROLLEY EXCURSION.

Plainfield Merchants Arrange for Free Rides for Out-of-town Patrons for Next Tuesday.

The following merchants have arranged to conduct a free trolley excursion to Plainfield from Raritan, Somerville, Bound Brook and Dunellen, on Tuesday of next week: Crosby & Hill, J. W. Gavett, Schepflin & Schultz, Powlison & Jones, M. C. VanArsdale, Doane & Edsall, Bonn's, Mrs. L. Adams.

Persons desiring to take in the excursion will buy tickets at regular rates on cars and the whole amount will be refunded on presentation of rebate coupon attached to each ticket at any of the above named stores.

THE MISSES LOVELL'S TEA.

Given in Honor of Miss Swasey, of Taunton, Mass., Yesterday Afternoon.

A very delightful tea was given yesterday afternoon by the Misses Lovell, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Leander N. Lovell, of 112 Crescent avenue, in honor of their guest, Miss Swasey, from Taunton, Mass. The home was prettily decorated with pink roses, the same tone of color and decoration prevailing in the dining room.

The Misses Lovell and Miss Scrasey were assisted in receiving by Mrs. L. N. Lovell. In the dining room Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman presided at the table assisted by the Misses Helen Lovell, Ariadna Gilbert, Margaret Yates, Mrs. Harry Borden, Miss Bordin, Gertrude Rushmore, Miss Wilder, of New York, and Miss Wilcox, of Rochester, N.Y. A large number of guests were present.

Pedeflous Sues a Customer.

Henry Pdeflous has brought an action before Justice Smalley against Adrain C. Pickhardt for supplies furnished. The amount claimed is $100. Pedeflous is the proprietor of the mushroom farm in Washingtonvalley. He also keeps a hotel at that place and the suit brought is to recover, for refreshments and accommodations furnished the defendant. McClure & Mehan are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard VanArsdale, of Orchard place, entertained friends from High Bridge and this city on Thanksgiving Day.

BURGLARS STEAL AND EAT IN DUNELLEN

Lack of Police Protection is Again in Evidence.

TRAMPS DO AS THEY PLEASE

THE BOROUGH AN ATTRACTIVE PLACE FOR HOUSEBREAKERS.

Six Residences Broken Into Several Nights Ago—But Little Cash Was Secured—They Got Pie and Milk at Dr. Brakeley's Home and Took Their Time in Satisfying the Inner Man.

The convenience of Dunellen for the operations of burglars and thieves of all descriptions is so well known to this class of gentry that they do not lose an opportunity to visit that borough about once at least in three months.

Several nights ago one or more of them made calls upon several of the citizens and before departing carr ed away a few dollars in cash.

At the home of Mrs. Nancy Thomas they effected an entrance and succeeded in finding about $8 in cash and two railroad tickets, one being to Hackettstown and the other to Washington. They ransacked the bureaus and closets, evidently looking for large sums of money, but took nothing else. They then crossed the street and got into the handsome residence of Post master Adam Dealaman. But as far as is known they did not steal anything, though there were evidences that the house had been entered.

From there they went up the street to the home of Mrs. Emma Apgar, where they had better luck by finding $10 in cash. After ransacking the bureaus and closets in Mrs. Apgar's house the burglars paid a visit to the home of Alvah Gray. About this time they became hungry and helped themselves to a quantity of milk and enjoyed the luxury of some grapes.

It is believed that the burglars became alarmed while at Mr. Gray's and made a hasty exit to the handsome home of Dr. P. W. Brakeley. Here they took plenty of time and regaled their appetites with sampling slices of choice mince and pumpkin pies. When the doctor came down stairs Thursday morning he was surprised to find evidences of the visit of thieves, who had effected an entrance by forcing a side window. Everything about the lower part of the house was ransacked thoroughly, but with the exception of the pie nothing of value was taken.

Several other houses were also entered including those of Cornelius Taylor and John Logan. At the latter place, they were frightened away by a "night caller" who came at 4 o'clock to awaken Mr. Logan.

The burglars are believed to be members of a gang who are working the small towns along the line of the Central and Lehigh Valley railroad, where the police protection is quite limited.

DANTES CONVICTED.

Dr. Hepburn Receives Word to That Effect From the Clerk of Court of Sessions in New York.

Dr. C. E. Hepburn, the druggist at Park avenue and Second street, has received a letter from the clerk of the Court of Sessions, of New York, giving the information that Emund Dantes had been convicted Wednesday in that court of passing a worthless check. The clerk also asked for information about Dantes, whom he understood had been implicated in a similar crooked transaction in this city. Dr. Hepburn replied, giving a brief account of Dantes arrest in this city for forging the name of "Hepburn & Co." to a $25 check, which was cashed by Dr. Leonard some weeks ago. He also told of Dantes misappropriation of funds from Charles H. Hall of Watchung avenue.

Columbia Lodge Elects.

These officers were elected last evening by Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W.: Master workman, F. C. Lounsbury; foreman, O. R. Pearson, Jr.; overseer, James Forestell; recorder, Robert H. Longhlin; financier, E. M. Laing; receiver, Henry Liefke; inside watchman, Corra Ryno; outside watchman, Michael Kollar; trustee, Henry Nischwitz; representatives to grand lodge, J. W. A. Bauersachs and William A. Woodruff; alternates, Henry Nischwitz and Robert H. Loughlin.

Remains to be Interred at Hopewell.

The remains of the late Miss Louisa Fink, aged 37 years, were sent to Hopewell yesterday, where the funeral services were held at 10 a. m., from the Presbyterian church. Miss Fink died last Monday at the home of Mr. Bond, East Front street, where she was employed. Her former home was at Hopewell. Henry DeMott, the undertaker, took the remains to the place of burial.

BIGAMIST BLACKFORD SENT TO THE TOMBS.

His Wives Have Both Forgiven Him.

BUT LAW TAKES ITS COURSE.

HELD TO AWAIT ARRIVAL OF REQUISITION PAPERS.

Magistrate Pool Fixed Bail at $5,000 Which Blackford Was Unable to Furnish—Mrs. Blackford No. 1 is the Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Ulrick—Both Families Refuse to Talk for Publication.

Although both of the wives of John L. Blackford, the railroad detective who made his home at 926 Putnam avenue, this city, have forgiven him for his duplicity, the law has not. Yesterday morning he was arrested in New York and locked up on the charge of bigamy. Yesterday afternoon he was arraigned before Magistrate Pool and held under $5,000 bonds to await the arrival of requisition papers from New Jersey. In default of bail he was locked up in the Tombs. It is expected that he will be brought to Elizabeth tomorrow or Monday.

The Plainfield wife resided at 926 Putnam avenue. They were married in 1889 by Rev. Dr. Robert Lowry. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Ulrick, who have been living with the Blackfords. Mr. Ulrick owns a little property in this city from which he derives a small revenue. He has a married daughter living in California and a son, Harry, who left town suddenly a month ago.

A Press reporter called at the Blackford home yesterday afternoon. Only Mr. and Mrs. Ulrick were at home. They declared that Mrs. Blackford, No. 1, would not prosecute her husband. They also said it was their belief that their son-in-law was insane. Further than that they refused to make any other statement.

In Westfield the story of the two Mrs. Blackfords was the principal subject of conversation. A Press reporter called at the home of Mrs. Charles Brenesholtz, sister of Mrs. Blackford, No. 2, last evening, but Mrs. Brenesholtz refused to talk.

DECIDED AGAINST WIFE.

Judge McAdam Declared Agreement of Separation Between Mr. and Mrs. Pollion Against Public Policy.

Judge McAdam, of the New York Supreme Court, yesterday decided against Mrs. Frederica M. Pollion in a suit brought by her against her husband, J. J. Herring Pollion, formerly a resident of this city and now of New York.

Husband and wife mutually agreed to separate May 1st, 1898. The wife was to receive an alimony of $250 a month to support herself and her two daughters. Mr. Pollion claims that she compelled him to pay her $24,000 before she would execute a release of dower to permit him to go into a real estate deal. Then he refused to pay her alimony any longer. Judge McAdam decided that the agreement was against public policy. The case will be appealed.

OFFERING FOR HOSPITAL.

To Be Given By the Colored Pastors and Churches January 5th.

Rev. E. E. Jackson, of the Mt Olive church, with the rest of the colored pastors and churches of the city, will unite January 5th at the Mt. Olive Baptist church in a New Year's offering for the city hospital. There will be no entertainment, but a free will offering will be accepted. This movement is prompted by the pastors for the reason that the physicians and nurses in charge at the hospital have shown themselves strictly impartial in their treatment of both black and white.

Junior Endeavors Rally.

Yesterday afternoon in the Sunday-school room of the First Baptist church there was an helpful rally of the Junior Christian Endeavorers of the city. There was a pleasing programme presented and all present felt well repaid for being there. Plans were discussed for the winter's work and an aggressive campaign will be made in this most important department of Christian work. The attendance at the rally was large and the prospects are bright for a successful winter.

From the Bible Standpoint.

The prayer meeting at the Seventh Day Baptist church last evening was made doubly interesting by the scholarly address on "The Drink Evil from the Bible Standpoint," which the Rev. W. VanKirk, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., delivered to a small audience. Rev. Mr. VanKirk will speak at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock.

PLANS FOR WIDENING SOMERSET STREET.

The Project Brought Before the Borough Council.

FROM THIRTY TO FORTY FEET

MAP HAS BEEN PREPARED SHOWING WHAT IS NECESSARY.

Several Houses Would Have to be Moved to Consummate the Improvement—Councilmen Look at it With Considerable Favor—A Public Meeting to Discuss Project to be Held.

A very important step was taken by the Mayor and Borough Council at its regular December meeting last evening when the proposition of widening Somerset street from the county line to Jackson avenue, was introduced by the Mayor and was talked of at some length by the members. A map showing the proposed widening and how it would effect property along the line was presented by H. C. Van Emburgh, civil engineer, who prepared it at the request of the Mayor. The proposition was received with considerable favor by those members present, and all thought it would be an advantageous step toward bringing travel and business into the borough.

In examining the map it was discovered that several properties would have to be moved back a short distance, where they project beyond the established line. In some cases there are buildings that have been built some distance beyond the line, and they stand on property which rightfully belongs to the sidewalk and street.

It is proposed to widen the street from thirty to forty feet and to accomplish this the sidewalk on each side will have to be made ten feet. This will do the work nicely. Of course, the consent of every property owner will have to be secured by the Mayor and Council, and in order to bring the matter before them so that the matter can be adjusted amicably, the Mayor will call a special meeting at which time it is proposed to invite the property-owners to be present and give their views concerning the improvement. This will be done in a short time.

If the street is widened it is also proposed to locate a storm sewer along that street so that the surface water may be carried off, and it may be decided to cause the overhead wires to be placed under ground and have the poles removed. This will, however, be discussed later on.

HE REGRETTED BARGAIN.

Scotch Plains Hotelkeeper Thought He Had Been Duped by Alleged Advertising Solicitor.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 2—A well-dressed stranger appeared in town Tuesday and called upon the hotelkeepers, representing himself as the agent for the official organ of the L. A. W. He first called upon W. S. Emery and told him that he was soliciting advertising. Mr. Emery has always catered to the wheelmen and he became interested at once. Finally after some little talk about the "ad" Mr. Emery became suspicious of the fellow and declined to have anything further to do with him. The man then visited Walpole's Hotel and succeeded in interesting the proprietor in his scheme, receiving $3 60 in cash in payment for an "ad."

After the fellow left the hotel someone suggested to Mr. Walpole that the man had found an "easy mark" and that he was working an imposition upon him. Walpole went in search of his man, who he learned had left town on a trolley car for Plainfield. From the latter place the stranger was traced to Dunellen, where he was found at the railroad station. Walpole charged the fellow with attempting to defraud him and demanded his money back. A war of words ensued and a crowd collected. Finally when threatened with arrest the stranger handed over the money and was allowed to go. He bought a ticket for New York. The hotel men in this place believe the fellow was an impostor. He is believed to be working the hotels in the New Jersey towns.

CLEARED OF THE ENEMY.

Filipinos Flee From the Province of Iloilo.

NATIVES HARD PUSHED.

General Hughes Succeeds in Badly Scattering Aguinaldo's Followers—The Entire Island of Panay is to be Cleared at Once—Eight Hundred Filipinos Surrender.

Manila, Dec. 2.—General Conon has surrendered 800 officers and men with rifles, several American and 70 Spanish prisoners and the garrison at Bayonbong, Province of Nueva Vizcaya, to Lieutenant Monroe with 50 men of the Fourth cavalry.

Scattering the Filipinos.

Manila, Dec. 2.—General Hughes reports the province of Iloilo clear of natives. He has been chasing the enemy hard, forcing a fight at Passi. The Filipinos were scattered and the Americans captured ten cannon, four of them breech-loaders. The troops are now proceeding to Capiz. The 26th Volunteer Infantry is garrisoning several towns. It is expected that the entire island of Panay will soon be clear of Filipinos.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Official confirmation of the press despatches that the island of Iloilo is completely pacified has been received at the War Department in the following despatch:

"Manila, Dec. 2.

"Adjutant-General, Washington:

"Hughes reports from central Panay that Iloilo province, one third island, cleared of natives by forced marches with two battalions from Lambuano by way of Colinog; he obliged enemy to fight at Passi on 26th inst. and drove them with loss to the mountains in detached bodies, capturing ten field pieces, of which two breech-loaders, also nine rifles and several thousand rounds small ammunition; Hughes's casualties, Capt. Warwick, 18th Infantry, and Private Daniel W. Humphreys, K 18th Infantry, killed. He reports his troops in excellent health. Is now converting wheel into pack transportation for purpose of entering mountains; expected that he will pass on to Capiz, northern coast of island.

"Despatches from Lawton indicate Bayombong captured 28th inst. Both trails over mountains impracticable for wheel transportation of any kind; the troops have subsisted on rice and scant supply of that. MacArthur's troops have had several minor engagements, capturing men and rifles. Bell's capture in mountains includes fourteen modern guns, all in good condition. Over fifty pieces of artillery captured by troops of corps in last three weeks. Oregon brought in 106 Spanish prisoners from Vigan yesterday; ninety-four received by rail previous evening. Gen. Young with three troops cavalry and March's battalion, 33rd infantry should have reached Vigan yesterday.

OTIS."

This despatch was also received:

"Manila, Dec. 2.

"Adjutant-General, Washington:

"Conditions Zamboango satisfactory; additional ordnance surrendered consisting four field pieces, seventeen rifles, quantity ammunition; natives adjoining towns visiting city and native military bands serenading troops. Thirty-first infantry leaves Manila this evening to garrison several stations Mindanao coast; no difficulties anticipated.

OTIS."

The War Department furnishes the following biography of Capt. Oliver B. Warwick, 18th Infantry, who was killed in the island of Panay:

"Born in Alabama, Nov. 17, 1850; Cadet in the United States Military Academy, Sept. 1, 1868, to Feb. 8, 1873; 2d Lieut. 18th Infantry, Oct. 1, 1873; 1st Lieut., Feb. 20, 1882; captain, Nov. 30, 1892.

"Served with his regiment in the Southern States November, 1873 to March, 1879; in Montana to May, 1885; in the Indian Territory and Kansas to January, 1890; and in Texas May, 1892; on recruiting service, September, 1892, to December, 1893; with regiment in Texas to April, 1898; at New Orleans to May, 1898; and en route to and in the Philippines to Nov. 26, when killed in action with the Filipinos in central Panay, P. I.

"By his death the service lost a most amiable, zealous and faithful officer."

Made His Mouth a Cash Register.

Reading, Pa., Dec. 2.—Solomon Watson, of this city, has kept a silver quarter of a dollar in his mouth since Sept. 4, as the result of a bet of $10 that he could not keep it there for a year. Watson says he agreed to eat, sleep and drink with the quarter in his mouth, and he means to do it. He holds the coin in his left cheek, resting against his teeth. He says it was difficult at first, but the task soon became more easy, and now he minds it very little. A number of side bets were made that he would not keep the quarter in his mouth until Thanksgiving, and these have been paid.

Head Beaten to Pulp By Robbers.

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 2.—A few cards bearing the name William Henry Reynolds were found by the body of a dead white man near the junction of three railroads five miles north of Jacksonville. The body was in a perfectly nude state. A huge cypress stick, stained with human blood, was found near the body. The stick was four feet long and eight inches in diameter. The man's head had been beaten with the terrible cudgel till his brains were scattered on the ground. There were other signs of violence found on the body.

Miller, the Hero Engineer Dead.

Coshocton, Ohio, Dec. 2.—Waldo M. Miller, the engineer of the Morgan Run special in last Saturday's collision on the Wheeling and Lake Erie, has died from his injuries. Miller remained upon his engine, although he could have escaped injury by jumping. His efforts to stop his train minimized the shock, and no doubt saved many lives.

Wants Divorce From Fourth Husband

Ohio Falls, Ind., Dec. 2.—Mrs. Mary Conway, aged 35, has sued her husband, Albert Conway, for a divorce. The latter is the plaintiff's fourth husband. He was in the Spanish-American War.

WAS RESCUED BY TRAINMEN.

Robbers Leave a Victim to be Cremated in a Burning House.

Canton, Ohio, Dec. 2.—Burglars entered the home of D. H. Bower, in Connotton alley, during the night. His family was absent and he was asleep in a chair. They bound and gagged him, took $1 that he had left from his pay of the day before and then set fire to the house. The fire was started upstairs and was seen by passing trainmen, who stopped their engine and went to the house. They found Bower half dead from smoke. The Department saved the building from total consumption. Bower had made a heoric struggle to free himself, but so securely was he tied that his efforts were all in vain. The gag still remained in his mouth and he could see the flames and hear the crackle of the burning wood, yet could not move. His torture was almost maddening. It is apparent that an organized gang of thieves is at work here.

FRANCE PREPARING FOR WAR.

Naval Council Considers Plans to Mobilize Reserve Fleet.

Paris, Dec. 2.—The Superior Council of the Navy has considered measures necessary for the mobilization of the reserve squadrons for defence in the Mediterranean in case of a sudden Anglo-Italian attack.

A statesman has said that he believed Secretary Chamberlain's speech was exaggerated for the purpose of quieting English exasperation over the heavy Transvaal losses with a picture of the secure position she has gained by the promised American-German support.

This statesman anticipates early disavowals from Washington and Berlin which will put the matter on its proper footing.

Secretary Chamberlain's covert menaces in his speech at Leicester have thoroughly aroused French indignation. The Liberte and Patrie ridicule the rhodomontade, and say that if the statesman's object was to sow dissension and animosity between the two nations he has thoroughly succeeded.

La Liberte declares that such provocation almost justifies any caricatures. Le Temps reproduces the speech without comment.

After the Policemen Now.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 2.—A patrol wagon, containing two policemen and a large box, drove up to Police Headquarters Friday evening, and the box was carried to the room of President York. The wagon was from the Vernon avenue station and contained the books and papers of the Miller Franklin Syndicate business. President York and Commissioner Abell passed considerable time in examining the contents of the box, but refused to tell what they discovered. It is said the Commissioners are anxious to find out how many members of the Police Department are involved and to what extent.

New Consul to Pretoria.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Mr. Macrum, the United States consul at Pretoria, is renewing his appeals to the State Department to be allowed to leave his post. The department, realizing the pressing necessity of having some energetic and willing representative of the United States at Pretoria to look after the important American interests in the Transvaal, as well as to carry out our obligations to care for the welfare of British citizens therein, is striving to find some consular officer near Pretoria who will undertake to relieve Mr. Macrum. Probably Mr. Hollis, United States consul at Lorenzo Marquez, will be asked to undertake the charge.

Boys Try to Wreck a Train.

Amsterdam, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Three boys, aged twelve and thirteen years, attempted to wreck a West Shore fast express train in a rock cut between Mindenville and Indian Castle by placing railroad ties upon the track. The train was stopped before any serious damage resulted. Two of the boys escaped, but the third one, Charles W. Lasher, thirteen years old, was arrested and is now in the Montgomery County Jail. Officers are in search of the boys wanted, and it is supposed they are hiding somewhere in the country.

Senator Hanna is to Retire.

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 2.—Concerning the reports which have been in circulation for several weeks past to the effect that Senator Hanna would not succeed himself as Chairman of the National Republican Committee, it can be stated on the authority of Mr. Hanna's most intimate friends that he has no desire to manage another campaign, and that unless very strong pressure is brought to bear upon him he will, in all probability, decline to do so.

Roberts to be Barred.

Washington, Dec. 2.—At a conference of about twenty-five prominent House Republicans in the Capitol Friday night it was decided that the eligibility of Representative-elect Roberts of Utah to occupy a seat in the House should be investigated and determined, and that, pending the decision, he should not be permitted to take the oath of office.

This decision was arrived at by those present without a dissenting voice.

Many Prize Money Claims.

Washington, Dec. 2.—The office of Auditor for the Navy Department is being deluged with inquiries concerninging the progress of claims for extra pay, prize money, &c., to such an extent that it actually interferes with business. The inquiries relate to claims arising out of the Spanish war.

Political Crisis in Australia.

Melbourne, Dec. 2.—After an all night session of the Legislative Assembly of Victoria, the ministry of Sir George Turner was defeated by eleven votes on a resolution of want of confidence. Sir George, as a consequence, has resigned, and the governor, Lord Brassey, has summoned A. McLean to form a new ministry.

Bernstein Defeats Wallace.

New York, Dec. 2.—Joe Bernstein defeated Dave Wallace, of England in one minute and thirteen seconds after the gong sounded for the first round in the Broadway Athletic Club Friday night. The Englishman made a sorry showing and quit without receiving but very little punishment.

WILL BE LIKE A LOTTERY.

Drawing For Seats in House Will Be Amusing.

THE OPENING SESSION.

Spectators in the Galleries to Watch the Humorous Proceedings With a Delighted Interest—No Chance For Showing Partiality—No Change of Seats in the Senate.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—Next Monday the hall of the House of Representatives will be transformed temporarily into a gambling den. The players are limited to members of the House, and the game is witnessed by galleries crowded with amused and interested spectators.

The sport indulged in is the lottery for desirable seats, which occurs at the beginning of each new Congress. The scene suggests one of the great keno games so openly and extensively played in New Orleans. It abounds with memorable incidents, and affords greater amusement to the spectators than any regularly scheduled performance on the Congressional calendar.

The lottery begins after the Speaker has been chosen and the members are sworn in. The Speaker then notifies the members to vacate all the seats and retire behind the rail. Some boy is immediately blindfolded and stands at the clerk's desk. The clerks have the list of members before them, and opposite each name is a number. The blindfolded boy dives into a box and takes out numbered ivory balls. The member whose name is opposite the number first drawn has the choice of any seat in the hall.

The desirable seats are those located near the centre aisle and well down toward the arena in front of the Speaker's desk. It frequently occurs that the most obscure members have the luck to draw the best seats. The fun begins when almost all the choice seats are drawn, leaving prominent men on the anxious bench behind the rail, impatiently waiting for their numbers to be called. Like so many schoolboys, some of the unlucky members creep into unoccupied chairs, hoping to lay claim to them until their names are called.

Much to their disgust, other members still in waiting call the attention of the Speaker to these violations of the rules under which the game is being conducted, and the offenders are hustled out back of the rail again. It sometimes happens that a member, after his name is called, is deciding where he will locate. The roll call does not wait for him to complete his choice, so he frequently has a race with the man behind him for an unoccupied desk.

The Democrats occupy the seats to the right of the Speaker, the Republicans to the left, the dividing line being the middle aisle. When the Republicans have a large majority in the House many of them are obliged to take seats on the Democratic side of the chamber, and the practice is reversed when the Democrats are in the majority.

When a leading Republican is forced to take a seat among the Democrats because his name is drawn out of the box late, he is greeted invariably by such pleasantries from his associates as, "There goes a deserter over to the enemy's camp," "Good by, old boy; good by." On the other hand, the Democrats welcome him with, "Come into camp, wandering boy," "We'll take you on probation," and similar playful remarks.

In the last Congress General Henderson was among the last to draw a seat, and had to be contented with a desk near the back row on the Democratic side. Several other prominent Republicans, including Mr. Hitt, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, Mr. Cannon, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, and Mr. Wadsworth, of New York, formed a little colony near General Henderson in what is known in Congress as "the Cherokee Strip."

It usually occupies all of the first legislative day of the session to swear in the members and complete the lottery for seats. The proceedings next Monday may have additional interest by some sensational development growing out of the Roberts case.

The proceedings of the session of the Senate on Monday will be brief, because it has decided already to adjourn immediately after meeting, in respect to the memory of the late Vice President Hobart. There is no lottery for seats in the Senate. The desks are assigned by the deputy sergeant at-arms upon the application of Senators. The unwritten law is "first come, first served." The Sergeant-at-arms keeps a little book containing the names of all the Senators and Senators elect. That book is regarded as one of the most sacred secrets of the Senate. Thus seats are assigned, the selection being known only to the Senator interested and the Sergeant-at-arms, until the little silver plate bearing the Senator's name is attached to the desk, if he so desires. Should he wish to make a change, he watches his chances and puts in a claim for the first vacant chair.

In view of the brief session of the Senate on Monday, there will be, probably, a terrible crush at the House wing of the Capitol. Seats in the reserved and public galleries are already at a premium, and the demand is far in excess of the supply.

Killed in a Football Game.

Little Falls, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Moses H. Schermer, aged eighteen, the left tackle of the Herkimer football team, was thrown in a game with New Hartford at Herkimer Thursday. His spine was twisted and he died Friday morning. The Coroner is investigating.

Virginia Village Burned.

Cape Charles, Va., Dec. 2.—The entire business portion of Onancocoke, Accomac County, Virginia, has been destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $200,000.

Father and Son Will Die.

Princeton, Ky., Dec. 2.—The boiler at the railroad water tank at Cerulean exploded Friday afternoon, fatally injuring Engineer Calvin Mitchell and his son.

MR. HOBART'S WILL FILED.

Public Institutions Remembered By the Late Vice President.

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 2.—The will of Vice-President Garret A. Hobart has been filed in the Passaic County surrogate's office, the document being handed to Surrogate Charles M. King.

The value of the estate was not given, but it was understood to be about $2,500,000. Of the estate Mrs. Jennie Hobart, the widow, receives $1,000,000 outright to do with as she pleases. After a number of bequests are paid the remainder of the estate is to be divided equally between Mrs. Hobart and her son, Garret A. Hobart, Jr. At the death of Mrs. Hobart the boy is to receive the residue of the estate. The legacies given by the vice-president were as follows:

St. Joseph's Hospital, Paterson, $5,000; General Hospital, Paterson, $5,000; St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum, Paterson, $5,000; Paterson Orphan Asylum, $5,000.

The original bequest to each of these institutions was $3,000, but in each case the amount was raised to $5,000 by a codicil.

Hobart Tuttle, private secretary to Governor Voorhees, and a brother-in-law of the vice-president, receives $20,000. A. A. Wilcox, a close friend of Mr. Hobart, receives $10,000. David Hobart, a brother of the vice-president, receives $20,000, and to each of his brother's two children the vice-president bequeathed $10,000.

The executors of the will are the widow, Mrs. Jennie Hobart; A. A. Wilcox, E. T. Bell and Col. William Barbour.

The will is dated July 27, 1897, and the codicil increasing the amounts given the different institutions is dated Feb. 9, 1899.

CARBUNCLE RELIEVED HIM.

Bullet Taken From Veteran's Back After Thirty Seven Years.

Morgantown, W. Va., Dec. 2.—William A. Butts, residing in Berkeley County, a few days ago went to Hedgesville to have Dr. E. A. Ward lance a carbuncle on his back. Mr. Butts and the doctor were both much surprised when a bullet dropped out after the incision had been made. Mr. Butts was a member of Company B, First Maryland Cavalry, and in 1862 was shot near Upperville, Va. The bullet struck him in the stomach, and he was left on the field for dead. Four days afterward he was found barely alive by friends who searched for him. He was removed to a hospital and got well. Though the bullet had been in his body for 36 years he suffered no inconvenience until recently, when the affliction on his back manifested itself.

Havoc of Texas Storm.

Rockport, Tex., Dec. 2.—Reports from a number of points on the gulf in this section show that the damage to property and loss of life by the recent storm were much greater than at first reported. A number of small fishing craft are missing, together with their crews. The bodies of James Sanders and two other men who have not been identified have been found in the mouth of St. Charles Bay. Several thousand head of sheep and hundreds of head of cattle were driven into the gulf by the storm and drowned. One ranchman lost more than 3,000 head of sheep in this way.

Electric Buses in New Haven.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 2.—In a month the old omnibuses running in Orange street, New Haven's society avenue, are to be replaced with electric motor 'buses, the first street horseless 'buses to be run in Connecticut. A company of local capitalists has been formed to manage the new line, and at least four of the most improved wagons are to be built immediately for the new company and put into operation between the Green and East Rock Parks. If the innovation is a success more horseless public conveyances are to be added and other routes over the city opened up.

Killed Five Men and Still Lives.

Newkirk, O. T., Dec. 2.—Clyde Mattox has been brought to trial here for the murder at Ponca City, in April last, of Lincoln Swinney, a sheep herder. Mattox escaped and was arrested three months later at Los Angeles, where he passed as Frank Jones. Mattox has, it is alleged, killed five men, and for one crime was sentenced to death. His mother spent a fortune to save him, and succeeded first in having President Cleveland commute his sentence to life imprisonment, and later in having President McKinley pardon him. Mattox is only thirty-one years old.

Woman Convicted of Cruelty.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 2.—In the Superior Criminal Court here Mary Cannon has been convicted on all of the sixty-three counts of an indictment charging her with assault and battery on children at the home conducted by her in Roxbury. The trial of the defendant lasted several days. The jury reported a sealed verdict. Sentence was deferred. Under the law three years could be imposed on each count.

Army Captain Breaks Jail.

Columbus, O., Dec. 2.—Ike T. Jobe, late a captain in the sixth United States Infantry, who was to have been tried before the United States Court here for using war department penalty envelopes for private letters, has escaped from the county jail.

Mint Director's Statement.

Washington, Dec. 2.—The monthly statement of the director of the mint shows that the total coinage at the mints of the United States during November was $9,511,070, as follows: Gold, $6,643,700; silver, $2,612,000, minor coins, $255,370.

Switchman Crushed to Death.

Muncie, Ind., Dec. 2.—Frank Coffman, an L. E. and W. freight switchman, was crushed to death between the bumpers on two cars here. His body was held suspended until the cars were pulled apart. Coffman had sued for a divorce only a few days ago.

His Wager Cost His Life.

Shelbyville, Ind., Dec. 2.—On a playful wager that he could crawl down the wheels of a moving wagon, ten-year-old John Rhodes did so and had his head crushed to a pulp.

THAT'S THE IDEA!

You ought to see what we can do for you before doing anything for yourself. Painting depends upon the paint and the painter. Better preparations than ours were never put on by a brush. Wherever paint is put, it should be put there to stay long enough to make it worth while to do the job. The warring elements have no effect on our durable mixtures.

Newark, N. J.

We had a neighbor who suffered from a chronic skin disease, eczema they called it. He was always taking soda baths with wheat bran in the water and fussing with cuticura soaps, ointments and resolvents. He used to be constantly scratching whenever he thought himself unobserved; sometimes his skin was red or raw and a little drop of water would exude in places now and then. All at once I noticed that he had seemed to be free from the annoyance for some time, and knowing that he had battled with it persistently for two or three years, I asked him what remedy had finally brought about a result so desirable and he told me Ripans Tabules

But Ripans Tabules are merely a cure for indigestion!" said I.

"I know that," he answered "but the doctors all agree that eczema is one of the ways that indigestion manifests itself."

Our neighbor (Moody is his name) takes one Tabule every night of his life now, and if he has either indigestion or eczema he does not know it.

It must be a decided relief to him to be able to get along without so much scratching.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

JURY READY TO FIX BLAME.

Coroner and Railroad Officials Visit Scene of Wreck.

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 2.—General Superintendent Russell of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad has arrived in this city with officials of the road, and visited the scene of the wreck with the Coroner's jury and Coroner J. S. Yates, who will make the investigation, and try, if possible, to fix the blame for the catastrophe of Wednesday night.

The jury, previous to going to the railroad, went to the morgue and looked at the body of Mrs. Roe, wife of David Roe, one of the men injured in the wreck. Notwithstanding Mr. Roe's injuries, he insisted on leaving the hospital, and went with the body of his wife to Warwick, N. Y., where the funeral services will be held and interment made.

While the railroad officials insist that Engineer Reardon is to blame for the accident, there are those in this city who shift the blame to the company. When the new company took hold there was a man on the Van Winkle street crossing, where the accident occurred but the new management discharged him with others.

For months the Board of Aldermen have been trying to have the men replaced.

At the meeting only two weeks ago inquiry was made from the clerk as to whether any attention had been paid to the demands of the Aldermen for the restoration of this watchman. The clerk said the company did not think there was any occasion for a man at this point.

Railroad men here say had a watchman been at this curve he would have been out with his danger signals, and it would not be left to a flagman of a train to run back in such an emergency.

No steps have yet been taken to arrest the engineer, and Prosecutor Emley says he does not think any arrest will be made until he can confer with the County Physician and the Coroner.

Root's Plan Outlined.

Washington, Dec. 2.—In the annual report of the Secretary of War, just issued, Mr. Root deals at great length with the problem of insular government. He recalls the fact that the treaty of Paris places in Congress alone the determination of the civil rights and political status of the native inhabitants of the territories ceded to the United States. He argues that this limitation completely deprives these people of the right to have the islands treated as States, or as territory previously acquired has been treated, or even to assert a legal right under the provisions of the Constitution, which was established for the people of the United States themselves. Nevertheless, he assumes that the intention is to give them to the greatest possible extent individual freedom, self-government in accordance with their capacity, just and equal laws, and an opportunity for education, for profitable industry and for development and civilization.

Prominent Erie Man Gone.

Erie, Pa., Dec. 2.—Some time in September William Black, son of W. T. Black, president of the Black Manufacturing Company, disappeared from his home here, and has not been heard from since. He is supposed to have gone to New York, but no trace of him can be found. Young Black is about 30 years old, a Yale graduate, has no bad habits, was prominent in society, and his mysterious disappearance cannot be explained by friends or relatives. His family has kept the matter quiet until this time.

Married on the open Prairie.

Topeka, Kan., Dec. 2.—Probate Judge Bailey of Stafford County has made John Brenneman and Lizzie Cole man and wife out on the bleak prairies of Stafford County. He had traveled fifteen miles, only to find that the bride lived a few hundred yards over the line in Pratt County, out of his jurisdiction. At his suggestion the party drove across the line on to the vacant prairies, and the ceremony was performed in a raging blizzard. Judge Bailey did not want to lose his fee.

Old Rails Sold at a Profit.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 2.—The Pennsylvania Company is selling old steel rails at a profit. H. O. Hukill, purchasing agent, says that last year the company contracted for 40,000 tons of steel rails at $18 a ton for delivery this year, to replace old ones on the main line west of Pittsburg, and on the Pan Handle system. The old rails that cost $18 a ton are being sold for $25 a ton, most of which have been shipped to Chicago.

THE MARKET.

New York, Dec. 2.—The resumption of trading on the Stock Exchange after the holiday was marked by a generally lower level of prices. The advance in the Bank of England's discount rate from 5 to 6 per cent. imparted weakness to the international stocks and was radiated to a less extent in other issues. Baltimore & Ohio p&f. and St. Paul headed the declines in the railways. Leather improved slightly, but soon ran off a point and Sugar also displayed considerable weakness.

THE ANXIETY INCREASES.

Great Britain Disturbed Over Recent Battles.

NEWS EAGERLY SOUGHT.

Full List of the Loss Will Be Appalling—Ten Thousand Troops Soon to Leave for the Transvaal—The Censor Is Holding Back News—Latest From the South African War.

London, Dec. 2.—A special dispatch received here from Frere, dated Tuesday, Nov. 28, says that while attempting to blow up a 500-foot bridge over the river at Colenso, the Boers were driven back by British artillery and mounted infantry.

While the rumors of the relief of Kimberley current on the Stock Exchange may be premature in their literal sense, there seems no doubt that the pressure on the garrison has been much lightened by Gen. Methuen's successes, and the actual relief of the place must, seemingly, be a fact very shortly.

A clue to the urgency reasons which dictated Gen. Methuen's hurried march may be found in Gov. Milner's hint to the Relief Committee at Cape Town to prepare for the reception of 10,000 refugees, indicating that the garrison must have had reason to fear the reduction of Kimberley by starvation and disease.

Everybody is Anxious.

London, Dec. 2.—Anxiety over the British losses in the battle of Modder River described by General Lord Methuen as "one of the hardest in the annals of the British army," has run so high that every possible avenue of information is being besieged by hundreds of eager inquirers.

No further reports have been received from the front, but it is feared that when the full report does come in it will be the most appalling of the war.

From the fragments already received it is known that one Colonel, Northcott, of Lord Methuen's staff, and one Lieutenant Colonel, Stopford, of the Coldstream Guards, were killed, while the wounded were Major Count Gleichen, Lieutenant Viscount Acheson, son of the Earl of Gosford; Lieutenant the Hon. E. H. Lygon, brother of Earl Beauchamp and that nobleman's heir presumptive.

General Methuen himself was wounded in the thigh and it is feared that he will be unable to continue in command. His wound prevents his being in the saddle.

Major General Colville, commanding the Guards' Brigade, is his next in command, and he has a reputation as an excellent officer.

It is very likely that another obstinate battle will have to be fought before Kimberley is reached. Before Lord Methuen's advance can be continued the Modder River will have to be bridged, as passing troops across pontoons will necessarily consume much time.

Military experts say that more men are clearly needed in all directions. Genral Methuen's column is still very weak, and the enemy may by this time have been able to bring up fresh commandoes.

Lord Wolseley has announced that the War Office has come to the decision to call out another division of ten thousand men of all arms for South Africa. This will make the seventh division mobilized since the war began.

Ladysmith is reported to be all right and the British Relief force is now concentrated at Frere. The Boers are in full retreat toward Colenso. The great Boer stand will undoubtedly be made at the Tugula River. The available British force is about 18,000 men, and the Boers may be able to put 20,000 men in line.

Kimberley Waits and Watches.

Kimberley, Nov. 27.—There were a few rifle shots early to-day from the direction of Wright's Farm, but this was regarded as merely one of the numerous Boer tricks to draw men out by inducing us to believe that the relieving forces are drawing near. This afternoon the Boers blew up two large culverts near the rifle butts on the railway line toward Spytfontein.

The news of the proximity of the relieving forces greatly cheers the garrison and the inhabitants. A few Boers were seen to-day, but it is believed that the enemy is in only small bands around Kimberley, lots of fifty or so, the greater part having gone to Spytfontein, where firing is believed to have been heard about noon.

From Kaffir sources comes a report that there are two large Boer laagers at Olifant's Dam, with 150 wagons for water supply. The Boers have cut the existing dam, three miles distant, allowing the water to run down toward their laagers into an old dry dam on the farm. This is believed to be the Free State base of operations on the western border.

The official estimate places the number of Boer shells fired during the bombardment of Kimberley at about one thousand, and ours at no fewer than six hundred. As the enemy's shells so frequently hit soft, sandy ground, the explosive effect is greatly neutralized.

All our wounded are in a very satisfactory condition. An armored train proceeded toward Dronfield to reconnoitre, but this immediately roused the enemy's cordite gun, and the train returned after the fifth shell had been fired. The Boers are now firing on the reservoir fort from Wimbledon.

Paper Prices to Advance.

Cincinnati, Dec. 2.—The paper trade is in a serious condition, according to Albert Diem, one of the largest manufacturers in Cincinnati or the West. Mr. Diem says that within a fortnight the trust will raise prices from 20 to 25 per cent. This condition is due not so much to a desire to make profits as to an actual scarcity of the commodity.

Schooler Has Been Acquitted.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 2.—John W. Schooler, the colored attorney and leader of the colored Democrats of Lexington, has been acquitted by Commissioner Hill of the charge of bribery at the recent election preferred by John Lair.

CITY OWNERSHIP.

[FROM "MUNICIPAL MONOPOLIES."]

Under private ownership Fulton, New York, population 5,000, pays $50 per annum rent per street arc. Water power is used. This price is too high because—

Under public ownership Niles, Michigan, population 5,000 pays $25 48 for the same service which includes 5 per cent for interest and depreciation of plant. Water is the power used.

Werts May Go on the Bench.

According to persistent current report in Newark it is the intention of Governor Voorhees to appoint former Governor George T. Werts to the position of Circuit Court Judge of Essex county as successor to Judge Francis Child. The appointmet, it is alleged, will be made to pay a debt of gratitude. During Mr. Werts' term as Governor many of his appoinments are alleged to have been directly influenced by a powerful Republican leader, and there was some grumbling on the part of the Democrats that their claims to political plums were not sufficiently recognized.

When Mr. Werts' term as Governor was up an effort was made to make him Vice Chancellor for a seven years' term, at a salary of $9,000 a year. When it was practically assured he would get the prize it was suddenly discovered that the law made it necessary that a Vice Chancellor should have been a counselor-at-law for at least ten years prior to his appointment. To get over this obstacle he was promptly made a counselor-at-law and a bill was introduced wiping out the requirements that he should have been such for ten years. This bill was fathered in the upper House by Senator, now Governor, Voorhees, but aroused such opposition that its advocates did not dare to push it, and the Vice Chancellorship went to the present occupant of the office. Therefore, up to date, Mr. Werts has never been repaid for the favors he did the Republicans during his term as Governor.

Elizabeth Councilmen will find that they hold the upper hand in their dealings with the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company over the question of terms in the proposed franchise, if they remain steadfast to the position they have taken. The Riker-Hine syndicate tried to work the same bluff in Plainfield that they are now putting up in Elizabeth, but when the company found that it would not go, they walked up to the captain's office and came to fair terms without more ado. They are bound to do the same in Elizabeth.

What man would dare say that Richard Croker is not a great man now? Hasn't he been kissed, like all the other heroes, by at least twenty-five gushing damsels, whose osculatory manifestations were observed on the occasion of the departure of the Tammany Chieftan from Hoboken the other day on his trip to England. The one thing that tends to lessen the impressiveness of the incident is the fact that it took place in the offings of Hoboken.

There is one thing that Plainfielders have reason to be real thankful for and that is that the days of the "pneumonia trolley express" are near an end. If a good many people have not been taken towards their graves by the "pneumonia express" it is no fault of the cars.

It is stated on the authority of some mystic Democrat that there is to be no change in the management of the Democratic State committee until the next Gubernatorial campaign. Such being the case, Congressman Daly will be in hard political luck.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

By the decision read yesterday by Justice VanSyckel in the Court of Errors and Appeals, reversing an opinion by the Supreme Court, it is declared that a municipality can grant to an electric light company the right to use all its streets by an omnibus ordinance, providing that when the privilege of erecting poples shall be granted, the streets upon which such poles are to erected must be designated. Under this decision a municipal body can designate all the streets of a city and the lighting company can then select what streets it desires for the erection of its poles and wires. There is this much in Justice VanSyckel's decision. It will hasten the day for the abolition of poles and the burial of wires in the municipalities of the State.—Newark Advertiser.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A good story comes in from one of the villages on the lower side of the Raritan, says the Bound Brook Chronicle. A young farmer whose wife has presented him with three fine daughters feels that he would have been more richly blessed had one of the girls been a boy. His sentiments on the subject are no secret, and he has the sympathy of his neighbors, most of whom attend the church where the farmer is one of the deacons. A few Sundays since the pulpit was filled with a representative of the State Children's Home Society, which endeavors to find good Christian homes for children in need of them. The agent spoke of the merits of several little ones awaiting places, and dwelt particularly on the characteristics of a desirable boy then in his care. The eyes of the audience were unanimously centered on the young farmer, to whom the situation became painful. As he later passed the contribution plate his feelings can be better imagined than described, for at each pew he was greeted with a knowing smile, which spoke louder than words He has now concluded that his family is properly constituted, after all.

Swindled His Own Relatives

Elizabeth, Dec 2—William F. Miller, head of the swindling Franklin Syndicate, who is now being sought for by the police, was born at the "Cross roads," the German quarter of this city, but left here several years ago. He still, however, kept up his acquaintance with friends in this city, and has several relatives here. A number of them, it is said, were swindled by him. One man, a druggist, is said to have lost $1,000.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube is 75 cents. Druggists or by Mail. The liquid embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Tonight Cosgrove & Grant's comedians will present that always entertaining farce comedy, "The Dazzler," at Music Hall. In this case it is always safe to say "always entertaining," for every year "The Dazzler" comes to us in a new dress, so new that nothing remains of the previous season's performance but pleasing recollections. This year's production will prove no exception to the rule, but on the contrary the changes have been even more sweeping than ever. The piece is filled with new music, dances and specialties, not one of the old numbers of last season remaining. The ladies are bright, pretty and graceful, as well as tuneful of voice; and their charms are set forth by new and elegant sets of costumes throughout. Those members of the company who made special hits last season have been retained, but a number of new faces will be seen, and it is predicted that in every case the change will be considered a decided improvement.

Diamond Brothers' Big Double White Minstrels, comprising fifty white burnt cork artists, will be the bill at Music Hall, Monday night. There is no reason why this attraction should not pack the house. From beginning to end it is full of entertaining novelties and specialties. The first part affords an opportunity for the introduction of a grand array of clever comedians and singers. The work of the funny end. men, Charles Casad, Fred Russell, Lew Diamond and Geo. Knox, is new and up-to-date, while the selections of the ballad singers are of the choicest. The chorus of voices is full of volume and melody. Among the entertainers are sextette Will R. Pattie, William Chamberlain, John Bevens, Harry Morgan, Charles Close and Lawrence Diamond, making in all one of the best minstrels traveling. See the street parade Monday noon.

Our theater goers will have a taste of romantic realism in "The Village Postmaster," such as is seldom provided at Music Hall next Wednesday night. In the production of "The Village Postmaster" there are any number of comedy flashes that cannot be too highly estimated. There are many touches of sympathetic humanity and a spectacular element that begins with a rain storm of real water and ends in the third act with a threshing machine at work. In general "The Village Postmaster's" offering is delightfully simple and simply delightful without the powder of other rural plays for their maudlin sensationalisms. It reaches an average of purity that can do nothing else but please. That versatile and excellent actor, Archie Boyd, appears in the title role. "The Village Postmaster" is a more entertaining offering than any of the New England plays.

* * * * *

Klaw & Erlanger's farcial extravaganza, "The Rogers Brothers in Wall Street," a skit on the humorous side of stock gambling, in which the German character comedians, Gus and Max Rogers are the principal entertainers, will remain at the Victoria Music Hall in New York city until late in February. This is, without exception, the funniest farce of the year. The Rogers Brothers are supported by such well known artists as John G. Sparks, Ross Snow, John Parr, Lee Harrison, Georgia Caine, Maude Raymond, Ada Lewis, Louise Gunning, Jeanette Bageard, Carolyn Elberts and Edith St. Clair.

Bismark's Iron Nerve

Was the result of his splendid health. Indomitable will and tremendous energy are not found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are out of order. If you want these qualities and the success they bring, use Dr King's New Life Pills. They develop every power of brain and body. Only 25 cents at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Senator Kean to Give a Dinner.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Dec. 2.—United States Senator-elect John Kean will give a dinner to a large number of Jerseymen at his new home, 1327 Sixteenth street, Washington, on Monday afternoon next.

Prevented a Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs. Geo. Long, of New Straitsville, Ohio, prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her, and she writes this marvellous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of the matchless merit of this grand remedy for curing all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1 00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Provinz Ostpreußen.

Goldap. Das großartigste Eisenbahnbauwerk Ostpreußens dürfte die an der sogenannten Eckertsberger Spitze bei Makunischken über den Romintefluß führende Eisenbahnbrücke werden. Der massive Viadukt wird fünf Bogenpfeiler zu je 60 Meter Spannweite bei 20 Meter Höhe enthalten und mit einem eisernen Oberbau versehen werden. Das zur Ueberbrückung gelangende Romintethal ist etwa 200 Meter lang.

Mehlsack. Das Fest der diamantenen Hochzeit beging das Rentier Johann Fittkau'sche Ehepaar hierselbst. Der Ehemann hat das 84., die Ehefrau das 81. Lebensjahr vollendet. Beide Jubilare sind noch gesund und rüstig.

Provinz Westpreußen.

Konitz. Neulich Abends feierte das Offizierkorps des Landwehrbezirks Konitz ein Liebesmahl. Nach Beendigung des Mahles begab sich der Bezirkskommandeur Oberstlieutenant v. Freyhold auf den Heimweg. Morgens fand man ihn am Fuße der zu seiner Wohnung führenden Treppe regungslos liegen. Der herbeigeholte Arzt konnte nur den bereits eingetretenen Tod feststellen. Ob der allgemein beliebte Herr in Folge eines Fehltrittes oder eines Schlaganfalls von der Treppe gestürzt ist, weiß man nicht.

Thorn. Der Redakteur Paszlinski, der in der „Gazeta Torunska" in einem Artikel „Diebe und Mörder im Dienste des Deutschthums" die Beschäftigung von Zuchthäuslern auf den Ansiedelungsgütern besprochen hatte und darauf wegen Verächtlichmachung einer staatlichen Einrichtung angeklagt war, wurde von der hiesigen Strafkammer freigesprochen.

Rheinprovinz.

Aachen. Dieser Tage drang ein 15jähriger Gymnasiast mit einem Beil bewaffnet in ein Haus der Harskampfstraße. Er beschuldigte ein dort wohnendes Lehrmädchen, ihn verleumdet zu haben, und versetzte zugleich dem Mädchen mehrere Hiebe mit dem Beil. Die Ueberfallene trug schwere Verletzungen davon. Der jugendliche Verbrecher ist flüchtig und konnte bisher noch nicht ermittelt werden.

Emmerich. Hier wurden bei der zollamtlichen Revision amerikanischer Aepfel zum ersten Mal in einer Kiste amerikanische Schildläuse lebend gefunden. Die Sendung wurde von den deutschen Behörden zurückgewiesen und nach Holland zurückspedirt.

Trier. Ein namhaftes Vermächtniß ist unserer Stadt durch einen ihrer früheren Bürger zugefallen. Der in Bonn verstorbene Rentner Gustav Heis hat sein Gesammtvermögen—200,000 Mark Baarvermögen und eine Anzahl Kunstgegenstände—der Stadt Trier mit der Bedingung vermacht, daß die Zinsen zur Erziehung von sechs Waisen verwandt werden.

Provinz Sachsen.

Mühlhausen. Ein rüstiger Greis ist der Badeanstaltsbesitzer Glotz hierselbst. An seinem 87. Geburtstage, den er in diesen Tagen feierte, nahm er wie seit 58 Jahren mit Freunden und Bekannten sein gewohntes Bad in der freien Unstrut.

Stendal. Hier vernichtete eine große Feuersbrunst die Dachpappen- und Cementwaarenfabrik von Wilhelm Schlüsselberg; 14 Spritzen waren in Thätigkeit, einige Feuerwehrmänner erlitten Brandwunden. Vom hiesigen Husaren-Regiment waren Mannschaften zur Hilfeleistung abkommandirt worden.

Provinz Schlesien.

Breslau. Die Mittel zum Neubau der Universitätskinderklinik sollen schon im nächsten Staatshaushalt bereit gestellt werden. Im Anschluß an diese neue Klinik soll auch eine Isolirbaracke für mit ansteckenden Krankheiten behaftete Kinder aufgestellt werden.

Provinz Schleswig-Holstein.

Kiel. Die hiesige Stadtvertretung hat beschlossen, eine elektrische Centrale zur Abgabe von Licht und Kraft für städtische Rechnung anzulegen.—Eine Schiffspanzerplatten-Werkstatt in großem Stil soll am Ankorfer See, unmittelbar am Nordostseekanal, errichtet werden. Unternehmerin ist die Firma Krupp. Angeblich soll dieselbe von den Besitzern der dortigen Feldmark nur das Terrain erworben haben, während die Gebäude den Eigenthümern zur Benutzung verbleiben.

Plön. Gelegentlich eines schweren Unwetters schlug auf dem Gute Wittmoldt der Blitz ein; der Viehstall verbrannte mit 125 Stück Rindvieh.

CHRISTMAS WORK.

How Some Useful and Pretty Presents May Be Made.

This is the season when Christmas novelties are displayed in their most attractive forms, says Edith Chester in the Country Gentleman. Distracting little trifles are found in the windows and on the counters. Both needle and pen have cunningly worked to render even more fascinating the numerous articles that are destined to find their way, ere many weeks elapse, into the houses of young and old. Skilled hand labor always finds a large circle of admirers, and those who are adept in the use of needle, brush or pen have it in their power to gladden the hearts of friends at slight expense. Among so many bewitching novelties it cannot but be hard to choose, and the few ideas here offered are mere suggestions that the ready brain of the artist can easily supplement.

A case for the paper of pins that should hang by the side of every bureau and dressing table may be readily fashioned by covering two pieces of pasteboard, 5 inches long by 1¼ inches wide, with linen, upon which holly, with its green leaves and red berries, has been embroidered One side of the case should be 2 inches wide, so that the pins can be easily extracted. A few stitches at the back hold the two sides of the case together, and a strip of bright red ribbon, half an inch wide, holds the paper of pins securely in place. The ribbon should be tied into bows at each end, with one extra long loop by which to suspend this useful gift. Of course, the paper of pins may be used at any time.

The up-to-date photograph frame is of heavy cardboard, about the edge of which a narrow strip of dark gray or green paper has been pasted. Four hearts, pointing to the centre of the cardboard, each with a circular piece cut out, to allow the photograph to be seen, makes an attractive design for such a frame. A few sprays of mistletoe sketched in each corner is all that is necessary to give a seasonable touch to this gift. Of course a square of cardboard should be glued to the back, with openings at the top for the insertion of the picture.

Crepe paper is a thing of the past, and its devotees have been obliged to resort to cardboard, or what is better known as egg-shell paper. Candle shades can be made of this, and are very pretty when delicately gilded. Little scrap pictures on the outside, and surrounded by gilded wreaths, form an attractive addition.

Bright Christmas tree ornaments are made by dividing the shells of English walnuts in half, gilding the outside and filling them with cotton. Upon this cotton bed wee baby dollies, that have been dressed in lace and ribbons, are placed, and the half shells are then tied together with narrow ribbons.

Household Hints.

Silk dresses should never be brushed, but should be carefully rubbed with an old piece of velvet kept specially for the purpose.

A nice steam presser can be made of a short length of curtain pole or broom handle. Select a piece ten or twelve inches long, pad it with flannel and cover with old muslin. Good for waist or sleeve seams.

Properly cooked kidneys are very healthful, but as they are usually cooked they are very indigestible. No meat requires more skill to cook properly. They need to be cooked like an egg. Too much cooking is worse than too little. They harden and become indigestible. Five minutes cooking is better than ten or fifteen, if sliced.

A delicate and nourishing dish for an invalid is white custard made as follows: Scald half a cup of milk; beat the white of one egg slightly, add one tablespoonful of sugar and a few grains of salt. Combine the mixtures very carefully, add a few drops of vanilla and strain into a buttered custard cup. Bake in a pan of hot water until firm, not allowing the water in the pan to boil.

In the Butterfly Business.

Mary Yeomans, an English woman, now resident of California, is developing a profitable industry in catching butterflies. She had some knowledge of butterflies when she went to the Pacific slope. One day a flock of Pansy-like butterflies hovered a moment over her and then flew up the mountain side. She thought she recognized a species only known in the higher Alps, which are very rare and consequently valuable. She followed these honey-loving beauties up the mountain and captured a goodly number of them. She copied in the water color and sent the sketch to London. After a considerable wait she received word to send the butterflies, for which she received for the twenty-five $575. Miss Yeomans has a nursery for beetles in her cellar. Dr. Le Fontain, who came from France to study the insects of California, taught Miss Yeomans much about insects and was most enthusiastic over her enterprise. Miss Yeomans finds great demand for beetles as well as butterflies.

Victoria's New Tea House.

England's Queen intends to add one more to the list of tea houses on the Balmoral estate. Each of these retreats is decorated to represent some particular country. For instance, there is "India," which is furnished with bamboo and Indian matting, while "China" is decorated with celestial emblems in beautiful colorings. The new tea house is to be "America," and will be put up in readiness for next year

PASSING OF A "TERROR"

An Episode of the Kansas Border in Cowboy Days.

A COMMON AMUSEMENT.

When a Texan Demands an Apology It Must Come in Blood—Some Reckless Shooting—How a Rollicking Rough Rider Became Gloomy and Prematurely Old.

Among the cowboys who were familiarly known in all Kansas border towns from Hunnewell west, fifteen or twenty years ago, were Johnnie Potts and Ben Franklin, riders on the "T 5" range, which stretched from the Eagle Chief to the Cimarron River. Of the two, Ben Franklin was the more prepossessing in appearance; Johnnie, more of the typical "terror." When his system was not filled with the peculiar and hair-raising beverage sold for whisky in those border towns, Potts was reasonably peaceful, though never sociable in his disposition, but when he was loaded with what was commonly termed "Old Hell's delight" he was one of the most dangerous of his class. It was his common form of amusement when in this condition to draw his revolver and empty it into the street, apparently careless as to whether some unoffending citizens was in the road of the bullets or not. That he was possessed of a certain reckless, daredevil courage nobody who knew him doubted, and the close of his career demonstrated that the estimate was correct.

It was in the early part of March, 1884, that Franklin and others of the cowboys of the "T 5" range went to Caldwell to take in the town. All the riders could not be spared at once, and for that reason Johnnie Potts and others had to stay at camp. Franklin, who in cowboy circles was considered a more than ordinary big-hearted and jovial-spirit, showed his sympathy for his unfortunate companions who did not have the opportunity to participate in the pastime of painting the town red, by bringing back to camp a jug of the liquor dealt out at Caldwell saloons. That night for a few hours joy was unconfined at the "T 5" ranch. Between the inspection of jack pots and the quaffing of liquor furnished by the liberal-minded Franklin, the boys felt consoled for the disappointment in not having been able to run their horses through the town of Caldwell, howling like wolves, and playfully shooting holes through the surrounding buildings. The effect of the liquor did not appear to be particularly serious, except in the case of the "terror" Potts.

As the night wore on he drank more heavily, but more recklessly and became more sullen. It was nearly morning when he arose from the camp table and, staggering against the desk of the book-keeper for the cattle company, upset the ink and disarranged the papers. The book-keeper made some protest, which, with Johnnie Potts, was the signal for trouble. Pulling his six-shooter, he proceeded to kick over such furniture as there was about the camp house as a sort of preliminary to general hostilities. The other range riders were not so full of red liquor that they did not realize that it was only a question of how many would be able to get out of range when Johnnie began to shoot. Franklin, who was quicker to think and act than his companions, with a swift movement caught the "terror" from behind and, throwing him to the floor, disarmed him. Johnnie raved like a madman and applied to Franklin all the epithets known to the cowboy vernacular until he had worn himself out and sank into a drunken slumber. The next morning Ben Franklin concluded unoffending citizen was in the road State of Texas he should demand an apology from the "terror" for his conduct of the previous night. With most members of the cowboy class this request would have been complied with as a matter of course, but Johnnie Potts held the opinion that it was beneath the dignity of a real "terror" to apologize for anything and would not. Ben Franklin, on the other hand, although an unusually good natured member of the fraternity, felt that when a Texan demanded an apology it must come or blood.

The range riders stood close together; there was no consultation of "seconds" or measuring off of so many paces. There were three sharp, loud reports, the flashes and smoke of the "forty-fours" and the thing was over. Franklin was quicker by the fraction of a second and Johnnie's pistol arm was shattered before he could pull the trigger. The ball from his revolver went wild and the second ball from Ben's gun plowed through Johnnie's vitals. Then a curious thing happened which showed the Texas chivalry of Johnnie Potts, the "terror." Franklin, filled with remorse now that the shooting was over, wanted to hunt up a United States deputy marshal and surrender himself into the hands of the law, but the "terror," though writhing in his death agony, would not hear to it.

"What's the use o' doin' that, Ben?" gasped the dying "terror." "Yer got me, but I'd sure a got you if I'd a drawed a little quicker. 'Twon't do me no sort o' good fur you to go and stand trial, nur you either."

The "terror" was buried near the lonely camp house, and the foreman of the ranch took the trouble to see that the grave was not entirely neglected. Ben Franklin went back to Texas a changed man. Instead of the rollicking rough rider he became gloomy, haggard and prematurely old, with the haunted look of a man who ever saw the picture of a night's debauch, a fatal duel the lonesome, unmarked grave of Johnnie Potts, the "terror."

Tom Hayden, a negro, aged 24, was recently taken from the officers who had him under arrest for the murder of Andrew Woods, a young white man, and hanged to a tree, near Fayette, Mo. The killing took place just previous to the lynching and was the result of a fight over a game of craps at a negro festival. Tom Hayden was arrested by the sheriff and was taken to Fayette, where a mob overpowered the officers. Hayden had a bad reputation.

KING OF MEXICAN GAMBLERS.

Don Filipe Martel pays $1,000 a day License, But Has Made Millions.

When, a few years since, the Mexican government sought to abolish gambling throughout the land, the measure was vigorously opposed, not only by the profession itself, but by many of the richest and most influential citizens of the republic as well, the latter element declaring that in the event of their being prohibited from their beloved and inherent pastime they would remove to some domain where their rights and predilections would be respected. The authorities, however, determined not to be outdone, yet not wishing to disregard outright the demands of the sporting fraternity, conceived the idea of fixing a license, the exorbitance of which would be productive of the same results as would prohibition. A law was therefore established requiring every gambling resort to pay a daily license of $1,000. The result was that on the same day the ordinance was announced the gambling houses throughout the country promptly closed their doors—all but one. Don Filipe Martel had calmly waited until the last of his contemporaries had gone to the wall, whereupon he presented himself at the Tax Collector's office in the City of Mexico and, depositing $1,000 in cash, modestly requested a license. The amazed officials could scarcely believe their senses, but the coverted document was nevertheless forthcoming, and by nightfall it had been noised all over the city that Martel's establishment on the Calle de Gante would be open that evening as usual for business.

The effect of this display of nerve acted as magic upon those who had opposed the reformatory measure. That night Martel's place was thronged with the wealthiest sporting element in the city, and the profits of the establishment ran far into the thousands. The following day others, stimulated by the success of the bold venture, took out their license and endeavored to resume, but to no avail. Martel had won the patronage and support of the players at a stroke and was quickly left in sole possession of the field. As time went by his phenomenal success continued, and one after another he established branches in various portions of the city, for each of which he pays an additional thousand dollars license.

When, eventually, it became apparent to the city administration that Martel was there to stay, and possibly not unmindful of the immense revenue he was paying into the municipal treasury, the authorities became reconciled. They even added to his prestige by appointing a deputy inspector for each of his establishments, whose duty is to see that no unfair methods are resorted to by either the management or players. Up to the present period Felipe Martel has acquired a fortune of over $2,000,000, and the average daily expense of conducting his establishments is the incredible sum of $40,000. —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Tropical Geremony.

One of the most striking forms of self-immolation practiced by fanatics in India is known as hook swinging, and is described by a recently returned missionary as a wonderful feat of endurance. The devotees have iron hooks inserted into the fleshy part of their backs, and are then swung up in the air before their goddess, at the end of a long pole balanced at the center like an old-fashioned well sweep.

Masher Made a Mistake.

Mrs. Edwards of 513 Washington street, Hoboken, N. J., received a letter a few days ago from a young man, asking her to meet him in Washington street and ride on the trolley car to Rutherford. The man was unknown to her and she notified the police, who advised her to meet him.

Mrs. Edwards was at the appointed place on time. So was the man. So were Detectives Nelson and Fenton. As soon as the stranger accosted Mrs. Edwards he was arrested and taken to headquarters.

He said he was Albert Hamilton of Rutherford and that he was employed by the Hoboken Ferry Company.

Hamilton was held in $300 to await a hearing.

John Petter, of Oakland, Cal., a recently discharged private, was shot and killed recently, at Lincoln, Ill., while with a gang of robbers who were attempting to rob a general store at Beason. As Petter started to enter the watchman in the store shot him in the head. The other members of the gang fled. The coroner's jury exonerated the night watchman from all blame.

Adam Moser, who was convicted of manslaughter in the first degree for the murder of Frank Whittemore, whom he stabbed in the head on the night of May 30 last, committed suicide in his cell at Binghampton, N. Y. the other day. He made a loop of a piece of chain used to hold up his cot and fastened it to the wall.

J. T. Robertson, a young man of Dalzell, who was stabbed by the negro Goolsby, whom he had taken out of jail, is dead. Goolsby is the negro who was taken from his father's home and hanged and shot to death by a mob of white men.

GEORGIE TALKS.

He Tells of the Folly of Lying and About Paw and Maw.

Maw she was makin Ketchup yisterday Afternoon, so she told me To watch out the Front part of the House so if Ennybuddy come callin to Tell them She wasen't Home. I Got the pupp and little Albert in the Parler and was havin a purty Good Time playin' that he was a Spaniard and me and the pupp the amurican army when The bell rung.

I went out to See who it was, and There stood Missis Martin, all Dressed up Like if She diden't never expect to Git anuther chanct to wair Her Good close.

"Is yor maw Home?" She says.

"No." I told Her. I felt offel Gilty. I Hait to Tell lize.

"Where is She?"

I Diden't Have no time to Think. Maw fergot to Tell me whare she had went, so I Had to say the Furst Thing Hapened along.

"She went fer the Dockter," I says.

"My Goodness," she says, "what's rong?"

"Poor little albert," I says. Gittin kinda used To it By that Time.

"What's the matter with Him?" she ast, lookin purty scared.

"He Fell in a kittle of Boilin water," I says. They was comin Easy Then.

"Goodness grashus!" she yelled. "Is the Poor Child Hurt Bad?"

"Oh, it's offel," I says, kinder Groanin.

"Is your paw Here?" she ast.

"No." I Told Her, "He don't no it yit. Poor paw!" I was Steddied Down Then so I could put Them rite over the plate every time, But Before I got a chanct to Toss enny more up Her way she Lit out as Fast as She could Trot, so I went Back and was purtendin I was goin to Heng little Albert Fer a Spy, and purty soon neerly all the nabers Come Gallopin up on the portch. I peked Between the curtens and Seen who Was Thare So I made little Albert Duck out the Back way.

When I went to the Door Thay all come in and Begin to ast if He was Ded yit.

Every little while I would Hear maw Rattlin things out in the kitchen, and Mrs. James Had a pitcher of molasses Becoz she Sed That was Good fer Burns and Everybuddy else Had Sumthin what would Heel the poor child.

They wanted to go up Stares, But I told them the Dockter and maw was up thare, and the Dockter sed nobuddy Dassent come up, and They mussen't Be no noise.

They was all whisperin away Like people in church while the minister is prayin, and it was the saddest Site I ever Seen.

Purty Soon Sumbuddy Got to Sneezin, and maw Herd Her, so She cum in From the kitchen to See who was thare.

Maw Had Her Sleaves Rolled up and Her Fais was all Red and She was Swettin and Had a Streak of Tometo acrost Her Brow.

Before She could say ennything Six wimmen Had Thare arms around Her neck and Was Weepin and Tellin Her the Best Thing to Do. After which maw formed a Flyin Wedge and Got Loose and ast What was rong.

"Poor woman," says misses Carson, "She's lost Her reeson."

All I got to Say is maw Looked purty mutch that way.

I Dunno Jist what Hapened Then. I snuck out the Front Door and was Wonderin whether I Better Go out west and Be a indian skout or Stay Home and Tri to Stand the Disgrais when I looked Down the Streat and Seen paw Comin Like a poleesman Gitting away from the Seen of Trubble.

"Georgie," I says to miself, "you are now standin Fais to Fais with your finish."

By that time paw was Fallin up the Steps, so I thot I would Fix it up with Him and I says:

"Never mind, Paw. It's all rite. Thay ain't no Harm Done."

"I told that Fool of a Wumman not to munky with Her old Ketchup when I started," paw panted. "Whare is He —whare's poor little Albert?"

Jist about Then little Albert and the pupp come a hoopin Around the Corner, and maw and the nabers Come out of the House. They was all lookin at maw Like if They Suspishened Her putry Bad, and misses Marten Says to paw:

"I'm offel Sorry I telefoned and Give you Sich a skare, Mr. Moffett, But I was tryin to Be Kind."

Then thay went away and maw She Begin to weap.

After a while when paw Found out what Hapened He was So mad He went out in the kitchen whare maw Had a kittle Full of Stuff what was all Boilin over on the Stove and He was a-goin to Throw it out the window only when He Took a Hold of it the Handle was neerly red Hot and He Let go and spilled the Hole Thing and Some of the Tomato Stuck to Him and he jumped up and Down and yelled like a Dawg under a wagon wheel and Licked his Fingers and Sed if maw wasen't married to a man with a Christian Spirit some turrable tradegy Wold of Hapened in our Fambly Long ago.

After He got Bizzy with me I made up my mind about one Thing. Nobuddy never needen't Tell me what a Sad Thing it is to be a orfun.—Georgie, in Chicago Times-Herald.

Mormons Get Converts.

A squad of American Mormons has passed through Paris with some 50 or 60 Swiss girls, recently converted. This small regiment of future wives was split there into small groups to avoid attention, some going to Holland, some to England, and others to Belgium, all eventually going to Utah. Four of the Mormon apostles remained behind, presumably with the purpose of seeking new female converts among the French rural population.

MONTE CARLO'S TERRORS

A Suicide Table Where Scores Have Despaired.

SOME MAD GAMBLERS.

A Bridal Couple's Tragedy—Suicides Know Their Fate—Few Try to Escape Their Goal—Incidents of the World's Most Famous Gambling Rooms.

To the right of the Moorish salon, the second from the entrance in the great gambling rooms of Monte Carlo, stands the suicide table.

This accursed piece of furniture has a record of causing 113 suicides in ten years, according to the count kept by C. Benvenisti, formerly chief of the detectives in this room.

Even the chairs of this table differ in the intensity of their hoodooed state. The chair to the left of the croupier facing the entrance door has claimed seventeen victims. The twenty-third chair accommodated eleven suicides, six women and five men. The others have records of eight, five, four, three and one death.

One day five years ago, writes M. Benvenisti in the Chicago Inter-Ocean, my neighbor at the table was a young Parisian. He sat in one of the one-death chairs, and won. When the doors closed he carried off 200,000 francs.

Imagine my anticipations when next morning I found him installed to the left of the croupier. I felt like tearing him away or slipping a card into his hand, to warn him against the seat he had chosen, but my official character forbade me to interfere, and, besides, my advice would have been scorned, for the fellow gambled like one mad. He lost his winnings of the day before and 200,000 francs of his own money. When his last 1,000 franc note was gone he rose, and swaying to and fro like a drunkard, stumbled out of the hall, laughing immoderately.

Two of my men led a merry chase for this unfortunate, and when they caught up with him he jumped off the railway bridge, knocking out his brains.

Another case that haunts my dreams! One day an elderly gentleman, Signor Antonio Cesare, who knew my connection with the Casino compelled me to give him the seat I was occupying, next to the croupier. I did so with a bleeding heart, for this old man was the very picture of health, and I was an intimate friend of his cousin, the Mayor of Bentimigli.

Well, this gentleman lost nearly a hundred thousand francs in the day and evening. When he got up, his own mother wouldn't have known him. He looked ten years older; his flesh had fallen away; madness stared out of his eyes. Next day they fished his body from the lake at Mentone.

Then there were the Parlingtons, refined English people. They were on their wedding trip. I never forgot the look of delight with which young Mrs. Parlington pocketed her first small gain. The pretty bride fairly coaxed her husband to stake 10 francs.

When night came they had a couple of thousand francs in their pockets. Next morning they took chairs Nos. 23 and 24. No. 23 brought them the usual luck. They gained 30,000 francs. But on the following day came the inevitable change. The 30,000 francs went back to us, and the couple's little fortune followed. They walked from the room deathly pale, hand in hand.

My detectives informed me that they took the train for Nice without troubling about their baggage. They shot and killed themselves in the Windsor Hotel there. Everybody can see that the cloth on the suicide table is of more recent make than the rest. Yet the Casino company is only 318 francs the poorer on that account.

Against these figures there is an offset of 600 francs, which the Casino company would have been obliged to pay the young Russian for traveling expenses. This Muscovite Prince refused to become a pensioner of M. Blanc's heirs, and blew out his brains over the table where he had dropped his all,—400,000 francs.

It happened two years ago, and it nearly cost me my job. The circumstances that one of the directors of the company drew me into a corner to talk about the same Russian's persistent ill-luck just a minute before the shot rang out—that alone saved me from disgrace.

The incident itself was soon forgotten and had no bearing on the game. It has nothing to do with the superstitions attaching to the suicide table. The ill reputation of that piece of furniture was of many years' standing when the Russian committed his flagrant breach of Casino etiquette. He was No. 85 on my list of unfortunates.

When I saw a man or woman approach the suicide state, my first care was to prevent him or her from spoiling more cloth. I signalled my men to press around the party, and prevent him or her from putting a hand in the pocket or from striking the croupier.

Many desperate cases I approached as a fellow gambler, offering to assist them and pay their homeward journey. I dare say my intervention—which cost me nothing, as the company recouped me—has saved many a poor devil's life.

Whether suicide candidates have a foreboding of evil when they come to our table, I don't know, but a few try to escape their goal. They come flanked by prayers or holding a piece of hangman's rope. Others try to insure their fortune by paying the croupier 100 francs before the day's work begins. Of course he accepts the bribe. He isn't tampering with his employer's profits.

Robert B. Jennings, was held up on a street car near the corner of Washington avenue and Broadway, St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 30, and robbed of $1,043 in cash and $48,247 in negotiable paper.

Harry Wallace struck and instantly killed his wife with a hammer at their home near Deakyenville, Del., after which he fled. The couple had not been living happily for some time.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

BRIGHT YOUNG LEGISLATORS.

Assemblymen Who May Be Heard From at Trenton This Winter.

Trenton, N. J., December 2.—In the House there will be some young men who later on may develop some ability to attract attention. On the Republican side Messrs. Bradley, Jones, Wakelee, Wood, Lewis and Welsh, who have been re-elected, have already evidenced more than average capacity, while Messrs. Murphy, Benny and Abbett, who have been returned, have already proved themselves able and aggressive Democratic leaders. There are thirty-two old and twenty-eight new Assemblymen. All the Republican members who were renominated were re-elected. In Monmouth the three Democrats who were renominated were defeated. Only eleven Democratic members were re-elected. The "father of the House" will be John King, of Passaic, who has been elected for a seventh term. Next to him comes "Teddy" Carroll, of Hudson, who is about to enter upon his sixth term. In point of long service as a lawmaker, Mr. King holds the palm in New Jersey as an Assemblyman, in conjunction with former Speaker "Tom" Flynn, who served also seven years.

There will be only one new Senator, Mr. McCarter, of Essex. Mr. Cornish, of Warren, served a term six years ago, after which he was sent to the National Congress. This year all the Republican Senators who were renominated were re-elected—Messrs. Miller, Stanger, H. W. Johnson, Reed, Francis and Cross. The only third termer is Mr. Stokes, of Cumberland. There are two former Presidents of the Senate, Messrs. Stokes and Reed.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Manning Runyon, of West Front street, is making some noticeable improvements about his house.

—This is the best time to make your Christmas selections and Woodhull & Martin offer some good bargains.

—The Christian Endeavor Society service at the First Baptist church last evening was one of thanksgiving, and it was a very helpful one.

—A string band will be present at the meeting of the Swedish Mission Society tomorrow at 8 p. m., in the W. C. T. U. rooms. O. G. Tinglof will preach.

—Fancy work of all kinds such as delicious home-made bread and cake can be found for sale at the Plainfield Exchange, 508 Park avenue. The consigners are seriously in need of funds and patronage will be appreciated.

—Work was started yesterday removing the old wooden awning at Dunn's grocery, corner Park and North avenues, so that the new iron structure can be put up, permission for which was obtained by Mr. Dunn.

—There will be no doubt a large delegation of Masons from this city who will go to Washington next month to take part in the one hundredth anniversary of the death of the first President of the United States. The affair promises to be one of the notable events in the history of the country.

—Inasmuch as some misapprehension has arisen owing to a circular issued by the New York Times, Edward A. Laing, the West Front street newsdealer and stationer, requests that it be stated that the daily newspaper business is conducted by him individually, and that his partnership with C. F. Stout relates solely to the Sunday newspapers.

Brightening Times.

One of the most visible evidences of the fact that we are in the line of brightening times, is the wonderful growth of artificial illuminators. Accompanying these evidences, however, is expert testimony to the effect that the eyes are being unnaturally strained by these new conditions. The danger of this menace is in the fact that it affects the optic nerve before were are aware of it, and only a test of the eyes will demonstrate whether or not you are a victim to its inroads. Such a test is free to all at Collier's, 103 Park avenue.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES ARE BEST FITTED TO CARE FOR THE CITY!

VOTE FOR THEM!

It is a fully recognized and serious fact that the benefits derived by the people of the city of Plainfield from our municipal government fall short of what they have a right to expect from the amount of taxes levied each year. Democratic officials with the best of intentions, but being in the minority, are not able to render efficient public service. We therefore call upon our Republican fellow citizens and other well disposed people throughout the city to take up the problem of good, economical municipal government with sufficient energy to secure success. It is another fact that our valuations are being raised, and our rates are being raised at the same time.

The Democratic party, in convention assembled, have adopted resolutions pledging themselves to reform in the affairs of our city government, to a reduction in our taxes, and to give to the people of Plainfield more in the way of public improvements for the amount of money they spend. Every candidate on the Democratic ticket is a man of recognized ability and prominent in our city, men whom the people all know and can safely trust, everyone of whom have endorsed the principles of good government as set forth in the above referred to resolutions

The Republicans of the First ward have nominated William L. Gloak as their ward councilman, who always has been a Democrat, and served on the Democratic election board for a number of years, until this year, when he now poses as a Republican, as against Walter L. Hetfield, who has served the people of Plainfield faithfully as councilman for four years, and has given to the First ward more improvements during the past year than any other year during the existence of the city.

In the Second ward John H. Van Herwerden has been named as the Republican nominee for ward Councilman. He is a man who was elected two years ago on the Citizens' ticket. His first act in the Council was to disregard the Citizens' movement and vote with the regulars, and thereafter ride with them in the parlor car. His opponent, Harry Marshall, is a Plainfield business man, a man thoroughly acquainted with affairs of the city, and will live up to his promises made before election. Charles B. Clifton is the candidate on the Republican ticket in the Third ward for Councilman. He is a man with no experience in city affairs, as against Albert H. Atterbury on the Democratic ticket, who has served the city faithfully for a number of years past as a Commissioner of Appeal, and therefore has considerable knowledge of the assessments in our city.

In the Fourth ward the Republicans have nominated Robert Lee, a young man who has only lived in the city a short time—a typewriter doing business in New York with no knowledge of city affairs—as against William H. Brokaw, the Democratic candidate, a successful builder, who has always lived in our city and well knows the needs of the people. William Westphal is the ring candidate for Freeholder on the Republican ticket, and if elected will be controlled by the same ring, against DeWitt C. Ivins, his opponent, who never has been connected with any ring, and a man having a large business in our city. As Councilman-at-Large the Republicans have named James Craig as one of their candidates, a man who employed Mr. Hartshorne, of Jersey City, as his attorney, to assist the attornies of Sarah A. Milliken in her damage suit against the city, which case was argued at the last term of the Supreme Court. Mr. Hartshorne, an able lawyer, made the main argument, and if the decision is favorable to Mrs. Milliken Mr. Craig proposes to bring an action against the city. The people ought not to elect, nor had Mr. Craig ought to run, for an office whereby he might be in a position to assist himself in the settlement of a pretended claim.

One Reason Why the Present Administration Should be Supported.

The chronic Democratic objection to things Republican is noticeable in this campaign preceding the municipal election of December 5th. The present city administration is Republican. That is enough to condemn it in the eyes of the partisan Democrat but, from the point of view of the intelligent and independent voter, there is much to be seen in its labors that is worthy of commendation and subsequent support at the ballot box.

"The administration is wildly extravagant. The money of the people is being expended with practically no return." So shouts the Democrat. "Look at the extravagance evident in the operations of the street department." He cites as a clinching argument. The citizen realizes that the street department has certainly shown greater activity under the present administration than before. But, he questions, is it extravagance to accomplish so much more than heretofore on but a small increase in the appropriation? The Democrat thus advances one of the most powerful of arguments why the voters of the city of Plainfield should indorse the present administration of the Republican party at the ballot box next Tuesday.

Where is the citizen who considers the welfare of the city in the slightest degree, and his own, too, who does not advocate the policy of good roads?

The progress of civilization, the advancement of the people's interests all demand that the streets shall receive the best possible care permissible under existing conditions.

The policy of the present administration has had in view the general and permanent improvement of the city's streets. Without the issuance of bonds to meet the expenditure, it is manifestly impossible to place all the streets in first-class condition at once. So the administration has taken the only other course possible with the scheme of general improvement in view. The main thoroughfares naturally receive the first attention. They are the arteries of travel, and by them Plainfield is judged by much of the outside world. Certain main streets in the business portion of the city notably Park avenue and Front street are, if the present administration is continued in power, to be given a permanent pavement. Hence it is not along the line of economy to make any extensive repairs there until the permanent pavement is laid. When the requisite number of property owners on a thoroughfare petition the Common Council to macadamize that street and offer to bear the proportionate share of the cost, who can deny the justice of granting the request, particularly if the thoroughfare is sadly in need of attention, in preference to other streets of a similar nature where no such request was preferred.

This policy in question has been to place the Plainfield streets in excellent condition as rapidly as possible under the limits of the annual appropriation of the city's funds for that work. And once putting them there, it is planned to expend the small amount necessary each year to maintain them thus, gradually adding to the number until the entire system shall be included.

The critics of the methods now in vogue cry with dismay because a thoroughfare is put in the best of condition, thus enabling its maintenance by proper care for many years at a comparatively trifling expense. Their ideas, if carried out, would give each street a superficial repairing which would not remain effective six months and would inevitably result in the general return to the old order of things when the fine roads of today were practically unknown. The end of such futile policy is evident. Plainfield, now famed through the State and even beyond the borders of New Jersey for her magnificant roads, thus attracting many to locate here, would lose this enviable reputation and with it an advantage to business men and to residents that cannot be estimated.

The welfare of the city and the future of the local system of streets demands the continuation of the present administration in municipal affairs. The coming election will give every citizen an opportunity of definitely informing municipal legislators through the medium of the ballot that their policy is considered a sound one and has his thorough approval.

Vote the Republican Ticket and VOTE IT STRAIGHT.

TWO FRANK BEGGARS.

How They Got the Price of a Drink From a Brooklynite.

"Good evenin' to yer, boss."

"Good evening," surveying the well-knit figure and wondering what his chances would be in a rough and tumble fight.

"I think you see me and my pard standin' in that there doorway back there when you was passin' along, didn't yer?"

"Yes; I noticed somebody standing there."

"And yer took notice that we was havin' our little snack together, didn't yer?"

"Yes, I saw you were eating a loaf of bread between you. What of it?"

"That's jest it. Well, I'll tell yer. I says to my pard when I see you passin' by, I say: 'Now there goes a gent what's got the price of a drink in his clothes fer you and me,' I says, 'and he won't be no ways mean about givin' it up if he's touched right,' I says. And pard says: 'I guess yer right about that, pard,' he says, 'an' you jest go and hit 'im, an' I be along presently,' he says."

This was decidedly something new, and our friend removed his cigar and surveyed "pard" interestedly, as he continued:

"I want ter have yer meet pard, boss. Say! There's the brightes' feller in all Noo Y wk, there is! But he's a bit lame, is pard, and so I come along ahead. But he's comin' now—

The smaller of the two figures, somewhat bent to one side and leaning heavily on a cane, approached, and was duly presented:

"Gent, this is pard; pard, gent."

"Pard" touched his battered hat respectfully, said "Good evenin', gent," very pleasantly, and then relapsed into silence.

"As I was saying, I said to pard that you was a gent what had the price of a drink, didn't I, pard?"

"That's about right, gent."

"An' so we concluded to brace yer fer the price of a couple of beers, an'—an'—I guess that's about all there is in it."

"Well," said the "gent," you're an ingenious pair of beggars, and I don't see very well how I can refuse you. I suppose you haven't change for a bill, have you?"

"What's the figger?" very gravely.

"A fiver."

"No-o-o—leastwise not in these close," with just the suspicion of a smile.

"Very well, you just come along with me and I'll get the bill broken in this cafe on the corner and fix you out."

"Thanks, gent." And the two followed at a respectful distance and camped down in front of the saloon while the "gent" went in and bought a cigar. When he came out he handed a quarter to the principal speaker, with the remark. "There's the price of several drinks for you and 'pard' for your combined honesty."

"Thanks, gent, thanks. We didn't expect so much; that's straight, did we pard? An' we're much obleeged to yer, ain't we, pard?"

"We are," said "pard."

"Good evenin' and good luck to yer, gent."

"Good evening, boys." And the two disappeared through the swinging doors.—Brooklyn Eagle.

ESTABLISHED MAY 10, 1887. PLAINFIELD, N. J., MONDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1899. TWO CENTS A COPY—$5 A YEAR.

ON THE EVE OF THE MUNICIPAL ELECTION.

The Political Situation Summed Up Impartially.

BOTH SIDES CLAIM VICTORY:

DEMOCRATIC PARTY PUTS UP HARDEST FIGHT FOR YEARS.

There is a Normal Republican Majority in Plainfield—Can the Democrats Win the Independent Vote and Overcome It—Over 50,000 Pasters Printed—Final Details to Be Arranged Tonight.

Plainfield is now on the eve of a municipal election. Its most striking feature is the reappearance of the Democratic party which, with an entirely new organization, will make the strongest fight put up at a city election for years. There is practically only one issue, the question of the continuation or defeat of the present Republican administration. The Republicans point out with pride the many things it has accomplished and claims that it has been an economical rule. The Democrats tell how much better and more economical they could conduct the city's business if put in power, and declare that the Republicans have been wildly extravagant. So stands the fight.

The campaign that ends today has been a lively one despite the fact that neither party has made a great deal of noise. The preliminary work has been almost entirely personal and no mass meetings have been held. There have been several informal receptions held by both parties but they have only been ward affairs. This morning the mails were crowded with the circulars and tickets of both parties. The Republicans followed their usual custom of sending every voter in the city a circular and a regular Republican ticket.

The Democrats, for the first time at a city election, have sent one of their tickets accompanied by a circular denouncing the Republican administration and asking the support for their ticket. They reached the homes of the voters today and the letter carriers consequently had their hands full.

There have been large quantities of pasters printed in preparation for the election and they have been generously distributed all over the city. There are thirty-four candidates on both tickets and every one has had some printed. The aggregate number of pasters will reach fifty thousand. It is therefore to be expected that there will be lots of scratching on both tickets. There are personal friendships and enmities that will result in many scratched tickets. The leaders of both parties are using their utmost endeavors, however, to have the straight tickets voted.

Plainfield has a normal Republican majority that is variously estimated at from 300 to 800. If the Republicans can simply hold their own or permit more than a slight falling away of their regular supporters, they will be victorious tomorrow. With their new organization, the Democrats expect to get out every Democratic vote and they are counting on swinging enough of the independent element, usually Republican, to give them a partial victory at least.

The Republican leaders claim the election of their entire ticket. They declare that the candidates-at-large will win by fully 600 majority. They expect that the closest fights will be in the First and Fourth wards. In the First ward, they expect to win by a majority of from 50 to 125. In the Fourth, they calculate on a majority of 100 at least.

The Democrats claim that they will elect DeWitt C. Ivins to the Board of Freeholders and Charles C. Burnett to the Board of Education by small but definite majorities. They anticipate the election of one at least of their candidates for Councilman-at Large, and possible two. They are confident of winning in the First and Fourth wards and predict close fights in the Second and Third.

The city executive committees of both parties will hold meetings this evening when the final details for the election will be arranged and the reports of the situation in the different wards made. Then the final estimates as to the majorities will be made and both sides will turn in for the night confident of victory.

Electricity Helps Him.

The many friends of Former Freeholder George W. F. Randolph, of West Front street, will be glad to learn that an electric apparatus recently purchased by Mrs. Randolph, is having a very beneficial effect on Mr. Randolph's arm and side and his general health has improved under the treatment.

THE REPUBLICAN VIEW.

A CORRESPONDENT WHO DECRIES THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

Declares There is No Use Voting for It, as There is No Chance of Its Being Victorious at the City Election.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—

It is not believed by any right thinking person that the Democrats can win in the city election. The better class of that party in Plainfield know too well a good thing when they see it, and they have prospered so well under the present administration that they cannot be induced to change their minds or their votes. This is not a time for an expression of good-will and a vote to be cast for a Democrat because he happens to be a good fellow and a friend of yours. What is needed in the Council is a body of sound-minded men, such as characterizes a majority of the present Councilmen, who are above reproach and whose records are clean, whose every interest is identified with the interest of every citizen, black or white, rich or poor.

It has been said that the present administration is an expensive one. This is not true. Where is there a city like Plainfield that is enjoying so much and paying so little for it? All this is due to the wise and keen business management of the majority of the present Council. They are experienced men and quick to kill any attempt made to damage the interests of the city. And it is just such men that the city want to keep in its governing body.

It is claimed that the Council has been extravagant in ordering sidewalks in the outskirts, but not one person can deny the great benefits received by the property owners, who might have been walking in mud ankle deep had not the Council put into practice a broad and liberal-minded policy which benefits all and not a few.

The election of DeWitt C. Ivins will not give cheap gas, nor free ice and coal; neither will it give the city any better representation than that given by J. Frank Hubbard, a pioneer Freeholder, or Wm. A. Westphal. It is known that Mr. Atterbury and Mr. Marshall accepted the Councilmanic nomination simply to fill out the ticket, and they doubt their own election. There are possibly others on the Democratic ticke who feel the same way. Under these conditions it would be foolish to throw your vote away and have it count for naught. Better still, cast your vote for the straight Republican ticket made up of men of mature judgment, who will represent and transact your affairs in an honest, straightforward way, and who will give you the most for your money.

As the Press has stated in its columns that it is entirely independent I have no doubt you will give this space in your paper. J. G. C.

IN MR. POTTER'S MEMORY.

Employes of the Press Factory Hear a Glowing Tribute—A Chance to View the Remains.

The employes of the Potter Printing Press Company were called together a few minutes before noon today and a tender and feeling tribute to the memory of Charles Potter, the president of the company, was given by the vice-president, Horace W. Fish. D. E. Titsworth, manager of the works, announced that the shop would close at 11:30 to-morrow, and that from 12 to 1:30 an opportunity would be given for the employes and other friends of Mr. Potter to pay their respects to his remains at his home. He also announced that it was in accordance with Mr. Potter's own wish that the works continue to run between his going home and the funeral services, and that in further consonance with this wish all men who put in a time card for the morning would receive pay for the whole day, Tuesday.

A DANGEROUS BLAZE.

Started in the Residence of Charles M. Ulrich—Supposed to Have Started From Stove.

A dangerous little blaze started in a close on the second floor of the residence of Charles M. Ulrich, 318 East Fifth street, this morning. It is not known how the fire started but is supposed to have caught in some way from a stove. An alarm was sent in from box 23 and the department responded promptly. An extinguisher did the work.

The damage to the house and the contents of the closet will amount to $50, which is fully covered by insurance.

David Dunavan, a fireman, happened to be passing the house when the fire was discovered, and he went in and lent valuable aid till the fire department apparatus arrived.

DEATH OF MRS. MACDONALD

Mother of J. Fred MacDonald Passed Away After a Long Illness at Her Home on Front Street.

After an illness extending over a period of several months, Mrs. Sarah A MacDonald died about 8 o'clock Saturday evening at her home, corner of Watchung avenue and East Front street, aged 67 years.

Mrs. MacDonald had been an invalid for a long time, but her condition did not become so serious as to compel her to take to her bed until about nine weeks ago, where she had lingered a great sufferer, her disease being catarrh of the bowels. Saturday morning Mrs. MacDonald's condition became noticeably alarming to the family. It was apparent that she could not live but a few hours. Toward afternoon she became weaker and was conscious that the end was near. At 8 o'clock she passed away. J. Fred MacDonald, her son, did not reach the house in time to be with his mother at the time of her death.

The deceased was the daughter of J. J. Gardner and the widow of Rudolphus MacDonald, who died about twelve years ago. She was born in New York city in 1832, and in 1856 was married to Mr. MacDonald, who at that time was a prosperous merchant and established the grocery business which his son is now conducting. Their only child was J. Fred MacDonald, who survives his mother and who succeded to his father's business at the time of his death.

Soon after coming to Plainfield Mrs. MacDonald joined the Second Presbyterian church, now known as the Crescent Avenue church. For many years she was identified in church work and took an active interest in the Sunday-school, being a teacher for a number of years.

Of late years, however, she has been a regular attendant at Trinity Reformed church, from the fact that she found it more convenient to do so owing to ill health.

The funeral services will be held from the house Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. W. R. Richards, D. D., and Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph.D., will officiate.

Prize Winners at Fair.

The fair held in Washington Hall last week under the auspices of Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, closed Saturday evening after a very successful week. The prize and chance contests were closed at the same time and were won as follows: Toilet set, Mrs. Daniel Page; rocking chair, J. J. Kenney; a lamp, Mrs. William Thompson; a quilt, Mrs. Anderson.

In Contact With a Live Wire.

Two men working this morning on the billboard on Hand's building, near the Crescent Rink, tearing off the old posters, narrowly escaped serious injury by coming in contact with a live electric wire that runs through the billboard. The men soon discovered that they could not continue their work and were obliged to wait until the electric light company men arrived and took care of the wire.

Miss Curry to Speak.

After a short business meeting of the Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church tonight, Miss Curry, of the Day Nursery, New York, will tell of her work in the slums of New York. Miss Curry is a consecrated woman and her address will be very interesting. The public is invited to hear her.

Small Boy Fell Downstairs.

Harry, the two-year old son of George Suydam, of Stebbins place fell downstairs last Saturday evening and received several contused wounds of the head. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan was called and he fixed the little fellow all right. No serious results are feared.

Bought by Mrs. Tracy.

The Streuli property that was put up at an auction sale last week by F. G. Wolbert, of Jersey City, auctioneer for the estate, was sold to Mrs. Evarts Tracy, of this city. The price is not known. The place will continue to be used for residence.

Going to California.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward White left Plainfield this morning for an extended trip to Los Angeles, Cal., New Mexico and other far western points. They will be gone all winter. Their young son will remain with relatives in Somerville.

Hurt One of His Fingers

Andrew Heffran, of Monroe avenue, an employe of the Pond Tool Machine Company, had one of his fingers badly crushed by a piece of iron striking it while at work Saturday. He went to the hospital to have it dressed.

To Take a Long Time.

The Mayor and borough Council believe that it will take several months to prepare for the collection of the 1898 delinquent taxes, hence the fact that they are starting in early for the work.

OPEN CAR HELD UP BY ORDER OF THE MAYOR.

Borough's Chief Executive Bound to Stop "Pneumonia Express."

CHIEF MARSHALL ACTED.

OPEN CAR STOPPED AT THE COUNTY LINE ON SOMERSET STREET.

Chief Marshal Warned Motorman and Conductor Not to Go Any Further—Closed Car Was Finally Secured—Passengers Were Compelled to Disembark and Wait Till Another Car Came Along for Them

That open trolley cars will not go in the borough was demonstrated yesterday afternoon when Chief Marshal Campbell, acting under instructions of Mayor N. B. Smalley, stopped one at the county line about 4 o'clock. His Honor had previously given instructions to the trolley company that they would have to stop running open cars in the borough. The company stopped for a day or two, but evidently thought His Honor was an easy mark and on Saturday they started to run an open car in the borough, and again yesterday. This news reached Mayor Smalley's ears, and he gave Chief Campbell explicit instructions to stop all open cars from going into the borough.

About 4 o'clock an open car came along in charge of Motorman Peter Hansen and Conductor J. B. Martin, and there were a number of passengers aboard. Chief Campbell was on the lookout and the car was held up on the bridge. The men in charge of the car were told they could not go any further, and they decided to obey the instructions of the officers. The passengers then left the car, after which it was taken back to the city. In a few minutes a closed car came along and the passengers were taken aboard to continue the journey along the road. Mayor Smalley is determined that the open cars shall not run in the borough at this season and he will see that they do not, even if the road ceases to operate in that domain.

It was reported this morning that the Somerset street cars would be run under fifteen minutes headway to get even with the boroughites who are kicking against the open trolley.

BLACKFORD TO BE HELD.

PROSECUTOR ENGLISH TO HAVE BIGAMIST EXTRADITED TO JERSEY.

The Prisoner to be Held in New York For Thirty Days—Wife No. 2 Called on the First Wife in This City Yesterday.

There were several visitors at 926 Putnam avenue yesterday to see wife No. 1 of John L. Blackford, who is now confined in the Tombs prison, New York, on the charge of bigamy. Mrs. Blackford was not at home to her visitors, however, and all inquiry could only obtain the reply that Mrs. Blackford had nothing to say.

Mrs. Blackford, No. 2 with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Brenesholtz, of Westfield, called at the Blackford home yesterday afternoon. It is not known whether the two wives met or what was the result. The call was a short one and the visitors refused to say what happened.

Prosecutor English, at Elizabeth, said yesterday that he had sent word to the New York authorities to hold Blackford for thirty days. That time will be required to obtain requisition papers to bring the prisoner to Elizabeth to be indicted. Mr. English declared that the complaint should have been made in Jersey instead of New York.

A-leep in a Field.

Henry Kuhnhofer crme up from Elizabethport Sunday afternoon. He enjoyed the hospitality of his Plainfield friends. The hospitality was largely in a liquid form and overcame the sense of direction that Kuhnhofer possessed. Patrolman Vanderweg found the visitor asleep in a field on Grant avenue early this morning. He was locked up. As all his fun had been at the expense of his Plainfield hosts, City Judge Runyon set the city's share down at $3

A Quiet Wedding.

A quiet wedding took place at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, when Catherine, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Bergen, of South Second street, was united in marriage to Charles M. Wheeler, of Boston, Mass. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Smyth, of St Mary's church

Prize Choristers.

The prize choristers of Grace church for November are: V. Brooks, V Miner, W. Davis and Misses C. Woodward. J Little, M Ulrich, J Tallamy, B. Miner. Master Vincent Miner and Miss Jessie Little each received the Grace church cross.

ONE EYE GONE BLIND.

The Affliction of Stephen A. Brown Causes Him to Lose His Job on the Central.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 4.—The many friends of Stephen A. Brown, of this place, will sympathize with him in his recent affliction, the loss of the sight of one eye. This affection of the eye has been bothering him for about a year, but it was hoped that with the best of treatment the sight could be saved. It could not, however, and he has been obliged to give up his post as an engineer on the Jersey Central. Mr. Brown was one of the most careful engineers on the road and he secured his position after many years of hard and faithful work. No dout the company will appreciate his services sufficiently to give him a positon in some other department that he can attend to.

HAD A FAMOUS NAME.

But He Dishonored It by Associating With Bad Company and Getting Arrested.

City Judge Runyon enjoyed the novelty of passing sentence on George Washington this morning. George went to Stotch Plains yesterday and there fell in with Firman Sharp and a friend. There were lady friends too, so he says. There was also something to drink. When they reached home late last night the men quarrelled over the question of payment for the drinks. Washington was knocked down and rolled in the gutter.

He complained to Patrolman Totten and Totten arrested both Washington and Sharp. This morning the two young colored men came before the the judge and were fined $2 each.

Frightened Horse's Wild Run.

A horse belonging to F. A. Weber, the coal dealer, who was hitched to a two-seated wagon and left standing in front of Mr. Weber's home at 124 Libert street, became frightened about 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning and ran away. The animal dashed over Liberty to West Front street and to Madison avenue where it was caught by two young men. In going over Liberty street the wagon came in contact with a tree and two wheels were wrecked.

Funeral of Martin Roth.

The funeral of Martin Roth was held this morning at 8:30 o'clock from the house and 9 o'clock from St. Mary's church. Rev. Father Westman officiated. The T. A. B. Association attended in a body and the following were palibearers: Peter Flynn, Sr., J. Motley, M. McCarthy, J. Hickey, M. Welsh and A. McGuigan. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr Leary a Host.

J. W. Leary, superintendent of the Aluminum Plate and Press Company, gave a course dinner to a party of Plainfield friends last evening in the new grill room of the Hotel Kensington. The guests were Edward White, J. A. Staats, Fred Lynn, Former Judge W. A. Coddington, J. A. McClintock, George Hodgdon and S. S. Squier.

Another Central Official to Reside Here.

The residents of Fairview avenue, in the borough, are congratulating themselves over the fact that they have gained a very pleasant neighbor in Clarence L. Hollis, the recently appointed stationmaster of the Jersey Central Railroad at Jersey City. Mr. Hollis has rented a house on that avenue and he and his family are now occupying it.

Scandinavian Society Officers.

At the monthly meeting of the Scandinavian Society Thule held Saturday the following officers were elected: President, Thomas Caleen; vice-president, David Peterson, secretary, Gustav Peterson; assistant secretary, Miss Matilda Gustavson; treasurer, Chas N. Rydell; auditors, Andrew Krog and Chas. Dahlin.

Thanks to All.

The Plainfield Relief Association extends its sincere thanks to all those who so kindly assisted the Association in sending Thanksgiving dinners to sixty eight families, 237 people, including 16 at the Industrial Farm were remembered. Marion S. Dumont, secretary.

Important Meeting of the Council.

This evening the Common Council will meet in regular session and consider some important matters. This is the last meeting prior to the city election which takes place tomorrow.

Dean Rodman to Tell of His Trip

Dean Rodman will tell of his recent trip to Palestine at the Monroe Avenue church next Wednesday night. He should be greeted by a large audience.

—The meeting of the Rasores Club Tuesday, Dec. 5th, will be held at Stephen Cahoone's, 1126 Watchung avenue.

ALL FAVOR IMPROVEMENT

WIDENING OF SOMERSET STREET A POPULAR PROJECT.

Many Property Owners Have Been Seen and None Seem to be Opposed to It—Expense to Fall on the Whole Borough.

Already a number of the property owners along Somerset street from the county line to Jackson avenue, have been seen regarding the widening of the street and almost all are unanimous in the belief that the work should be done. Some have agreed to donate the necessary amount of land in front of their property.

It is proposed by the Mayor and Council, if the work is done, to place the expense in the general tax budget so that the borough as a whole may share equally in the improvement. By doing this the expense will fall lightly on all. It has been determined that if the improvement is made that there will be at least a ten or twelve foot sidewalk on each side of the street and this is considered large enough.

As already stated there are a few cases where owners have built over the line, and of course they can be compelled to move back. In the case of Saengerbund Hall the front steps extend over the line but this trouble can be averted by building a vestibule in the front of the hall, and removing the steps. It would give the hall a better appearance, and the room required for this improvement would not be missed if the hall is extended in the rear as now proposed by the members.

It has been ascertained that the other properties over the line can be moved with comparatively little trouble and expense, and there is no reason to doubt but what all the owners will be glad to assist in making this grand improvement so much needed.

MR. BROKAW EXPLAINS.

Believes That Hargraves Suit Was Started to Injure Him in the Municipal Campaign.

To the Editor of The Daily Press—

The News Saturday last published a statement relative to my being sued by the assignee of Mr Hargrave. This statement doubtless emanated from the attorney of the assignee of Mr. Hargrave for the purpose of injuring me politically in the coming election. In order that the truth may be placed before the people, permit me to say that the assignee of Mr Hargrave claims I owe him $316.53. This amount I do not owe. I do owe him $265.81, which sum was tendered to Mr Angleman in cash on the 17th day of October last in the presence of Mr. Runyon, editor of the News. This tender took place in front of the First National Bank My counsel, W. A. Coddington, made the tender. I was also present and saw it made. Mr. Angleman refused to accept it. This was all I owed. Why Mr. Angleman waited all this time before bringing suit I do not know. I am willing to pay all my just debts, but object to paying something I do not owe. I have handed the papers in the case to my attorney, with instructions to interpose a defense.

Trusting that you will give this statement space in your valuable paper, I am,

Respectfully yours,
Wm. H. Brokaw.

Died at Ripe Old Age.

The death of Mrs. Caspar Volz, aged 89 years, occurred at her home in Newark Tuesday, November 28th. In spite of her advanced age she was never ill a day and always enjoyed the best of health. Her death was due to a sudden breaking down of the general system. She was buried on the Thursday following her death, at Newark. She leaves six daughters and two sons. One of the latter is Louis Volz, of Johnston's Drive. The deceased was quite well known in this vicinity where she visited frequently.

Mr. French Buys Out His Partner.

The well known firm of French & Thiers, real estate and insurance, has been dissolved by mutual consent, Wm. J B Thiers retiring. The business will be conducted at the same location on North avenue by Elston M. French, who will be pleased to continue to cater to the wants of the patrons of the old firm, which has built up a splendid business through the efforts of two gentlemen of integrity and enterprise. Mr. Thiers has not yet decided what business he will engage in.

Revival Meetings Successful.

At Grace M. E. church yesterday morning there was great cause for rejoicing over the accession to the membership as a result of protracted meetings held recently. There were about fifteen persons received, and there are still a number who could not be present who will be received later. The regular communion service was also held at this service.

ALIS ENDS SEASON WITH A VICTORY.

Defeated Bedford A. C. by Score of 11 to 0.

VISITORS FROM BROOKLYN.

GREEN MADE BOTH TOUCHDOWNS FOR HOME TEAM.

Game Was Marred by Disgraceful Wrangling and Unfair Tactics of Visitors Who Were Bound to Win Anyhow—Visitors Nearly Scored in First Half—Alis' Second Touchdown in Last Minute of Play.

The Alis football team ended their season Saturday afternoon by defeating the Bedford A. C. of Brooklyn after the fiercest game played on Martine Common. It was the first defeat of the season for the visitors and they took it greatly to heart. While they played a good game of hard, snappy football, they spoiled the good impression by their constant wrangling and the unfair methods they introduced toward the end in their effort to win anyhow. In the second half, the play was very rough. The umpire from Westfield gained general disfavor by his decisions decidedly favoring the visitors.

Alis won the toss and took the western goal with advantage of wind and sun. Bedford kicked off to Taylor at Alis' 25-yard line. The first few plunges into the line netted but small gains for the home team. Then Cuming circled right end for eight yards and Dumont cleared fifteen more to Bedford's 45-yard line. There the visitors braced and held Plainfield for three downs. Phillips punted to Kayser, who fumbled but fell on the ball on his own 20-yard line.

On Bedford's first attempt to gain the ball was fumbled. Cuming broke through the line and fell on it twelve yards from Bedford's goal. Cuming and Phillips hit the line for short gains principally at tackle. With the ball a yard from the goal, Green circled left end for a touchdown after eight minutes of play. Phillips failed to goal. Score, Alis, 5; Bedford, 0.

Bedford kicked off to Long at Alis' 35-yard line. Cavanagh snatched the ball out of Long's arms after the latter had called "down," but the play was allowed and Bedford took the ball. After gaining fifteen yards on end plays, Kayser fumbled and Green fell on the ball twenty yards from Alis' goal. Cuming carried the ball ten yards on an end run and then Bedford gained the ball again on a fumble.

Then Alis woke up. Woolston, Cathcart and Taylor downed the Bedford backs for a loss each time and Kayser tried to kick. The kick was too low, and Catheart went through the line and pushed VanDain in front of the ball. Wolff fell on the ball on Alis' 30-yard line. Bedford failed to gain and then time was called.

Dumont kicked off in the second half for Alis. The ball was carried back to Bedford's 45-yard line through good interference. Then VanDain and Lovibond plunged through the line for good gains. When the ball reached Alis' 45 yard line there was a dispute that delayed the game some time and forced the playing way into the dark. The Bedford backs made small gains through the line, but were finally held for four downs and Alis took the ball. Green lost seven yards on a fumble. Cuming was good for twelve around right end. Woolston circled left for seven more. Cuming carried the ball to the centre of the field, five yards more, and Dumont added six on a trick.

Green shot around left end and was finally stopped by Lovibond after gaining 28 yards. Woolston fell on a fumbled ball. Little gain was made at centre and then Green plunged through tackle. The Bedford boys didn't see him and he speeded toward the goal. Kayser was still to be passed. Green dashed headfirst into the Bedford full back, temporarily ending the latter's usefulness, while Green rolled across the line for a touchdown. Phillips kicked the goal. Time was then called. Score—Alis, 11; Bedford A. C., 0.

FOR THE GOLD STANDARD.

A Leading Declaration of the President's Message.

DEVELOPMENT OF CUBA.

A Suggestion That the Civil Features of the Government of the Island be Extended—The National Expansion Question Treated Cautiously—Congress Convenes.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—With flags floating in the breeze above the National Capitol, the White House and other public buildings, the city filled with lawmakers from every state in the Union, and the galleries crowded with spectators, Congress opened for the session of '99-1900. The throng of spectators, as usual was at the capitol early and the scramble for the best seats from which to watch the opening porceedings, was fierce from the time the doors opened until the galleries were completely filled. There was nowhere near sufficient seating capacity or standing room to accommodate those who wished to grace the occasion with their presence, and in consequence of this there were many who had to content themselves with waiting until the newspapers could tell them what had happened within the halls of Congress on the opening day.

Out of respect to the memory of the late Vice President Hobart the proceedings in both the House and Senate were made as brief as possible and after the swearing in of members and the allotment of seats an adjournment was taken until Tuesday. The drawing for seats in the House was attended with all its usual amusing features. The elite of the city and the nation were witnesses to the bits of pleasantry indulged in on the floor of the House, and many of the incidents were of such a humorous character that there was an almost continuous uproar of laughter during the two hours this pleasing feature of the "performance" was on.

What the President Recommends.

New York, Dec. 4.—A special foom Washington to the New York World says:

"Washington, Dec. 4.—One of the most important features of the third annual message which President McKinley will send to Congress is the finances of the country. The suggestions of the President are distinctly in favor of a single standard. Gold will be the keynote of the Administration's plans for governmental purposes.

"The St. Louis platform of '96 is practically ignored and the most emphatic language is employed to make manifest the purposes of the President to stand unquestionably for currency reform upon a single standard. The construction of this part of the President's message has received more attention than all the other features combined.

"In dealing with national expansion the President exercises extreme caution, contenting himself with a historical narrative of the operations of the Government in attempting to reconstruct the governments of Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines, Hawaii and Guam. No reference is made to the treaty which the President has made with the Sultan of Sulu.

"No recommendations are made concerning the sort of government to be eventually established in the Philippines, and no reference is made to the existence of the so-called Filipino government.

"Regarding Cuba the President confines his recommendations to a further development of the government established there, suggesting an extension of the civil features of it which have already been experimented on. The President will say that the condition of the people of the islands is vastly better than it was before the advent of the United States.

"Porto Rico, he says, should have a Territorial form of government similar to that enjoyed by Arizona, New Mexico and Alaska. The people of the island, while not capable of self-government, he says, are entitled to representatives in Congress and such benefits as may accrue from a Territorial form of government. The President will also suggest that more moderate tariff regulations be provided for Cuba and Porto Rico. He further declares in favor of laws designed to encourage the people of those islands to advanced industry, the free admission of agricultural implements and other articles necessary to develop their resources.

"Hawaii the President points to in his message as an example of what other colonies may become under favorable conditions. He suggests a liberal Territorial form of government for the Pacific territory, Guam and the new Samoan Island which the United States has inherited do not come in for any particular attention at the hands of the President, he believing that they are both properly conducted.

"The most important of his reflections on the attitude of this Government toward others relates to the British-Boer troubles. He expresses his profound regret at the existence of this trouble, but skilfully avoids any comment that may be construed to reflect upon either Government.

"The President urges Congress to enact the Hanna-Payne shipping bill, which proposes a subsidy to vessels carrying American registry. He also suggests the necessity for the completion of the isthmian canal as soon as possible."

Gage Advises on Financial Bill.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The Republican members of the Senate Committee on Finance met Saturday afternoon to consider a financial bill. Senators Aldrich, Allison, Platt of Connecticut, Wolcott and Burrows were present, Mr. Platt, of New York, being the only absentee.

Secretary Gage went over the general situation with the committee, making various recommendations as to the details of the measure to be introduced.

One of the points discussed was the advisability of a general refunding of the bonded debt of the country at a lower rate of interest than now prevailing. The indications are that a feature of this kind will be incorporated in the Senate bill.

It can be definitely stated that the Senate measure will make provision for the maintenance of the gold standard. It is also quite definitely understood that the Senate bill will be an entirely different measure from that prepared by the House Republican Caucus Committee, in phraseology and detail, and cover some points not included in that measure.

Henderson Named By Acclamation.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The caucus of the Republican members of the House was brief. The selection of a candidate for Speaker by the party in power usually is an animated affair, but months ago all the other candidates who entered the field after the retirement of Speaker Reed abandoned the contest, leaving Colonel David B. Henderson of Iowa the unopposed candidate. His nomination therefore was a foregone conclusion, and he was named by acclamation. It also was decided, without a dissenting voice, to re-enact the rules laid down by former Speaker Reed.

The officers of the last House, except Colonel Russell, the Sergeant-at-Arms, were renominated without opposition, as follows: Clerk, Alexander McDowell of Pennsylvania; Doorkeeper, W. J. Glenn of New York; Postmaster, J. C. McElroy of Ohio, and Chaplain, the Rev. Henry Conden of Michigan.

Democrats Select Richardson.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The Democrats of the House of Representatives at their caucus, held in the hall of Representatives, selected Representative J. D. Richardson of Tennessee as their candidate for Speaker after a spirited contest which lasted through six ballots. This carries with it the Democratic leadership on the floor. Mr. Richardson has served fourteen years in the House, and is the oldest Democratic member in point of service except Mr. McRae of Arkansas.

The candidates against Mr. Richardson were Representative De Armond of Missouri, Bankhead of Alabama and Sulzer of New York.

To Rush Molineux Trial.

New York, Dec. 4.—It is reasonably certain that the trial of Roland B. Molineux, which has now commenced in earnest before Recorder Goff, will not drag along as other celebrated cases have, but will be pushed to as speedy an ending as is compatible with the preservation of the legal rights of the defendant and of the people. Recorder Goff indicated during the latter days of the selection of the jury that he would not tolerate delay, where delay was attempted without proper and legitimate purpose in view. The same rule will apply in the trial.

Mutiny on an Ocean Liner.

St. John, N. B., Dec. 4.—The Donaldson line steamer Amarynthia arrived here from Glasgow with a mutiny on board. As soon as the vessel dropped anchor in the harbor Capt. Taylor sent for the police to take off thirteen cattlemen who were attempting to take possession of the ship. Chief Clark and a squad boarded the steamer and after a fight, during which knives were drawn, the cattlemen were overpowered and placed in irons. The cattlemen broke into the cargo of whiskey just before the vessel reached port and drank liquor freely.

To Test a Leprosy Cure.

Honolulu, Nov. 23, via Victoria, B. C., Dec. 4.—Experiments are to be made here in the treatment of leprosy with a Venezuela shrub, of which samples were forwarded here by Surgeon General Wyman, of the United States. The shrubs are growing here under the care of Dr. Carmichael of the United States Marine Hospital, who was asked by the department at Washington to make the experiments.

Dr. De Costa Becomes a Catholic.

New York, Dec. 4.—Three months ago the Rev. Dr. Benjamin F. De Costa resigned the office of presbyter in the Protestant Episcopal Church. Sunday he was received into the communion of the Roman Catholic Church. The ceremony took place in the Academy of the Sacred Heart, in the presence of a few Catholic and Protestant friends who had bee invited to witness it.

Will Keep Open on Sunday.

Englewood, N. J., Dec. 4.—Candy and cigar stores all remained open Sunday despite the Mayor's proclamation that they must close. On last Sunday all except one closed, and no action was taken against the man who kept open, so the others decided to conduct business as usual.

Walked in Front of a Train.

Hackensack, N. J., Dec. 4.—The woman killed by a train of the New Jersey and New York Railroad in Carlstadt has been identified as Mrs. Pauline W. Paugol, 62 years old, a widow, living in Woodcliff. She had been here on business, and was on her way home when she walked in front of the train.

Big Real Estate Deal in Newark.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 4.—A real estate deal by which the Prudential Insurance Company acquires all the property in Broad street between Bank and Market streets, has just been concluded. The company's holdings in Broad and Bank streets now are estimated to be worth about $6,000,000.

Venezuelan Rebels Win Fight.

Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 4.—After a fight lasting sixteen hours the city of Maracaibo, capital of the State of Zulia, is in the power of the Hernandist revolutionary forces.

"Fingerless Navigator" Tells of Thrilling Experiences.

MR. BLACKBURN RETURNS

He Comes Back to His Mother Country After Sailing Across the Atlantic in a Thirty-Foot Cutter—Slept Through the Afternoons and Sailed During the Nights.

New York, Dec. 4.—It may be recalled as one of the seaside excitements of last summer's gay season on the coast that the man who has earned the title of the "Fingerless Navigator"—Captain Howard Blackburn—sailed away for a voyage across the Atlantic. He sailed from Gloucester, Mass., receiving goodbys from 10,000 spectators, for Gloucester, England. His cutter was only 30 feet long over all, 4½ tons burden, 20 feet on the water line and of 4 feet draught.

What made this venture more perilous is that Blackburn has no fingers and no toes. He is a Captain Courageous, of whom Kipling might have written, had the author met the mariner in the codfish port of Massachusetts. For Blackburn was one of those fishermen on the Grand Banks whom Kipling has described so vividly and whose outgoings and homecomings make so large a part of the joys and sorrows of Gloucester.

It was on one of his excursions in a dory, searching for cod, that Blackburn and a mate were separated from their schooner. One day, and their only hope was to row for the shore of Newfoundland. They rowed hard and fast, but the chill of death overtook the mate. Blackburn rowed steadily on, inspired by the instinct of self-preservation. His fingers, soaked with salt spray, froze to the oars. He wrenched them away and with his knife cut off the frozen fingers. His toes froze in the icy water in the bottom of the dory. He amputated them also. For five days and nights, without food or water, he maintained this fearful struggle for existence, until he reached the land and found succor.

When at last he came back to Gloucester Blackburn found himself a hero, who was maimed and penniless. He earned his living in various pursuits connected with the fishing trade until he conceived the idea of sailing all alone clear across the sea to England. The love of the Atlantic, despite its ill usage, moved him. He felt the confidence needed for such a venture, and he devoted all his time to building this tiny craft, which he christened the Great Eastern.

He just has returned to New York, not in his little craft, but in the steamship Umbria, and spins an interesting yarn about his voyage. His trip was sixty-one days long. He was absolutely alone, else he might have crossed in better time. He said:

"I had to heave to every time I wanted to light a pipe or go down into the cabin, so, as one can see, time was lost in this way. Then, again, I was hindered by head winds and rough weather. The boat was built especially for the trip, but, of course, she shipped water at one time or another. When it began to blow I fastened the cabin door and locked my legs about the binnacle and went ahead.

"When I was near the American coast, and again when I was nearing England, I slept in the afternoon and at night I had to care for myself. I had two narrow escapes from being run down. Once, in the fog off Newfoundland, I was in the cabin, when I heard escaping steam. I grabbed the fog horn and ran on deck.

"When I got there I fell and broke the horn. At the same time a big steamship skinned past, so close that the water from the propeller was hurled on the deck. Another time off Sable Island I was passed at night by a steamship so close that it looked at first as though my trip was over.

"I kept a dead reckoning all the time, and now and then, of course, I took observations. I had plenty of food, most of it being in cans and requiring very little cooking. I cooked my meals on a little oil stove. When I arrived on the other side I had enough food left over to last me ninety days longer.

"I had intended to have a sail on the Mediterranean, but I had rheumatism, and the doctors ordered me to give up the sea. I sold the Gerat Eastern and came home on the Umbria."

Must Pay Tax on Dogs.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 4.—The Georgia House of Representatives has passed by a large vote a bill taxing all dogs in the state over four months old $1 and $1.50 each. Each dog is to be provided with a brass check by the collector, and if a canine parades without one he is to be put to death. For thirty years there have been efforts to get such a bill through the General Assembly. It is intended as a protection for the sheep-raising industry.

President Dole Saves a Life.

Honolulu, Nov. 23, via Victoria, B. C., Dec. 4.—President Dole and the Cabinet granted a reprive in the case of Ihara, a native who was under sentence to hang on Sunday, December 3. Ihara was convicted under Hawaiian law which a majority verdict of the jurors is accepted in criminal cases. This is held to be in conflict with American law.

THAT'S THE IDEA!
You ought to see what we can do for you before doing anything for yourself. Painting depends upon the paint and the painter. Better preparations than ours were never put on by a brush. Wherever paint is put, it should be put there to stay long enough to make it worth while to do the job. The warring elements have no effect on our durable mixtures.

CARRIE. You wouldn't think I would give Ripans Tabules to a child like Charlie, would you?
ELSIE. No, indeed. He could not swallow one, and it would be too powerful.
CARRIE. They are all right for him. Of course, he don't need one very often, and I used to give him a quarter of a one, afterwards half, but now he takes a whole one and they seem to be just what he needs—once in a while, you know—not often.
ELSIE. And he swallows it without any fuss?
CARRIE. Yes. He don't mind it at all—but I can't swallow one, though. I'm the only member of this family that don't take Ripans Tabules.

PAYING DEARLY FOR WAR

Sentiment Along This Line is Growing in London.

WOMEN LOSING HEART.

Each Day Brings Fresh Mourning Into British Homes—Effects of the Transvaal War Being Felt Seriously By the Poor—Last Battle Not so Fatal as First Reported.

London, Dec. 4.—The prevailing sentiment daily growing stronger here is that we are paying very dearly for the war.

A letter written by a member of the royal family to a lady whose son is in the Coldstreams with the Orange River column, and is thus in the thick of the fight, has just been made public. In it His Highness says: "All these victories sound very grand as heroic encounters and proofs of British pluck, but they are small from the practical military point of view. No victories are great where guns have not been captured. We have taken no cannon from the enemy."

More guards have started, which will further empty London of desirable men in the society point of view.

Ladies are beginning to lose heart as they see each day bringing fresh mourning into new families. Hunt balls and country house parties are being put off in numbers, which points to the coming winter as one of unrecorded dulness. The hunting fields are shorn of their most brilliant riders. In these and a thousand other ways the pinch of war has been felt more keenly each day.

So much for the rich. The poor also feel the war very seriously, for it is almost impossible this winter to get ordinary subscriptions to the usual relief funds. People just say, "We can't give this year, for we have to subscribe all we can afford to the war funds." This can easily be imagined by looking at the enormous sums raised throughout the country.

List of British Losses.

London, Dec. 4.—The War Office has given out the official list of the British killed and wounded at the battle of Modder River, the total being 438.

This comparatively small number created wide astonishment. There were at least 8,000 English engaged. At the battle of Glencoe, where only 4,000 English were engaged, the loss was 269 killed and wounded and 208 missing, or 477. At Elandslaagte fight about 3,500 English were engaged, and the losses were 264 killed and wounded. At Ladysmith on Oct. 28, 301 were killed and wounded and 485 captured. Thus the British loss at Modder River is about 5 per cent. Some military men are inclined to think that the Boer losses must have been very heavy, to account for Lord Methuen's despatch saying it was "the bloodiest fight of the century."

Long Wants Warships.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The annual report of the Secretary of the Navy is a document of unusual interest, dealing not only with the work of the navy during the past year and important recommendations for the future, but also discussing the more important questions relating to the navy, including the authorization of eighteen new warships, the imperative need of special legislation in the early days of Congress for armor of the best quality that can be obtained, and the proposition that the thanks of Congress be given to the Commander-in-Chief of the North Atlantic Squadron and to the officers and men under his command for the part they took in the naval operations at Santiago.

Death Spared Him a Trial.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 4.—John Kofal, the alleged bigamist who drank carbolic acid in Broad street on Thursday night, died Sunday in the City Hospital. Mrs. Annie Kofal of No. 132 East Forty-second street, New York, was the first wife. She met the second two weeks ago and showed her her marriage certificate. Then the second wife told Kofal to leave the house and never return. He went. When he was taken to the hospital the second wife made a charge of bigamy and if he had recovered he would have been prosecuted. He probably will be buried in potter's field. Both wives say they will not have anything to do with the body.

Ate Rat Poison in Pie.

Somerville, N. J., Dec. 4.—Howard T. Mettlar, aged forty-five, a driver for Cawley's bottling establishment, on returning home from work Saturday night, ate a pie containing poison, which his wife had fixed for rats in the cellar. He afterward told his wife that the pie had a queer taste. Upon hearing that he had eaten the poison, he went to Dr. Stillwell and emetics were administered. He then went to his home, where the emetics worked until he collapsed. He died late Sunday afternoon. Mettlar leaves three children.

Was Merely a Show Trick.

Anaconda, Mon., Dec. 4.—The dispatch printed in Chicago and Eastern papers under the date of Nov. 26 last to the effect that a petrified body, supposed to be that of Gen. Thomas Francis Meagher, had been found near Fort Benton has proved to be untrue. The story is an unqualified "fake," and was started by the owner of an unknown petrified man, soon to be sent East for cheap show purposes.

The Samoan Treaty Signed.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Secretary Hay, Lord Pauncefote and Herr von Holleben, on behalf of their respective governments, have signed the treaty for the partition of Somoa. The ceremony took place in the Diplomatic Room of the State Department. There was no preliminary discussion.

Amateur Golf at Atlanic City.

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 4.—Preparations are about completed for the big open tournament for amateur golf players to be held at the Northfield links of the Atlantic City Country Club on Dec. 14, 15 and 16. The events will be of a varied and interesting nature.

THEY WANTED TO LYNCH HIM.

Jersey Negro Has a Narrow Escape From Mob Violence.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 4.—In a small house in Hamilton square, just outside the city, was imprisoned Saturday night a negro, who is accused of having murdered a woman; outside the house, twoscore policemen, each with a revolver in hand, kept at bay an infuriated mob of 1,000 persons anxious to lynch the negro.

The mob was all the more likely to assail the police in the endeavor to get at the negro because he was once a prisoner, and ropes were ready for the hanging when he was allowed to escape.

Minnie Eisley, who was employed on William White's farm, at Yardville, was murdered on Thanksgiving night. It was said that Edgar Williams, the negro, who was a farm hand on the place, was the slayer, and the suspicion was heightened by his disappearance. He kept out of sight until Saturday, when he was seen passing E. R. Good's store, in Hamilton square.

Knowing him, Good called him into the store, and once inside he was seized and other men sent for. Williams fought hard, but he was subdued by a dozen willing men, who thrashed him without mercy. Then he was turned over to Squire Smith, who started for his office, holding his prisoner by the collar.

But everybody in the little place knew of the capture by this time, and the Squire had not gone half a hundred yards before a yelling mob was on him. It was Saturday night, and many of the crowd had been drinking.

"Lynch him!" cried some one. It was a suggestion that was received gladly. It was an easy matter to get ropes aplenty: it was not difficult to take the trembling wretch from the Squire, helpless in the face of such overpowering odds.

The negro was being hustled toward a part of the square where there are no houses, when the Squire made a last effort in his behalf.

He asked for quiet, and the shouts of "Shoot him!" and "Burn him at the stake!" ceased. The Squire begged the men to surrender the negro to him. He pleaded hard, but the leaders would not consent. He begged them for the life of what, he asserted, might be an innocent man.

And he won. The negro was placed in his charge and was locked in his office a few minutes later.

With the prey gone, the wrath of the mob was rekindled, to burn more fiercely than ever. The men rushed at the house, broke the windows and, with a section of telegraph pole as a battering ram, tried to force in the heavy door.

One panel had given way when the first detail of police from this city arrived. The policemen pushed their way through the crowd, surrounding the house, and, with their backs to the walls and their revolvers pointed at the would-be lynchers, warned them to keep at a safe distance.

They were cursed by the mob and stones were thrown at them; but, looking into the muzzles of the revolvers, there was none that cared to make a concerted attack.

For half an hour this truce was continued, and then the second batch of policemen from this city reached the place. Their appearance was to the mob as a red rag to a bull, and the mob charged wildly, only to be forced back, many with scalps torn and shoulders bruised.

Thus disheartened, the men began to disperse, and soon four detectives came from the house with the negro, whom they almost had to drag, so fear-stricken was he. The whole force of police made a cordon around the four.

The police professed to believe that the mob might attack the Central police station here, and the negro was taken at once before Magistrate Mathis, was charged with the murder and was locked up, then, in the County Jail.

Race For Mail Contract.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 4.—It is the general opinion among local railroad men that the officers of the Lake Shore and Pennsylvania Roads are quietly laying plans for a lively speed contest to capture the fast mail business between New York and Chicago, contracts for which will be let in a few months. This probably is the largest and most profitable mail contract in the country, and the time made is a factor in the award of the contract. Both roads are getting new improved and powerful passenger engines and patching up all the weak spots in their tracks. The question of superiority resolves itself into one of roadbed and track. In this the Lake Shore, with its New York connection—the New York Central—it is said has a little the better of it.

Hay's Son Goes to Pretoria.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—President McKinley has assigned Adelbert S. E. Hay, son of the Secretary of State, to take charge of the American Consulate at Pretoria. He will succeed Charles E. Macrum, whose application for leave has been approved to take effect on the arrival of Mr. Hay. Mr. Macrum will not return to his post. It is understood that the selection of Mr. Hay was the personal act of the President.

Corea's King is Generous.

San Francisco, Dec. 4.—Private advices from Seoul state that the King of Corea has offered $3,000 to the mother of Clarence Greathouse, his late legal adviser, so that she may return to her old home in Kentucky. She probably will reside with the family of her brother-in-law, ex-Gov. Porter. Mr. Greathouse left a will giving all his property, valued at about $35,000, to his mother.

Jailed For Using a Plate.

Lewiston, Me., Dec. 4.—Henry B. Graves, charged with assaulting his niece, Alberta Graves, with a plate a few days ago, has been bound over for trial. In default of $20,000 bail he was remanded to jail, but he will be sent to the State Insane Hospital for observation. Miss Graves, who, it had been feared, could not live, is a little better.

Says Mail Privileges Are Abused.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The annual report of Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith has been made public. Its chief feature is a plea for Congressional action to stop the abuse of second-class mail privileges, which he says results in an annual waste of upward of $20,000,000.

Postal After a New Field.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 4.—It is gossip on 'change here that the entrance of J. W. Mackay into the directorate of the Southern Pacific Company is part of a deal by which Mackay lends his millions to support Huntington in return for railroad aid to the Postal Telegraph Company. The contract between the Southern Pacific and the Western Union expired one year ago. Since then the railroad company made objection to a bill for services by the Western Union, and the contract has not been renewed. Mackay, it is said, has made arrangements to have the Postal succeed to the railroad business as soon as proper wire facilities can be obtained. As the station agents act as telegraph agents, it will give the telegraph company access to all parts of California.

Barred Out of Norfolk.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 4.—The steamship Roman Prince will not be permitted to discharge her cargo of coffee at this port. She is from Santos, Brazil, and it has been thirty days since she sailed. The New York health authorities have declined to permit the discharge of her cargo there, on account of the danger of bubonic plague. The steamship consignees telegraphed to their agents here, the United States Shipping Company, to see if entrance could be obtained for her. The State quarantine authorities, backed by the Mayor and Board of Health, denied admission to the port, and the pilot boats have been instructed to turn the Roman Prince back should she endeavor to pass the Hampton Roads quarantine station.

Business Healthy in Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 4.—The business world of Atlanta is congratulating itself on the fact that there has been only one failure of importance here since May, 1898. Moody & Brewster, a firm of wholesale merchants, went under at that time, but since then business has been in an extraordinarily healthy condition and only minor failures have developed. This breaks the record for many years.

CITY OWNERSHIP.

[FROM "MUNICIPAL MONOPOLIES."]

Under private ownership, Sacramento, Cal, population 35,000, pays $123 per annum rent for each street arc. Water power is used.

Under public ownership Topeka, Kansas, population 35,000, pays $59.73 for the same service which includes 5 per cent for interest and depreciation charges. Coal $2 per ton.

That much-sought after place in the Legislature, Supervisor of Bills, has been landed by Jesse R. Salmon, of Newark, who was appointed to the berth last Saturday. The office is a new one and is designed to take the place of the old-fashioned engrossing department. It will do away entirely with use of penmanship in the engrossing of bills and therefore reduce the chance of mistakes to a minimum. Under the new system the bills, resolutions and other documents of the Legislature will be printed. Mr. Salmon is a law stenographer, and has been an active Republican politician for several years. His term as Supervisor of Bills is three years, and the salary is $1,200 per year, the year consisting of about three days per week for a period of ten or twelve weeks.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

There should be a crowded house at Music Hall tonight, when the Diamond Brothers' Big Double White Minstrel enterprise holds the boards. The gorgeously staged attraction is bigger and better than ever before this season, and has been enjoying tremendous successes wherever it has been presented. There is no doubt but what the same welcome will be accorded here. In the cast there are 50 people in number, of the cleverest black faced comedians in the profession. The troupe is composed of all white people; they have two full brass bands, making one of the finest street parades of any minstrel show traveling. Each band has their respective leaders, besides the grand first part. There is an olio of the most pleasing specialties.

* * * * *

Seth Huggins, "The Village Postmaster," personified by Archie Boyd sorting the Bridgewater Mail on his visit to Plainfield Wednesday night at Music Hall and the large house that will no doubt welcome him, will be taken as a proof that the rural drama has lost nothing of its drawing power and is as popular as ever. Many will no doubt be carried back to the days of youth in a country village when they recognize the scenes and characters. The scenes and characters in "The Village Postmaster" are pictures that have been drawn from the real life of a New Hampshire village 50 years ago, at the time that Franklin Pierce was president and are admirably depicted by a company that is letter perfect by long practice. The play will be enjoyed by anyone that loves the country and by our people who were raised on a farm. The complete New York production will be given.

* * * * *

It would be difficult to imagine anything funnier than that funniest of all funny comedies, "Peck's Bad Boy," which will appear at Music Hall Saturday afternoon and night. It is funnier than Peck's book, the bad boy and his pa. This is because word painting, no matter how clever, cannot be as vivid as real action. You laugh when you read the book, but you roar when you see the same bad boy in flesh and blood perform those tricks. The cast contains many old and new favorites.

DAZZLING LIGHT.

Illumination of a Car That Has Been Short-Circuited.

Electricity played a queer prank on a Northern Central car the other night. To lookers-on at a safe distance it was merely a remarkable display ,the like of which as never before seen in St. Louis. To those on the car it had many elements of tragedy.

One man narrowly escaped death by fire and others of the passengers may have been injured in the panic that followed. Even the officials of the United Railways Company have not yet arrived at he exact extent of the damage done.

The cars on the Northern Central line are the oldest in the service. Their fuses burn out freuently, but that night's occurrence was the most serious accident of the kind that has yet occurred. At 9:30 o'clock a car was rounding the sharp down-grade curve at Thomas street and Leffingwell avenue. It was half filled with passengers.

Suddenly there was a grinding noise, which deafened those in the car and awakened residents in the neighborhood. The car came to a sudden stop. What followed is told by an eye-witness, who was attracted to his window by the unusual sound.

"When I looked out," he said, "the street was lit up for several blocks as if a powerful searchlight had been turned into it. The brilliancy all radiated from the car, which I at first thought was on fire. I could see the car distinctly. It seemed a shadowy form, seen through a halo of light. The outer edge of this light was a brilliant, dazzling white, but the inner portion, the nucleus, as it were, nearest the car, was the deep red of a consuming blaze.

"With the first play of the flames I heard passengers in the car cry out in alarm. Two young men jumped through a window and the other passengers rushed for the back door. I saw a man leap from the rear platform with his coat smoking. He pulled the garment off as he left the car.

"The illumination could be seen at a great distance, apparently for people come flocking from blocks around to see the illuminated car. Most of them walked home. Another car pushed the disabled one to the sheds."

Investigation Saturday morning showed that the accident was one of a number of electrical freaks caused by the recent damp weather. At the power house of the Northern Central line it was said that the current had become short-circuited. This meant that the current on coming from the wires, instead of going through the controller on the front platform operated by the motorman, went through the one on the rear platform. Unable to get into the motors by that route it passed out again and sought the nearest route to the rails. This was by way of the metal work about the sides and roof of the car.

On its journey around the car a portion of the current escaped into the moist atmosphere, causing the appearance of a halo. Enough of the current went through the controller and the motors to burn them out, which caused the red light of consuming flames. It was the burning out of the controller that ignited the coat of the man who stood near it on the rear platform. Street railway men agreed that the accident was a most unusual one.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 1—Fowler Vail and family have returned from Quaketown, where they attended the funeral of a relative.

Complaint is made by the residents of Lincoln of a gang of young men who gather on the store stoop evenings and persist in rowdy conduct. If the practice is not stopped some arrests may be made.

Miss Marguerite A. Coriell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Coriell, of New Market, entertained a number of her young friends recently, on the occasion of her seventh birthday.

Harry Hummer, of New Market, who has been confined to the house with the mumps, is improving.

Street Commissioner Staats has been leveling up the crosswalks in certain sections of the borough.

The new house being built by Eugene Runyon on Dunellen avenue, is nearing completion.

The Commissioners of Appeal have recently made deductions of $350 in the assessment rates.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Warden have been entertaining Miss Florence Howard, of New York.

The families of John S. Milliken and Mrs. Mary Coriell will move to Yonkers this week.

Mrs. O. A. Douglass entertained her nephew, Master Parkinson Smith, Thanksgiving.

Miss Janie Churchill has returned from Orange, where she visited relatives.

The family of Thomas Wrench, of Lincoln, had a reunion Thanksgiving day.

Mrs. L. Danz has been entertaining Miss Agnes Thompson, of Brooklyn.

Rev. and Mrs. A. I. Martine visited relatives in Nyack, N. Y., last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Brokaw have been visiting relatives in Bedminster.

Mr. and Mrs. George Craig have moved to Stroudsburg, Pa.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 4.—Funeral services over the remains of the late Mrs. Frederick Rose were held from her parents home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The service which was private was attended by the relatives and a few friends only. Rev. Mr. Woodruff of the Methodist church preached a very touching and impressive sermon and spoke words of sympathy and consolation to the mourning relatives and friends gathered. Interment was made in Hillside Cemetery at Plainfield.

The Westfield and Elizabeth Traction Company did a record breaking business Sunday over the newly opened extension to Cranford. Every car was overcrowded but this seemed to make no difference to the conductors who could always see room for another in the car, much to the discomfort of those who were already packed in like sardines. One of the early afternoon cars burned a fuse out when about half way between Scotch Plains and Westfield and it was nearly an hour before the carload of passengers could all be repacked into other passing cars.

Miss May Johnson, who has been spending a few days with friends in the village, has returned to her home in Long Island City.

Mr. and Mrs. James Housel, of Long Hill, have taken possession of the John G. Cook property on Westfield avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gere, who have been spending a week with Mrs. Gere's parents in Brooklyn, have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Morey have been entertaining Mrs. Morey's father, Mr. Steams, of Brooklyn, for a short visit.

The public school reopened this morning after a four days Thanksgiving vacation.

Walter Bennett, of Somerset place, is able to walk about with the aid of a cane. His foot and hand that was so badly burned with a live electric light wire seem to be healing nicely.

Fred Townsend, for the past two years in the employ of E. A. Laing, Park avenue, has accepted a position in a New York store and will take his new position Monday, December 11th.

THREE JOINTS.

Minus three joints of his backbone, John Kaller, of No. 50 Willoughby street, Brooklyn, N. Y., lies on a cot in St. John's Hospital, Long Island City, making a brave fight against death. The missing pieces of his spinal column were removed on Thursday last by five surgeons. It was an operation almost unparalleled in surgery, but it was his only chance for life.

Kaller has been a telephone lineman. Recently he was sent to repair wires along the Shore Road, in Astoria. About noon he was working at the top of a pole near the Woolsey estate. Just how it happened neither Kaller nor any one else knows, but suddenly the lineman found himself in the clutches of an electric current. He had grasped a live wire, his body was twisted in torture and puffs of smoke arose from his burning hands.

The man kept his senses. Hanging there, burning and in terrible pain, he realized that to remain in contact with the wire for but a few seconds more meant death to him.

With strength born of that knowledge Kaller tore himself free from the live wire on which he had fallen and deliberately threw himself to the roadway. He fell 35 feet and struck upon his head and back. He was taken to St. John's Hospital, and doctors worked over him for eight hours before the dangers from the electric shock were removed. Then they performed the operation.

In falling Kaller had broken his back. The seventh, eighth and ninth vertebrae were badly fractured, and splinters of the broken bone pressed on the spinal cord. The pressure had produced paralysis, and would have caused death if not removed.

Dr. John Francis Burns was in charge of the operation. Assisting him were Dr. H. A. McGronen, Dr. J. J. Mulcahey, Dr. Thomas Cassidy and Dr. John F. Farwell. Technically, the doctors took out the spinous prosesses and transverse sections of the seventh, eighth and ninth vertebrae. The operation was successful.

"I do not know of an exactly similar case," said Dr. Burns, last night. "Three vertebrae were badly fractured, and had to be removed, leaving arches to protect the spinal cord. But Kaller's other injuries make his recovery doubtful, and at my suggestion his relatives have telegraphed to his mother, asking her to come to his bedside. She lives in Illinois."

Kaller's condition is very grave. He has remained conscious from the first, and has taken a keen interest in the remarkable operation performed upon him.

Following closely upon the rumor of the retirement of John Burns, of England, from all active participation in the great movement of organized labor, in Great Britain is the loss of another famous leader in the person of Joseph Arch, the well-known agricultural laborer and member of Parliament. Mr. Arch confirms the rumor that he will retire from all active work in the labor field at the next general election.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. "All thought she must soon die from pneumonia, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, saying it had more than once saved her life, and had cured her of consumption. After three small doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

HE WAS FORCED TO MOVE.

Sheriff Puts a "Hobo" Out of Pleasant Winter Quarters.

Greenwich, Conn., Dec. 4.—A "hobo" who has been living in contentment in the cottage owned by H. B. Riggs, a New York merchant, at Cognewog, back of this village, for two months, has been forced to move by Sheriff Fitzroy, who, with his son Robert, made a call upon him.

The "hobo" at first acted as if his visitors had come to collect rent, but finally cooled down and moved out. He said his name was Charles Roberts, a Swede, of White Plains, and that, being out of work, he had settled down in the Rigg's cottage for the winter. He had a large supply of wood on hand and some straw for a bed. Providence, he said, was providing him generously with food.

Neighbors who saw smoke coming from the kitchen chimney and knew that the house was supposed to be empty had notified the officer. They think their henneries and gardens have been an aid to Providence in providing Roberts with food.

JOHN I. BLAIR DEAD.

Career of a Remarkable Man and a Multi-Millionaire.

New York, Dec. 4.—John I. Blair, the famous railroad builder and owner, and multi-millionaire, of Blairstown, N. J., is dead. He was in his ninety-eighth year.

The career of John I. Blair was a remarkable one. From a penniless boy, the son of a struggling farmer, he became one of America's financial kings, achieving success as a merchant, banker, railroad builder and owner, and coal and iron magnate. He hardly knew himself the extent of his wealth. In a litigation in 1889 he was asked under oath what he was worth.

"I believe," he said, blushing and stammering, "that I am worth somewhere between $4,000,000 and $6,000,000."

It is likely that several more millions have been added in the ten years since then.

His first dollar was made by trapping muskrats and selling the skins at Easton. He walked the twenty miles there, but always drove a good bargain. He went to work as a store clerk at ten years of age. He was a good storekeeper at fourteen, and at seventeen he started business for himself at what is now Blairstown. It was a general store and thrived, and soon Blair bought out his cousin John who was a partner.

In 1830 he had five general stores in operation at different places with a relative in charge.

Then he bought up lands at Blairstown and established a mill. For outstanding accounts he took mortgages on farms and gradually farms passed into his hands. Blair married Nancy Lock. They lived together until she died, in 1884.

He organized the Belvedere Bank and became its President. He went into the coal and iron business through the old Oxford furnace in Warren County. This led him into railroad building. He entered the coal and iron business with the Scranton brothers, and when they established Scranton and it was necessary to get their products to market the railroad work was taken up.

They first bought and rebuilt a road from Oswego to Ithaca, then the Legget's Gap Road, then one from Scranton to Great Bend, and finally, in 1852, by consolidation, building and reorganization, formed the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western. He retained his large interest up to his death. In extending its system and branches his operations took him into the West, where he laid out eighty towns. At one time he was president of twenty railroad and improvement companies in the West. Mr. Blair always retained his simple habits of life. The equipage in which he drove was one of the sights of Blairstown. He wore garments plain almost to shabbiness, and the old-fashioned house in which he lived was exactly in keeping with the man.

Wall paper that has become bruised or torn off in small patches, and cannot be matched, may be repaired with ordinary children's paints. Mix the colors until you get as nearly as possible the desired shade and lightly touch up the broken places, and at the distance of a foot or two the disfigurement will be quite unnoticed.

Sachsen.

Dresden. Der sächsische Kaffee ist als „Bliemchens-Kaffee" verschrien. Die dazu gehörige Milch gibt ihm, wenigstens was die Haupt- und Residenzstadt Dresden anlangt, an Güte durchaus nichts nach. Nach den Veröffentlichungen des Chemischen Untersuchungsamtes mußten nämlich im Jahre 1898 von 341 verdächtigen Milchproben nicht weniger als 265, also 77.7 Prozent, beanstandet werden, und zwar 63 Proben wegen Wasserzusatzes, 39 Proben wegen unredlichen Fettentzuges durch Abrahmung, 10 Prozent wegen Wasserzusatzes und Entrahmung, 152 Proben wegen Minderwerthigkeit aus verschiedenen Ursachen, eine Probe als verdorben. Auch von den übrigen 76 Proben, die unbeanstandet blieben, befanden sich viele an der äußersten Grenze der Zulässigkeit.—Der Arbeiter Schneider, der gegen seinen intimsten Freund einen Raubmordversuch verübte, wurde zu 15 Jahren Zuchthaus verurtheilt.

Annaberg. Auf seiner Besitzung Wiesa ist der Rittergutsbesitzer Wecke gestorben, der weit über Sachsen hinaus durch seine landwirthschaftlichen Musterbetriebe bekannt wurde und vielfach bahnbrechend und anregend gewirkt hat. Wecke gehörte seit einer Reihe von Jahren der Ersten Kammer des sächsischen Landtages und außerdem dem Deutschen Landwirthschaftsrath, der Deutschen Landwirthschaftsgesellschaft, dem sächsischen Landeskulturrath u. s. w. an.

Zschopau. Dieser Tage feierten die Webermeister Johann Ludwig Weber, Friedrich Julius Heegner und Karl Wilhelm Weickert, sowie der Bäckermeister Friedrich August Fritzsche ihr 50jähriges Bürgerjubiläum. Aus diesem Anlaß sind die Jubilare durch Bürgermeister Kretzschmar unter Ueberreichung eines Diploms beglückwünscht worden.

Weimar. Die hiesige Waggonfabrik hat laut ihrem Geschäftsbericht nicht nur keinen Gewinn erzielt, sondern sogar 60,000 Mark zugesetzt. Zu diesem Verlust kommen eventuell noch 53,818 Mark Brandschaden, für welche aber der Direktor Wunderlich verantwortlich gemacht werden soll, welcher die Nachversicherung von Material unterlassen hat.

Hamburg. Dieser Tage hat sich hier der äußerst seltene Fall ereignet, daß ein für die Hinrichtung eines zum Tode Verurtheilten bereits errichtetes Schaffot in letzter Stunde wieder abgerissen wurde. Der vom hiesigen Schwurgericht zweimal zum Tode verurtheilte Fischer sollte nämlich hingerichtet werden, nachdem sowohl ein Gnadengesuch, als auch ein Antrag betreffs Wiederaufnahme des Verfahrens abschlägig beschieden worden war. Da stellte er in letzter Stunde einen neuen Antrag auf Wiederaufnahme des Verfahrens, in welchem er neue Entlastungszeugen benannte. Das Landgericht wies den Antrag ab. Das Oberlandesgericht erklärte jedoch den Antrag für zulässig, nachdem es dem Vertheidiger gelungen war, die Zeugen persönlich ausfindig zu machen. Darauf wurde die Hinrichtung sistirt. Diese Sache hat hier natürlich großes Aufsehen erregt und man sieht mit Spannung dem Verlauf des Wiederaufnahmeverfahrens entgegen.

THE WORK OF WOMAN.

What Some Members of the Unquiet Sex Are Doing.

Miss Amalia Kussner, an American miniature artist, has had a rather novel and exciting experience in South Africa. She was caught at Kimberley when the British-Boer war broke out and was compelled to remain there. Between bombardments of the diamond city she has been painting the portrait of Cecil Rhodes. Miss Kussner is a New York girl, young and handsome. Among the leaders of New York society whose portraits she has painted in miniature are Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger, Mrs. Lorillard Spencer and Mrs. Arthur Paget.

The only woman dentist in Holland is Miss Trude Mertens, who practices her profession in her native city, The Hague. She has among her patrons Queen Wilhelmina and the women of the court of the Netherlands.

The queerest honeymoon spent by a young bride is that of Lady Delamere, the wife of the famous African hunter and explorer. For three months past, since their marriage, the couple has been in Mombasa on a hunting expedition, Lady Delamere, who is an excellent shot, participating heartily in the sport.

Conspicuous among women who have attained success in business is Miss Ida Harned, an insurance agent in Chicago. She recently received an international medal from the company she represents for having written more insurance in a single month than any other agent in the world.

It is a rather unique school which is conducted by Mrs. C. A. Cross in Chicago. She is a professional teacher of parrots.

Miss Maud Ballington Booth, besides her evangelical and prison reform work in connection with the American Volunteers, does something in literature. Her first volume, recently issued, is entitled "Sleepy Time Stories," a collection of charming sketches for children.

Miss Jessie Ackerman of Philadelphia was the first American woman to volunteer under the Red Cross for South Africa. She has spent much time in the Transvaal and was there when the Jameson raid occurred.

Mrs. Kate Cabell Currie, who is president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, was recently given a reception in Nashville, which was one of the most brilliant events that have occurred in that city.

One of the most popular women in what is known as the government set in Washington is Mrs. Hansbrough, wife of the North Dakota senator. She is beautiful, vivacious and a thorough diplomat.

There has recently come to this country from Norway a singer of some note, Miss Bakken Lassen, granddaughter of the Russian Princess Saitikoff. Miss Lassen will sing in the homes of New York's society folk, playing her own accompaniments on the lute.

The Countess of Aberdeen, who recently visited this country, is at the head of a project for a big Irish fair to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York next spring.

Comparatively few women are engaged in strictly scientific pursuits, but Mrs. Percy Frankland of Northfield, Worcestershire, England, has achieved notable success in her extensive researches in bacteriology.

The story comes from London that Miss May Goelet, heiress to many American millions, is to marry the Prince of Orleans. Miss Goelet, with her mother, is now in Paris.

Miss Sara Dunlap of Louisville, a talented young woman well known in the Blue Grass state, has been selected to represent Kentucky in the board of women delegates at the Paris exposition next year.

The city of Grand Rapids furnishes three nurses for important posts in the government service in our new dependencies. These are Mrs. Christiana Bower, who is to take charge of the army hospital at Ponce, Porto Rico; Miss Mary Fletcher, who has gone to Havana to have charge of a military hospital there, and Miss Mary Welsh, who is assigned to duty in the military hospital at Manila.

The reigning beauty of Paris is La Belle El Dorido, a new histrionic star who has completely dazzled the French capital. She is a young woman who went to the metropolis a few months ago from the south of France, being then comparatively unknown. Her triumph in her art and in society has been signal. Rising from obscurity to such prominence has not affected her charming frankness of manner, which equally with her perfection of feature and form has won the hearts of all Parisians. By many she is regarded as the most beautiful woman in continental Europe.

ANNETTE CRAWFORD.

THE HOUSEHOLD

A FEW RECIPES.

Plum Pudding.

One pound of baker's bread cut in slices and placed in a deep dish, one-half cup butter (spread each slice with butter), one cup raisins, seeded, mix with bread. Into one quart of milk put one-half cup sugar, two-thirds cup molasses, three eggs well beaten, small teaspoonful vanilla, pinch of cassia, nutmeg and salt; turn this mixture over the bread, steam two hours and a half. Sauce—Cream, one-quarter of a cup butter, with two cups powdered sugar; flavor with vanilla.

Chicken Patties.

Mince some cold chicken and a little cooked ham, moisten with gravy and add a few drops of lemon juice; also salt and pepper to taste. Roll out some pastry and stamp it into rounds. Lay half the rounds on greased patty tins, brush round the edges with beaten white of egg and put some of the minced chicken on each round; cover the remaining circles of pastry, brush over with white of egg, press the edges slightly together and bake in quick oven for about 20 minutes.

Cocoanut Cream.

A cocoanut cream to spread on thin layers of cake requires one cup of milk, one half cup of grated cocoanut, one cup of sugar, a small lump of butter. Boil altogether; when it comes to a boil put in one tablespoonful of corn starch dissolved in a little milk; let all come to the boiling point; when nearly cold beat in one egg. Spread this on the layer of cake and you have the cocoanut cake which literally melts in your mouth.

Apple Fritters.

Peel firm, tart apples and cut into thin slices and put them in a bath of claret and sugar or cherry juice and sugar when cherries are in season. Let them remain for three hours. Sprinkle thickly on a clean cooking napkin an ounce of flour and roll the apple slices in it after they have been drained. Fry in hot fat and serve hot with pieces of lemon and spiced sugar.

Split Pea Soup.

Soak one pint of dried split peas over night. In the morning place them over the fire in two quarts of cold water, with one pound of beef, and cook slowly for two hours, or until the liquor is reduced one-half. Pour into a colander and press the peas through with a spoon. Season with salt, pepper and celery salt, and eat with oyster crackers.

Beet Salad.

Boil four medium sized beets; when cold, chop quite fine, add half as much chopped cabbage as you have beets, and horseradish to make it taste quite hot; pour a salad dressing over. No rule can ge given for the amount of horseradish, as it is much stronger sometimes than at others.

Cheese Balls.

Mix one-half cup grated cheese with one-fourth cup sifted bread crumbs (dried and sifted) and whites of two eggs beaten light; season with salt and pepper; form into small balls, roll in sifted crumbs either bread or cracker will do), and fry in hot fat.

Ladies' Waist.

Exquisite all-over laces are shown for evening wear and many of the new toilettes are made with yoke and sleeves of this dainty material. China blue poplin is here combined with delicate white lace, black ribbon velvet run through insertion of a heavier weave forming the trimming.

The waist is modelled over a fitted lining, which closes invisibly in the back. The backs are plain across the shoulders, with the fullness arranged in tiny plaits at the waist. The front is slightly bloused, but fits smoothly over the shoulders and bust. The broad, long-shouldered effect produced in this model is exceedingly fashionable at present.

The entire yoke and sleeves may be underlined with silk or satin in a contrasting color. For evening wear the upper part of yoke and the long sleeves may be omitted with the stylish effect shown in small illustration.

Perforated lines are given to patterns for the proper shaping. To make this waist in the medium size will require one-half yards of forty-four inch material with one and one-half yards of twenty-seven inch material for the yoke and sleeves.

MAY MANTON.

Finger Marked Furniture.

Finger marks mar the appearance of polished furniture. To remove them rub with a piece of chamois wet in vinegar and water. Polish with a dry chamois.

Scrubbing Brushes.

Ssrubbing brushes are ruined by being allowed to soak in water, either hot or cold. They should be shaken thoroughly, then dried in the fresh air.

STAGES OF STARVATION.

Diary of a Young Woman Who Recently Died in New York.

Come to the rescue or I shall soon lose my reason. I cannot hold out much longer. The last stage of despair is upon me * * * the creeping by inches to the end of all things.

O God! Can the Christian world be so cruel? So cold and mercenary? * * * Bowed down with despair * * * and yet through it all she raises her eyes to the beacon light and a smile comes to her lips. "I shall yet be an author! I shall yet succeed."

I have sent them a telegram. They will hardly send a favorable answer. Yet what a grand story it is. "Don't want it." Ah, well! I expected it.

"There's a basket of fruit for you," etc. Good God, and not a sou in my pocket and they are worth a million. Why didn't they slip a $10 bill into the basket. "As they help the least of these"—but in my anguish I have to smile bitterly. But I shall yet succeed.

Hungry—so faint—I would not object to something nice to eat—long time since I've tasted anything good. Now, to-morrow I'll have to go and buy the paper. I wonder if I'd better eat or save a penny for it.

The past forgot the future? Sweet spirit of prayer, lead me right, I pray. Keep me worthy.

He doesn't like my writing; says I scrawl all over the paper. But I don't suppose he knows all authors do that.

I don't know what they (the publishers) are waiting for unless it is to get my shroud to make into rag paper to print the book on. They'll have it soon if this keeps on.

1887—Sept. 30.—Arrived in Boston. Stopped at he Hotel Waterson, No. 8 Bulfinch place. Saw Gen. B. F. Butler and took his advice in regard to the Adams case.

1887—Oct. 22.—Returned to New York and engaged in business at No. 239 East Fourteenth street $60 a month.

1888—Sept. 5.—Went to Boston. Delayed in the Adams case.

1888—Sept. 21.—Wolfborough, N. H., to prosecute my claim against Susan P. Adams, of Ossipee, N. H.

1980—April 11.—Finished XVI, chapter "Fly and Lighting."

1890—May 1.—Sick for three weeks and couldn't work much of the time.

1890—April 11.—Finished XVI, chapter "Fly and Lightning," XXIII chapters, 573 pages, about 100,000 words.

July 12.—Made arrangements with the Union News Company. Asked assistance and was refused. Suffered the worst—suspense is a killing thing—not knowing what to do. Sept. 20, sold all my clothes to raise a little money to help along.

Oct. 6. Commenced "Is Marriage a Lottery?" Have only $7 left. Am trying to keep up.

Nov. 24.—Writing "A Gay Christmas" to send to Philadelphia Transcript.

1891—March 1.—Sold collection of minerals and stamps for $20. Have 20 cents in my pocket. Received food from Mrs. Mears for the last two weeks. Hope to succeed yet. Calm within; ferment without.

March 22.—Still keeping up courage, nil desperandum. Have tried ten different ways to raise the money to publish the book "Is Marriage a Lottery?" Failed each time; still hoping. "Be of good courage, ye shall yet triumph." Have resorted to sewing to keep the wolf from the door. Have gone to every possible place from —— to the Sacred Heart Convent. By the kindness of Mrs. Mears life has been sustained a little longer. They have deprived themselves for my sake, I fear. O! poverty—death—slow torture!

They will hold the plates of my book. I shall yet win a fortune. An author's or an artist's works always live long after they have gone. And this is my determination, to make a success before I do die.

"Good-by, Hubby."

A divorce case heard in Cincinnati the other day was that of C. H. Maguire against Minnie Maguire. He is a telegraph operator. She is an actress and known as Lillian Waltone. She was a singer in the musical Humpty Dumpty which was at the Walnut Street Theatre a few seasons ago. She also appeared in other productions of a musical character. Her husband said she was a good wife for a time. One day his employer told him he must not allow the woman who was coming to the office to see him to do so any more. He said the woman was his wife, but his employer would not believe it, and when the fact was insisted upon he was told he would better, under such conditions, watch her. One night he found her with a man named Jack Cox. He asked her to go home and she would not. Cox said if she was the wife of Maguire she must go home and he would accompany them. He did so, and they all drank some beer together in Maguire's flat. After that she said, "Jack, I will go with you. Good-by, hubby," and the two left together. She refused to live with her husband again and he sued for divorce. They were married in 1892. A decree was granted.

Accused of Wife-Beating.

An edict has been issued by the Right Rev. Bishop Huntingdon suspending the Rev. R. Eugene Griggs, an Episcopal minister of Binghamton, N. Y., pending the investigation by an ecclesiastical court into charges of wife-beating and desertion made by Mrs. Griggs. Mr. Griggs has already been fined $25 in the police court for wife-beating, and was compelled to give security to support his wife for a year. Other charges effecting his moral standing will come up before the ecclesiastical court.

While Chaplain J. W. Comfort, of the Indiana Reformatory at Terre Haute, Ind., was appealing for sympathy and better reform measures for criminals at the First Methodist Church, some thief stole his overcoat, hat and gloves.

Robert M. Rouss, a man without legs was found guilty of murder in the criminal court at Birmingham, Ala., and sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary.

NO SENTIMENT.

But The Tailor Gave a Pointer As to Pockets.

"Married or unmaried?" asked the measurer in a tailoring establishment of a customer.

"Unmarried," replied the young man, with a blush.

"Inside pocket on the left side, then," observed the tailor, as if talking to himself, while in the memorandum book on the counter he made a note to that effect

After the young man had departed I could not refrain from the query:

"What difference does his being single make in his inside vest pockets?"

"Ah, my dear sir," observed the knight of the thread and needle, with a bland smile, "all the difference in the world. Being unmarried, he, of course, wants the pocket on the left side, so as to bring his sweetheart's picture over his heart."

"But doesn't a married man want his wife's picture in the same place," inquired the scribe.

"Well, there may have been an instance of that kind," replied the tailor, in a doubtfully hesitant tone of voice, "but I must confess that such a one never came under my observation."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

How Some People Feel.

With the girl who has rejected him.

He Wouldn't Break His Record.

"Yes, Maria called the tramp into the kitchen and gave him a good dinner."

"Was he grateful?"

"Maria thought he was—at first. You probably know that she prides herself on her baking. Well, the tramp picked up the loaf she gave him, pinched it, tossed it in the air, smelled of it, and said, in an estatic way, 'I must say I never ate such bread as that!' Then he slowly added, 'And I don't mean to break my record now. Gimme some pie an' cake.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Another Tragic Episode.

"Miss Giggins," said the young man with the obtrusive hatband, "were you ever engaged"—

"Mr. Scadson!" she exclaimed, as she blushed a rosy red and sighed. "You have no right to ask such a question unless—unless"—

"I merely desired to know," he went on in a cruel, monotonous voice, "if you were ever engaged in conversation with Prof. Fossil. He's a wonderfully brainy man—you ought to talk to him."—Washington Star.

Boston's Old Way.

In Boston, Mass., people were felicitating a young person upon her approaching marriage.

"He's a fine catch!" they exclaimed, in delicate compliment of her future husband.

"Oh, a veritable cod!" she replied with considerable enthusiasm, and then blushed deeply to think how very boastful that must sound.—Detroit Journal.

One on Papa.

"I wonder why it is,' said the proud father, "that Willie has suddenly developed a preference for saying his prayers to me."

His wife laughed scornfully.

"He knows you can't correct him if he makes a mistake or cuts them short," said she.

Quail in a Print Shop.

Yesterday morning a quail flew into the Star office, perched himself upon the press and assumed a look of perfect satisfaction. It was at first taken to be the whitewinged dove of peace, but more complete identity left only a question of the nature of the omen, as good or evil.—Wathena Star.

That Was Too Much.

"Yes, she's mad at Charlie. She told him she knew he was just going to steal a kiss from her."

"And did that offend her so?"

"Oh, no, but he denied that he ever thought of such a thing."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Cheerful Idiot.

"People don't indulge in transports of innocent joy as they did when the world was younger," said Pessimist Boarder.

"You must bear in mind that there were no other transportation facilities in those days," said the Cheerful Idiot.—Indianapolis Journal.

She Didn't Look.

"I was asking Biggs, the shopkeeper, if he ever knew a woman to pass his window with the mirror in it without taking a look at herself."

"Well, and what did he say?"

"He said he did once, but she was in a hearse."—New York World.

BASED ON NOTHING.

Most of the Fears That Beset Fair Maids and Matrons.

The cause that implants the spirit of fear in the bosom of the gentle sex is a subject that may well puzzle the most devout student of human nature. The mouse is considered one of the harmless of creatures, and yet it has been responsible for more cases of hysteria than any animal many times its size.

One woman, who all her life has searched beneath her bed before retiring, at one time found herself in possession of a folding monstrosity, the intricacies of which she had first to solve before taking her well-earned rest. But such is the force of habit. After pulling down the bed she would carefully look beneath it, for no other reason than that she had done so ever since she was a child.

A favorite illusion is that of having one's legs seized, either from behind in going upstairs or on getting into bed. Women have been seen scuttling upstairs in the dark setting at defiance all the laws of locomotion in a ludicrous attempt to keep their legs some distance ahead of them and beyond the reach of a mysterious clutch. Girls will also make flying leaps into bed to eliminate the same improbability.

Many women search diligently in closets, bureau drawers and all sorts of impossible places before resigning themselves to sleep. An old housekeeper whose table silver, in two baskets, was always placed in her bedroom after the evening meal, was one night awakened by what she considered suspicious sounds from the lower regions. Cautiously leaving her room laden with the silver, she pitched both baskets into the hall below, calling out as she did so, "Take it all and please go," then fled precipitately and barricaded herself in her room. Needless to add, she found both baskets and scattered contents the following morning, a little the worse for the rough handling she had given them.

WORKERS AMONG COTTONSEED.

New Machine Which Is Designed to Monopolized Their Business.

An always interesting sight to New Orleans visitors has been the large gangs of darkies unloading cotton seed from the barges at the oil mills, piling the sacks of seed on the heavy trucks and trundling them down the wharf into the mill, singing lustily the while. The picturesque side of the old-time method of unloading seed by no means appeals to the owners of the mills, however. Such labor is very expensive, and sometimes impossible to obtain. Competition in the manufacture of cottonseed products is very keen, and unnecessary handling of the raw material must be done away with wherever practicable. The big grain elevators, built right up to the deep water, have long ago solved the problem, but with the oil mills at Gretna, built back of the levee, with their wharves stretching a considerable distance into the river, and with these wharves sinking and twisting all the time from the action of the current and the treacherous river bed, the question how to unload their barge and carry the seed back into the mills at a low cost has been until now a very difficult one to answer.

The Union Mill Company has recently installed at its large Crescent mill at Gretna a plant for rapidly and economically unloading seed from barges, which seems to meet all the conditions. The main part of the system is a belt conveyor, running on trestle work along the wharf, and thence under the roof of the mill. Along this conveyor the seed is carried from the end of the wharf, 250 feet to a point in the mill, where it is weighed and either stored or distributed direct to the crushers. From the time it is taken from the barges until it leaves the mill as a finished product the seed is not touched by hand.

The present capacity of the plant is about 4,700 bushels (seventy tons) of cottonseed per hour, but this can be largely increased. It is estimated that the construction will pay for itself in wages saved in less than two seasons.

Saved From Prison by His Ears.

"I don't often see a thief or a bad man with big ears," said Judge Wofford from the bench in commenting on the physiognomy of Gilbert Closser, a 15-year-old boy charged with assaulting Frederick E. Moses. "I like to see a boy with big ears." The boy scarcely knew whether the Judge was sarcastic or sincere, and he fumbled his cap bashfully while his ears turned red.

The spectators tittered, but Judge Wofford continued sternly: "I am inclined to give you a chance, my boy, on the strength of your big mouth and generous ears. You've got a good face. A man with little ears, like a fox's or a squirrels, won't always do. They need watching." After warning Closser never to carry knives or revolvers, Judge Wafford sentenced the boy to the reform school and then paroled him with instructions to report to the court January 1.—Kansas City Journal.

A Youthful Effusion.

Senator Thurston, who has taken good-naturedly the newspaper chaffing about his poem, "The White Rose," decidedly objects to the unauthorized announcement that it was written by his fiancee, Miss Purman. He says it was a youthful effusion written 30 or more years ago and he solemnly affirms that he discarded the poetical role more than a quarter of a centry since

A Dog Shed.

A Queer Place for the Bird.

The eagle which originally decorated the stern of the famous schooner yacht America—which first won what is now known as the America Cup—is now the sign of the Royal Eagle Hotel at Ryde, Isle of Wight, overlooking the scene of the vessel's triumph over her English competitors in 1851.—Tit-Bits.

SPOOK FURNITURE.

If Not This, Then What Could It Be!—A Peculiar Story.

A singular story is related by the New Orleans Times-Democrat. It was told by a well-known professional man at a stag dinner, and the unusual experience stated in his own words is well worth repeating:

"In the spring of 1892," he said, "I was living in a house in North Rampart street, which I had taken on a one-year's lease, expecting to build. Our family consisted of myself and wife, our little boy, then only 5 years old, and my unmaried sister. The house was a two-story brick, which had been built before the war and the interior arrangement was very simple. The front door opened on a hall, which contained the staircase and ran all the way through on the right-hand side, while on the left was, first, our parlor, then the dining-room, and lastly, a small unused apartment not much larger than a closet. Upstairs were bedrooms, and in the rear was a detached kitchen. We allowed the little room on the first floor to stand vacant for several reasons. To begin with it was actually too small for actual service, and it was badly lighted by only one high, narrow window, besides some of the plastering had fallen from the ceiling, and I was afraid the rest might come tumbling down on our heads. That was undoubtedly a source of danger, and prevented us from using it for storage, so we simply left it as we found it—entirely empty. I suppose the room was constructed originally for a pantry. I have been a little particular in describing these details because, as you will see, they have a direct bearing on my story.

"We had been living in the house almost a year," continued the speaker, "when one Sunday in June, as nearly as I can remember, I went with my wife and child to see some friends near Audubon Park. My sister was visiting at Biloxi at the time, and we let the servant off for a holiday. We got back at 5 o'clock or thereabouts, for I recollect it was still quite light, and as we were walking toward the house I noticed that somebody had left a stepladder standing directly in front of the high window opening into the little disused room on the ground floor. 'That's rather a cordial invitation to prowlers,' I said half joking. 'Let's see whether any have availed themselves of it.' So when we went inside we walked back together to the last door and I pushed it open. 'Why! what does this mean?' I exclaimed in astonishment. There was nobody there, but the room, which had always been entirely vacant, contained several pieces of furniture. A rough-looking table stood in one corner, with an old-fashioned straight-back chair in front of it and opposite was a small bed cot. There were some papers and other things on the table and a religious print stuck on one of the walls. I started to go in, but my wife held me back. 'Don't go in,' she pleaded, 'the plaster may fall. Those things must belong to the cook. It struck me very strange that the cook should move in without asking permission, but I noticed that my wife was very nervous so I drew the door to and we went into the parlor. A few minutes later I walked outside to shift the ladder, and as I picked it up I glanced through the window. The room was perfectly empty.

"I am not superstitious, and the proof of it is that I thought immediately I was the victim of some practical joke. I re-entered the house quietly from the rear and again I opened the door. The room was as empty as a drum, and it was evident at a glance that no sort of trickery was remotely possible. I won't attempt to describe my feelings. I was so shocked, so bewildered, so frightened to tell you the truth that for a moment or two I was sumply rooted to the spot. Then I pulled myself together somehow and went back to the parlor. My wife saw at once that something was wrong.

"It's that room!" I blurted out. 'There's nothing in it now—not a stick!'

"And immediately I had a case of hysterics on my hands. That's about all there is to the story. Next morning I examined the place carefully by broad daylight, and it was plain from the dust on the floor that no furnishing of any kind had been there for years. We left the house before the end of the week, paying a month's forfeit on the lease, not because we believe in spooks, but because we didn't care to stay in a place where unaccountable things happen. It's bad for the nerves. My wife and I have talked the matter over a thousand times, carefully comparing notes, and as far as we know we both saw the same things. My boy must have seen them, too, for when we went back into the parlor he asked his mother 'whether that wasn't Aunt Hattie's chair.' Aunt Hattie is an old relative of ours, who has a favorite straight-back chair, similar to the one we saw in the room. Of course we have never allowed ourselves to refer to the occurrence before the child, so I am unable to say positively what else he observed. What I saw myself was as plain and as distinct as you are at this moment. I even noticed that one of the table legs had been mended with a piece of slat, and my wife remarked the same thing. The house is still standing, and has since been occupied by several successive tenants. As far as I am aware none of them have ever had any unusual experience."

BLACK EYES.

Treatment for the Kind That Are Not Given by Nature.

When the patient is seen early, before discoloration has set in, cold compresses or evaporating lotions are indicated; this reduces the swelling and limits the subsequent discoloration. But if the patient is seen after he has a fully-developed "black eye," hot compresses and massage are required. The affected portion is smeared over with vaseline and rubbed for 10 minutes several time a day. By frequent massage and continuous hot applications the discoloration may be almost entirely removed within twenty-four hours. The professional "black eye" artists use a poultice of the scrapings of a root, which is thought to be bryony root.

GRANULATED SUGAR CHEAPER

Why the Old-Fashioned Brown Variety Is Seldom Seen.

"When I was running a boarding-house for gangs at work on new railroads in the West a few years ago," said the tall man, "brown sugar cost 5 cents a pound when I bought it by the hogshead, and granulated sugar cost 12 cents a pound when purchased in equally large amounts. Now, if you had 200 men to board, all of whom used sugar in their coffee, what kind of sugar would you buy?"

"I suppose I'd make a mistake, but as far as I know now, I would buy brown sugar, for that would be the cheapest," was the reply.

"And that's where you've made a mistake," said the tall man. "I'll prove it to you in a minute. When you go home to-night, you take a teaspoon and experiment with both kinds of sugar. You'll see that with granulated sugar you can pick up only as much as the bowl of the spoon will hold. But it's different with brown sugar. If you dig your spoon deep into it, when you lift the spoon, you bring nearly three spoonfuls of sugar along with it, as it packs closely. That is what housewives call a 'heaping teaspoonful.' Now the average railroader is used to putting three to four spoonfuls of sugar in his coffee and he never looks to see whether they are heaping ones or not. Therefore, the brown sugar is the more expensive. I tried both ways, and I found that using granulated sugar saved me over $15 a month over what it cost to serve brown sugar. There's even more difference now than then, too. The big sugar concerns have beaten down the price of granulated sugar until it costs but a penny a pound more than brown sugar. "That's why you see granulated sugar in all the cheap boarding-houses to-day."—New York Sun.

STORM-TOSSED CREW.

They Went Ashore and Found Cannibals Devouring a Human Body.

The crew of the British steamer Kurdistan, Captain Littlehales, now taking on a cargo of coal at Lambert's Point, tell of an experience at once strange and horrifying. The vessel is from Iquique, Chile, and when off the Patagonian Coast, near Tera del Fuego, was caught in a storm and fog and came to anchor. A boat's crew went ashore, and hearing a strange noise proceeding from a cavern near their hiding place inspected it. A party of savages were in the cave, engaged in eating what seemed to be the dismembered body of a human being. The savages attacked them, the seamen say, whereupon they fired upon them, killing one savage. His companions carried the dead body away, and, the sailors believe, devoured it. In the cavern was a Danish flag and much wreckage. On the shore near the cavern lay the wreck of a wooden brig.—Norfolk, Va., Cor. Baltimore Sun.

Threw Away Fifty Thousand Dollars.

There died in the City Hospital at Philadelphia last week a woman, practically a pauper, who by inscribing a few lines upon a paper would have been put in possession of $50,000.

For many years Dr. Isabel Mitchell was a physician of some prominence in the Quaker City. While practicing her profession she became interested in the pure food movement, and spent much of her time in perfecting a process for the preservation of meats and vegetables where ice was not obtainable. Her experiments resulted in a formula which was declared practically perfect by chemists and physicians of Philadelphia and vicinity. It was a preparation which answered the purposes desired and was at the same time harmless to health, being the forcing of medicated ozone into the articles to be perserved.

Dr. Mitchell received many offers for her process, but none of the terms was satisfactory to her, though one of them was for $50,000. While working on her food preservative, she neglected her practice, and gradually lost it all. From a comfortable home she went by gradual changes to a garret, where she was taken ill with a lingering disease, and finally removed to the hospital. She persistently refused to reveal her secret to the few friends who had stood by her, and with her death the formula is lost to science.

Enoch Arden in Real Life.

After an absence of thirty years James Edwards, whose home is now in Denver, Col., returned to Philadelphia, and found that his wife had been divorced from him and married to another man. Thirty-five years ago Edwards married Miss Belle Hickman whose parents were wealthy. Edwards was in poor circumstances and his wife's mother opposed the marriage.

The couple lived together for five years, but at the end of that time Mrs. Hickman is alleged to have brought about a separation. Edwards went West and became wealthy.

Edwards says he repeatedly wrote to his wife, but she failed to get the letters. Not hearing from her husband for fifteen years Mrs. Edwards advertised and received a letter from Denver informing her that a man answering her husband's description had been killed. Mrs. Edwards, not certain that her husband was dead, obtained a divorce and remarried.

Edwards succeeded in meeting his former wife upon his return. There were explanations all around and he bade her farewell and went back to Denver.

TRYING TO PLEASE.

It Proved a Boomerang in the Case of One Fond Mother.

"You can't please everybody, no matter how you try," was the philosophic discovery made by a pretty matron recently "For six years after my marriage we lived in the west, and then a return to New York was decided on. My family consisted of three of the dearest, and, I firmly believe, the most wonderful children in the world, but having once heard a remark to the effect that Mrs. Soandso was the greatest bore in existence, because forever singing the praises of her children, I decided to profit by that fond mother's injudicious dissertations.

"My friends gave me a royal welcome on my return to civilization. None of my five special schoolmates had married, and when they gave a luncheon in my honor I accepted joyfully I knew they were all 'strong-minded and advanced, with a high regard for women's rights and a decided opinion of the wrongs of their sex. In fact, one of them had written to me gently intimating that I had lost my 'soul's individuality' by marrying, over which bit of information my husband and I made very merry.

"So I prepared myself on matters economic, scientific and political, put on my smartest frock, thrust my precious babes away from me, and started out with a determination, above all things, not to mention that delightful topic, my wonderful children.

"The girls, I could plainly see, were politely surprised at my well set up figure and dainty attire—a sneering reference to that 'dowdy Mrs. Brown' chilled me with a suspicion of their undoubted expectations of my appearance. One of them asked, patronizingly, about the 'babies.' 'Very well, thank you,' I answered, and continued the interrupted conversation on the possible benefit of liquefied air to the world at large, one of the few subjects I had not studied up, and which I momentarily expected to prove my mental undoing.

"I finally bade my hostesses goodby and sallied forth, quite pleased with the impression I had made and feeling satisfied my reputation was safe in their hands. They were doubtless chagrined at the discovery that matrimony is not always a destroyer of the 'soul's individuality,' I thought, gleefully, and sped home to my neglected infants.

"Within three months our return to the west had been decided on, but before my departure a kind friend tumbled my pride in the mire.

"'Why, Nellie Blank,' she exclaimed, "whatever did you say or do at the luncheon to give the girls such a false idea of your character?'

"I gasped in mute astonishment.

"'Why,' she continued, 'I heard that you had changed so, grown utterly frivolous and worldly, laced outrageously and dressed like a fashion plate, all of which might be forgiven but for your heartless indifference to your children. They said you never mentioned them, and when some one asked how they were you showed absolutely no interest in the subject.'

"Well, of course, I explained matters, but after all my self-sacrifice did you ever hear of anything like that?" And the little woman's eyes filled with tears of vexation.—Cin. Enquirer.

TRAIN ROBBERIES.

Danger That Seems to Increase and Cannot Be Stopped.

More than twenty times a year railway trains in the United States are held up and robbed. The criminals who follow this dangerous pursuit are fearless, and it is said that there is but one possible measure that will go to check their vicious careers.

Few travelers know that since the year 1890 there have been 230 hold-ups in this country, with more than eighty persons killed outright and nearly as many wounded. The desperadoes usually work in gangs, and are difficult to run down After committing robbery they terrorize the country for miles about, and do not hesitate at killing a man who may be a witness against them. In consequence their atrocities are seldom punished, and the wretches who have slain women and stolen property live and flourish, waiting for a fresh opportunity for crime.

As it is always express cars that suffer from robbers Congress was not long ago petitioned to grant Federal protection to the express companies. Mail cars are, it is alleged, rarely attacked by robbers, for the reason that such robberies are crimes against the United States, and are promptly brought up in the Federal courts, where the culprits receive severe sentences and no mercy.

On the other hand the robbers who attack express trains commit a crime not against the nation, but against a corporation. Their conviction, therefore, has to be looked after by the state, and when a crime is committed so near the border of one state that the criminals can escape by running into the next, long legal complications are likely to ensue, which often end in the robbers going free. At all events, unless something is done by Congress the present danger will continue to threaten every train that runs.—Exchange.

What the British Officer Eats.

There are cases containing what are known as "necessities," and are marked "N" to distinguish them from the cases containing luxuries, which are marked "L," so that in the excitement of the war an officer will have no difficulty whatever in ascertaining whether he is eating a necessity or a luxury. Wines and spirits pressed beef, tongues, sausages, essence of coffee, compresed tea, tobacco, chickens, curried fowl, curried prawns, chocolates, curried rabbits, jams of every kind made, all kinds of soup and fish, "sparklets" for instantly turning plain water into soda water—all these are but a small proportion of the necessities and luxuries that the officers of the guard will fight and win on. Plum puddings are sent to them for Christmas. The luxuries will be washed down with champagne and creme de menthe, and the necessities with ordinary wine and spirits.—London Mail.

Opening of New Library Room.

The whole building of the Plainfield Public Library will be closed Tuesday of this week, all day, on account of repairs to the reading room. The formal opening of the new stack room to the public will take place Saturday of this week.

Getting Rich Fast.

The money placed in the banks of California by depositors for safe keeping is increasing at the rate of nearly $70,000 a day, including Sundays and holidays. In two years the total increase in deposits has amounted to $50,000,000 in round figures. That rate of increase in the judgment of the bank commissioners is continuing. This astonishing fact will be stated in the forthcoming report of the bank commissioners, which will probably be in print next month. The conditions under which an increase of $50,000,000 in the bank deposits in California has been effected are sufficiently unique to deserve passing notice at least. The people of the state have had two dry years to contend with and the financial depression of 1893 has affected conditions appreciably during the period mentioned although the recovery has been steady. The bank commissioners take the view that the state has demonstrated in this matter that it has great recuperative powers and producing capacity and that the financial institutions of the state are prosperous and well managed.

The exact figures of the increase in deposits during 24 months are $50,382,795.02 which is in excess of $2,000,000 per month.—San Francisco Call.

A Big Whistle.

A whistle that can be heard at a distance of forty miles has just been constructed. It consists of three whistles made of bell metal or bronze and arranged between two discs of steel. The mouth of the largest is turned upward and the mouths of the other two are turned downward; the steam is conveyed through openings in the discs. The whistles are tuned to chord, and they harmonize as accurately as a well-tuned piano. The sound emitted is not harsh, as one would expect in a whistle that is audible at such a distance, but is quite soft and low.

Spain's Greatest Need.

Mr. R. P. Olivia, of Barcelonia, Spain, spends his winters at Aiken, S. C. Weak nerves had caused severe pains in the back of his head On using Electric Bitters, America's greatest Blood and Nerve Remedy, all pain soon left him. He says that this grand medicine is what his country needs. All America knows that it cures liver and kidney trouble, purifies the blood, tones up the stomach, strengthens the nerves, puts vim, vigor and new life into every muscle, nerve and organ of the body. If weak, tired or ailing you need it. Every bottle guaranteed, only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

What Can You Do With It?

This is a question we can answer better after we have seen the garment you want dyed. When our wagon is in your neighborhood, let it bring your goods to the store and then, at your convenience, come in and let us tell you just what we can do and the cost. Don't be prejudiced against dyeing. Ofttimes you can't tell the goods from new.

TERRIBLE POISON.

With Which African Savages Dip Their Arrows.

During his last visit to East Africa, Prof. Robert Koch of Berlin, procured some of the poisoned arrows and the poison used therewith by the Wakamba people, a primitive race settled between Kenia and Kilimanjaro. Prof. Brieger, the head of the Institute for Infectious Diseases, has been making experiments with Wakamba poison, which is extracted from plants, and has come to the conclusion that it is a heart poison. In cold-blooded animals it causes a gradual diminution of the heart's pulsations, and finally heart failure. In warm-blooded animals symptoms of poisoning appear within 10 or 15 minutes after absorption of the poison, breathing becomes difficult, cries of pain are provoked, cramps occur, and death speedily ensues. Prof. Brieger has found that the active principle of the poison is a crystalline body of which so infinitesimal a quantity as 0.00005 gram causes the death of a guinea pig weighing 300 grams within 20 minutes.

It is believed in scientific circles here that the investigation of the Wakamba poison is of the highest medical importance, as it will probably prove valuable as a drug having a specific action on the heart. It is hoped that the experiments will ultimately show the Wakamba poison is of the highest medical importance, as it will probably prove valuable as a drug having a specific action on the heart.

DIED AT 104.

Her Lover Killed in 1814, and She Refused Other Offers.

Miss Elizabeth Jones died last night on Campbell's Creek, about 12 miles from this city. She would have been 104 years old had she lived until January next. For some years past she made her home with Burley Wintree, and her death was caused by a general breaking down of the vital powers. Her death is the ending of a romance such as is seldom found in real life, and the story of her faithfulness to the memory of her lover is one that is not often found outside of fiction. In her early womanhood she was engaged to be married to a young member of the Virginia Militia, who went out in the service of the United States in the war of 1812. He was killed at Alexandria, Va., on August 23, 1814, in a skirmish with the British troops. This was a few days previous to the date set for his marriage with Miss Jones. When the news of his death reached her she was almost brokenhearted, and although she shortly afterward recovered her usual spirits and was a cheerful and welcome companion to all her friends, she cherished his memory to the day of her death, and although would-be lovers came in plenty none found favor in her eyes. She remained true to the memory of the dead, and now, after nearly a century of separation, she has gone to meet her soldier lover.—Charleston, W. Va., Cor. Baltimore Sun.

What Whiskey Costs.

An Indiana grocer prints the following in his circular, addressed to patrons: "Notice is hereby given that if you come to my store three times a day during the next year, and purchase a drink of whiskey each time, paying ten cents a drink, at the end of the year I will donate five barrels of my best flour, 100 pounds of fine granulated sugar, 100 pounds of rice, 10 pounds of coffee, 10 gallons of syrup, 50 yards of calico, three pairs of shoes, one $10.50 cloak for your wife; and then I will have $20 left to pay for the liquor you drank."

Gen. Daniel Sickles, who has been stopping at the Park Avenue Hotel for several days, returned to New York today.

New Trolley Cars.

The Brunswick Traction Company has received six new cars, three of which will soon be put in use on the Bound Brook line. They are about twice as long as the old cars, have double trucks and 100 horse power motors. They are nicely fitted up and run smoothly.

TAXATION . . Unequal as well as Excessive.

Council has no right to Juggle With the Assessor's Books.

Special Burdens on Specific Individuals.

CONFISCATION NOT TAXATION.

In the present contest much stress has been laid on Republican extravagance, and many people are disgusted with it. It cannot be too severely criticised.

Economy in public affairs seems to be merely a vague reminiscence. Our public officials are constantly seeking to increase the burden of taxation; they seem imbued with the idea that they have a divine commission to teach us how to spend our own money. Every year we see public funds wasted in all sorts of crazy schemes, and every year newer and more absurd proposals made for public extravagance.

So long as the money for these enterprises must be raised ratably, and the burden shared by all taxpayers, it can be controlled. A rise in the tax rate attracts general attention and is certain to provoke discussion and sometimes disapproval.

During the last two years, however, our Common Council has tapped a new source of revenue, and one which may lead to disastrous consequences in the future. We refer to the constant tinkering with the assessed valuations. In 1898 and again this year, after the assessors had completed their work, the Council went over the books and increased a number of assessments

The motive was obvious. They wanted to raise more money. They feared to raise the rate unduly, lest there should be too loud an outcry.

But they were judges in their own cause: It was easy to convince themselves in 1898 that the houses of A, B, C and D were assessed too low. They at once proceeded to add anywhere from $100 to $5,000 to each of those properties, well knowing that the outcry from a small number could be disregarded. Then in 1899 it was the turn of E, F, G and H to have the medicine given to them, and the echoes of their howls have not yet died away. In this way our friends, the enemy, have added very largely to the city's revenue, and the transaction has not received proper notice.

This is all wrong. Politics and Election Day nonsense aside, we all know that most, perhaps all, of the present members of the Council are honest men, sincerely desirous of doing their duty. They are, however, only human. They are liable to be carried away by fancies, just as all of us. They should be most scrupulous to guard against this when dealing with other people's money.

It is a trust. They ought not to spend one cent except under a strict sense of responsibility, and that should not be the responsibility of a parent to his child, or of a benevolent despot to his subjects, but of a constitutional public officer, holding office by a temporary and defeasible tenure towards the people who have chosen them to act for them.

If the council honestly believe that they need more money for public affairs, why do they not say so? Why do they resort to these questionable methods of raising money? Why do they impose special burdens on specific individuals one year, and then even things up by placing similar burdens on others the next year? They are spending our money, why should they evade publicity and responsibility? Suppose the taxpayers do discuss it; ought the council not to welcome the discussion? Suppose they grumble and disapprove of the action; may they not do what they will with their own? My own belief is that the citizens of Plainfield are willing to pay for a good city government, and that after proper explanation they will be willing to raise a sufficient revenue for that purpose.

But the revenue ought to be raised fairly. Even with the present Council the imposition of these special burdens, the surreptitious increase of one man's tax and the decrease of another's, has resulted in several coincidences which are, to say the least, unfortunate.

With a Council composed of men of lower grade, this power might easily be made an instrument of partisan oppression and of shocking corruption.

Its exercise is quite unnecessary.

The excuse of unequal assessments is a mere subterfuge, and everyone knows it. The city hires four men, real estate experts, and pays for their services.

One or another of those men, acting alone, examines every piece of property in the city, and decides what, in his best judgment, is its fair value The Board of Assessors then reviews and criticises the work of the individuals, and the result is the assessment roll presented to Council "for approval." The members of the Council are not experts in real estate; they have only a general knowledge on the subject; they do not and cannot give the careful attention which the assessors have given, and they never seek the opinions of the owners themselves. The result is that they do more harm than good; in plain English they are merely amateurs spoiling the work of professionals.

And over and above it all is the thought that every "error" they can "correct" is so much clear profit; that for every $100,000 added to the roll, they themselves will have $2,560 to spend for "public improvements." Is it any wonder they find so many "errors" in the Assessor's books? They would not be human if they did not.

The remedy is simple. No taxing body known to the writer claims or exercises any such power—it is unique and indefensible. The law never contemplated such a result. The and honest course is to accept the work of the Assessors, correct any palpable and admitted mistakes, and then assess the tax on all alike. This has not been done in the past and ought to be done in the future.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES are pledged to secure equitable and fair assessments and taxation.

REPUBLICAN COLUMN.

Tomorrow is election day in Plainfield.
You will vote, of course.
The question is, how will you vote?
Your proper course will be to

Vote the Republican Ticket and Vote it Straight!

There are good reasons for such a course and it will be advisible for you to carefully consider them.

What have the Democrats ever done to assure you that the city is to be at all benefited by the election of their candidates? They have on several occasions elected members to the Common Council. In every case they have fallen in line with the policy of the Republicans and assisted in carrying it out. Two years ago, they entered the fight under the guise of a Citizens' movement. They succeeded in electing five members of the Council. And what have these same Councilmen done? One is a good Republican and he has made such an efficient public officer that the Republican party has decided to send him back for another term. The others have said nothing or else assisted in carrying out the plans of the Republican members, to oppose which would have been folly. Compare this record with that of the Republican administration and see why the only course for you is to

Vote the Republican Ticket and Vote it Straight!

Never, in the history of this city, has Plainfield reached such a prosperous stage as it has today. Under a national Republican administration, the entire country is enjoying a period of unequalled prosperity. In Plainfield, the general condition is greatly augmented by an economical city government, conducted on thorough business principles. The municipal departments are managed in a manner to give such advantages to Plainfielders that the inhabitants of few other cities in the country enjoy, even for a far higher tax rate, and you want to continue these advantages. Then

Vote the Republican Ticket and Vote it Straight!

Under the present administration, the police department has been placed on an efficient footing. The force has been reorganized and the inefficient methods weeded out. It is conducted on a strictly non partisan basis as are all the other departments of the city. Why? Because the Republican party has selected representative citizens for the Council and other municipal offices, men who are working for the advancement of the city's interests, not perpetual office seekers ready to grasp at a nomination from any source. The Republican ticket to be voted for tomorrow is composed of such men. They are the men who can and will give the city a successful government. This is another reason for you to

Vote the Republican Ticket and Vote it Straight!

Plainfield now possesses one of the best fire departments in New Jersey. It has, under the present administration, been changed to a paid department under circumstances that greatly increase its efficiency and will ultimately save the city of Plainfield thousands of dollars through the abolishing of the volunteer department with its many members exempt from taxation for the remainder of their lives. The cost of this department is far less than that of departments in neighboring cities far the inferior of this one in point of efficiency. The men who have built up the department and now provide for its continuance on the present lines are Republicans. You realize that there must be no change and so you see another reason to

Vote the Republican Ticket and Vote it Straight!

The Democrats loudly criticize the policy of the administration in regard to streets. What do they want? What would a Democratic Council do if elected? They must necessarily continue the present policy and keep the improved streets in good condition or else allow them to degenerate, going back to the old order of things The voice of the people demands good roads Look at what the present administration has accomplished. Never before was Plainfield so favored with good roads all over the city. Every quarter of the city has received its share. Look at the immense improvement to the to the Fourth ward in the macadamizing of West Third and West Fourth streets. This will benefit hundreds. It was the work of a Republican administration. The continuance of this administration means the future improvement of other streets and the keeping of those already improved in their present condition. Isn't that reason enough to Vote the Republican Ticket and Vote it Straight!

Because you don't happen to feel the need of its aid, do not forget the Industrial Home and the department in charge of the city poor. A comfortable home with wholesome food is provided for the city's unfortunates at a minimum cost to the city. There they are properly cared for, and, when able, given an opportunity to make some return for the care shown by the city. Another reason to

Vote the Republican Ticket and Vote it Straight!

The sewer beds are operated in a successful manner. Obstacles have been overcome and the question of sewage disposal has been answered satisfactorily for the present What the future may bring forth the administration will, after its present success, be perfectly able to meet and settle to the best interests of the city. To give them that opportunity

Vote the Republican Ticket and Vote it Straight!

New buildings are springing up all over the city. Builders say that business was never better. Owners and builders are now both protected from cheap and improper methods of construction by the building ordinance There were some parts of it that did not find favor with many of the interested citizens. The administration invited them to suggest changes that might better it. The suggestions were made and the ordinance amended accordingly. The administration is made up of business men, who are glad to listen to any suggestion for the advancement of the interests of the people. What more can be asked? These are the men you want in charge of the city's affairs. Show it tomorrow and

Vote the Republican Ticket and Vote it Straight!

The trolley is gladly welcomed by any growing city. But the franchises are valuable things, only to be given in return for equal benefits for the city. The present administration has secured better terms from the Plainfield Street Railway Company than any other city has been able to get from a trolley corporation. Look at East Second and Richmond streets, macadamized from curb to curb without one cent of expense to the city. Then there are further benefits to accrue to the city as the street railway grows. There will be other franchises to be granted. Put back the present adminstration that has dealt so successfully with the trolley companies in the past. To do it,

Vote the Republican Ticket and Vote it Straight!

Last year, there was a pronounced sentiment that the local business men rather than the commuters should receive a majority of the municipal offices The Republican party responded to the demand by placing at the head of its ticket and electing George W. Rockfellow, one of Plainfield's leading merchants, to the mayoralty. Most of the other candidates on the Republicans have regarded this wish far more than have the Democrats. There are more commuters on the Democratic ticket this year than on the Republican, where they form a small minority of candidates. If you would show your approval of the policy which gives the business men whose entire interests are centered in this city the controlling hand in the city government,

Vote the Republican Ticket and Vote it Straight!

The Democrats told in another column Saturday evening that Democratic officials in the minority were not able to render efficient public service. Again, in direct contradiction, they told how Walter L. Hetfield, a Democratic Councilman from the First ward, had given his ward more improvements during the past year than in any other year during the existence of the city. It is true that the year has been a favorable one for the First ward as well as the rest of the city. But who was responsible? Councilman Hetfield? Only in the support he gave a Republican Council in advancing its own plans. What the First ward received came at the hands of the Republicans. Should you be a resident of the First ward and wish the good work to continue,

Vote the Republican Ticket and Vote it Straight!

There are many other reasons why the best interests of the city demand the return of the present administration to power. But you are already convinced and intend to go to the ballot box tomorrow and

Vote the Republican Ticket and Vote it Straight!

MANY SMALL MATTERS CLOSE UP THE YEAR

Last Regular Meeting of the Present Common Council.

LIBRARY APPROPRIATION.

IT IS DECIDED TO OFFER THE DIRECTORS ONLY $400.

The Exact Amount That the Library is Entitled to Under the Appropriation Cannot be Collected—Assessor Hand Wants $75 for Extra Work—The Gas Franchise Was Talked Over.

The last regular session of the Common Council for this year, held last evening, was not a long one, and there was not a great deal of important business transacted. All the members were present except Messrs. Hetfield and Buckle. The latter was detained at home by a severe illness. No time was lost in considering the business of the evening.

John Morton, of 702 West Front street, an exempt fireman, asked the Council to grant him $500 tax exemption. Petitions were received for electric lights on Leland and Johnston avenues, and one on the south side of Madison avenue, near Seventh street. The latter was referred with power. T. O. Doane reported the granting of nineteen building permits, and A. J. Gavett reported that twelve sewer permits were granted during the month. Mr. Coriell offered a resolution entering into an agreement with the Watchung Water Company, of Dunellen, for two fire hydrants on West Front street, near the city line, for fire protection to that part of the city which is not reached by the mains of the Plainfield Water Company. Mr. Mellick offered a resolution authorizing the drawing of a warrant for $65,952.75 to pay the county and State tax. He also offered another resolution which provides for borrowing $5,300 on account of the fire fund in anticipation of the collection of taxes. Mr. Tolles moved that two electric lights petitioned for be granted. One will be located on Clinton avenue and the other on West Fifth street, between Grant avenue and Lee place.

Mr. Mellick offered a series of resolutions in one to the effect that the city treasurer be authorized to charge to the license trust fund $15 and credit it to general account; charge account of Peace street opening $7.90 to general fund; uncollected North avenue sewer rentals $75 to general fund; charge sundry resource account $823 57 and credit uncollected assessments to close account. These transfers are made to close up the several accounts for the year. Another resolution by Mr. Mellick provided for the correction of an assessment under the Martin Act of $5 07 on property owned by Mrs. Mary Dagnall, which was in error. In connection with this Mr. Mellick stated that a number of petitioners had asked to have several amounts assessed against them corrected, but the committee on taxes failed to find good and sufficient reason why this should be done. The petitioners included are Frank McVey, Wm. Monsell, Wm. Newcorn, on behalf of clients, Samuel Dreier, Preston B. Goodfellow, Mrs. M. M. Swalm, S. F. Dunn; Reed & Coddington on behalf of client, Robert Walker. The last resolution offered by Mr. Mellick provided for the refunding of $1.38 to Robert Dwyer, and $18 76 to the Home and Building Loan Association, which amounts were found to have been paid twice under the Martin Act assessment.

A bill for $75 was received from Charles H Hand for extra time as a city assessor. It was referred to the committee on taxes. Mr. Barrows called up the ordinance relative to the issuance of temporary bonds for the work of macadamizing Third and Fourth streets, and the same was adopted on its third reading.

After the council took a recess of ten minutes to talk about the application of the People's Gas Company, they returned and Mr. VanHerwerden, who in the meantime had come in, reported on the matter concerning the request of the directors of the Public Library for the balance of their appropriation, $533 50. He then stated that it had been found that the amount could not be collected and it was considered wise by the finance committee to compromise and offer the directors $400. He therefore offered a resolution giving that body the sum named.

Another matter reported on by Mr. VanHerwerden was that regarding the request of the Board of Education for their share of the amount collected by the city under the Martin Act. He stated that after due consideration by the corporation counsel, the finance

PUBLIC SCHOOL TERMS.

DATES ARRANGED BY BOARD OF EDUCATION LAST NIGHT.

Business That the Public Can Know About Was Transacted in Ten Minutes, After Which Was Executive Session.

All the members of the Board of Education were present at last night's regular monthly meeting. The only business transacted of which the public can be made acquainted through the medium of the press, owing to the fact that the board went into executive session after ten minutes' public meeting, is the following:

A large number of bills were audited and ordered paid.

The report of the collector of taxes showed that school money to amount with interest of $35,121.71 had been collected and deposited to the credit of the Board in the First National and City banks.

At the suggestion of Superintendent Maxson the board designated the various terms of school for next year as follows:

The winter term to begin on Tuesday, January 2d, and extend to Friday, March 23 1—12 weeks.

The spring term to begin on Monday, April 24, and extend to Friday, June 21st—12 weeks.

The fall term to begin on Tuesday, September 11th, and extend to Friday, December 21st—15 weeks.

The superintendent stated that his annual report and the financial statement were ready for the printer. It was decided to have 2,200 copies printed at once.

Upon motion of President Probasco the board then went into executive session.

MAY EXTRADITE BLACKFORD

New York Judge Asked to Hold the Alleged Bigamist — What the Prosecutor Says.

Prosecutor English, of Union county, said yesterday that he had taken no steps as yet to bring to New Jersey John L. Blackford, the Central Railroad detective, who is held in New York on a charge of bigamy. Mr. English was not prepared to say what action he might take in the matter, but said he had written a letter to the Judge in New York before whom Blackford had been arraigned and requested him to hold the prisoner for thirty days, so that, if necessary, requisition papers could be obtained to bring Blackford to Union county.

Mr. English said he had been informed that Blackford was very willing to come to New Jersey, as he thought his chances of getting bail would be much better here than in New York.

"I have not looked into the matter," continued Mr. English, "but simply as a precautionary measure wrote the letter asking that Blackford be held, and I have heard nothing from New York since.

UNION SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEETING.

Teachers to Meet in the Seventh-Day Baptist Church Next Tuesday Evening.

G. E. Hall, a member of the State executive committee, and others have arranged for a union meeting of Sunday-school teachers and all interested workers in the Bible school cause to be held in the Seventh-Day Baptist church Tuesday evening, Dec. 12th, at 8 o'clock. A leading feature of the meeting will be an address by the able State Sunday-school secretary, Rev. E. M. Ferguson, of Trenton, from whom his hearers may expect added knowledge and increased enthusiasm. Rev. Mr. Buckle, of Elizabeth, president of the county convention, is also to speak. It is regretted that this date conflicts with one of the Bible studies, under Mr. Shelton, at the Y. M. C. A., but speakers had been engaged and other preparations were far advanced, so that any change in date seemed impracticable. Persons interested in the question of organizing a Plainfield Bible School Union are requested to come with some thoughts upon that subject.

Here Are Three Queer Birds.

County Clerk John H. Conger, of New Brunswick, is the possessor of three freak fowls that are attracting considerable attention. They have the heads and feet of chickens and bodies like ducks. The legs are bowed and they waddle. The bodies are covered with oily feathers and the tail is of the stubby type. The freaks were hatched from duck eggs.

Happy Hackensack

The people of Hackensack are happy over the news that early next spring their town will be improved by the trolley, a new station at Main street on the Susquehanna and Western Railroad and a bank building to cost $75,000. These things were determined upon at a meeting of the Board of Trade.

CHANGES MADE IN METHODIST CEMETERY.

Over Two Hundred Bodies Successfully Moved.

WILL ALLOW IMPROVEMENTS

ADJOINING LAND PURCHASED FROM ISAAC RUSHMORE.

By Concentrating All Lots Owned by Trustees on South Side and Adding New Purchase, That Land Will be Sold as Building Lots to Cover Expenses of Improvements to be Made.

The difficult task of moving the 240 bodies from the southern part of the Methodist cemetery on Plainfield avenue to other lots in that burying ground has been successfully accomplished. These changes have made possible certain improvements which will redeem the cemetery from the old run-down condition and add much to its permanency.

This spring the cemetery was in a very poor condition. Many of the plots had been neglected and little care was taken of any of it. There was some talk that the city might condemn and forbid further interments. The board of trustees of the First M. E. church decided that some action must be taken.

The trustees still owned a number of plots scattered through the cemetery. It was believed that if the vacant plots were to be collected into one area they might be disposed of at a price sufficient to cover the cost of the necessary improvements and the expense of the removal of the bodies as well. Isaac Rushmore, who owned the strip of land between West Seventh street and the cemetery, agreed to sell it to the trustees on reasonable terms, so that it might be joined with the southern end of the cemetery and then disposed of as building lots.

After much difficulty the consent of the lot-owners to the cemetery was secured. Lots of equal or greater value were given in other and more central parts of the cemetery in exchange, and the trustees agreed to bear all cost of the change. In the case of lots, the owners of which could not be found, the Union County Court gave the desired permission.

The contract for the removal of the bodies was given to Moses Terrill. The work was begun two weeks ago and is now completed, although forty-five days were allowed by the contract for the completion of the work. In every case, where there was the slightest reason for it, new caskets of the best grade were substituted for the old. E. E. Runyon also gave his personal attention to such cases where the owners desired it. Many of the lot owners visited the cemetery during the progress of the work of removal, and all expressed satisfaction at the manner in which it was done. There were no offensive features to it.

The part of the cemetery along the hedge at the southern side was in bad condition. Several trees had completely overgrown neighboring graves. Others had been neglected so long that the contractor was obliged to trench to find the caskets. A complete plan of the old cemetery and the new changes has been made, making it possible to easily identify any of the unknown bodies by their position before the change.

The bodies have now all been removed, and the work of putting the cemetery in proper shape is going forward. The cemetery will be surrounded by a high ornamental fence, and a keeper's lodge will be erected by the Plainfield avenue entrance. The strip of land purchased from Mr. Rushmore, for which the deed was made out and signed a few days ago, and the southern portion of the cemetery, are to be divided into building lots facing on West Seventh street, with a depth averaging 122 feet.

ONLY ONE VOTER APPEARED.

The City Election Didn't Give County Board Much Work to Do.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Dec. 5.—The Union County Board of Elections, after being in session all of Thanksgiving Day and also last Saturday, succeeded in adding just one name to the list of voters for the Plainfield city election, which takes place today. The five members of the board, together with its clerk, spent their Thanksgiving in a room at the Courthouse, and not a single person appeared before them to be given a voting certificate. The members were disgusted, but there was no help for it, as they had to meet on that day.

Box Office Open Tonight.

The box office at Music Hall will remain open until 9 o'clock tonight to accommodate those desirous of securing seats for "The Village Postmaster" tomorrow night.

HOPE CHAPEL'S NEW HOME.

It is the Intention of the Members to Open the New Building on the Last Sunday in December.

It is now the intention of the worshippers of Hope Chapel to take possession of their new building the last Sunday in this month, December 31st, when it is expected that everything will be completed. Arrangements are about complete for the furnishing of the new building. J. Doull Miller's Sunday-school class will provide for the pulpit and platform furnishings, while the Ladies' Aid Society will furnish the carpet for the new rooms. The handsome stained-glass memorial window that is directly back of the pulpit platform was furnished by the Sunday-school class taught by Silas Yerkes. The pews for the chapel are expected to arrive very soon, and other furniture needed will also be here soon. As stated, it is expected to take possession on the last Sunday in the month, at which time the building will be appropriately decorated. Extensive plans are being formed for the dedication, and a good time is hoped for when the members worship for the first time in their handsome new church home.

SAYS HE WAS LIBELED.

Westfield Man Brought Into Blackford Bigamy Case in a Way Not to His Liking

Two libel suits are likely to result from the Blackford bigamy case, the Elizabeth Journal having in an article last evening referred to Charles Crickenberger, of Westfield, as the discarded lover of Miss Alice Morgan. Mr. Crickenberger was seen by a reporter last evening and in reply to a question he stated that he had never kept company with Miss Morgan but had simply known her as a friend of her brother-in-law, Charles Brenesholtz, who he often visited at his home on Summit avenue. Mr. Crickenburger was very angry at the article which had appeared and stated that he would come to Plainfield this morning for the purpose of consulting his lawyer with a view to bring suit for damages against the Elizabeth Journal and the Newark Daily Avertiser, both papers having used the libelous article. Louie E. Hendrickson is the Westfield correspondent of both papers.

FIRST BOWLING GAME.

Daily Press League Will be Inaugurated Tonight in the Contest Between Westfield and Roselle.

The first game in The Daily Press Bowling League will be rolled this evening on the alleys of the Westfield Club. The team from the Roselle Casino will meet their old rivals from Westfield and a lively match is expected. Roselle this season is somewhat weakened by the loss of several of the veteran members of the team from that town. Westfield lacks practice so the teams can be considered quite evenly matched. There is much interest in Westfield in the new league, and a large attendance of visitors at the game is expected.

Learned of the Surprise.

Lawyer Isaac P. Runyon is one of Plainfield's popular legal lights and his friends are always glad of an opportunity to show him their kindly feelings. It was arranged to give him a surprise party this evening, but this far-seeing lawyer discovered the plot and spoiled the affair for tonight. Those who were arranging the surprise decided on last evening as the time, and again Mr. Runyon discovered the plans. However, this did not change the plans of the affair and the party was given to him last evening. There was a large number of friends present and everyone had a jolly good time until the small hours of the morning.

Death of Mrs. Bostwick.

The death of Mrs. Mabelle G. Bostwick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Snedeker, of 10 Willow avenue, occurred last evening after a long illness. The deceased has not been a resident of the borough a great while, having moved here from New York. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from the late residence at 4 o'clock. Interment will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Morrison Returning Home.

Mrs T. W. Morrison, of Mountain avenue, who has been so very ill in London at the home of her son, sailed for America on Saturday, accompanied by a nurse. Should she able to stand the voyage and arrive safely, she will be taken to the home of her daughter in Philadelphia, there to spend her few remaining days.

Christmas at the Hospital.

The usual Christmas celebration will be held at Muhlenburg Hospital on Monday afternoon, December 25th, and arrangements are being made for a good time.

MYSTERIOUS FIND IN JERSEY WOODS.

Woman's Clothes Found with Chloroform Soaked Handkerchief

EVIDENCES OF STRUGGLE.

YOUNG MEN REPORTED TO CONSTABLE, WHO DELAYED ACTION.

Prosecutor English Finally Notified, and an Investigation Is Now Being Made—The Evidence Secured Points to Murder—Vials Also Found Which Had Contained Chloroform Bought in Newark.

Prosecutor English and County Detective Keron, of Elizabeth, yesterday afternoon began investigating what they believe to be either a most peculiar attempt at suicide or a strange crime.

Francis Francisco, of Milburn, and John Adams, of Springfield, on Sunday afternoon were out in the woods looking for 'possums. About half a mile from the road leading to Summit they saw something white in a clump of underbrush. They made an investigation, and found several articles scattered about, which they took possession of and carried to Milburn. This is given as a list of what they have in their possession:

One pair gold rimmed glasses, one pair of black kid gloves, one small black veil, three hatpins, black topped, one handkerchief—a woman's, two sponges, both new, two vials, three cornucopias, made of newspaper, three pieces of cloth, apparently torn from a handkerchief, one newspaper dated December 1.

The viales were from Petty's drug store in Newark. The sponges were new and apparently had never been used, as they had fastened to them tags showing they had been purchased at the store of Hahne & Co, in Newark. The newspaper is said to be one issued in Newark.

The three funnels, or cornucopias, are said to have been made out of portions of the newspaper. Pieces of handkerchief were in the small ends of the funnels. The vials had contained chloroform.

The handkerchief is said to have been still wet with the same liquid when found, and the condition of the three pieces in the funnels was the same, still damp from the chloroform

Francisco and Adams gathered up the articles and hurried back to Springfield, where they told their story to Constable Howard. They wanted Howard to take charge of the things and investigate. Howard, according to Detective Keron and Prosector English, refused to take possession of the articles, and told the finders to retain them and come around Tuesday morning and tell their story to Justice Huff, as the Justice was away and would not return until that time. The articles were taken away by Francisco and Adams.

News of the find became public yesterday afternoon, and Constable Howard came to Elizabeth. It was then too late for Detective Keron to go to Springfield.

Howard says the men told him there were signs of a struggle about the place, but they did not investigate to any great extent, taking what was lying in view and not penetrating the bushes.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At a regular meeting of the board of directors of the First National Bank, of Plainfield, New Jersey, held on the morning of December 5th, 1899, it was resolved as follows:

Whereas, It has has pleased our Heavenly Father in his infinite wisdom and all-wise providence to remove from our midst by death our esteemed friend and former president and honored co-director, Charles Potter, who for sixteen years past has earnestly and faithfully served this bank. Therefore be it

Resolved, That the board of directors of this bank hereby express their high appreciation of his manly Christian character, his sterling integrity and his faithfulness to duty.

Resolved, That in his death we realize that this bank has lost an energetic and faithful officer, and this community one of its most valued and trusted citizens, whose place in the different walks of life, it will be difficult to fill.

Resolved, That we tender to his bereaved companion and family our heartfelt sympathy in this the hour of their great sorrow.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to his widow, and also engrossed at length on the minute book of this board, and also published in the local papers.

Attest: J. W. Johnson, president.
William M. Stillman, clerk.

An Orchestral Concert.

A programme of selections by the masters has been arranged. The semi-annual entrance examinations of the National Conservatory of Music, 128 East Seventeenth street, New York, will be held January 2d, 3d, 4th and 6th.

WHIST TROPHY RETURNS

PARK CLUB TEAM SUCCEEDED IN WINNING IT LAST NIGHT.

Won From the Jersey City Club by Just One Trick—Park Boys Won the Prize by the Score of Second Round.

The State challenge trophy of the New Jersey Whist Association has returned to Plainfield again after a somewhat lengthy absence. Last night it was won by the Park Club four in a match with the Jersey City Club at the clubhouse of the latter. The victory was won by just one trick.

The trophy has journeyed about the various clubs since the season opened and the Jersey City Club has been successful in holding it several times. The Park Club was represented by Peter B. Matthews, Arthur A. Freeman, Albert Woltmann and Ralph Willis. The Jersey City Club had its veteran four, Messrs. D. Bowley, C Bowley, Scott and Ferris.

The first round showed the Jersey City players ahead by one point, 6 to 5. The teams broke even on the next round, 4 to 4. In the last round, the Park Club boys pulled together and won out on the round 8 to 5, giving them the victory in the match by a score of 17 to 16.

The trophy was brought back to Plainfield last night and now occupies a prominent place in the clubhouse of the Park Club. The next match will be played in this city, probably Wednesday evening, December 13th.

SHE CARES FOR THE BABIES

Miss Curry Told of Her Work in the New York Day Nursery at Trinity Church Last Night.

There was a very large attendance last evening at the Christian Endeavor Society meeting at Trinity Reformed Church, when Miss Curry, Superintendentent of the Day Nursery, New York, was present and gave an interesting talk concerning her work. George Bolsterli was in charge of the meeting and introduced the speaker of the evening. She is a thoroughly consecrated woman, full of faith, and a review of her work elicited the interest and attention of every one present. Miss Curry has been engaged in the work of caring for the babies of poor mothers for four or five years, and during that time over 14,000 babies have been cared for at the Day Nursery. This means that the name and address of each baby is on record, and each one has been kept track of. It is an important part of the work to see that the children, as well as the mothers, are taught to be cleanly in their homes and are taught Christianity and methods for a higher plane of living.

Through the establishment of this day nursery poor mothers are given an opportunity to go out for the day and leave the children at the nursery until the day's work is done. There are at present over forty babies cared for each day.

The money necessary to carry on this work and support it has been received by Miss Curry without the asking of a single person for contributions. Miss Curry says that all the money has been received in answer to prayer to God. Miss Curry is a very pleasant person to meet and listen to, and after the regular meeting a number remained and adjourned to the church parlors, where they met her personally and enjoyed a still further talk regarding this work. All felt well repaid for attending the meeting, and thus learning something about this work that is so dear to the heart of Miss Curry.

GRACE P. E. CHURCH AFFAIRS.

Annual Meeting Held and Wardens and Vestrymen Chosen.

The annual meeting of Grace P. E. Church was held Monday evening. The following were elected: Wardens, De Witt C. Ivins and Thomas Minford; vestrymen, Marion S. Ackerman, Edward H. Booth, George J. Coe, Charles C. Howard, William T. Gough, Lewis G Timpson and Charles E Brooks. The vestry is the same as last year with the exception that Mr. Brooks was elected over N. Pendleton Rogers. The delegates to the Diocesan Convention are John B. Dumont, George M. Randall and George S. Clay; alternates, Marvin S. Ackerman, Lewis G. Timpson and R. Henry Depew.

Sacred Concert and Contest.

A sacred concert and contest between the choirs of the following churches, under the auspices of the Sewing Circle, will be given in Mt. Olive Baptist church, on Thursday, December 21st. The First Baptist church, Cranford; First Baptist church, Westfield; Fillmore Baptist church, A. M. E Methodist church and Mt. Olive Baptist church, of this city. The prize will be a silver cup. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the church.

Miss Ada Punison, formerly of New York, has moved to this city.

THE CITY ELECTION PROGRESSES QUIETLY.

Hottest Fight is in the First Ward.

HEAVY VOTE POLLED THERE.

ELSEWHERE THE VOTE POLLED IS QUITE LIGHT.

Republican Workers Predominate But Democratic Organization Has Its Representatives at Every Polling Place—Dissatisfied Faction of G. O. P. in First Ward is Using Hetfield Pasters.

The city election is now in progress. The real fight is in the First ward where a large vote has been polled. Elsewhere the election is much quieter than was generally expected and the vote polled is small. The active times at all the polling places were early in the morning when the commuters departed for New York and at noon when the factory vote was principally polled. As the time for the closing of the polls arrives, there will be another period of activity.

The morning dawned cold and clear with a biting north wind that made the warmth of the polling places a pleasant contrast. Oil stoves were utilized in many of the polling places.

In the First ward the fight is the hottest. The fight there was particularly over ward councilman. City Clerk J. T. MacMurray was on the ground early in the day and has personally directed his workers All his principal allies who could possibly attend were out to assist.

The Democrats have their workers out and a certain faction of dissatisfied Republicans are very active in their efforts to secure the use of the Hetfield pasters. Both sides will use every effort to win the fight and the result will not be known until the last ballot is counted. Even some of the Republican leaders in the city fear that Gloak will be defeated.

In the Second, Third and Fourth wards the vote is light and everything is very quiet. The Republican workers greatly outnumber the Democrats. The latter, however, have organization.

The Republican leaders claim the election of their entire ticket with the possible exception of W. L Gloak for Councilman. Mr. MacMurray said this morning that he was confident that Gloak would be elected, but he had no idea as yet as to his probable majority.

The enthusiastic Democrats declare that they will elect five Councilmen, one Freeholder and the member of the Board of Education. The more conservative estimates reduce the number of Councilmen to two. All the Democrats are confident of winning in the First ward.

At noon the vote in the various election districts was as follows: First ward, first district, 123; second district, 75; Second ward, first district, 169; second district, 60; Third ward, first district, 128; second district, 35; Fourth ward, first district, 95; second district, 92; third district, 57.

This vote does not include the factory vote that will come in shortly after noon. With the exception of the districts of the First ward, the vote is lighter than at this time at previous elections.

INFLUX OF SHOPPERS.

Free Trolley Excursion Being Run by Business Men Today.

Several carloads of excursionists were brought to town today from Raritan and points east of there. Special cars were run all day under the auspices of some of the prominent merchants, who refunded the amount of carfare paid by the visitors. The larger number of the excursionists were women who enjoyed the ride and the pleasure of bargain hunting. The cars of the Brunswick Traction Company were run into the city.

Jacob Riis to Lecture.

Jacob Riis, who is well-known in Plainfield as the man who has so clearly portrayed the life of "The Other Half" and has not only done so much himself for their betterment but has inspired others to do their share, will speak again in Plainfield of his work in New York and its relation to the work here. He will make an address in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The City Union of King's Daughters, under whose auspices he will speak, extend a cordial invitation to all to be present.

Thrown Out of the Wagon.

ROBERTS NOT YET SEATED.

Fate of the Utah Congressman Elect, Unsettled.

RESOLUTION PRESENTED.

Representatives Taylor and McRae Make Strong Pleas Against Roberts—Consideration of the Matter Postponed—Some of the Leading Points in Message.

Washington, Dec. 5.—The question of the eligibility of Representative-elect Roberts, of Utah, was left temporarily in abeyance Monday afternoon by the House of Repersentatives. Mr. Taylor, of Ohio, offered a resolution that the matter be referred to a committee of nine members of the House, with full power to examine records and summon witnesses. By agreement discussion on this resolution was deferred till after the reading of the President's message.

In introducing his resolution, Representative Taylor said:

"Mr. Speaker, I object to the swearing in of the Representative-elect from the State of Utah, and to his taking a sent in this body. I do so because specific, serious and apparently well-grounded charges of ineligibility are made against him.

"A certified transcript of court proceedings in Utah shows that in 1889 he pleaded guilty under the Edmunds law of unlawful co-habitation. Affidavits and other papers have been placed in my hands, indicating that since that time he has been persistently guilty of the same crime, and that he has ever since been, and is now, a polygamist.

"If the truth is told by this transcript and these affidavits and papers, the Representative-elect from Utah is, in my judgement, ineligible to be a member of this body. In addition to what I have already said, I ought to say that I am in possession of a certified transcript of the order of a Utah court, admitting the member-elect from Utah to citizenship in the United States. Eminent counsel declare upon the evidence of that tarnscript that there is grave doubt if the claimant was ever naturalized, and if not, he is, of course, not a citizen of the United States, and is, therefore, not eligible to a seat in this body.

"Mr. Speaker, if it were possible to emphasize the gravity of this charge, and of the responsibility which it imposes upon us at this moment, we shall find that emphasis in that memorial which I now present to the House from more than 7,000,000 American men and women, protesting against the entrance into this House of the member-elect from Utah."

He was followed by Mr. McRae, of Arkansas, who said he joined in the objection made by Mr. Taylor for the reason he had stated, and for the further reason that if the charges made against Roberts were true, he was guilty of a crime against the womanhood of the country as well as against the fundamental law of Utah. If the allegations were true, Mr. McRae said, there ought not to be a single man in the House who would vote to give him a seat therein. (Applause.)

The Speaker—I would suggest that the gentleman from Utah step aside until the other members are sworn in.

Mr. Roberts—In doing so, Mr. Speaker, I desire it to be understood that I waive no right in the matter.

The Speaker—The Chair will see that the gentleman is fully protected in all his rights.

Mr. Roberts then retired and the remaining members of the House were sworn in.

Mr. Taylor presented the following resolution:

"Whereas, it is charged that Brigham H. Roberts, a Representative-elect to the Fifty-sixth Congress from the State of Utah, is ineligible to a seat in the House of Representatives, and

"Whereas, Such charge is made through a member of this House on his responsibility as such member, and on the basis, as he asserts, of public records, affidavits and papers evidencing such ineligibility.

"Resolved, That the question of the prima facie right of Brigham H. Roberts to be sworn in as a representative from the State of Utah in the Fifty-sixth Congress, as well as of his final right to a seat therein as such Representative, be referred to a special committee of nine members of the House to be appointed by the Speaker, and until such committee shall report upon, and the House decide, such question and right, the said Brigham H. Roberts shall not be sworn in, or be permitted to occupy a seat in this House, and said committee shall have power to send for persons and papers and examine witnesses on oath in relation to the subject matter of this resolution."

Discussion of the above resolution was postponed until after the reading of the President's message, when the matter will again be taken up and finally disposed of.

Important Points in Message.

Washington, Dec. 5.—The matters which are discussed at greatest length, and which are considered to be the principal features of the President's annual message to Congress are affairs in the Philippines, Cuba, Porto Rico, Sulu Islands, the Nicaragua Canal question, trusts, the tariff, currency, reciprocity, Alaskan boundary and the Samoan treaty. In regard to the Philippines matter the message says:

The United States Government has acquired sovereignty over the islands by treaty with Spain, and that sovereignty should be maintained. The form of government to be applied in the islands is for Congress to determine. At the present time the largest measure of civil government consistent with the military occupation is now in operation in Manila and towns in the Philippines and in the island of Negros.

The conduct of affairs in the islands under the military regime is commended, and the recent official representations as guaranteeing the expectation that the rebellion will soon be crushed are indicated. No special laws are recommended. Until Congress acts, the authority of the President is sufficient to apply all the customs and postal regulations required for the islands during the continuance of the military regime.

The Island of Cuba.

Congress is informed as to the causes of the war, its conduct and the present military occupation as necessitated at the close of the war by conditions extant on the island. Attention is called to the reforms which have been made in the island, the public works inaugurated, the consequent employment of labor, the aid rendered the Cuban patriots by the expenditure of nearly $3,000,000 for the pay of the Cuban soldiers. The attitude of the people of Cuba, it is stated, is friendly toward the military government. The natural desire for the inauguration of the independent government promised by Congress is commended.

In line with this desire, the Government has provided for a census of the inhabitants of the island in order to prepare the people of Cuba for the exercise of an independent government. The object of this census is that the Cubans may begin the exercise of their free government in the municipalities. The second step will be the holding of a constitutional assembly or whatever form of popular convention the Cubans elect to hold, and the ultimate kind of government will be determined at this convention or assembly.

That ultimate form of government cannot be established until it has been determined whether the Spanish citizens of the island shall declare whether they prefer to be Cubans or Spanish citizens. By the treaty with Spain the Spanish citizens of the island have until April 11 next to make that declaration, and until that time at least the United States will not surrender the control of the island.

About Porto Rico.

Reference is made to the misfortune which befell the people of the island last summer and the efforts by the people and the Government to relieve their distress. The form of government recommended is essentially territorial. It is proposed to have appointed by the Executive, subject to the approval of the Senate, a Governor and other officers, as Attorney-General, Treasurer, etc., these officers, with a minority number of native officers, to form a legislative council.

The Judiciary is to be similar to that in operation in the States, beginning with a Supreme Court, down to the Municipal Judge. The people will be taught the use of the ballot first only in municipal elections, the time and right to elect a Legislature to be determined by Congress.

The Sulu Islands.

No position is taken on the peculiar relation of this Government to the Sulu archipelago. By mutual agreement the Sultan of Sulu has recognized in the United States the same suzerainty as that held by Spain over the archipelago. The special attention of Congress is directed to the conditions existing—that the agreement is subject to the approval of Congress. The questions of the continuance of polygamy, slavery and other Mahommedan customs in the archipelago are left for Congress to deal with.

The Samoan Treaty.

Attention is called specially to the recent abrogation of the tripartite treaty, the cession thereby to the United States of the Island of Tutuila and its harbor of Pago Pago Bay and the convention between Great Britain, the United States and Germany, by which Oscar, King of Sweden, is made the umpire in all claims accruing by reason of the bombardment of Apia and other Samoan towns by American and British cruisers last January. These acts of the State Department will be sent to the Senate.

The Nicaraugua Canal.

The completion of the Nicaragua Canal at the earliest possible day consistent with the public economies is urged. Specific attention is called to the fact that there is yet due a report from the enlarged commission, aside from the Walker Commission's report, already in. The question of the immediate legislation is not touched, but the importance of the work is urged, and Congress is reminded of the possibilities of the report to be made by the enlarged commission.

How Trusts Are Treated.

It is maintained that it is the abuse of trusts which is the cause of the hardship attributed by the people to corporations. No specific legislation is suggested, but Congress is urged to deal with the subject effectively, in accordance with the equities as between the people and combinations and corporations which may be shown to be oppressive and a burden to the people.

The Currency Question.

The gold standard is openly advocated, and the recommendations previously made to protect the gold reserve, and provide for larger circulation are renewed.

To Congress are left the details of currency reform, and nothing is said about the Senate refunding scheme.

Reciprocity Treaties.

The various reciprocity treaties which have been made with French and British colonies in the West Indies, and the reciprocity treaty with France, copies of which will be furnished to the Senate, are referred to.

On the Tariff.

Only indirect reference to the tariff is made, as a largely contributory cause to what is characterized as the prosperity of the people.

Voted 33 Times in One Day.

Philadelphia, Penn., Dec. 5.—Judge Wiltbank has sentenced Joseph Wetzell, a professional repeater, to three years in the Eastern Penitentiary at the same time imposing a fine of $300. Wetzell was convicted of voting illegally in the Thirty-third division of the Nineteenth ward at the November election of 1898, and, by his own admission, he voted thirty-three times in a day.

Was Killed While Riding.

Mt. Vernon, Ky., Dec. 5.—J. Brooks, while on horseback, attempted to close a gate with his gun lying across his saddle, when it was discharged killing him instantly.

FIRED ON THE HOSPITAL.

Boers do a Lot More Damage at Ladysmith.

DESPATCHES DELAYED.

Terribly Accurate and Sustained Fire of the Burghers in the Battle of Modder River—The Troops Fought Fiercely for Fourteen Hours—Withdrew Under Cover of Darkness.

Frere Camp, Natal, Nov. 30 (Delayed in transmission).—A message from Ladysmith, dated Nov. 25, says:

"The chief feature of the last three days has been deliberate shelling of the town, including the hospital. Schalkburgher, in command of the Boers, sent an impudent message that all the wounded must go to Ikombi camp. Gen. White peremptorily refused.

"The Boers then continued shelling the hospital. There has been much damage to the town recently. The Liverpools and Gloucesters had eleven men killed and wounded yesterday. The Boers investing the place number probably 10,000. The troops are healthy, but impatient."

Story of Modder River Battle.

London, Dec. 5.—The following is the Chronicle's account of the battle of Modder River:

"The fighting lasted fourteen hours. The Boers were strongly entrenched, their front extending five miles along the bank of the river. During a brief lull in the artillery duel Gen. Methuen sent infantry across the plain toward the river in two brigades. They were met by a perfect hail of bullets from the enemy's sharpshooters, posted close to the river on the opposite bank. The British, who had no cover, were mowed down. It seemed impossible to live through the fire, which was terribly accurate. The Boers numbered at least 10,000.

"The Scots Guards advanced six hundred yards before the Boers fired on them. Then they had to lie down to escape the deadly fusillade, which lasted without intermission all day. The Highlanders attempted more than once to force a passage across the river, but the murderous fire compelled them to retire. They suffered terribly while under fire. Subsequently a party of the Guards crossed the river and held their own against a vastly superior force.

"The general opinion of members of the staff is that there has not been such a sustained fire in the annals of the army. Men fell by the dozens, while attempting to rush the bridge. Lieut. Col. Coddrington, of the Coldstream Guards, Capt. Sellpeine, a Queenslander, and a dozen men of the Coldstream Guards jumped into the river and swam nearly to the other side in the face of a steady fire. They were forced to retire, however, and swam back unscathed. Fearful havoc was wrought in the Boer positions and the enemy was forced to leave his entrenchments. Night put an end to the bloodshed.

"During the night the enemy retreated, taking his guns. We are now occupying the Boer positions. The enemy's losses were tremendous."

Cashier's $20,000 Shortage.

Port Jervis, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Errors have been discovered in the accounts of Louis E. Goldsmith, assistant cashier of the National Bank of Port Jervis, and it is said the shortage may reach $20,000 or possibly $25,000. The accounts have been thoroughly investigated by Bank Examiner W. H. Bryan, who has been at work upon the books since November 14. Mr. Goldsmith is at his home in this place and it is stated that he will rectify the errors and make good any deficiency which may exist without loss of time.

Heavy Gales in the South Seas.

Vancouver, B. C., Dec. 5.—Unusually cold weather and heavy gales are reported from New Zealand. During a storm in November the ship Pleiades went ashore on the New Zealand coast. Her officers and crew were saved, but the ship could not be removed from the rocks, on which she is high and dry. In the same gale the steam collier Hesketh went ashore at the Greymouth Bar, where the Wapowicka was stranded recently.

Large Sugar Refinery Reopened.

Philadelphia, Dec. 5.—The Spreckles Sugar Refinery, operated by the trust, which has been idle for several weeks, undergoing repairs, has been again put in operation and hundreds of men who had been laid off have returned to work. A large fleet of sugar-laden steamships is enroute from Java to the Delaware Breakwater. The cargo probably will be sent to the Spreckles refinery.

Funeral of John I. Blair.

Blairstown, N. J., Dec. 5.—Funeral services over the remains of the late millionaire and railroad king, John I. Blair took place here to-day. Many prominent financiers were present. A special train from New York over the Lackawanna railroad brought friends and business associates who came from the metropolis to pay a last tribute of respect to the dead. The floral offerings were beautiful and many.

Baldwin Sells Hotel Site.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 5.—E. J. Baldwin, better known by his sobriquet of "Lucky," has signed a contract to sell the Baldwin Hotel site, at Powell and Market streets, which has remained covered with unsightly ruins for thirteen months. The purchaser is J. L. Flood, son of the bonanza millionaire, who pays $1,425,000 for the lot.

Hudson River Boat Builder Dead.

Catskill, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Peter Magee, proprietor of a well known boat building plant at Athens, died Monday. He built many tugs and lighters plying about New York harbor and the Hudson River, the passenger steamboats City of Catskill, Kaaterskill and others. From 1886 he was Sheriff of Greene County.

Brakeman Fell Between the Cars.

Miamisburg, O., Dec. 5.—E. M. Page, of Middletown, a brakeman on the Big Four was instantly killed Monday by falling between the cars.

THE MOLINEUX TRIAL.

Opening of the Case for the Prosecution.

New York, Dec. 5.—The trial of Roland B. Molineux for the murder of Mrs. Kate J. Adams, on Dec. 23 last, has began in earnest, and Assistant District-Attorney James W. Osborne started the proceedings by making his opening address to the jury, in which he outlined the case that the prosecution hopes and expects to prove in the next three or four weeks against the young man now fighting for his life. He said: "This man has been indicted for murder in the first degree. The substance of that indictment is that he is guilty of the murder of Mrs. Kate J. Adams, having been committed while he was attemptping a felonious assault on the body of Harry S. Cornish." Mr. Osborne warned the jury not to accept the District-Attorney's interpretation of the law unless his version was approved by the Court.

The handwriting experts are much in evidence, and Harry Cornish, who, it was said, would be one of the first witnesses called, fluttered around uneasily. He was apparently very nervous and his mustache had not a moment's rest. Mr. Osborne also appeared to be nervous.

Everybody looked surprised when Dr. Allen McLane Hamilton walked in and took his seat in the space reserved for the forces of the defense. There has been no hint that he would be associated with Messrs. Weeks and Battle.

"I am not here in the capacity of a witness," said Dr. Hamilton, "nor do I expect to be called to the stand in any capacity. I shall act as medical adviser to the defense." The first woman to put in an appearance was refused admission to the court room by six policemen in turn, despite the fact that she is practising attorney and had proper credentials. She was Miss Alice Serber. After her last unsuccessful assault on the men who guarded the doors, she paid a visit to the District Attorney's office. Five minutes later she was in the court room.

OUR TOTAL LOSSES.

Gen. Otis Reports the Dead and Wounded.

Washington, Dec. 5.—Major-Gen. Otis has reported to the War Department that the killed and wounded among all United States troops in the Philippines from Aug. 1, 1898, to Aug. 31, 1899, numbered 1,900. By periods, the casualties were as follows:

From Aug. 1, 1898, just before the capture of Manila from the Spaniards, to Feb. 4, 1899, the date of the outbreak of Aguinaldo against American authority, killed or fatally wounded, one commissioned officer and 18 enlisted men; wounded, but not fatally, 11 officers and 97 enlisted men.

From Feb. 4, to Aug. 31, 1899, the date of Gen. Otis's report, killed or died of wounds received in battle, 19 officers and 242 enlisted men; wounded, 87 officers and 1,325 enlisted men. The majority of the wounded had recovered at the date of the report.

Only four enlisted men were reported captured in action. One hundred and seventy-eight men dropped as deserters were still at large.

"Many of them escaped from the islands," Gen. Otis says, "but this desertion list includes men who absented themselves from their companions without permission and carelessly wandered beyond our lines into the enemy's country. These possibly aggregated 30 or 40. A few men who had been discovered as former deserters from the army again deserted direct to the enemy and some of them, it is rumored, hold commissions in Aguinaldo's forces. One officer, Capt. Rockefeller, 9th Infantry, is missing."

Aguinaldo Trapped in Pass.

Manila, Dec. 5.—A dispatch from Dagupan says General Young hopes to find Aguinaldo in Benguet Mountain Pass, and to capture him there. Both entrances to Benguet are fortified. Two troops of the Third cavalry will reinforce General Young in the Pass.

A message from Santa Cruz, Province of South Ilocos, forwarded by courier to San Fabian, says that Gen. Young, with three troops of the Third cavalry and Major Peyton C. March's battalion of the Thirty-third infantry have arrived at Santa Cruz. The Americans left Namacpacan, Province of Union, expecting to have a hard fight at Tagudin, in South Ilocos Province, but they found, on arriving there, that 600 Filipinos, under Gen. Tino, had evacuated thirty-six hours before, deserting an almost impregnable position.

Planned to Destroy Dublin Castle.

Belfast, Dec. 5.—The News-Letter publishes a startling story from Dublin to the effect that a plot to blow up Dublin Castle with dynamite had been discovered. The plans to destroy the Castle had almost matured. The guards at all the military barracks have been doubled, and extraordinary precautions have been taken to prevent the outrage. Unknown persons are excluded from the castle grounds. Dublin Castle is the official residence of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, at present the Right Hon. Earl Cadogan.

The Cylinder Exploded.

Boston, Dec. 5.—A cylinder in the sterilizing room of the Massachusetts General Hospital exploded, blowing out the iron heads and shattering the windows in the room. No one was injured. The cylinder was made of cast iron and the first one placed in the room when the sterilizing department was opened. The patients did not know that anything had happened.

THAT'S THE IDEA!
You ought to see what we can do for you before doing anything for yourself. Painting depends upon the paint and the painter. Better preparations than ours were never put on by a brush. Wherever paint is put, it should be put there to stay long enough to make it worth while to do the job. The warring elements have no effect on our durable mixtures.

I have recently read of four cases where Ripans Tabules relieved people from severe suffering which they experienced from the necessity of living in an impure atmosphere. First, there was a man who kept a 10-cent lodging-house in the Bowery, New York. He found that a Tabule taken now and then kept him from getting sick in that polluted atmosphere. Then there was a man who worked in a coal mine in Ohio, where the great distance under the hills made it impossible to get pure air, the air being forced to the men by great fans which would sometimes cease their motion on account of breaks in the machinery and then the air would become very bad indeed, causing pains in the head, dizziness and fainting. This man found a Ripans Tabule taken at such a time would preserve him from the pain he had previously experienced. Another miner, well known in Scranton, Pa., suffered from the foul atmosphere he breathed for so many years in the mines, resulting there from the gases and damp. "My stomach suffered most," said he. Finally he was induced to make trial of Ripans Tabules, and was so much benefited that he now makes a practice of carrying a few of the magic Tabules in his pocket, so as to be able to swallow one at the first sign of approaching trouble. The fourth case is that of a Philadelphia tailor who had charge of the manufacturing department, and was obliged to spend hours at a time in the pressing, sponging and ironing department in an overheated room where the atmosphere is very heavy and disagreeable. This resulted in giving him frequent headaches, from which he sometimes suffered great torture. The medicines prescribed by his physician brought no relief, and he was, he said, on the verge of despair when a friend one day advised him to try Ripans Tabules. He did so and the result was that the first two Tabules wrought with him an almost magic change. "I escape all headaches now," he writes, "and no matter how hot the room is, one Tabule does away with all suffering. I always carry some with me for an emergency and can sincerely recommend them."

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

ERNE IS STILL THE CHAMPION.

Buffalo Lightweight Fights a Draw With Jack O'Brien.

New York, Dec. 5.—More than four thousand sports paid admission to the Coney Island Athletic Club Monday night to witness the battle between Frank Erne, of Buffalo, and Jack O'Brien, of New York, for the lightweight championship of the world, which resulted in the referee declaring the contest a draw at the close of the twenty-fifth round.

Both of the fighters displayed a great amount of skill and ring generalship, and while at times it looked as though Erne had somewhat the better of the exchanges, it was necessary for him to use all the clever tactics at his command to get an even break with the sturdy little New Yorker, and retain the world's championship honors which he won from George Lavigne, about six months ago. In point of scientific boxing the bout was as interesting as anything of a fistic nature that has taken place around these parts for a long time.

O'Brien displayed greater hitting powers than Erne but the latter's superiority in generalship kept him out of the Irish lad's reach much of the time.

O'Brien succeeded in knocking the champion down three times during the contest. Both men were severely punished.

PAYING DAMAGES TO VICTIMS.

Accident on the Lackawanna to be Investigated on Friday.

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 5.—It has been definitely settled that the inquest in the Lackawanna wreck will be held on Friday night, in the County Court House. District Attorney Eugene Emley will be present in the interest of the County of Passaic, and a large number of witnesses has been summoned, including Engineer Reardon.

None of the victims of the wreck have yet been discharged from St. Joseph's Hospital nor will they be until after the inquest, when as many as are able will be asked to take the stand.

Agents of the company are in the city, endeavoring to settle for the accident, but so far they have been able to secure the signatures of only a few of the victims. They have been liberal in their offers, but most of the injured think a jury will give much higher figures than those offered by the company.

Isaac Harris, whose arm was broken, has agreed to accept $500 rather than bring suit.

Division Superintendent DuPuy of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad says he has heard nothing of a threatened strike of the engineers and firemen. Mr. DuPuy says that as far as he knows there is no dissatisfaction on his division, and he has received no complaints from the men.

It is known, however, that many of the employes are dissatisfied. There is considerable talk of strike all along the line.

JERSEY'S SUICIDE MANIA.

Angry Wife Drinks Enough Laudanum to Kill Five Persons.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 5.—A mania for suicide by poisoning seems to have invaded this section. Following close on the suicides of pretty Jennie Garrity and John Kofal and the attempt of Fannie Pontasoff to end her life, all of which happened within the last three days, Mrs. Regina Martin has attempted to put an end to her life by drinking laudanum mixed with wine.

She is the wife of Frederick Martin, who keeps a candy store in No. 127 Pennington street. She and her husband had a quarrel. Taking a bottle of laudanum from a cupboard she poured it all into a glass of wine which stood on a table, and, before her husband knew what she was about, drained the glass.

"Now I am going to die!" she exclaimed, coolly.

Her husband ran out and summoned an ambulance and she was hurried to the St. Barnabas Hospital, where a stomach pump saved her life. She took enough of the poison to kill five persons.

Within the last few weeks there have been a record-breaking number of suicides and attempts at suicide in Newark and adjoining places.

Harpers' Assets About $6,000,000.

New York, Dec. 5.—With a view to the reorganization of the publishing firm of Harper & Brothers, which recently passed into the possession of the State Trust Company, as trustees of the first mortgage held by J. P. Morgan & Co., a referee has been appointed in proceedings for a voluntary dissolution of the corporation. It is said that the assets of the corporation—which was organized in 1896 with a capital stock of $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 worth of bonds—are estimated at $6,282,716.55. They consist of the Harper building and the ground on which it stands, which are appraised at $1,281 904, the machinery, plates, books and periodicals.

Seven Killed in Collision.

Denver, Col., Dec. 5.—A rear-end collision occurred between two passenger trains on the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad Monday, in which seven persons were killed outright and several others were severely injured. The accident happened at English Switch, about six miles east of Salida. A. H. Johnson, of Oberlin, Ohio, was among the killed.

Rumor of Miller's Arrest.

Montreal, Dec. 5.—It is rumored that Miller, the fugitive manager of the Franklin Syndicate of Brooklyn, has been arrested here by the Superintendent of a Chicago detective agency. No verification has yet been given out by the police.

The Illinis Street Car Strike.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 5.—After a conference between the striking street car men and Col. C. K. Minary, manager of the Springfield Consolidated Railroad, it was announced that no agreement had been reached. Mr. Minary refuses to recognize the union.

PIPE TRUST IS HIT HARD.

The Combination Declared to Be Unconstitutional.

DECISION HANDED DOWN

The Addystone Company's Case Settled by the Sherman Law—Decision Likely to Affect Other Combinations Lately Formed—Contention of Government Confirmed.

Washington, Dec. 5.—In the United States Supreme Court the Addystone Pipe case has been finally decided. This case involved the constitutionality of the combination of pipe manufacturers to manufacture pipe, which, it was charged, was a trust. The decision, which was handed down by Justice Peckham, was adverse to the combination. The opinion of the Court of Appeals for the sixth circuit was affirmed.

In reviewing the case, Judge Peckham said that it had been brought under the Anti-Trust Act of 1890, and that an injunction was asked to enjoin the six corporations engaged in the manufacture of water and gas pipe, which composed the combination, from continuing to do business under the agreement by which they had divided the territory of the United States among themselves and by which they had arranged to fix prices.

Under the agreement members of the combination provided for auctioning off the right to make bids for supplying with pipe cities not in allotted territory, the successful bidder to meet no opposition from other members of the trust, or if other bids were made, none of them should be higher than that of the company to which the award had been made by the combination.

In cases in which bids were asked in territory allotted to members of the combination, the agreement was that no bids should be made except under the supervision of the company in charge of the territory under the agreement.

The charge was that such a combination was a violation of the clause of the constitution regulating interstate commerce.

The District Court, in which the case was first heard, refused to take this view of it, but it was reversed by the Court of Appeals of the Sixth Circuit, which held the combination to be antagonistic to the Constitution, ordering the issuance of the injunction prayed for. This latter decision was affirmed by the action of the Supreme Court, with a modification that the decision should be construed as applying to interstate business only

There were two questions before the court in connection with the case. The first was whether the Constitutional clause for the regulation of interstate commerce applied to individuals and corporations, and the second, whether, if the clause be found to so apply the combination is a regulation of interstate commerce.

The Court held that the Constitutional clause did apply to individuals and corporations and that the agreement does by its provisions restrict and restrain commerce between the States. Hence the agreement was decided to be void as applying to interstate business and the injunction was sustained.

This is the first suit brought under the provisions of the Sherman law, and directly involving the question of the legality of trusts, since the old "Knight" suit against the Sugar Trust.

The Sherman law expressly declares illegal every contract or combination, in form of trust or otherwise, in restraint of trade in or between the several States and Territories, or with foreign nations, and provides for the seizure and confiscation to the United States of all property owned under such combination. It gives to the several Circuit Courts the right to issue restraining orders pending final decisions in any complaints made against combinations.

Senate Currency Bill.

Washington, Dec. 5.—The text of the Currency bill prepared by the Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee has been given out and a portion of it is as follows:

"A bill to affirm the existing standard of value, to maintain the parity in value of all forms of money, to refund the public debt, and for other purposes.

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled:

"That the dollar consisting of 25.8 grains of gold, nine-tenths fine, shall, as established by Section 3.5 1 of the Revised Statutes of the United States continue to be the standard unit of value, and all forms of money issued or coined by the United States shall be maintained at a parity of value with this standard; and United States notes and Treasury notes issued under the act of July 14, 1890, when presented to the Treasury for redemption shall be redeemed in gold coin of such standard."

Women Settle Differences

Upper Sandusky, Ohio, Dec. 5.—For some time Mrs. Henry Dahmer and Mrs. Edward Suiters, of Little Sandusky, have been enemies, the result of family troubles. They finally settled their differences by repairing to the village common, and in the presence of almost the entire population of the town "fought it out" with nature's weapons. The women went at it in a business-like manner and registered several knock-downs each, and pulled each other's hair in a vigorous manner. Mrs. Dahmer is about 68 years of age, and Mrs. Suters not over 25. After an hour's fight the former retreated, thereby giving the decision to her younger opponent.

CITY OWNERSHIP.

[FROM "MUNICIPAL MONOPOLIES."]

Under private ownership Dallas, Tex., population 50 000, pays $100 per annum rent for each street arc. Coal $3 75 per ton.

Under public ownership, Galveston, Tex., population 50,000, pays $84 73 which includes 5 per cent for interest and depreciation of plant. Coal $4 per ton.

So far as the old time "pony" express business is related to Plainfield, it became a thing of the past sometime ago when the sole survivor of the enterprise succumbed to the United States Express Company and lost his personal business identity by being put on the big corporation's employe list, where he now transacts business for the company the same as he formally did for himself. But not withstanding this condition of affairs, there is contemporaneous interest in the decision of Justice Lippincott in the action of an Elizabethian against the Central Railroad, in which the former endeavored to enforce what he considered was his right to carry as many bundles on the passenger cars of that road as his arms could hold. Justice Lippincott decided that the passenger had no right to do this. It is the deathblow to the "pony" express business, but it is not at all likely, however, that the railroad company will enforce the law on the average passenger. It will always remain, however, as a guard for the railway company in dealing with private expressmen.

United States Marshal Allen, of West Virginia, and ex-Consul J. Hampton Hoge, of Virginia, favor Attorney General Griggs as the candidate of the Republican party for Vice-President on the ticket with President McKinley. Colonel Allen said of Mr. Griggs. "His record is above criticism and without fault, and with him New Jersey would gladly transfer to her distinguished living the stainless mantle of her immortal dead."

A Washington correspondent says that Representative Daly, of New Jersey, is being urged by his Congressional friends for an important committee assignment. New members, as a rule, are not provided with important places on good committees, and if Mr. Daly succeeds in obtaining a good place he will owe it to the good impression he has made since reaching Washington.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A prominent person was standing in a public place a few days ago, and was astonished to notice how many men entered the place and expectorated on the floor and in the registers that were conveniently located. This sight brought about a discussion between some of those present as to the unhealthfulness of the practice, especially to those who entered the place. The hot fumes from the register carried with them the undesirable smell that is so very offensive; and then women entering the place invariably swept the floors and the long trains carried along the filth and dirt that breeds disease. This practice of expectorating has been stopped in trolley cars by the Board of Health, and it was believed by those discussing the question that the board would put a stop to it in public places.

* * * * * *

A few days ago there was published in The Daily Press an article regarding the question as to whether Lincoln passed through Elizabeth on his trip to Washington on the occasion of his first inauguration. J. A. Clark, of this city, who claims that he remembers the occasion and that he saw Lincoln at Elizabeth, had an argument with Robert Guttridge, of Netherwood, about it, and the latter claimed that he did not pass through Elizabeth. Mr. Clark made a bet of $5 $1, which he afterwars withdrew. Mr. Guttridge wrote to the New York Sun under date of Sunday, Nov. 12th: "Abraham Lincoln did not pass through Elizabeth, N. J., on his way to Washington in 1861. He went from Springfield, Ill., to Harrisburg, Pa., stopping at many places; from Harrisburg he made his famous journey to Washington." This would appear to be satisfactory evidence for most anyone, but shortly afterward Mr Clark wrote to The Sun, and again they replied, as stated in The Press of a few days ago, that according to the New Jersey Journal, Lincoln did pass through Elizabeth. However, the question seems to be an open one, and it has not been definitely settled whether or not the President did really pass through that place. The Daily Press would like to hear from any person who can verify Mr. Clark's statement so that the question can be settled. Major Coleman, of this city, declares that Lincoln did not go through Elizabeth. Mr. Guttridge says that he did make a bet, but that Mr. Clark finally withdrew it and his money was given to him by the stakeholder.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

"The Village Postmaster", with Archis Boyd in the title role, will be at Music Hall tomorrow night, after long successful engagements at Brooklyn Providence, Boston where it was seen after its long engagements in New York. The story of the Village Postmaster is unconventional. A story is one of love and disappointment coming out all right. It is also unconventional in its settings which is in a New Hampshire village in 1852 during the presidency of Franklin Pierce. Scenery and costumes being in keeping with the time, the former being elaborate and pleasing to the eye. The piece has been extremely successful in all other cities and we have every reason of believing tt at the sale of seats will be most satisfactory to the management. The complete production under the management of Mr. Wesly Resenquest will be given here and there is every reason to believe that the Village Postmaster will meet with as cordial reception here as it has elsewhere.

Manager Maze Edwards will have for an attraction at Music Hall Saturday afternoon and night George W. Peck's famous play, "Peck's Bad Boy." This is the fifteenth year of continued success of this bright and sparkling comedy, but like rare old wines it improves with age. There probably has never been any one play that has been kept up to the standard and improved from year to year as this piece. The play has been rewritten, and new scenery has been painted by Seavey, the well-known scenic artist, for this season. Great care has been taken in the selection of the cast all of which has gained metropolitan fame.

Quality

It is the high quality of Royal Baking Powder that has established its great and world-wide reputation.

Every housewife knows she can rely upon it; that it makes the bread and biscuit more delicious and wholesome—always the finest that can be baked.

Never experiment with so important an article as the human food

It is economy and every way better to use the Royal, whose work is always certain, never experimental.

There are many imitation baking powders, made from alum. They may cost less per pound, but their use is at the cost of health.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 5.—There was a lively time at the meat market of William H Carman Saturday night, when the proprietor rounded up and with a few of his friends succeeded in killing fourteen good sized rats. The rodents had been surprised in a rear room and were presented from escaping by blockading their means of exit—a large hole in the floor. It was a fight to a finish, with no possible chance for the rats.

Peter Windfelt, a former clerk in the general store of Postmaster Adam Dealaman, has returned from his southern trip and is now located in Westfield, where he has secured a good position in a grocery store. Mr. Windfelt was a visitor in town on Sunday.

The members of William G Holton Council, Jr., O. U. A. M., and the Daughters of Liberty, listened to an interesting sermon by the Rev. A. I. Martine, at the Presbyterian Church, Sunday night.

Miss Pearl Dodwell, the bright and interesting daughter of Conductor Charles Dodwell, took a trip to New York several days ago, and saw some of the sights of the great city.

The gatemen at the crossings of the Central Railroad have appeared in their new regulation uniforms of blue flannel blouses and corduroy trousers. They look very neat.

Robert Craig, an employe of the Pond Tool Works, at Plainfield, who has been enjoying a vacation, has returned to work.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of George Richardson to Miss Grace Vail to take place the 13th inst.

Miss Flora E Wilgus, a teacher in the Whittier School, has returned from a visit to her home in Red Bank.

Miss May O. Fulper, a teacher in the Lincoln School, spent Thanksgiving at her home in Flemington.

Mrs. Catharine Maier, of the Park Hotel, is among those who are reported seriously ill.

The public schools opened yesterday, after being closed for the Thanksgiving vacation.

Mrs. Philip Harmon and children have been visiting friends in Somerville.

The Stevens house on High street is being painted by Clarence Oakley.

An infant child of Mr. and Mrs. William Pernells is quite ill.

Halloway Adams is seriously ill at his home in this village.

Herbert Walters visited friends in Newark on Sunday.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 5—The local football eleven made several attempts to arrange a game with the Alis team, of Plainfield, before that team disbanded for the season, but were unsuccessful. The lovers of the sport in town would have liked to have seen the two teams meet, as a good game would have been assured.

The second-hand cars the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railroad have put on are giving the company a great deal of trouble. It is an every day occurrence to see one being towed back to the car house, the fuse having burned out.

Miss Nancy Wade, who has been spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs Abram Wade, has returned to her home in Mahwah, this state.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hazel, who have been visiting relatives in town, have returned to their home in Elizabeth.

Edward Johnston led an interesting young people's meeting in the Baptist church Sunday evening.

Rev. G. M. Shott will make an address in the First Baptist church of Westfield this evening.

Rev. G M Shott attended the Ministers Conference in New York yesterday.

The names of those specially deserving for good deportment are: George Schmidt, Edith Mersing, Sadie Bilyew, Margie Ackor, Douglass Demler, Grace Jahn, Eddie Spier. And for excellence in lessons: Tessie Scemidt, Carrie Demler, Tony Troiano, Douglass Demler, Margie Acker, Bertha Wyckoff.

In its advanced and chronic form a cold in the head is known as Nasal Catarrh and is the recognized source of other diseases. Having stood the test of continued successful use, Ely's Cream Balm is recognized as a specific for membranal diseases in the nasal passages, and you should resort to this treatment in your own case. It is not drying does not produce sneezing. Price 50 cents at druggists or by mail. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York. Give up prejudice and try it.

—Press want ads bring results.

—A great improvement is the substantial stone walk that has been laid on Second street at the corner of Park avenue.

—The teachers of the First Baptist church Sunday-school are planning for the annual Christmas entertainment for the scholars.

—The Christian Endeavor Society meeting this evening at Warren chapel will be of special interest and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Mecklenburg.

Schwerin. Eine Stadtbehörde in Mecklenburg hatte eine Bekanntmachung nur ausrufen lassen, obgleich daselbst eine Zeitung herausgegeben wird. Jemand, der solcher Bekanntmachung nicht nachkam und einen Strafbefehl erhielt, trug auf gerichtliche Entscheidung an, und das Schöffengericht hat nun entschieden, daß das Ausrufen einer behördlichen Verfügung nicht zeitgemäß und daher rechtsunwirksam sei.

Braunschweig.

Börssum. Ein schreckliches Unglück ereignete sich hier. Ein fünfjähriges Mädchen hatte auf einem Drahtseile, das von einer Dampfmaschine nach der Rolle des Dampfpfluges führte, Reitsitz genommen, gerieth unter die Rolle und wurde völlig zerstückelt. Die einzelnen Theile des Körpers wurden gesammelt und in einem Sacke fortgeschafft.

Großherzogthum Hessen.

Bayern.

München. Die öffentlichen Sparkassen sollen als mündelgeldsicher erklärt werden.—Neulich Abends wurde an dem Postanweisungsschalter der Hauptpost ein räuberischer Ueberfall auf einen Diener der Vereinsbank verübt, doch wurde der Räuber, der dem Diener eine Mappe mit 38,000 Mark entrissen hatte, eingeholt.—In der Postfiliale zu Neuhausen wurde ein Buchhalter von Herzkrämpfen befallen. Er sank bewußtlos nieder und war bis zur Ankunft der Sanitätskolonne bereits eine Leiche.

Amberg. In Sulzbach in der Oberpfalz ist der Bankier Friedrich Mandelbaum wegen Betrugs verhaftet worden.

Augsburg. Das seit Jahrhunderten berühmte Hotel zu den drei Mohren hat unter seinem jetzigen Besitzer, Hotelier Wiedemann, in den Parterrelokalitäten einem mit allen Errungenschaften der Neuzeit ausgestatteten Restaurant Platz gemacht, das in seiner prunkvollen Einrichtung eine Zierde und Sehenswürdigkeit der hiesigen Stadt bildet.

Freising. Die hiesigen Oekonomen fühlen sich durch den Hochwasserschaden und den dadurch verursachten Futtermangel veranlaßt, den Preis der Milch, der bisher 14 Pfennige per Liter betrug, um 2 Pfennige zu erhöhen, was für die Familien, die zwar mit vielen Kindern, aber mit wenig Erdengütern gesegnet sind, keine freudige Nachricht bedeutete. Da eine einmal eingetretene Preiserhöhung selten rückgängig gemacht wird, so dürfte das Hochwasser dadurch in dauernder Erinnerung bleiben.

Murnau. In kurzer Zeit wird die elektrische Bahn Murnau-Oberammergau vollendet sein. Gegenüber dem Staatsbahnhofe ist derjenige der elektrischen Bahn. Auch in der Station Kohlgrub und der Endstation Oberammergau wird emsig gearbeitet. Wie verlautet, wird die Staatsbahn während der Spielzeit die Züge von München bis Oberammergau direkt durchführen, so daß außer Motorwagen auch Dampflokomotiven die Strecke befahren werden.

Nürnberg. Das Bayerische Gewerbemuseum veranstaltet im laufenden Winter in 30 Gewerbevereinen Bayerns Wandervorträge. Es sind hiermit sechs Beamte des Gewerbemuseums betraut.

Rosenheim. Zur Universalerbin seines gesammten Vermögens im Betrage von etwa 200,000 Mark hat der in Patsch bei Innsbruck verstorbene Privatier Georg Huber, Botenwirthssohn von hier, die Stadt Rosenheim eingesetzt und zwar ausdrücklich für wohlthätige Zwecke. Der Stadtmagistrat nahm die Erbschaft entgegen.

BLACK AND GRAY FIRST.

Society Has Set Its Seal on These Colors—Echoes of the Horse Show.

Of all the dresses seen at the horse show three-fourths were black or gray. The rest were prune or some one of the light pastel shades which are not only popular now, but will be far more so next spring.

The principal trimming was spangles, so many that no words could do justice to their glitter and sparkle.

One would like to tell many things of interest, but when one is set to tell only of the lovely ladies and what they wore it is hampering work. The salient points to be seized upon may be summed up thus: First, the seal set upon the choice of black and gray as the most fashionable colors; second, the fact that picture hats—that is to say, the great Gainsborough styles—will be worn again and be trimmed with not only the nodding plumes with which we are all familiar, but bows as large in comparison.

Fur toques, fur turbans and fur everything else in the form of a bonnet is almost a fad, fur and lace trimming on everything, even some evening gowns, though there really was no very low necked dress to be seen. There were a few young ladies without high collars to their waists, but they were not exactly what one could call decollete.

The style for cloaks and wraps was diverse, and there was everything from a sable cape to a lace and satin wrap. There were fur bordered ulsters made of light tans, reaching quite to the bottom of the dress, and there were short and long box coats of light colored cloths. One had a wide band of the same material in another shade set on and closely stitched in many lines around the bottom and across the shoulders. This was fastened with large white pearl buttons. It looked very horsy.

Mrs. Burke Roche had a sack coat of real chinchilla, with a high collar of the same, which formed a pretty background for her refined and delicate features. Her dress was of gray and her hat of gray tulle with spangled angel wings, the spangles in silver. The whole scheme of color was in different shades of gray.

Velvet, broadcloth and china crape seemed to be the three favorites for gowns. The crape was nearly always made the foundation for elaborate spangle trimming. Black net was literally covered with them. So were silk tissues sometimes. The velvet dresses were trimmed with heavy lace and fur or jetted passementerie or embroidery, often both.

There was absolutely no dress that I could see trimmed with fringe in spite of the determined effort of the dressmakers to force it forward. The plum shades in velvet appear to be liked better than anything but black.

I saw two young ladies, one in a dark blue and the other in a dark green velvet dress. They looked like sisters. Miss Gallatin wore a silver gray cloth suit, with short jacket, the front filled in with a cascade of pale pink chiffon, with silver spangles sewed upon the edge. Her hat was very large and covered with immense gray and white plumes.

Mrs. Edmond Baylies wore a costume of blue broadcloth, cut so that the back part of the skirt had a spring flounce, headed by a roleau of a light gray fur. This same fur extended across and up the front in form of a tablier. The waist and skirt were sewed together at the waist under a roll of fur. There was a cape of the same blue gray fur, with long tabs. The revers were faced with pink uncut velvet, bound with the fur and having a rich lace cravat. The hat was made to match.

The cloth suits, as a rule, were strap seamed, stitched and finished with the most exaggerated perfection. One tan colored coat over a lighter colored skirt had almost a princess shape, with a stitched on spring flounce some ten inches deep at the bottom. All this was stitched most exquisitely. It was lined with white satin.

The velvet coats generally have the backs all in one piece, like the box shapes, but the trimming on them makes up for the plain back.

The plaited skirt about which so much has been said lately as a reaction from the habit skirt had but one representative. That was a lavender gray cloth. On the sides and in the back it was laid close to the hips in plaits only about ten inches deep.

THE HOUSEHOLD

USEFUL RECIPES.

Veal Pate.

Chop three and a half pounds of veal very fine, with a slice of fat pickled pork; add six crackers rolled fine, three tablespoonfuls of melted butter, two beaten eggs, a tablespoonful of pulverized sage and a slightly heaped teaspoonful of pepper. Mix well, pack in a buttered, deep, square tin, rub the top over with melted butter, and sprinkle with cracker crumbs. Cover, bake two hours, remove the cover and brown. Serve cold in thin slices with a garnish of celery tops.

Cranberry Soy.

Add to a quart of stewed cranberries rubbed through a sieve, a teacupful of sugar, scant half teacupful of vinegar, a teaspoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful each of cinnamon, cloves and pepper, boil gently until it will run slowly from a spoon.

Turnips With Eggs.

Peel, cut in thin slices and boil tender but not to break, drain, mash, season with salt, pepper and butter, stir in two or three beaten eggs, set on the stove and stir until the eggs are cooked.

Creamed Onions.

Boil until very tender, changing the water twice; break in bits, season very freely with cream, and butter, salt and white pepper to taste. Serve from a covered dish.

Baked Potatoes.

Pare large, even sized potatoes; bake on a tin plate in a moderately heated oven; turn occasionally that they may bake evenly. Serve on a platter covered with a napkin.

Giblet Sauce.

Cook the giblets in a very little water, chop very fine, boil down the water over which the chickens were steamed, add to it the chopped giblets, the gravy in the pan, and thicken with corn starch. Pour into the gravy boat, and when sent to the table drop in a piece of butter.

Pickles.

Roll small carrots and beets tender, remove the skins, slice, drop into sweetened, spiced vinegar, and serve arranged in alternate slices.

Designing for Women.

Women are beginning to succeed as designers, and it is gratifying to learn that the chief prizes given by playing card makers have been this year won by women. One would imagine designing, with its charm of delicacy and fancy, an especially congenial employment for women, and yet hitherto they have been left behind by the male designers, both in originality and accuracy of expression. It is to be hoped that, thanks to the art training and the care bestowed on the decoration of houses and furniture at the present day, a new generation of skillful artificers and designers may spring up among women.

Ladies' House Basque.

This dainty house basque is fashioned in china blue and black French flannel, with a soft front and collar of liberty satin and black taffeta ribbon trimmings. The basque is built on a close-fitting lining, opening in the front. The back is shaped without a center seam, and a perfect fit is secured by side and back under-arm gores.

The jacket front opens over a soft plastron of liberty satin, slightly bloused.

The scalloped edge in front is continued symmetrically around the lower part of the basque. Narrow taffeta ribbon is quilled around the scallops and continues down the back, simulating a narrow yoke.

Ribbon is applied to form an epaulette at the shoulder, and outlines the lower edge of the sleeve. The collar is fashionably shaped, with a soft jabot of liberty satin in front. Taffeta silk, wool crepon or soft cashmere would be appropriate materials for this model.

To make this basque in the medium size will require one and one-half yards of material forty-four inches wide.

MAY MANTON.

Fresh Flowers on the Table.

A centre-piece of flowers is an invaluable addition to the dinner-table. In the winter, when flowers are not to be had for a song, you can sow wheat in saucers. Lay a piece of cotton wool in a saucer, wet it thoroughly, and then sprinkle wheat on it. Keep it damp, but not too wet, and place it in the light. In a short time delicate green shoots will emerge from the wheat ears and make a dainty decoration for the table.

Paper Pillows.

Pillows stuffed with paper are being recommended for use in hospitals and schools. The paper must not be cut into small squares, but into strips three or four inches long and a quarter of an inch wide; it should then be curled with one blade of a pair of scissors, like a feather. Such pillows are very comfortable.

TERMS OF WAR.

An Eyewitness's Account of the Elands Laagte Fight.

The Highlanders had barely commenced to extend among the boulders when the summit of the kopje, three hundred yards in front, crackled with the peculiar report of small bore musketry, and our part of the battle had begun. Men fell here and there, but we were no longer a support, but in the fighting line, and could see the brown figures of the Manchesters in our right silhouetted against the sky line. They were struggling hard against a sheet of lead. The leading companies of the Gordons were now in the depression at the foot of the first kopje, and for a moment they had cover. It was not until the summit of the second hillock had been reached that the real and murderous effect of the enemy's fire was proved. For a time to show on the sky line was to be hit. Man after man withered in the attempt, but men pressed up, and a dismounted troop of Imperial Light Horse was working along on the right of the Manchesters.

Many times foiled in places, driven back, yet righting themselves, and steadily pushing forward, the troops on the summit pushed on. The first kopje was already a shambles. Men had fallen fast, but the weight of numbers carried our troops on.

It had ceased to be a general's battle; everything depended on company, and even on section, commanders, and gallantly the officers and non-commissioned officers did their work. If the men wavered and stuck under cover, the officers sacrificed themselves to furnish an example. The fighting on the ridge summit was of this description; it is impossible to give it in detail.

The enemy stood to their positions with a grim persistency which was magnificent, and their stand at the last kopje above their camp and laager was one of the finest pieces of fighting recorded in modern wars. In spite of the united attack of the storming regiments, training their guns at point range and discharging the magazines, they checked the advance for half an hour

It was now 6 o'clock. There was only half an hour's more light, and shattered battalions were lying around the kopje where the Dutch were making their final stand.

Our bugles rang out the advance, and other buglers took up the call. Fixed bayonets gleamed amid the boulders through the fading light, and the men sprang up to the well known notes—sprang up to fall like rabbits.

Again and again sounded the call. Somehow I found myself with a company of the Devons. A fence stopped us. We fell or threw ourselves over it. Still sounded the call.

The Highlanders were shouting above. Cheering madly, we were over a breastwork, and passed a quick firing gun still smoking. A Dutchman at my feet was calling for mercy. We were in—were there. Some one shouted "Remember Majuba!" Over the brow there was the sound of skirling pipes. The main kopje was taken.

There was still firing below. With "Majuba" still on their lips, our men dashed forward to carry the laager with bayonets. The officers held them back, and a voice in command said, "Cease fire."

Again the bugle rang out, and a white handkerchief fluttered at the end of a pole. The enemy had surrendered, but the main remnant were pouring over the hillside, where our cavalry pounced upon them.

It was 6:30 o'clock. I had just time to look around the laager below the hillside, strewn with dead and wounded, the Dutch and German gunners being distinguishable by their brown uniform. They had fought their guns splendidly. Two of their guns I saw with "Maxim-Nordenfeldt" and the direction in English on the carriages. I had to leave at once, as it was already night, and we were twenty miles from the telegraph—London Times.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

British and Boers Join in Caring for the Wounded.

As the fighting did not finish until after nightfall, it was necessary for the men to bivouac on the field. This they did cheerfully, and in an orderly manner, despite a soaking downfall and the chilling cold. From the moment of the "Cease firing," both British and Boers fraternized in the care of the wounded. The stretchers were found to be missing in the confusion necessarily consequent on an attack against modern weapons, and great labor was experienced in moving the wounded men from among and behind the rocks and down the slippery hillsides. But every one worked loyally, and the staff in Ladysmith labored so effectively that, though the first doolies, or native stretchers, only arrived at midnight, special trains were ready throughout the night to convey the wounded to the hospital, and with the first stroke of dawn sufficient doolies were waiting to convey every man.

The Red Cross workers attached to the Boer force were also ready, and it was pleasant to see the mutual good feeling. The British soldiers treated the Boer wounded as solicitously as their own, and round one of the few camp fires which were lighted I saw all the best places occupied by the enemy's wounded prisoners. Armed Boers even appeared with the object of searching for their wounded. They were allowed to pass freely about the hill, and gave no sign of any desire to abuse the privilege. They talked freely and good-humoredly with our soldiers, and then, having fulfilled their mission, disappeared in the darkness.—London Mail.

The British fleet to-day consists of 489 ships, with a total displacement of 1,500,000 tons. Sixty-four battle ships carry 50,000 officers and men and mount 3,671 guns. There are 137 cruisers, while among the smaller craft are 218 torpedo boats and destroyers and 35 larger torpedo vessels as well as 15 coast defense ships.

"Edward, I hear that you have disobeyed your grandmother, who told you not to jump down those steps." "Grandmother didn't tell me not to, papa. She only came to the door and said: 'I wouldn't jump down those steps, boys,' and I shouldn't think she would, an old lady like her."

WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS

THEY ARE FILTERS FOR THE BLOOD.

IMPURE BLOOD CAUSES DISEASE.

Few people understand the important part performed by the kidneys in filtering the blood. As the blood in its circulation through the body passes through the kidneys, its impurity is left in the kidneys, which in turn empties the secretions into the bladder in the form of urine

If the kidneys are blocked and filtration of the blood from poisonous or diseased germs prevented thereby, the result is one or all of the following: Sleeplessness, Nervous Prostration, Weak Back, Pains in the Back and Loins; Scalding, Dark and Cloudy Urine; Dizziness, Rheumatism, Diabetes, Congestion of the Kidneys, Bright's Disease and Inflammation of the Bladder.

Unhealthy Kidneys Must be Treated.

A medicine is needed that will properly promote the filtration of the blood and check the over-secretion of urine.

POE POISONED.

Startling Story of How the Poet Came to His Death.

A startling story has come to light anent the recnt commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the death of Edgar Allan Poe. A former Baltimorean, recently living in San Francisco, gives what he claims to be a true account of the poet's last days. This is the story:

"I was an intimate associate of Edgar Allan Poe for many years. Much that has been said and written regarding his death is false. His habitual resort in Baltimore was the Widow Meagher's place. This was an oyster stand and liquid bar on the city front, corresponding in some respects with the coffee houses in San Francisco. It was frequented much by printers and ranked as a respectable place, where parties would enjoy a game of cards or engage in a social conversation. Poe was a great favorite with the old woman. His favorite seat was just behind the stand, and about as quiet and sociable as an oyster himself. He went by the name of 'Baird,' and when parties came into the shop it was 'Bard, come up and take a nip,' or 'Bard' come up and take a hand in this game.'

"Whenever the Widow Meagher met with any accident or idea that tickled her fancy, she would ask the 'Bard' to versify it. Poe always complied, writing many a witty couplet, and at times poems of some length. It was in this little saloon that Poe's attention was called to an advertisement in a Philadelphia paper of a prize for the best story, and it was there that he wrote his famous 'Gold Bug,' which carried of the hundred-dollar prize.

"Poe had been shifting for several years btween Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York. He had been away from Baltimore for three or four months, when he turned up one evening at the Widow Meagher's. I was there when he came in. He privately told me that he had been in Richmond, and was on his way north to get ready for his wedding. It was drinking all around, and repeated until the crowd was pretty jolly. It was the night before election, and four of us, including Poe, started uptown. We had not gone half a dozen squares when we were nabbed by a gang of men who were on the lookout for voters to 'coop.'

"It was the practice in those days to seize people, whether drunk or sober, lock them up until the polls were opened, and then march them around to every precinct, where they were made to vote the ticket of the party that controlled the coop. Our coop was in the rear of an engine house on Covert street. It was part of the game to stupify the prisoners with drugged liquor. Well, the next day we were voted at thirty-one different places, and over and over, it being as much as a man's life was worth to rebel. Poe was so badly drugged that after he was carried on two or three different rounds the gang said it was no use to vote a dead man any longer, so they shoved him into a cab and sent him into a hospital to get him out of the way.

"The commonly accepted story that Poe died from dissipation is bosh. He died from laudanum or some other poison that was forced upon him in the coop. He was in a dying condition when he was being voted around the city. The story by Griswold of Poe's having been on a week's spree, and of being picked up on the street, is false. I saw him shoved into the cab myself, and he told me he had just arrived in the city."

The foregoing agrees in several respects with the account given by the late Chief Justice Neilson Poe, of Baltimore.—Baltimore Cor. St. Louis Post-Despatch.

Pulp and Pluck.

This is an age of heroic Christianity. There is more pulp and pluck in the average Christian professor when self-denial is required. The men and women who not only rejoice in doing their duty for Christ, but even rejoice in overcoming uncomfortable obstacles in the doing of it are quite too scarce. The piety that is most needed is a piety that will stand a pinch; a piety that would rather eat an honest crust than fare sumptuously on fraud; a piety that works up stream against currents; a piety that sets its face like flint in the straight, narrow road of righteousness. We need more of the Christianity that steadily sets its face toward Christ's word and holy will. An ungodly world will look at such Christly living as at "the sun in its strength." God loves to look at those who carry Jesus in their faces. Of such is the kingdom of heaven.—Rev. T. L. Cuyler.

AN ORDINANCE

to authorize the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company to abandon a part of the location of its tracks in the Township of Fanwood granted by ordinances of the Township Committee adopted the first day of March, 1898, and the third day of June, 1898, respectively, and releasing the said Railway Company from its obligation under said ordinances to construct and operate its tracks over such part of the route so granted.

WHEREAS, By two certain ordinances granted by the Township Committee of the Township of Fanwood, the first of these ordinances being adopted on March first, 1898, and the other of these ordinances being adopted June third, 1898, the tracks of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company were duly located and authorized to be constructed and operated upon certain streets, avenues and public places in the Township of Fanwood, of which the following are parts:

From a point in the centre of Westfield Avenue where the same is intersected by the centre line of Forrest Road; thence along Forrest Road in a magnetic course of South forty-one degrees and twelve minutes East for a distance of twelve hundred and seventy feet to the line of the borough of Fanwood.

Also beginning at a point in the centre of North Avenue where the same is intersected by the division line between the Townships of Westfield and Fanwood; thence in a magnetic course of South eighty-six degrees and twenty-five minutes West for a distance of twenty-five hundred and sixty-nine feet to the boundary line of the Borough of Fanwood.

Also from a point in the centre line in Westfield Avenue where the same is intersected by the centre line of Westfield Road; thence along Westfield Road in a course of South forty-four degrees forty-one minutes East a distance of nine hundred and ten feet and five-tenths of a foot to a point; thence South forty-four degrees twenty-two minutes East for a distance of fourteen hundred and sixty-two feet and five-tenths of a foot to a point; thence South forty-four degrees twenty-seven minutes East for a distance of four hundred and thirty feet and five-hundredths of a foot to a point; thence South forty-five degrees two minutes East five hundred and six feet and five tenths of a foot to a point; thence South forty-five degrees forty-three minutes East for a distance of ten hundred and forty-three feet and five-tenths of a foot to a point; thence South forty-six degrees seventeen minutes East for a distance of nine hundred and ninety feet and fifteen-hundredths of a foot to a point in the centre of North Avenue where the same is intersected by the centre line of Westfield Road aforesaid.

Now therefore, be it ordained by the Township Committee of the Township of Fanwood, in the County of Union, as follows:

1. That the said Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company is hereby authorized to abandon that part of the location of its tracks in the Township of Fanwood granted under ordinances adopted March 1st, 1898, and June 3rd, 1898, respectively, particularly described as follows:

From a point in the centre of Westfield Avenue where the same is intersected by the centre line of Forrest Road; thence along Forrest Road in a magnetic course of South forty-one degrees and twelve minutes East for a distance of twelve hundred and seventy feet to the line of the borough of Fanwood.

Also beginning at a point in the centre of North Avenue where the same is intersected by the division line between the Township of Westfield and Fanwood; thence in a magnetic course of South eighty-six degrees and twenty-five minutes West for a distance of twenty-five hundred and sixty-nine feet to the boundary line of the borough of Fanwood.

Also from a point in the centre line of Westfield Avenue where the same is intersected by the centre line of Westfield Road; thence along Westfield Road in a course of South forty-four degrees forty-one minutes East a distance of nine hundred and ten feet and five-tenths of a foot to a point; thence South forty-four degrees twenty-two minutes East for a distance of fourteen hundred and sixty-two feet and five-tenths of a foot to a point; thence South forty-four degrees twenty-seven minutes East for a distance of four hundred and thirty feet and five hundredths of a foot to a point; thence South forty-five degrees two minutes East five hundred and six feet and five-tenths of a foot to a point; thence South forty-five degrees forty-three minutes East for a distance of ten hundred and forty three feet and five-tenths of a foot to a point; thence South forty-six degrees seventeen minutes East for a distance of nine hundred and ninety feet and fifteen hundredths of a foot to a point in the centre of North Avenue where the same is intersected by the centre line of Westfield Road aforesaid—and that said Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company is hereby released from all obligation to construct and operate the above particularly described port on of the location of its tracks granted under said ordinances adopted March first, 1898, and June third, 1898, respectively.

2. And be it ordained, That upon the acceptance in writing by the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company of the provisions of this ordinance or authority hereby given to abandon said portion of the location of its tracks and the releasing from the obligation to construct and operate said portion of its tracks; this ordinance shall become and be immediately operative.

Plainfield People Are Respectfully Asked to Answer These Questions.

Is there anything in the evidence of one's census?

Can the reader dispute and then disprove local evidence?

Can reliance be placed upon statements from people we know?

Are the opinions of residents of Plainfield of any greater moment than opinions held by residents of Maine or Michigan?

Would you sooner believe people living in those states than those in your own city?

Answer these questions honestly after you have quietly read the following:

Mr F O Smith, of 686 West Front street, contractor for painting, etc., says: "For sometime I had symtoms of kidney trouble and despite all my endeavors to get rid of it, I never was successful until I obtained a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at L. W. Randolph's drug store. There was a distressing pain across the small of my back which clung to me all the time. When I got seated at times if I moved a sharp pain struck me in the back and loins and almost made me exclaim. Any change in the weather if I caught the least cold always aggravated the trouble and cause me to suffer severely. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me by one of my employes who had been cured of a long standing case of kidney complaint by their use. I commenced the treatment and derived benefit from it immediately, and before I had finished the first box I was cured."

A REAL JOKER.

This Dog Takes Delight in Perpetrating Tricks.

Mr. Storms, who keeps a "naturalists's emporium" in Third avenue, New York, from which one may get anything in the natural history line, from a monkey to a pug dog or a big rattler to a pollywog, is the owner of a greyhound that is a practical joker. When the warm weather came he was obliged to keep his store door open in order to get more air for his numerous animals. That some of his dogs, cats, tortoises etc., that run about in the store might not wander into the street, Mr. Storms had a closely woven gate about four feet in height put into the doorway.

The greyhound is a pet of the family and has been taught many tricks. One of her accomplishments is high jumping, and her master, in order to amuse the children of the neighborhood, and exercise the dog at the same time, has often made her jump the iron gate.

A woman carrying a large bundle on her head a short time ago was frightened into dropping it and running off with a piercing shriek when a large greyhound alighted on the sidewalk immediately in front of her as if it had dropped from the sky. The dog seemed to join the laugh of the crowd which had collected to watch her graceful leaps, for her eyes twinkled and her tail wagged at a great rate.

Since then the dog has made a practice of thus startling pedestrians by jumping the gate and landing directly in front of them and after escaping into the middle of the street, to be out of reach of a kick or a blow, it has added insult to injury by appearing to laugh at their discomforture. Watch the dog after one of these pranks it is easy to agree with Mr. Storms that dogs like a joke just as a man would, and that the greyhound plays those jokes out of pure fun.

Like many other practical jokers the greyhound has gotten into trouble, or rather she has succeeded in getting her master into trouble, with the police. Somebody has complained about the dog's humorous proclivities, and Mr. Storms has been notified, that while it is not unlawful to keep a licensed dog, or to use a wire gate, yet all combined for the purpose of frightening persons would amount to a misdemeanor if continued.

ECHOES OF THE WAR.

The Mauser Bullet As a Humane Feature of Carnage.

While representatives of powers claiming to be the most advanced promoters of civilization advocated at the peace conference the use of the villainous dum-dum bullet on less civilized people, one of the latter class, the Filipinos, furnish an example the reverse of that advocated at The Hague. The Filipinos use the Mauser bullet, and medical testimony agrees that it is the most humane bullet yet used in war. It may be said the Filipinos cannot help themselves. Admitted. That does not help the nations claiming superior civilization yet employing in war a bullet a wound from which means death.

The Manila correspondent of Leslie's Weekly gives an instructive account of hospital experiences in treating wounds made by Manser bullets. He says: "To the small-caliber bullet of the insurgents' Mauser the wounded boys owe their lives and a continuance of their usually friendly association with good arms and legs. In the bony structure of the body the Mauser bores a clean little hole, rarely fracturing a limb; in the skull it takes a center shot to kill. I know of at least a dozen men shot through the brain with Mausers who are still alive and in good health. I know of fully a hundred cases shot through the chest cavity in every portion except the heart that have recovered—in fact, they rarely die. I know of cases where the main artery supply of a limb was totally destroyed, yet the integrity of the parts remained good. I helped, last week, to ligate the femoral artery in the left thigh of a Nebraska boy, and although a brass bullet had gone through the leg sideways, severing the large blood vessels and terribly lacerating the flesh, the collateral circulation established insures to him a good leg eventually. But through the soft abdominal tissues the Mauser is always fatal, excepting wounds of the liver. Those wounded in the intestines, stomach and spleen always die. Every one operated on for resection of wounded intestines died, and the operation is now entirely abandoned.

"Wounds of the head excite the most wonder. At the battle of Mariquina, March 25, Private Avery Grimes, of my company, fell close to my left. A Mauser entered behind the right ear, passed diagonally forward through the posterior wall of the throat, with its exit near the left corner of his mouth, taking along three teeth. He is practically well to-day. A Colorado man on our right that day had a Mauser bullet traverse the same identical course except that the points of entrance and exit were reversed. He returned to his company in two weeks in good health. Another man was struck behind the ear high up, the ball passing downward and forward and out the middle portion of the lower jaw. He lost a couple of teeth but is making a nice recovery. A Montana boy was struck an inch back of the outer angle of the left eye, the bullet passing through his skull and making its exit in the same locality on the other side. He has lost the sight of one eye, and he will recover his usual health. A Nebraska man was shot directly over the left eye, the ball passing down and out underneath the edge of the jaw, re-entering the shoulder and out near the elbow, again entering the wrist and out the back of his hand. He is out of commission for a couple of months, but will have one good eye left to turn on the 'googoos.'"

"The number of escapades also border on the domain of the miraculous. Comrade McInnes of my company, who fell at Mariquina, in addition to his belt of cartridges carried a small pasteboard box of twenty cartridges in the bosom fold of his blue shirt. While withdrawing a cartridge from his belt a Remington brass bullet passed through the back of his hand, through the first of the two layers of cartridges in his bosom and doubled up a cartridge in the second layer so firmly as to still retain the brass missile in the fold. As the cartridge box was directly over his stomach, his close call can be appreciated. Private Glazier of my regiment at the same fight was also struck by a Mauser in his cartridge belt four inches internal to the point of the left hip. The bullet bored a clean little hole through the Springfield cartridge, passed through his groin and struck another shell in his belt on the other side, passing through and exploding. He was confined to bed ten days. Private Martenson of our regiment at the same fight was struck with a Remington brass bullet in the left foot. While waiting for medical aid a Mauser bullet hit the other foot in almost the same identical spot.

"Colonel Hawkins of the Pennsylvania, in the advance on Caloocan, received a bullet in the handle of his revolver, passing through it, exploding a cartridge in his belt and glancing off. A Kanaka who joined the Californias at Honolulu peeped over the trenches at San Pedro Macati, with his head inclined slightly backward. A Mauser caught him just over the left eye, plowed over his skull under the scalp for six inches and out again. He did not quit his post, but he had only one "lamp" to peep with for two weeks. A Washington boy on March 2 had his scalp furrowed right where he parted his hair. The hospital corps bandaged his head and he returned to the trench. The bandage worked down over his eyes in the course of time and he sat up to adjust it; it was a fatal moment. A Mauser passed through his body from right to left, passing through his heart, and he fell over dead."—Omaha Bee.

Cannot Sink Them.

It is said to be almost impossible to sink a modern battle ship constructed on the best models.

SKUNK FARMING.

Millions In It, According to an Agricultural Department Officials

"There's money in a skunk farm," said an official of the Agricultural Department, "and skunk farming will some day be a great industry in this country. There's a barrel of money in the business, and yet the man who suggested it was regarded as being out of his head. It does not take a prolonged and expensive investigation to demonstrate the truth of what I assert. It is not necessary to send a lot of agents from this department helter-skelter over the country to gather facts and figures. Not a bit. All that is necessary is to get one of the old-time fellows who has spent his life on a farm and in the woods, and who is a close observer of the habits of 'varmints,' and he can give all the information needed.

"An old fellow of this kind can tell you when the first skunk was discovered on the American continent, how often they have young, how many, how fast they grow, to what age they live, and, as I have said, tell all that is needed. From such information as this it is easy to figure out the facts you wish. Coming from such a source there can be no doubt of its accuracy.

"While there are no official statistics on record it is known that skunks—the American skunk—will begin breeding at one year old. They breed twice each year, and have litters of from five to thirteen, an average of eight to a litter. It is said that skunks can live on as little as any known animal; so there is little expense in raising them. They are of a different disposition to the coon, squirrel and many other small animals, in that they cannot be tamed, and I do not suppose that many people would care to have one as a pet.

"There are two distinct species of the American skunk—the jet black and the black and white striped. The pelt of the latter can always be sold for $1. The oil from the skunk is worth 50 cents an ounce, and is used in several cases of croup, colds and kidney diseases. The oil does not have the unpleasant aroma of the skunk.

"Now, it has been figured out that a man who understands skunk farming can begin on twenty skunks—fifteen females and five males—and in a few years he will have a large and very healthy bank account. It is easy to calculate how rapidly these twenty skunks will increase in number. If you begin operations on the farm in the early fall the skunks will breed in December. Right from the jump, estimating the increase at the rate of eight to the litter, you have an increase of 120 skunks. Well, in June they breed again, and at the same ratio of increase at the expiration of one and one-half years you will have 7,495 skunks. In four years, without mishap, your skunks will have increased to 3,780,000.

"This is a good, big drove of skunks, and, if the pelts are worth $1 each, the pelts of 200 males skunks would bring in open market $200, and the oil at 50 cents an ounce would be worth $800. Then figuring as we did on the increase of skunks, the pelts of which would be worth just as many dollars as skunks killed. The amount of oil gathered from this number of skunks would amount to 29,600 ounces, worth $14,800. At the expiration of four years you would have killed 1,890,000 male skunks, the pelts of which would be worth $1,890,000, and the oil—15,120,000 ounces—$7,560,000, and you would still have 3,700,000 skunks left to continue business with.

"These figures are not at all extravagant, and it will not be long before some of our enterprising citizens will be embarking in the skunk farming business. I do not know of anything which will produce money faster than this, and the beauty of it is that it only takes a small sum to begin with. It discounts raising five-cent cotton or any other agriculteral pursuit that I know of."—N. Y. Sun.

Favors Vertical Writing.

After experimenting for a year or more in the Philadelphia schools with a vertical system of penmanship, the Superintendent of Education in that city is preparing to recommend that the system be required to be taught in all the lower-grade schools. It has been tried in 192 of the city schools, and the principals of 163 of these schools reported that the penmanship had improved in their schools since its introduction. No one stated or intimated that the penmanship had deteriorated. It is the opinion of the primary teachers that vertical writing is easier to teach, more readily learned by the pupils, is more legible than the oblique hand, and that the experiment has improved the penmanship in their schools. The only criticism that they make, and that is not universal, is that it cannot be written as rapidly as the oblique system. Inquiry made in 100 cities where the vertical system has been introduced brought ninety reports that the experiment had been most successful. Other evidence in its favor has been collected from forty normal schools in various parts of the country.—N. Y. Post.

A Unique Violin.

A unique violin has been made by a Missouri man. The back is of cherry from a table more than a century old, which formerly belonged to the Howard-Payne College. In the centre of the back are inserted twenty-one pieces of wood from the Holy Land, one being from a grapevine that grew in the Garden of Gethsemane. Around the margin are set in a row small pieces of wood, diamond-shaped, gathered from all over the civilized world. In one end of the back is inserted a horseshoe made of castor wood, and in the other end is the image of a rabbit carved in cherry. There are in all over one hundred and fifty pieces of of wood, and the only tools used in the manufacture of the instrument were a pocket-knife and a half-inch chisel.—New York Tribune.

Fate of a Hero.

William Anthony, better known as "Brave Bill" Anthony, died in New York the other day, half an hour after he had swallowed a quantity of cocaine at one of the Central Park entrances.

He was the man, who, on February 15, 1898, when the battle ship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor, reported to Captain Sigsbee in the famous words: "Sir, I have the honor to report that the ship has been blown up and is sinking."

On his return to this country Anthony was accorded receptions everywhere. He received many invitations from cities to be their guest. For months he traveled over the country, being accorded the honors of a hero. When his leave of absence was ended, Anthony was promoted to be a sergeant of marines, and was detailed at the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

In one of Anthony's coat pockets was found a letter written to his aunt, which read that he was discouraged and disconsolate, and was going to end it all. Among the other articles found was the picture of his one month old child, on the back of which was written: "Bury this with me."

CUBAN EXECUTIONS.

Spanish Method of Inflicting the Death Penalty.

The most interesting object at the Carcel is the garrote, the Spanish instrument for inflicting the death penalty. It is kept in a separate room in a special box, in which it is packed away as a piece of machinery. A seventeen-year convict who has killed fourteen different men with this instrument set the machinery together and explained the manner of performing an execution. The garrote consists of a heavy wooden post standing up back of a chair, both of which are firmly fastened in a heavy platform. In the front and at the top of the post is a strong steel bar about twelve inches long and shaped exactly like an Indian's bow, except that in the center of this steel bow is a small knob about a quarter of an inch high and half an inch in diameter. This knob is made to fit into the hollow in the back of the head at the base of the brain. Two iron bars connected with a contrivance running through the strong upright post run out past the ends of this bow, and at the end of one of the bars is a kind of throat-latch, resembling a slightly bent bridle-bit. The criminal to be executed is seated on the chair and his head placed between the iron bars back against the steel bow, with the knob fitting into the hollow of his neck. The bit-shaped bar is brought across the throat and fastened to the end of the opposite bar with a key, which prevents any possibility of its slipping loose. The man's head is thus virtually placed in a steel collar. His hands are tied in front of him, and iron anklets at the end of chains are slipped upon him, so that he is firmly bound to the chair. Nothing is put over his eyes, and he is left to see and hear all that goes on around him. The contrivance at the back of the post connecting with the iron bars passing each side of the neck and drawing the bit-shaped instrument up against the throat, looks like a great auger, except that the handles are slightly bent backward to give the operator greater leverage. The threads on his auger-like contrivance are of brass and strong and run through the spiral grooves of a heavy, brass-lined collar at the back of the post, so that when the handles are turned it draws the throat-latch tight up against the steel bow, if nothing is placed between them, in the same way that turning the lever of a letter press brings the upper and lower parts together. This part of the mechanism is kept highly oiled and its parts work with perfect freedom. One-half revolution of the handles does the deadly work. A tin can was placed in the collar and the lever given one quick turn to illustrate the working of the garrote. The can was smashed in an instant. In the same manner a man's neck is instantly broken, one or more of the vertebrae being forced out of position and the spinal cord thus crushed or severed. The platform on which the garrote is placed has seven steps, and the black coat of the executioner has seven white stripes representing them.

When an execution is to take place the garrote is sometimes erected in the plaza at the side of the prison and sometimes at Santa Clara Battery. A priest is in attendance and gives the signal to the executioner. As soon as the man is killed a black mantle is thrown over him to shut off the gaze of the public.

There is nothing particularly cruel in the look of this convict executioner. When asked how the men seated in the chair with the steel collar about their necks acted and whether he felt sorry for them or not, he said they often trembled till they shook the garrote and that sometimes he was sorry and sometimes he wasn't.—Times of Cuba.

Wheelmen at the Paris Exposition.

The official announcement by the Paris Exposition authorities shows that all accommodations for wheelmen will be made on the grounds, but in addition the L. A. W. has arranged for a special headquarters for its members and there they will be able to ascertain all the knowledge necessary for tours on any part of the continent. The membership cards in the C. T. C. entitle them to all the access to road books, hotel and repair shop accommodations and the services of the official representative located in almost every village, as well as the large cities, of Europe. In the headquarters established by President Keenan tours of the principal sight-seeing districts will be arranged and the temporary headquarters on the grounds will be as well supplied with information as the permanent offices. For those who enjoy racing the exposition will afford the greatest meet ever held. The principal occasion will be the world's championships, held under the auspices of the International Cyclists's Association, in which over $40,000 will be expended in prizes alone. In this meet only those riders who are in good standing with the L. A. W. will be permitted to compete as representatives of the United States and the racing department of the League will make arrangements for the proper care of its representatives. Both the touring and racing members of the League will be taken care of abroad next year and the preparations are so extensive that a large amount of work is being done for their benefit even at this early time.

Compass for Wheelmen.

The Chairman of the Rights and Privileges Committee of the New York Division L. A. W., John B. Uhle, says: "I want to make a suggestion about carrying a compass on a wheel, or rather about not carrying one. Any one who tries it is bound to buy a lot of compasses because they are always deranged by the jolting of the wheel. The best thing for tourists who want to make charts is to remember the good old-fashioned trick of using a watch for a compass. Point the hour hand in the direction of the sun and no matter what time of day it is, half way between the hour hand and the figures XII. will be due south. If this is done properly you can check it off by means of a compass and find it as close as any one except a mathematician could desire."

Result of Short Skirts.

A man who boasts of being a great observer says that one thing which the short bicycle skirt has done is that of making women more careful about the neatness of their footgear. He comments that while dainty shoes are a ruling passion with some women, there are many others, who though fashionable and fastidious in most things, are slovenly about their footwear. The bicycle skirt has taught so many of these the habit of being particular in this respect not only on a wheel, but at all times, he says that there is a much better average of neatness to be noticed on the avenues.

Bicycle and Automobile.

The near relationship between the bicycle and automobile is shown by nothing more emphatically than by the designs for bearings and various parts which, having failed to "take" with cycle makers, are now being brought forward and urged for adoption in connection with the motor vehicles. In some cases these ideas are good ones which were not practicable for use on bicycles because of weight or bulk or expense, but are available on the machines where these matters are not such important factors.

A Point for Wheelmen.

Every bicycle rider should remember that muscles at a tension draw upon the vital powers, whether they are aiding motion or not. Thus an unnecessary tight grasp upon the handle bars, steadily maintained, contributes not a little to the sum total of drain upon the strength in riding.

In Kentucky.

Prussian Military experiments show that severe muscular exertion renders the blood very poor in sugar and that sugar renders tired muscles capable of renewed exertion, while saccharine is far less beneficial. A similar expression prevails in Kentucky, where the sugar is mingled with mint and other ingredients.

On Time.

An epitaph on a tombstone at Whitsett, Ca., reads:
"He went to heaven at half past nine,
And the heavenly choir he did jine."

ESTABLISHED MAY 10, 1887. PLAINFIELD, N. J., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1899. TWO CENTS A COPY—$5 A YEAR.

PRESENT CITY POLICY INDORSED BY VOTERS.

REPUBLICANS CARRIED CITY OF PLAINFIELD BY 880 MAJORITY OVER OPPONENTS.

Entire G. O. P. Ticket Elected by Varying Majorities—New Organization Of Democrats Failed to Reduce Republican Majorities—Election Was Very Quiet And Lacked Interest Except In The First Ward—Gloak Defeated Hetfield By 94.

The policy of the present administration was emphatically indorsed at the polls yesterday. The annual municipal election was held and the Republicans elected every candidate they had nominated, The new organization of the Democrats had not the slightest effect in keeping down the Republican majority. The city was carried by 880 majority and Republican gains were reported in almost every election district.

James F. Buckle, John B. Dumont and James Craig were elected to the Common Council from the city at large by majorities ranging from 742 to 627. William L. Gloak was elected to the Council from the First ward by 94, John Van Herwerden from the Second ward by 90 majority, C. B. Cliffton from the Third ward by 154, and Robert L. Lee from the Fourth ward by 262.

J. Frank Hubbard was returned to the Board of Freeholder with 677 majority and W. A. Wesphal with 460 majority. Dr. J. B. Probasco was elected to the Board of Education by 696 majority.

As a result of the election of yesterday, the Common Council of 1900 will be exclusively composed of Republicans.

ELECTION WAS QUIET.

Aside From the First Ward, the Contest was Devoid of Much Interest—Ivins Made Good Run.

The attempt of the new organization of the local Democratic party to become a potent factor at the municipal election of yesterday met with failure. It was the first appearance of the new organization and it was expected that it would give zest and closeness to the election. As it turned out the Republicans won a complete and overwhelming victory, electing every candidate nominated by them. The election was a noticeably quiet one, far more so than was generally expected, and, with the exception of the fight in the First ward, devoid of much interest.

The day was fair but cold, and a blustery wind came out of the north until the sun went down. The weather conditions were favorable to a large vote but, outside of the First ward, there was a general falling off in the number of voters who exercised their right of suffrage. In the early morning hours and at night, just before the closing of the polls, there was some bustle at the polling places when the commuter votes were polled. The factory vote came chiefly at noon. During the rest of the day the polls were almost deserted except for the political workers.

The Republican organization had its regular corps of workers in every district with a plentiful supply of carriages. In the First ward, the leaders themselves were on hand almost all day to see that everything went right. City Clerk J. T. MacMurray was in the neighborhood of the polling place in the First district nearly all day.

The fight in the First ward had unusual significance. Owing to the factional differences in the G. O. P. ranks there, the Democrats had hoped to win. The victorious faction wished to show that it possessed the power to win and so every effort was made to that end. The defeated faction aided much in the work so that the claim might not be made that it had failed to support the ticket and had thus allowed it to be defeated.

The fight centered on ward Councilman. The dissatisfied Republicans agreed to support Hetfield and many hundred pasters were circulated through the ward. As a result, there was a large number of split tickets found in the ballot box.

The result proved beyond a doubt that Mr. MacMurray and his friends are a leading power in the ward. The Republican ticket swept the ward by a large majority and Gloak was elected ward Councilman by a majority of 94. The influences that won Mr. Hetfield's election for him two years ago worked against him yesterday and secured his defeat in his own district, the second, by 26 majority.

In the Second ward, H. W. Marshall rather surprised the Republican leaders by the size of the vote he polled. He ran way ahead of his ticket. Councilman VanHerwerden's popularity in Netherwood kept his majority up to a respectable number. His majority was 90, the smallest received by any of the candidates. Mr. Marshall's many friends and his general popularity may be held responsible for his remarkable run.

In the Third ward, C. B. Cliffton had had no trouble in defeating A. H. Atterbury by 154 although the vote was small.

The Fourth ward simply tumbled over itself in its effort to support the Republican ticket. The largest majorities ever rolled up there in a municipal election were recorded and Mr. Lee was elected to the Council bo 262 majority.

Of all the Democratic candidates at large, D. C. Ivins, for Freeholder, made the best run. He made heavy inroads into the Republican ranks particularly in the Third ward. All over the city, W. A. Westphal was generally cut to Ivin's advantage. J. F. Hubbard was elected by a large majority.

Dr. J. B. Probasco was re-elected to the the Board of Education by a majority of 696. Messrs. Buckle, Dumont and Craig were elected to the Council by majorities ranging from 742 to 627. Outside of the Fourth ward, Craig received the most cuts.

One Democrat was elected to office. That was William Callahan, Democratic candidate for constable in the Second ward. He was elected, however, for the reason that the Republicans failed to put up anyone against him.

Mrs. Ida M. Backar has returned from Whitehouse, where she visited relatives.

FIRST WARD, 1ST DISTRICT.

Republicans Carried the District After a Hot Fight and Gave Gloak a Majority of 68.

The chief fight of the election was in the first district of the First ward. After the factional fight in the Republican ranks, it was necessary for the continuation of City Clerk J. T. MacMurray as ward leader that the Republican ticket should be successful. The fight was particularly on the ward Councilman. After a hard fight all day and a long count in the evening, it was found that the Republican ticket was victorious by a majority of 181, while Gloak received a majority of 68 in the district.

The number of ballots cast was 427, three more than last year. There were 302 Republicans and 121 Democrats and four of the Socialist-Labor. It was a great gain for the Republicans, Gloak ran way behind his ticket as did Westphal. There was an abundance of pasters used.

FIRST WARD, 2D DISTRICT.

Republicans Carried The District Making Large Gains—Gloak Given a Majority of 26 in the District.

There was plenty of excitement in the second district of the First ward all day. Both parties made a strong fight but the Republicans fairly outdid themselves and carried everything before them. They carried the district by a majority of 76 for the Republican ticket and 26 for W. L. Gloak, the Republican candidate for ward Councilman. Two years ago, Hetfield carried the district by fifty while running on the Citizens' ticket. Last year, City Judge Runyon received a majority of 4 and Councilman Tolles a majority of 6, while the other Republican candidates failed to get any majorities at all.

There were 180 ballots cast, 15 more than last year. Of that number, 127 were Republican, 51 Democratic and 1 Socialist Labor. One was rejected. Ivins ron 22 ahead of his ticket. On the Republican ticket, Westphal, Craig and Gloak were scratched the most.

SECOND WARD, 1ST DISTRICT

H. W. Marshall and D. C. Ivins Made Strong Runs—Marshall Defeated by VanHerwerden by 46.

While there was a small gain for the Republican ticket in the first district of the Second ward over the vote of last year, there was a genuine surprise party in H. W. Marshall, the Democratic candidate for ward Councilman. He was only 46 votes behind John van Herwerden, the Republican nominee. The Republican ticket secured a majority of 134. The Democratic candidates all ran ahead of their their ticket, Marshall and Ivins doing the best. Ivins ran one vote better than Marshall.

There were 356 ballots cast, 243 Republican, 109 Democratic and 1 Socialist-Labor. Three ballots were rejected. The day was a very quiet one and the vote polled was 79 less than last year.

SECOND WARD, 2d DISTRICT.

Netherwood Gave Councilman vanHerwerden a Large Majority—Pasters Used to Limited Extent.

The friends of Councilman John van Herwerden turned out in force in the second district of the Second ward. He was 44 better than his opponent while the Republican ticket ran 56 ahead, Hanna, candidate for Justice of the Peace, was the only one on the Republican ticket to run even with the ticket. Pasters were used to a limited extent. The result in the district large gains for the Republicans over last year.

There were 137 ballots cast, three less than last year. Of these, 96 were Republican, 40 Democratic. One was rejected. Last year, Mayor Rockfellow only received a majority of 15 and Councilman Mellick of 12. As this district includes Netherwood, which is Councilman van Herwerden's home, the large Repulican majority can be accounted for by the activity of the Councilman and his friends.

THIRD WARD, 1ST DISTRICT.

Day Was a Quiet One and Vote Was Light—Democrats Made Small Gains—Ivins Ran Well.

Everything was decidedly quiet at the first district of the Third ward. The vote there was fair, but nearly seventy-five less than last year. The Democrats scored slight gains and all their candidates ran ahead of the ticket. There was a tremendous Republican majority and the Democrats only made slight inroads in it.

The total number of ballots cast was 359, as against 425 last year. Of that number, there were 251 Republican tickets, 102 Democratic and three Socialist Labor tickets. Three ballots were rejected. Ivins ran best of the Democratic candidates and was only forty-nine behind Westphal, the Republican candidate for Freeholder. Hubbard ran ahead of his ticket. Among the Councilmen-at-Large, Buckle and Homan were the strongest on their respective tickets.

For the ward Councilman, Cliffton won by 101 majority, while the Republican ticket had a majority of 149. Last year Councilman Corlell was elected by 134 majority and Mayor Rockfellow received 176 majority in that district. Three ballots were cast for J. B. Dumont for Justice of the Peace.

THIRD WARD, 2D DISTRICT.

No Excitement Marked the Voting—Ivins Ran Best of any Democrat—Westphal and Craig Were Cut.

The count was first completed in the second district of the Third ward. The vote was light, only 97 ballots being cast as against 111 a year ago. Of that number the Republicans polled 76, the Democrats 17, the Socialist-Labor ticket 3, while one ballot was rejected. That showed a large Republican gain, the Republican majority being 59 instead of 34 as last year.

Ivins, for Freeholder, made the best run of any the Democratic candidates, getting 22 more than his ticket. Westphal was cut accordingly. Homan, Democratic candidate for Councilman-at-large, made a strong run. Craig, the Republican nominee, was badly cut. The voting was very quiet, and was not marked by any excitement.

FOURTH WARD, 1ST DISTRICT.

Republicans Polled Heavy Gains Through Strong Organization—Vanderhoof Had Largest Republican Vote.

Large Republican gains were made in the First district of the Fourth ward. Both sides made quite an effort but the strong organization of the Republicans sent the majority for that ticket up to 75 as against 13 last year. There was a comparatively small amount of scratching as compared with the other wards.

There were 332 votes cast, 202 being Republican, 127 Democratic and 3 Socialist Labor. Vanderhoff, candidate for constable, did the best on the Republican ticket, running only 1 behind. Craig was 21 votes less and Westphal 15. Lee made a good run for ward Councilman, falling behind only 7.

FOURTH WARD 2D DISTRICT.

Regular Landslide For the G. O. P Where Citizens' Ticket was Victorious Last Year.

There was a regular landslide for the Republicans in the second district of the Fourth ward where the Citizens' ticket had been victorious a year ago. The election passed of quietly and the vote polled was smaller than usual. The Republican ticket was easily victorious by 93 majority.

There were 336 votes cast, 208 Republican, 115 Democratic and 13 Socialist-Labor. Five were rejected. The Councilmen at-large all ran fairly together. Huff suffered the most from the scratches, running 40 behind. Westphal lost 26 votes. Ivins was 16 better than his ticket and was high man among the Democrats.

FOURTH WARD, 3D DISTRICT.

Republicans Had an Easy Thing of It and Rolled Up a Great Majority of 108

The Republicans had no trouble at all in carrying the third district of the Fourth ward by a majority of 108, while last year they only succeeded in tieing the Citizens' ticket. There were plenty of workers around the polls all day, but the election proved a quiet one there.

There were 241 ballots, while last year there were 315. The Republican tickets numbered 169 and the Democrats 61. The Socialist-Labor ticket polled 18 votes. Three were rejected. There was comparatively few scratches and Ivins was the only candidate to run at all ahead of his ticket. He gained 14.

NO DEMONSTRATIONS.

Result of Election Received Quietly—Dinner By Mr. MacMurray to Lieutenants.

The Republican leaders were very confident long before the election that they would be victorious. The leaders there claimed the First ward by 100. Considerable interest was taken in the counting in the First ward. The usual election day excitement was entirely missing, however, and the announcement of the result was received without any demonstration.

A dinner was given at McVey's Hotel by Mr. MacMurray to his lieutenants after the news of the victory was received. It was generally known about the city as early as 9 o'clock that the city had been swept by the Republicans. Two hours later it was possible to estimate the result with considerable accuracy.

HOW THE TICKETS RAN.

Table of the Vote in Each Election District Which Offers Some Interesting Comparisons.

A record of the total number of Republican, Democratic and Socialist-Labor tickets cast in all the polling places of the city offers some interesting comparisons. The Republican ticket secured a majority of 880. A comparison of the following with the votes of the various candidates will show that they all ran behind the ticket. It is an evidence of the general use of pasters:

MR. ROBERTS IS BARRED

Taylor Resolution Adopted by a Vote of 302 to 30.

MUST BE INVESTIGATED.

Utah Member-Elect Cannot Take the Oath as a Representative in Congress Until His Eligibility is Fully Established—Roberts Gets Excited in Discussing the Matter.

Washington, Dec. 6.—After a long debate the House of Representatives Tuesday evening adopted the Taylor resolution to debar Brigham H. Roberts, of Utah from taking the oath as a Representative until his eligibility is fully investigated. The vote stood:—Yeas, 302; nays, 30.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The chief interest in the battle Tuesday afternoon against the swearing in of Brigham H. Roberts as a member of the House centred in the personal defence of the Congressman-elect on the floor.

The galleries were thronged to overflowing by a crowd drawn by the prospects of a peppery tilt, and when Mr. Roberts spoke the scene was dramatic in the extreme.

Mr. Roberts followed the minority leader, Mr. Richardson, who had scathingly denounced polygamy but had advocated the swearing in of Mr. Roberts, because he had proper credentials, and, in his opinion, the proper course was to admit him and then expel him.

When Mr. Richardson yielded the floor to Mr. Roberts, the Speaker asked if there were any objections to his addressing the House. No one entered a protest, and the privilege of the floor was therefore accorded him.

Quiet reigned while Mr. Roberts began speaking in a light voice, incongruous with his size. He sent to the clerk's desk his certificate of naturalization, which was read. He then plunged into a constitutional argument and read McCrary's definition of the rights of a legislator-elect whose seat is contested, declaring that the legislator must be admitted to the membership on the strength of the certificate.

Mr. Roberts said he had never been accused of a felony, only a misdemeanor; that others were arrested, he was not, and he felt that proved a purpose to create an agitation. It all began after he left Salt Lake. He admitted the overwhelming sentiment against him. He grew agitated, and in insisting to be sworn in, shouted:

"I'm not asking any privilege of this House; I'm not asking a favor of this House. Under the shadow of the dome, with the protecting flag above, I demand justice for my State and for myself. It is not a favor I ask. I make a demand."

As soon as the reading of the President's message was finished, Mr. Taylor took the floor to speak on his resolution providing for the appointment of a special committee of nine to investigate charges against Roberts. Mr. Taylor suggested that each side have an hour and a quarter for debate, but at Mr. Richardson's request an hour and a half was decided upon.

Mr. Richardson introduced a resolution providing for the swearing in of Roberts and the investigation of his case afterward.

Mr. Taylor explained that the only proposition pending was whether or not Roberts should be sworn in pending a determination of his eligibility. If the allegations made are false, Roberts should be allowed to take his seat. If true, he should be rejected.

Mr. Taylor read the eighth section of the Edmunds act, showing that no polygamous or bigamous person could hold office, also President Cleveland's proclamation granting amnesty to those who had abstained from practising polygamy since the law was enacted.

Mr. Taylor showed that Roberts was found guilty of living in polygamy in 1887 and incarcerated in a prison for four months. In other words, he is ineligible under the eighth section of the Edmunds act. In three distinct ways, the Speaker said, Roberts is ineligible.

Democratic Leader Richardson followed Mr. Taylor. He disclaimed at the outset any intention to discuss the merits of the case, and would talk only as to the right of the House to refuse to swear in a man who had a certificate of election from his State.

Mr. Richardson said Roberts could not be prevented from taking the oath and had the certificate to show that he was eligible.

Mr. Fleming, of Georgia, suggested the certificate be read.

Roberts arose and exhibited the certificate. Mr. Richardson said it could be printed as part of remarks.

Mr. Richardson created a sensation by saying if the charges are true Roberts should not be permitted to remain in Congress, that the sacredness of the home must be protected, and that nothing is nearer the hearts of the American people than the preservation of purity of home.

Members of Congress have received private information to the effect that if Roberts is unseated by the House, and that if Senator Quay is seated in the Senate on a certificate of appointment from the Governor of Pennsylvania, the Governor of Utah will send Roberts back to Congress as his appointee for the United States Senate.

The Senate would then have to rule on the new questions which would thus be raised.

At the expiration of the time alloted to his side, Mr. Taylor granted Mr. Roberts ten minutes of the other side to finish his remarks.

Mr. Roberts then attacked the McKinley Administration and the Senate of the United States for appointing to office and confirming them, men in Utah who were charged with violating the same laws he is charged with violating, and in the face of protests.

In conclusion, Mr. Roberts said that the question of polygamy had been settled forever. His voice was raised to a high pitch and he became greatly excited.

Among the idols of the State of Utah, he exclaimed in his dramatic climax, who would be revered and cherished, he would be one, for having helped to settle that question on the floor of the State Constitutional Convention.

Mr. Dinsmore, of Arkansas (Dem.) said if the charges against Roberts were true he should not be entitled to his seat, but he agreed with Richardson that the resolution was bad.

Committees Not Yet Appointed.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The Roberts case was scheduled to come up immediately after the reading of the message.

He had his original certificate of naturalization, which lawyers of the House who have examined it pronounce as genuine and regular. It was believed that the charge that Mr. Roberts was not legally naturalized could not hold.

Speaker Henderson has not yet definitely determined when the committees of the House will be announced, whether before or after the holidays, but the expectation is that it will be just before the adjournment for Christmas.

In the main it is expected that old members will retain their former places, and if this is observed there will be the following important vacancies:

Ways and Means, three Republicans; Appropriations, one Republican and one Democrat; Judiciary, four Republicans and one Democrat; Banking and Currency, four Republicans and two Democrats; Commerce, one Republican and one Democrat; Rivers and Harbors, two Republicans; Foreign Affairs, two Republicans and one Democrat; Military Affairs, five Republicans and two Democrats.

The three vacancies on Ways and Means are attracting special attention, among those mentioned for the places being Moody and McCall, of Massachusetts; Littlefield, of Maine, who succeeded Dingley, and William Alden Smith, of Michigan.

More Points in Message.

Washington, Dec. 6.—In addition to what was published on Monday and Tuesday, giving the more important features of the President's message to Congress, the following are considered of more than a passing interest in view of the existing difficulties in the Philippines, together with the condition of the treasury and a few other matters of minor importance:

The Philippines.

On December 10, 1898, the treaty of peace between the United States and Spain was signed. It provided, among other things, that Spain should cede to the United States the Archepelago known as the Philippine Islands, that the United States should pay to Spain the sum of $20,000,000, and that the civil rights and political status of the native inhabitants of the territories thus ceded to the United States should be determined by the Congress. The treaty was ratified by the Senate February 6, 1899, and by the government of Spain on March 19 following. The ratifications were exchanged on April 11 and the treaty publicly proclaimed. On March 2 the Congress voted the sum contemplated by the treaty, and the amount was paid over to the Spanish government on May 1.

In this manner the Philippines came to the United States. The islands were ceded by the government of Spain, which had been in undisputed possession of them for centuries. They were accepted not merely by our authorized commissioners in Paris, under the direction of the executive, but by the constitutional and well considered action of the representatives of the people of the United States in both houses of Congress.

Continuing, he says:

The rebellion must be put down. Civil government cannot be thoroughly established until order is restored. With a devotion and gallantry worthy of its most brilliant history, the army, ably and loyally assisted by the navy, has carried on this unwelcome but most righteous campaign with richly deserved success. The noble self-sacrifice with which our soldiers and sailors, whose terms of service had expired, refused to avail themselves of their right to return home as long as they were needed at the front, forms one of the brightest pages in our annals. Although their operations have been somewhat interrupted and checked by a rainy season of unusual violence and duration, they have gained ground steadily in every direction, and now look forward confidently to a speedy completion of their task.

The Army.

Since my last annual message and in obedience to the acts of the Congress of April 22 and 26, 1898, the remaining volunteer force enlisted for the Spanish war, consisting of 34,834 regulars and 110,202 volunteers, with over 5,000 volunteer officers, has been discharged from the military service. Of the volunteers, 667 officers and 14,831 men were serving in the Philippines, and 1,650 of the regulars, who were entitled to be mustered out after the ratification of the treaty of peace. They voluntarily remained at the front until their places could be filled by new troops. They were returned home in the order in which they went to Manila, and are now all of them out of the service and in the ranks of citizenship. I recommend that the Congress provide a special medal of honor for the volunteers, regulars, sailors and marines on duty in the Philippines who voluntarily remained in the service after their terms of enlistment had expired.

By the act of March 2, 1899, Congress gave authority to increase the regular army to a maximum not exceeding 65,000 enlisted men, and to enlist a force of 35,000 volunteers to be recruited from the country at large. By virtue of this authority the regular army has been increased to the number of 61,999 enlisted men and 2,248 officers.

Lynching Should Be Suppressed.

The recurrence of these distressing manifestations of blind mob fury directed at dependents or natives of a foreign country suggests that the contingency has arisen for action by Congress in the direction of conferring upon the federal courts jurisdiction in this class of international cases, where the ultimate responsibility of the federal government may be involved. The suggestion is not new.

Big Surplus.

The strong position of the Treasury with respect to cash on hand and the favorable showing made by the revenues have made it possible for the Secretary of the Treasury to take action under the provisions of section 3,694, Revised Statutes, relating to the sinking fund. Receipts exceeded expenditures for the first five months of the current fiscal year by $13,413,389.91, and, as mentioned above, the Secretary of the Treasury estimates that there will be a surplus of approximately $40,000,000 at the end of the year. Under such conditions it was deemed advisable and proper to resume compliance with the provisions of the sinking fund law, which for eight years has not been done because of deficiencies in the revenues. The Treasury Department, therefore, offered to purchase during November $25,000,000 of the 5 per cent loan of 1904, or the 4 per cent funded loan of 1907, at the current market price. The amount offered and purchased during November was $18,408,600.

Alaska Needs Legislation.

A necessity for immediate legislative relief exists in the Territory of Alaska. Substantially the only law providing a civil government for this Territory is the act of May 17, 1884. This is meagre in its provisions and is fitted only for the administration of affairs in a country sparsely inhabited by civilized people and unimportant in trade and production, as was Alaska at the time this act was passed. The increase in population by immigration during the last few years, consequent upon the discovery of gold, has produced such a condition as calls for more ample facilities for local self-government and more numerous conveniences of civil and judicial administration. Settlements have grown up in various places constituting in point of population and business cities of thousands of inhabitants, yet there is no provisions of law under which a municipality can be organized or maintained.

New Banking Law.

In its earlier history, the National Banking act seemed to prove a reasonable avenue through which needful additions to the circulation could from time to time be made. Changing conditions have apparently rendered it inoperative to that end. The high margin in bond securities required, resulting from large premiums which government bonds command in the market or the tax on note issues, or both operating together, appear to be the influences which impair its public utility.

The attention of Congress is respectfully invited to this important matter, with the view of ascertaining whether or not such reasonable modifications can be made in the National Banking act as will render its service in the particulars here referred to more responsive to the people's needs. I again urge that national banks be authorized to organize with a capital of $25,000.

Government of Our New Lands.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Mr. Tawney of Minnesota has introduced in the House a resolution for the creation of a committee of seventeen members, to be known as the "committee on insular affairs," to have jurisdiction over "affairs concerning insular territory acquired or occupied under the treaty with Spain Dec. 19, 1898, including the island of Tutuila, Samoa." The resolution also provides that the committee shall be privileged.

Missouri's Zinc Output.

Jefferson City, Mo., Dec. 6.—According to the figures contained in the forthcoming report of Lead and Zinc Mine Inspector George E. Quinby, Missouri produced almost as much during the past year as was mined in the entire United States in 1897. As shown by the Government report, Missouri produced 96,650 tons of spelter during the past year as against 99,980 tons, as shown by the Government report for the United States in 1897.

They Found no Guns.

Las Palmas, Canary Islands, Dec. 6.—The British second-class cruiser Arethusa has been closely watching the German steamship Ella Woermann, which sailed from Hamburg Nov. 18 for the west coast of Africa. On the demand of the British government the Spanish authorities searched the vessel on her arrival here, but found no guns or cartridges on board of her. The steamship then proceeded.

Fatally Wounded His Wife.

Clarksville, Tenn., Dec. 6.—Mrs. William Durham, of Bear Springs, was accidentally shot and fatally wounded by her husband Tuesday night. Thieves were raiding the henhouse and the Durham children fired a gun. Durham thought the weapon was discharged by parties on the outside and fired his revolver, his wife receiving the bullet.

Smallpox Spreading at Chelsea, Mass.

Chelsea, Mass., Dec. 6.—Two more cases of smallpox have been discovered here, and the victims removed to the hospital. They are children, and where they caught the disease is unknown. The health officers now announce that the total number of cases is twenty-seven, but it is reported that this is not one-half of the real number.

Boston's Postmaster Resigns.

Boston, Dec. 6.—The resignation of Col. Henry A. Thomas as postmaster of Boston is in the hands of the President. Col. Thomas's continued ill-health is given as the cause of his resignation. Senators Hoar and Lodge have recommender George A. Hibbard, who will be appointed as Col. Thomas's successor.

Another Illinois Bank Robbed.

Pontiac, Ill., Dec. 6.—The bank at Cornell, Ill., eight miles from here, has been robbed of $6,000 in currency. The robbers obtained entrance through the front door of the building and blew the large safe open with dynamite. Two men suspected of the crime have been arrested.

Views of the Shamrock's Crew.

Glasgow, Dec. 6.—Members of the Shamrock's crew say that the Columbia is a far better designed boat than the Irish yacht, but that her sails set badly, and, they add, had the two yachts exchanged sails the Columbia would have won by an hour.

Wolcott Defeats Dobbs.

New York, Dec. 6.—In the Broadway Athletic Club Tuesday night, Joe Wolcott knocked out Bobby Dobbs in the sixth round of what was to have been a twenty-five round bout.

A Chicken Pecked Her.

Blue Ash, Ohio, Dec. 6.—Margaret C. Service, of Rossmoyne, has died from blood poisoning caused by a chicken pecking her on the hand two weeks ago.

WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS

THEY ARE FILTERS FOR THE BLOOD.

IMPURE BLOOD CAUSES DISEASE.

Few people understand the important part performed by the kidneys in filtering the blood. As the blood in its circulation through the body passes through the kidneys, its impurity is left in the kidneys, which in turn empties the secretions into the bladder in the form of urine.

If the kidneys are blocked and filtration of the blood from poisonous or diseased germs prevented thereby, the result is one or all of the following: Sleeplessness, Nervous Prostration, Weak Back, Pains in the Back and Loins; Scalding, Dark and Cloudy Urine; Dizziness, Rheumatism, Diabetes; Congestion of the Kidneys, Bright's Disease and Inflammation of the Bladder.

Unhealthy Kidneys Must be Treated.

A medicine is needed that will properly promote the filtration of the blood and check the over-secretion of urine.

THAT'S THE IDEA!

You ought to see what we can do for you before doing anything for yourself. Painting depends upon the paint and the painter. Better preparations than ours were never put on by a brush. Wherever paint is put, it should be put there to stay long enough to make it worth while to do the job. The warring elements have no effect on our durable mixtures.

A HARD BATTLE EXPECTED.

Eyes of the United Kingdom Watching Natal.

PREPARING FOR A FIGHT.

Meeting Between Buller and Joubert May Settle Campaign in Natal—The Next Engagement Likely to Dwarf Preceding Ones Into Insignificance. Boers Feel Hopeful.

London, Dec. 6—The eyes of the United Kingdom are now directed toward Natal.

What little information is allowed to leak through indicates that the coming fight on the Tugela will be the great deciding battle of that campaign.

The forces engaged will be very much greater than in any preceding engagement during the war. The fate of Ladysmith depends upon the issue. The Boers are confident of success.

Fighting at the passage of the Tugela, if it has to be forced by a "frontal" attack, will throw Modder River in the shade. It is hoped that Buller will be able to outmanoeuvre the Boers and thus obviate the necessity of an operation which would prove so costly in lives.

The report of the Boer evacuation of Weenen is regarded as of considerable importance, as it is taken to mean the removal of the threat to Clery's communications, which existed for so long a time.

Any considerable force permitted to remain within striking distance of his right flank, while his advance from Estcourt to Colenso was made necessary if Ladysmith was to be relieved, would have uncovered his flank to attack.

That the Boers have voluntarily retired from this important strategical position is taken to imply that they do not consider themselves sufficiently strong to oppose the British advance directly, and also strike an effective blow to the line of communications.

Gatacre evidently is beginning to feel strong enough to assume the offensive. We may soon hear of his seizing Stromberg Junction.

There he will complete communications with French at Naauw Poort, and then probably push on to Albert Junction. His advance will compel the Boers in the neighborhood of Aliwal North either to recross the river or fight.

It is confidently assumed that Gen. Methuen now is in communication with Kimberley.

Whether he has crossed the Modder is not known.

To Form Hat Maker's Trust.

Danbury, Conn., Dec. 6.—The proposed combination of the hat manufacturers throughout the entire country, which has been under consideration for some time, is likely to become a reality. It is asserted that $15,000,000 of capital is ready to buy every available hat making plant, not only here, but in Newark, and Orange, N. J., South Norwalk, Conn., and every other important hatting centre in the country. The capital is to be furnished largely by persons not at present identified with the industry. Nearly every hat manufacturer in Danbury has been approached in regard to the combination. Soft and stiff hat factories alike will be included.

Union Station For Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 6.—The board of aldermen have adopted the Burke union station plan. Its adoption by the councilmen means the abatement of the Hamburg Canal nuisance, by the filling of the canal bed, the building of a system of sewers costing $750,000 and the erection of a new union station to cost not less than $1,500,000. A bond of $500,000 is furnished and the city is guaranteed against any damage. In the event of failure to comply with the conditions imposed, the property is to revert to the city.

Death of Senator Hayward.

Nebraska City, Neb., Dec. 6.—United States Senator Hayward, of Nebraska, has just died at his home in this city. His death has long been expected. The fact that Senator Hayward's illness was mortal was known to the leaders of the Democratic party some days ago and the question of a successor has had wide discussion. It was one of the most important topics which came before the national leaders in their recent conference at Chicago. William Jennings Bryan unquestionably has the first call on the position.

Tried to Kill His Sweetheart.

Toledo, Ohio, Dec. 6.—Frank Lingrel, aged 19 years, Tuesday afternoon attempted to kill his sweetheart, Lulu Webber, aged 22, with a knife because she refused to become his wife. He chased the girl nearly a block before he was captured and taken to the police station.

Massacred 300 Armenians.

Constantinople, Dec. 6.—Private advices received here report that the Kurds have avenged the recent incursion of Russian Armenians into the Alashgerd district, in Turkish Armenia, by pillaging the Armenian village of Kostur and massacreing 300 of the inhabitants.

Furniture Factory Burned.

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 6.—Tuesday night the A. J. Warren Furniture Company's plant was almost completely destroyed by fire, the origin of which is unknown. The loss will amount to about $35,000, with $25,000 insurance.

Death Role in Cuba.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Gen. Brooke reports the deaths on the 3d instant of Albert Chase, Company E, Seventh Cavalry, at Pinar Del Rio, of peritonitis, and Robert Arnott, I, First Infantry, at Guanajay, of pulmonary congestion.

Wanted Only the Cash.

Toledo, O., Dec. 6.—The proposed consolidation of tug lines on the great lakes has fallen through on account of the Toledo tug owners refusing to take stock in the trust. They would sell out only for cash.

MOLINEUX SCORES A POINT.

Recorder Goff Rules Out Some Important Testimony.

New York, Dec. 6.—Rudolph Helles, third witness in the Molineux poison trial, declared Tuesday afternoon that at Molineux's request he had written a letter to Frederick W. Strams & Co., a Detroit drug house, asking about A. A. Harpster. This letter he signed "C. H. Jacobs & Co." Helles was formerly a cashier at the Knickerbocker Athletic Club.

Frank C. McLaughlin, an employe of Strams & Co., testified to the receipt by the firm of letters signed "H. Cornish," asking about Harpster, who was formerly employed by the firm.

When Dr. E. F. Hitchcock resumed the stand he pointed out in a diagram of the Adams flat the position in which he found Mrs. Adams dying.

Dr. Hitchcock told the circumstances of Mrs. Adams's death and Harry Cornish's illness from poisoning. The bromo-seltzer bottle, silver bottle holder and mailing wrapper were shown to the jury, and the wrapper, framed in glass, put in evidence as exhibit A.

Mr. Weeks cross-examined the witness severely, asking particularly after the "golden opportunity" which the physician was alleged to have told Cornish he had if he had any enemies. Mr. Weeks also brought out that Hitchcock and Cornish had taken several drinks of whisky together after Mrs. Adams' death and that the physician did not keep his original intention of calling the police.

Mr. Weeks scored an important point when Recorder Goff refused to admit the testimony of Molineux and his wife given before the Coroner's jury.

SHOT BY HIGHWAYMEN.

A Postmaster Waylaid at Night Near New York City.

New York, Dec. 6.—Postmaster H. B. Fellows, of Scarsdale, in Westchester County, who was waylaid by highwaymen and shot while returning home at night, will die.

Fellows, who is about thirty-five years old, is ticket agent for the Harlem Railroad at the Scarsdale station, three miles south of White Plains. He is also American Express agent at that place and was at his office at 9 o'clock, when his wife called him up over their private wire from their house, which is about five hundred yards from the depot. He told her he would be home in a few minutes.

The moments flew rapidly by, but her husband did not return, and as she was in the house alone with her mother she became worried, and telegraphed to the depot again, but got no answer. She then telegraphed to another neighbor her fears that something had happened to her husband.

This was at 11 o'clock. She got out of bed and with lantern in hand started for the depot. When half-way there a pool of blood and the road much dug up attracted her attention.

Following the trail of blood for twenty feet the body of Fellows was found, his head resting in a pool of blood.

A wound at the base of the brain told the tale. The handbag which Fellows was accustomed to carry, in which was the post office, railroad and express money was missing. How much was in the bag no one knows.

The injured man is still alive, but unconscious. He was taken to his home.

It is thought that the highwaymen knew Fellow's customs and laid for him. The point where the shooting occurred is bordered by a clump of bushes. After they had shot their victim they carried the body toward the railroad track and it was within five feet of there the body was found.

They evidently intended to let the north-bound train mangle the body and cover the traces of murder.

Miller Dupe Seeks Death.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 6.—If the story told by old Frank Schneider just before he tried to kill himself be true, he was driven to seek death by his regret that he had placed $10,000 of his savings in the hands of "ten-per-cent-a-week" Miller. This, too, although he had plenty more money. He is 65 years old and lives with his wife and three children at No. 1117 Lafayette avenue, this city. He is a retired shoe dealer, and is wealthy. He left his home on Tuesday to take his usual after-dinner walk. Soon thereafter he entered the Eagle Hotel, at No. 15 Broadway, asked for a room, and paid for it for a week. Then he went into the barroom and called for a drink.

After tossing it down he turned to the barkeeper and remarked:

"I hope they will catch that fellow Miller. He had $10,000 of my money when he got away. I gave it to him a few days before his syndicate was closed."

Schneider went to his room, turned on the gas, and laid down to die, but was soon discovered in his attempt at self-destruction and taken to a hospital where he was brought around all right again.

Enormous Crops in Kansas.

Topeka, Kan. Dec. 6.—The crop bulletin of the Kansas Board of Agriculture for the present year, just issued, shows final returns of the State's agricultural products as follows:

The winter wheat yield amounts to 42,815,471 bushels. The yield of corn is 225,183,432 bushels. Excepting that of 1889, (278,888,321 bushels,) this is the largest corn crop the State has yet produced, and exceeds in value any preceding crop by $1,134,627. The combined home value of the three grains—wheat, corn, and oats—is $80,888,622, or a total increase over the 1898 value of the same crops of $13,384,621.

THE MARKET.

THE INHABITANTS RETURNING.

American Troops Pacify Natives in Island of Panay.

Manila, Dec. 6.—Gen. Hughes occupies Santa Barbara and Cubutuan, Island of Panay. His lines extend thirty-five miles north of Iloilo. He has occupied twenty towns. The inhabitants are returning with white flags, their fear of the Americans diminishing as they learn that they will be well treated. It is impossible to get the Filipinos to fight. They are retreating to the mountains and no more organized resistance is expected. The artillery wagon mules are being used for packing. Water buffaloes are also being used for that purpose. General Hughes continues advancing north and spreading his lines.

Col. Hood, while reconnoitering near San Miguel, drove a force of Filipinos from Idefonso, killing several. Five Americans were wounded slightly.

Shoots Two Constables.

Greenville, S. C., Dec. 6.—State Constables Cornwell and Cooley had a hard fight with "Little George" Howard, a member of a famous clan of mountaineers, in a grove on the outskirts of this city late Tuesday afternoon. The constables seized some whisky in which Howard is supposed to have an interest. Cornwell and Howard were fatally shot, and Cooley is seriously injured. The three men fought each other to a standstill, each emptying his pistol, and then walking quietly away until he fell. Howard was hit five times, Cornwell three times, and Cooley twice.

No Wives as Postal Clerks.

Washington, Dec. 6.—First Assistant Postmaster General Heath, in his decision in the case of Mrs. Jennie J. Brown, at Modus, Conn., announces:

"The department has decided it will be incompatible with the best interests of the service to retain married women as post office clerks. The department has, therefore, ruled that when a female post office clerk marries it will be necessary for her to resign from the service."

Under this ruling postmasters hereafter will have to call for the resignation of such employes and recommend their successors to the department.

CITY OWNERSHIP.

[FROM "MUNICIPAL MONOPOLIES."]

Under private ownership Chillicothe, Ohio, population 15,000, pays $75 per annum for the light of each street arc. Coal per ton.

Under public ownership Alameda, Cal., population 15,000, pays $56 08 for the same service which includes 5 per cent. for interest and depreciation of plant. Coal $6 25 per ton.

Yesterday's Election.

It is evident that the policy of the present administration in municipal affairs is satisfactory to a majority of the people of Plainfield. Yesterday the Republicans won an overwhelming victory in a municipal election fought on the lines of the indorsement or retirement of the present administration. The Republicans came boldly to the front, declared that the existing policy was satisfactory and could not be improved upon and asked the votes of the community that it be continued. The Democrats denounced it as extravagant and asked for an opportunity to conduct the city's business on a different basis.

Had there been any widespread feeling against the present methods, it would have been very likely to make itself evident in a campaign conducted on such lines. The Republicans elected their entire ticket and carried the city by 880 majority. While there are always a certain number who will vote their party ticket under any circumstances, this substantial victory for the Republicans would indicate that the independent vote of the city supported the administration. Therefore the present administration can fairly claim that its course has the approval of the majority of the people.

As a result of the election, the Common Council next year will be entirely composed of Republicans. Under such circumstances, general harmony will be looked for and the Council will be free to carry out its present policy without objection from any of its own number.

This wholesome victory for the Republicans was something of a general surprise. The advent of the new Democratic organization was generally looked upon as an influence tending to close elections. The Democrats had the most representative men on their ticket that they have ever presented to the Plainfield public. The personal popularity of a number of these candidates won them many votes from Republicans. As a result the Democratic candidates ran well ahead of their ticket. It is, however, an interesting fact that the Democratic ticket, despite the excellence of its candidates and the advantage of a regular organization, lacked several hundred of polling the same vote given to the Citizens' ticket last year. It cannot be denied that yesterday showed a lack of interest that was surprising after the campaign that both parties made previous to the election.

Elizabeth Should Remain Firm.

According to the press agent of the Biker-Hine trolley syndicate, who has been working overtime in the Elizabeth Journal and a few other newspapers friendly to that corporation, Elizabeth is to be frozen out of all benefits to be derived by granting a franchise to the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company, because it is said the company has now taken steps to build their line into the county seat over a private right of way, thereby avoiding all the exactions that would have been required in the use of a public street. The trolley press agent seems to be shedding salt-water tears over the fact that the syndicate is not going to be able to make Elizabeth a present of several thousand dollars, more or less, every once in a while.

But the sympathy is an unwarranted as the usual argument of the trolley company is fallacious. According to this veracious chronicler and moulder of trolley sentiment, the company has had this scheme of a private right of way up its sleeve for sometime. Such being the case, together with the alleged fact that the route is just as advantageous and much more cheaper than the use of one or more of Elizabeth's streets for the trolley tracks, why, in the name of commom sense and good business judgement, has the syndicate been so anxious to secure the public franchise when, at the very least, it will cost them immeasurably more than the private right of way? If the company knew all along that they could get this private right of way why did they plan and fight for a public franchise that entailed great cost on them? The Biker-Hine trolley syndicate is a soulless corporation, and it is not given to benevolence when its interests are served just as well by some scheme that does not cost more than the minimum price.

Summed up in brief, the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company is putting up a great big bluff in Elizabeth, the same as it did in Plainfield a year ago, and if the city officials of the county seat hold tenaciously to the position they have taken the trolley company will come to their terms, private right of way and all other arguments to the contrary.

The Newark Evening News says that those Jerseymen who delight to count the coin that flows regularly into the State Treasury from the pockets of the trust incorporators should not be disheartened at the falling off in November receipts. New Jersey is still far in the lead of her sister States on that month's records. To companies of more than $1,000 000 capital New Jersey issued franchises representing an aggregate capitalization of $124 187 000, while the aggregate in Delaware was $8 500 000, in West Virginia $85 000 000, and in New York, Pennsylvania and Maine only about $41,000 000 each. New Jersey's shame in the matter lies in the fact that she can take their sort of revenue without a blush—not in the decrease from the preceding month.

New Brunswick is steadily paying off its bonded debt. The Common Council has provided to renew $5 300 of bonds falling due, and John N. Carpenter, Sinking Fund Commissioner, ordered to purchase the renewal bonds. During the past two years over $100,000 of the city's debt has been paid by renewal bonds which have been taken care of by the Sinking Fund. The city debt, which amounted to $1,700 000 in 1884, is now less than $1 000 000 net.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A woman holding some trust money was recommended to invest it in some stocks paying a large dividend, but about whose real value there was much uncertainty. She replied a la Lincoln by telling the following story: A gentleman was hiring a coachman and asked of each man who presented himself the following question: "How near could you drive to the edge of a precipice and not go over?" Some answers mentioned hair-breadth distances, but at length one sturdy fellow replied, "Sure, yer Honor, I wouldn't go near the precipice. I would take care to keep away from it." "You are the man I want," replied the employer and engaged him." The principle is a safe and sound one for more than coachman.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 6.—Jesse Darlymple, who has been seriously ill for about two months, died at 8 o'clock yesterday morning of apoplexy at his home on Washington-avenue, aged 74 years. Mr. Darlymple has been an invalid for several years but it was not until October that he was confined to his bed. He is survived by three children—John V. Darlymple, of Quakertown; Mrs. Sprowl, of Jersey City and Mrs. A. L. Apgar, of Dunellen, with whom he lived. The funeral which is in charge of Undertaker Runyon, will be held at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon from the house. Rev. Frank Fletcher, pastor of the Baptist church, of which the deceased was a member, and Rev. A. I. Martine, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will officiate. The interment will be at Bound Brook. The deceased was formerly employed as a carpenter by the Central Railroad. He was also a veran of the Civil War.

L. O. Grinnell has sold his property, consisting of house, barn and about three acres of land, located between Dunellen and New Market, to S. R. Titsworth.

There are letters advertised at the post office for Mrs. M. Apgar, Charles Bojen, Mrs John Frey, Mrs. James Nalon, Mrs D. J. Soder.

Miss Alice Pierce, a visitor at the home of Smith Watson, is ill with peritonitis.

There are a number of people in the borough and New Market quite ill.

C. H. Adams is dangerously ill with pneumonia.

SCOTCH PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 6.—Charles Layton and his assistants have started their annual hog-killing season. Yesterday Clarks two 300 pound porkers were the first victims of the crusade.

Rev. G. M. Shott made an address in the First Baptist church of Westfield last evening. A number of his congregation and friends from town attended the services.

The Board of Education held their regular monthly meeting in the school parlor last evening. Routine business was transacted.

The trustees of the Baptist church held their regular monthly meeting in the church parlors last evening.

Miss Sadie Roger has returned from a pleasant visit with her parents, at Succasanna, Morris county.

Mrs. Wm. Terry, of Netherwood, was the guest of her mother, Mrs. James Buckley, Tuesday.

Noah Terry, of Netherwood, lost a valuable horse several days ago from lockjaw.

George W. Marsh is suffering from a bad attack of quincy sore throat.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. "All thought she must soon die from pneumonia, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, saying it had more than once saved her life, and had cured her of consumption. After three small doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Volunteer Singers Wanted.

L. H. Biglow, Jr., of 921 Central avenue, who is in charge of the music at the Bible conference to be held next week, requests that all those who desire to sing in the chorus choir which will lead the singing at the evening meetings to send their names to him by mail, mentioning the part they will sing. He desires to receive all such names as early as Friday of this week, if possible. The singers will then be notified by mail of the evenings when they are to sing.

—Unity Lodge, Knights of Pythias, will hold a regular meeting this evening.

—A petition for the rejection or expulsion of Brigham H. Roberts and for an anti-polygamy amendment to the constitution is still on file at the Y. M. C. A. building and should be signed at once.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The Plainfield trolley cars are now heated and people can ride in comfort.

—Many places about town are now lighted with the underground system of electric lighting.

—There are now eighteen patients at Muhlenberg Hospital, but none of them are considered critical.

—The Bible study class will meet this evening at the Crescent Avenue church after the prayer meeting service.

—The young people of Hope chapel are planning to do their share toward furnishing the new building which is almost completed.

—Park avenue from the railroad bridge out is in the best of condition at present and wheelmen find it a pleasure to ride thereon.

—A. W. Tyler will deliver the second of his series of illustrated lectures on "Europe," at the Y. M. C. A. Hall, tomorrow evening.

—At this evening's meeting of Paughcaughnaugh-inque tribe of Red Men the adoption degree will be worked on several candidates.

—The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church will hold its regular meeting on Friday afternoon in the church parlor.

—The "Fair of the Holidays" opens in Vincent chapel tomorrow afternoon. It will continue Thursday evening and Friday afternoon and evening.

—Essex street is enjoying a visitation from the city street scraper to level off the dirt placed there by the street railway company to raise the street to grade.

—The W. C. T. U. kept open house yesterday and sold clam chowder to those who stopped in. The affair was a success and many assisted the union in replenishing their treasury.

Rev. A. E. Main's Father Dead.

Rev. Dr. Arthur E. Main, of Central avenue, received a telegram this morning telling him of the death of his father, Daniel C. Main, at his home in Troy, N. Y. Mr. Main was 78 years old, and had been ill for a long time. His death was not entirely unexpected. Dr. Main left this morning for Troy.

FOUND IN THE PALM

SOME OF ITS TRUTHS AND HOW TO FIND THEM.

What the Lines, Dents, Curves and Mounds in the Hand Show—Marks That Portend Serious Results—How They May Be Averted.

There are all sorts of palmists, the same as of doctors, and the art is capable of just as much quackery. Too many "professional" palmists mix a little truth with a good deal of speculation, to please their patrons and get trade. For the ordinary person always does want to know a "little more," and the person who will give it to them is always a bit more attractive (for the time being). But palmistry is a real thing, there's no doubt about that, and the more it is studied and its conclusions verified, the more true and wonderful it proves itself to be.

And it is an art that any one can easily learn. Many a woman in our cities who hasn't the usual talents to help please a company, has been asked to "read hands" at church and other entertainments. I know one such woman who is in constant demand in her own city and neighboring places yet she has never advertised herself in any way and is very modest concerning the remarkable ability so many others have attributed to her. I must say that I was a skeptic myself until personal contact disclosed a woman who really did remarkable things,—who read the lines just as they were written, and yet was constantly astonished to learn that they had expressed the truth. No inducement can make her generalize or go "beyond the lines." Quite a successful New York clairvoyant and palmist said to her, after a short consultation, "Madam, you would never succeed in New York, you are too honest. There is no need to be quite so honest, and besides, if you said a little more, it would please better and not be much out of the way." But our palmist looks with awe on the wonderful lines, and with childlike simplicity feels that she is accountable to God for being as honest and accurate as possible; feels that the more she strives for her ideal, the closer she will be to God, and the more she will act and speak as she wishes her to do. Churches of every denomination, associations of clubs and the like, to say nothing of private individuals, from a New York millionaire and prominent business man down down to the humbler classes (as far as material prosperity goes) have all been her patrons.

The left hand lines show characteristics with which you were born. Those on the right hand are your individuality lines, and also show whether you have made better or worse inherited qualities. The hand lines will almost always vary more or less on every hand. The vital line or the line of life, is long and encircles the mount of Venus, which gives long life, free from illness; if the line of health crossed it prominently, it would mean probable death at the age indicated by the crossing. Age is counted on the line of life. Many little lines crossing the life line denote many illnesses or troubles. Other things are denoted when separate lines rise or fall from it. It is a sign of a very strong constitution to be without the health line, but few are. It should start from the bracelet or from the line of life and go on toward the mount of Mercury. If it joins the line of head, it shows tendency to brain attack from overwork or over-excitement. A cross on the line shows an illness, the date of which must be looked for on the line of life. The longer the line of heart the more ideal the love. Branches rising and falling from the line of heart show the influence of other people on the affections, and as these branches are crossed or otherwise, so is the love successful and returned, or disappointed and unhappy. When a branch cuts through the heart line and descends beneath it, it is a sign of disappointment. No branches mean a loveless life, as far as the opposite sex is concerned. Dots and dents on the heart line always show troubles, physical or mental. A hand without any heart line shows hard-heartedness and cruelty. When the line of head is separated from the line of life, it means self confidence and rash impulsiveness. When the lines are joined as far as the middle, great timidity. When the head line is long and sloping, it means imagination, artistic feeling, poetry and but little judgment. If curved in excess, it will bring folly and delusion. If straight it means common sense, care and economy. If the line advances only to the middle, it means want of spirit and balance. The line of fate shows worldly success or failure and the general course of the life. If the fate line rises from the line of life it is good and common. If from the middle of the hand, a life of trouble, but of hope and energy. From the bracelet to the mount of Saturn, great success. Of course, there is a great deal more to say about these lines and many others not pictured and their influences over one another. Stars, squares, triangles and circles also have their meanings. The leaning of the fingers toward one another and their form also have very decided meanings in regard to character and characteristics.

One fact should be emphasized in connection with palmistry. The marks that portend serious results mean that those results will very probably take place unless the mode of life as hitherto been practiced is completely changed. And whether the lack of health is due to brain, heart or other organ is expressed by the lines. A correct reading of the hand-lines, therefore, need in no case cause depression, or hopelessness, but, on the contrary, an ambition to profit by the warnings expressed, and thus "cover up" the undesirable lines.—I. B. in Farm and Home.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

It is very evident that plays after the fashion of "Way Down East," "The Old Homestead" and "Shore Acres" have become something of a fad and this largely accounts for the reception given "The Village Postmaster" wherever it has appeared. Like the other plays mentioned it is a picture of rural life in New England and is as equally amusing as any of them. The plot appeals to homely life and the story has a vein of pathos running through it which makes it pure and sweet. As a portrayal of village life nearly 50 years ago, it is quite interesting. Like all plays of this kind scenery and effect have much to do with its success. The interior of the village store and post office, the old parsonage and farm yard, the threshing machine, the animals moving about, the country church as such edifices were in those days are all depicted in a realistic manner. "The Village Postmaster" will be seen at Music Hall tonight. The title role of Seth Huggins, the Postmaster, is admirably portrayed by Archie Boyd the great character comedian. The play will come here intact identically the same as it was produced in New York.

• • • • •

Atkinson's Comedy Company in the musical comedy, the "New Peck's Bad Boy," will be at Music Hall, Saturday afternoon and night. It is a dramatization of the famous bad boy sketches of George W. Peck, editor of the Milwaukee Sun. The entertainment is in three acts or scenes. The leading characters are the bad boy, his girl and his pa, the servant girl and the doctor. As Mr. Peck says: "The counterpart of this boy is located in every village in the land." "He is wide awake, full of vinegar, and is ready to crawl under the canvass of a circus or repeat a hundred verses of the Testament in Sunday school." If every boy was as good as "Peck's Bad Boy" off the stage, there would be no bad men in the world. The tendency of the character throughout is to produce a good influence.

Nasal CATARRH

In all its stages there should be cleanliness.

Ely's Cream Balm cleanses, soothes and heals the diseased membrane. It cures catarrh and drives away a cold in the head quickly.

Cream Balm is placed into the nostrils, spreads over the membrane and is absorbed. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. It is not drying—does not produce sneezing. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Der Regierungsdirektor a. D. Eugen v. Rümelin, Vater des vor etlichen Monaten verstorbenen Stuttgarter Oberbürgermeisters v. Rümelin, ist im Alter von 87 Jahren hier gestorben. — Desgleichen starb der frühere Regierungspräsident Lutz, Landtagsabgeordneter für Nagold.— Dieser Tage erfolgte der Uebergang des bisher im Eigenthum und Betrieb der privaten Gasbeleuchtungsgesellschaft gestandenen hiesigen Gaswerkes in den Besitz und die Verwaltung der Stadtgemeinde. Die Stadt übernimmt die Angestellten des Gaswerkes in städtische Dienste.

Gmünd. Vor einigen Wochen erfolgten hier mehrere Verhaftungen von Arbeitern, die ganz bedeutende Diebstähle von Gold in einer Goldwaarenfabrik begangen hatten. Dieser Tage haben nun abermals vier Verhaftungen stattgefunden, da man auch in einer anderen Fabrik Diebstählen in beträchtlichem Umfang auf die Spur gekommen ist. Wegen Hehlerei wurde ein Goldarbeiter und ein Optiker verhaftet. Auch in München ist eine in die Sache als Hehler verwickelte Person festgenommen worden.

Heilbronn. Im Lagerraum der Zuckerfabrik stürzte eine Beuge (Stoß) mit Zuckerhüten ein und verschüttete zwei Arbeiter. Einer davon blieb todt, der andere ist schwer verletzt.

Baden.

Heidelberg. Der außerordentliche Professor der Nationalökonomie Dr. Kindermann hat der Handelskammer und dem Kaufmännischen Verein mitgetheilt, daß er Angehörige des Handelsstandes sowohl selbstständige wie Angestellte, zu seinen Vorlesungen einlade, ohne von ihnen ein Honorar zu beanspruchen. Er wird zwei Stunden wöchentlich über Finanzwissenschaft, vier Stunden über praktische Nationalökonomie lesen und zwar in der Mittagstunde von 12 bis 1, so daß Angestellte ohne Versäumniß im Geschäft das Kolleg hören können. Je nach der Theilnahme an diesen Vorlesungen gedenkt dann die Handelskammer Erwägungen anzustellen, ob sie nicht regelmäßige akademische Handelskurse einrichten soll.

Leutershausen. Einen seltenen Fund machte dieser Tage die Frau des Landwirthes Lorenz Gräf beim Graben eines Rübenloches. In einer Tiefe von etwa einem halben Meter fand sie einen steinernen Krug, der mit 424 Münzen aus dem 14., 15., 16. und 17. Jahrhundert gefüllt war.

Lörrach. Der im benachbarten Haltingen unter Mitnahme der Stationskasse verschwundene Bahnbeamte Emil Strickler wurde in Chiasso verhaftet und hierher ausgeliefert.

St. Blasien. Das Sanatorium von Dr. Sander ist niedergebrannt.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. Vor Kurzem stürzte die über die Ill führende sogenannte Schlachthausbrücke ein. Neben dieser Brücke steht, bis hart an die Wasser des Flusses herangebaut, das Bezirksgefängniß, im Volksmunde „Raspelhüs" genannt. Der Einsturz der Brücke war erfolgt dadurch, daß das Wasser die Pfeiler unterspült hatte. Dasselbe scheint nun mit den am Wasser erbauten Mauern des Gefängnisses der Fall zu sein. Der Backofen des Gefängnisses stürzte bald nach dem Einsturz der Brücke in's Wasser hinab, und es zeigten sich Risse und Sprünge in den Mauern des Gefängnisses. Der nach der Brücke zu gelegene Flügel mußte von den Gefangenen geräumt und, um die Möglichkeit des Einsturzes zu verhüten, gestützt werden. Die Sprünge in der Wand haben sich nun erweitert, auch sollen sich Risse auf der noch bewohnten Seite zeigen, so daß wahrscheinlich das ganze Gefängniß abgebrochen werden muß.

Krüth. Die Bäckerei von Arnold gerieth während der frühen Morgenstunden in Brand und zwei Knaben, die von dem Bäcker als Laufjungen verwendet wurden, erstickten, bevor ihnen Hilfe gebracht werden konnte.

Münster. Eine Privatgesellschaft beabsichtigt, eine elektrische Bahn von Retournemer nach dem Hohneck zu bauen. Die Firma Schuckert will angeblich eine elektrische Bahn von Münster bis zur Schlucht errichten.

FASHION NOTES.

Materials Employed For Cold Weather Costumes.

All heavy, soft goods are in great demand—poplins, silk damask and especially cloth, which is now made in many varieties. It is plain or is embroidered, perforated and enriched with all sorts of applications.

For gowns for ordinary hard service heavy serge in the plain, standard shades is generally adopted—blues, browns and beiges. Plain velvet of the same shade as the serge continues to be the preferred trimming, being used as applications for folds and in all sorts of ways.

Cloth composes the majority of the long wraps which are so much seen this winter. These are even made with a train sometimes, and, while they are very useful for carriage wear, they are quite unsuited for walking and impede progress most effectually.

A new velvet has just been produced which has a very long pile and is of a beautiful gray. It is called "chinchilla" and closely resembles that attractive but perishable fur.

The costume illustrated has a trained skirt of broche silk in two tones of gray. The princess tunic is of gray cloth, slightly draped across the bosom and at the waist and fastened at the left side with two gold buckles. It has a wide collar bordered with knotted gray silk fringe, and the edges of the tunic are also trimmed with fringe. Above the fringe is a fine embroidered design. The sleeves, high collar and little plastron are of broche silk. The directoire bonnet of black velvet is trimmed with gray ostrich plumes and a jeweled buckle. The narrow black velvet strings are tied under the ear. JUDIC CHOLLET.

GOWNS OF CEREMONY.

Details of the Elegant Costume of the Moment.

It is not a necessity that for formal toilets the hat or bonnet should be of just the same shade as the gown. This was formerly considered desirable, but now the hat may be quite different in color provided that it harmonizes.

Toque and capote forms are more ceremonious than the round hat. Nevertheless very young girls may permissibly wear round hats to weddings, receptions, etc. The hat, of whatever form it is, must equal the rest of the costume in elegance, and even the best quality of felt is not worn, velvet, silk, embroidery or beaded tulle being employed. Neither veil nor wrap is proper, those articles being left in the carriage or the cloakroom.

Pure white gloves without colored stitching are still the rule for dress wear, and glace kid is now considered more elegant than suede.

Silk stockings of the color of the gown frequently accompany costumes of ceremony, although black silk stockings are always in excellent taste.

The picture shows a gown of green bengaline, the skirt being trimmed at the foot with two narrow bands of sable, while two other bands simulate a tunic above. The bodice is fitted at the back and crossed and plaited in front. It opens over a full chemisette and collar of mauve mousseline de soie and has a wide collar of white satin embroidered with mauve and trimmed with two little bands of sable. A frill of mauve mousseline de soie edges the collar. The plain sleeves of green bengaline have a band of fur at the wrists. The hat is of mauve stitched velvet and is trimmed with mauve ribbon and mauve plumes.

SOME NEW FASHIONS

TO BE ADMIRED EVEN THOUGH BEYOND MODEST PURSES.

Hints as to the Popular Evening Styles—Handkerchief Draperies—Dress Goods—Velvets—The New Long Coats—Fashionable Millinery.

(New York Fashion Letter.)

As I remarked last week, if you think from the announcements of some of the great department stores in this city that you can come here or send here and get your gowns, headgear or wraps cheaper than you can get them in your own town or city, put the thought right out of your mind. It is really discouraging for those with small purses to visit the great shops of the city.

Enterprising as these great dry goods emporiums are, they are chiefly surprising for their skill in advertising.

And when I refer to the so-called "swell" fashions I do not do so with the thought or the hope that many of my readers can afford to possess them. They are far beyond ordinary purses. But they are suggestive. They may be copied or modified by the home dressmaker, perhaps. Now we understand each other, so I will proceed.

A new fad just introduced at the swellest of evening soirees in that ladies wearing the most beautiful decollette evening gowns have a very odd fancy for having two tiny strands of fur, such as mink, draped as bands over the bare shoulder. The two fur bands are like miniature boas, the bands of fur being of the thickness of the tabs or tails which dangle from a lady's muff. The two bands of fur fasten to the front of the corsage, with the coquettish little head of an animal and two little tabs or tails as a finish. These may constitute the sole apology for sleeves to the ball gown, or the bands of fur may be looped across the back of the decolletage and the two long ends are tied in a bowknot on the left shoulder with a loop and two ends, one from four to six inches longer than the other and fastened with one tiny head on the very tip of the shoulder.

A handkerchief drapery is a unique fashion for the adornment of the front of a ball gown for instance, if the ball gown is one of the new shades of deep pink then the moucheir drapery trimming is of a most delicate shade of mauve. If the ball gown is of a rich purple or lavender velvet then the drapery trimming may be of pearl-tinted chiffon. The drapery starts on a line with the decolletage, falls to the right and the left like two dainty jabots, and is edged on either side with exquisite lace, the richly embroidered and tight-fitting bodice almost hiding the drapery until it reaches about four inches below the waist line. The moucheir effect is again noted twice on the side panel of the skirt, having the effect as though it were a very large handkerchief gracefully looped. Near the bottom it again appears and falls away in the folds of the train. With jeweled passementeries on either side of the draperies the effect is very pleasing.

Camel's hair dress goods, so soft and clinging, is in great demand. Some new shades of brown, swallow brown, a deep peach brown and Venetian green are the fashionable shades. The most stylish suits have a Princesse back and a jacket effect at the front, finished off with a Robespierre ruff.

Velvet reigns supreme; velvet, pure and simple, not to mention fabrics that boast velvet figures. And nothing so enriches any garment, from the hat down, as the touch of velvet, and it is always becoming. Evening gowns are composed in part or entirely of lace. Whole lace robes are preferred, but there are any number of schemes, such as yokes, vests, tablliers, sleeves and all sort of emplacements to be carried out in any number of ways.

Purple in all its shades is still in favor, notwithstanding the fact that it has had every chance to run itself into the ground during the past two years. But the purple frock makes up for its bright color by the severity of its model. This is true this season of all dress of not strictly sober hue. Black, brown and gray are the accepted colors, and costumes in those tones can afford to be as fancy as they choose. It is the purple, red, green or blue frock that must display severity.

The long coat plays an important part in woman's dress this year. Usually of palest gray or biscuit-colored broadcloth, it reflects the general characteristics marking the gowns of the season. It is long and sometimes makes use of embroidery and buttons and braiding in much the same way that frocks are making use of them. Some of the models are graceful, and elegant, some are severely plain, but they are all expensive. An exclusive style could scarcely be otherwise.

The box coat has one feature at least to recommend it. It can be worn over an elaborate bodice without fear of crushing it, and that is an advantage which trim tight-fitting jackets cannot claim. One came from their embrace looking much as though pressed between the leaves of a monster book, and chiffons and laces presented a pitifully bedraggled appearance. The box coat is warm and comfortable, but it does not rumple one's waists. The dearest coat made in this style—and it is dear in more ways than one—is a magnificent creation in sable and sealskin.

The hats of this season show a diversity of styles, with the very newest drooping well over the hair in the back. Marie feathers are much in demand and are proportionately expensive, as is the osprey. Velvets in black and bright colors are much worn, with red and green as the leading tones. Tan and turquoise blue is a combination seen a great deal and the all gray hat seems as popular as ever notwithstanding the fact that they are becoming to so few women. The turban toque is still with us—quite flat, with large folds and twists of cloth and velvet worming the brim with masses of trimming pushed up at one side. Toques made entirely of the tiniest wings in black and colors are pretty, but a luxury only afforded the women with a generous dress allowance. Stiff wings and quills figure on all sorts of headgear, many of them being elaborately hand-painted. Hats are formed of one immense bird, with the long tail feathers reaching well over the hair on the back. Cloth toques and round hats with velvet ears and a twist around the brim are much worn, as are the Alpine hats of soft felt, which are usually trimmed at the side with quills, tan and gray being the favorite colors.

THE BYE WAYS OF CRIME

How You May Protect Yourself Against Theft.

WAYS OF PICKPOCKETS.

How Women Are Used as a Cover—The Glove With a Pocket—The Umbrella Thief—The Pretty Girl With the Bouquet—The Well Dressed and Smart Woman.

"A certain amount of care, combined with common sense and caution, will nonplus the criminal," says R. J. Power-Berrey in his book just printed in England, entitled "The Bye Ways of Crime."

The list of crimes for which no one has been convicted, he shows, is a very lengthy one, and is being added to day after day, and will be added to so long as the public decline to take care of themselves or their property.

Here are a few extracts from his book designed to help people protect themselves against the most common up-to date devices of criminals.

A pickpocket when he sets out on a thieving expedition is, whenever possible, accompanied by one or more confederates.

The confederates serve two purposes, both very important. They, like all criminals, know most of the detectives they have to deal with, and so are able to give the operator warning when danger threatens, while as soon as he makes a "haul" the chief turns the loot over to the watchers, and thus secures himself in case he is arrested.

The confederate must be a very smart man. He has to keep a sharp lookout for the police, and must be always ready to catch and dispose of any article the thief may throw or pass to him, while he also has to cover the operations of the pickpocket—really acting as a living screen. The spoils are therefore rarely in the possession of the real thief for any length of time.

Sometimes a woman is used as a "cover," and one instance of this which came under notice occurred at a railway booking office.

The woman was arguing some matter of a ticket with the clerk. Behind her came the thief, while next to him was a portly individual, whose wealth of chain denoted the presence of a valuable watch. Owing to the crowd the three were very close together, and the thief, holding a cigar rather conspicuously in his left hand, reached round with his right and soon had the watch, which he promptly slipped into the woman's pocket, at the same time giving her the "office" to get out of the way.

Even if the man had been arrested he could not have been connected with the crime for the property was then far away from him.

One individual invented a glove, in the palm of which was a small pocket. Probably this dodge would not have become known but for the fact that the thief, when closely pressed, dropped the glove at the edge of the footpath near a shop from which several gold pencil cases had just been stolen. Protruding from the pocket were two of the pencil cases.

The glove it was ascertained, was used in this way: The thief, a well-dressed man, walked into the shop and asked to be shown various small articles, and while going over a case from which to make a selection, he slipped what suited him into the glove pocket.

His hands were always in sight, and when he had made a small purchase he left the shop, and of course nothing had been observed to arouse suspicion.

And now for another kind of sneak thief. Flower girls as a class are fairly honest, but now and again there are specimens who are exceptionally clever with their fingers. Pushing their wares, they will put a button-hole bouquet under the nose of a gentleman in order that he might become enamored with the perfume, and while the flowers screen her other hand, she deftly lifts his pin.

Many landlords of licensed liquor houses in England keep the gold that is received in a glass which is placed on a shelf behind the bar. In order to reach this the thief has invented a couple of instruments.

One is a flat piece of leather attached to a handle made to fit on to the end of a walking stick.

The leather is kept smeared with some adhesive substance, and when not in use is enclosed in a case. When manipulated by the thief the leather is merely pressed on to the coins which are in the glass, or, as is sometimes the case, which are carelessly exposed to view and reach on a shelf.

Occasionally it is found necessary to lift the glass bodily from its place, and this proved a rather difficult matter. In order to reach this the thief has devised a horse shoe fork, the prongs of which could be extended, telescope-fashion, from the end of what looked like an ordinary walking stick.

When thieving has to be done under circumstances such as these, where time and opportunity are material considerations, it is usually brought to a successful finish with the aid of a confederate, who engages the bar people in interesting conversation.

The umbrella thief is a person who is rarely detected, but he or she can only operate successfully in the wet weather.

The umbrella, which has probably been stolen from some neighboring establishment, is utilized as a means of concealing and carrying away more valuable property.

The operator is most frequently a well-dressed woman, and the favorite places of call are jewellers and good-class chemists.

In chemists' shops great varieties of articles are displayed on the outside of glass cases on the counters, and the method adopted is to slip whatever is within easy reach into the folds of the umbrella.

(She deftly lifts his pin.)

This is a simple enough task when the thief is the only person in the shop and the assistant is behind a screen compounding a prescription.

BOUND THEM TO A TREE.

How an Injured Husband Treated an Erring Couple.

Big John Gillen, a well-known farmer residing on Mountain View road, near Hilton, W. Va., held up his wife to the scorn of the public in a merciless manner the other day. He also inflicted punishment on the man with whom the woman is alleged to have been intimate.

Gillen operates a small truck farm, and does team work. He is good-looking, and remarkably strong. He was married three years ago to Sarah Stack who lived with her widowed mother. The girl was handsome and inclined to be wayward. The couple had no children.

Frank Donaldson was supposed to be the cause of the estrangement of husband and wife.

Gillen finally decided to put a watch on his wife's doings. He hired a detective, who donned old clothes and applied to Gillen's house for food during the husband's absence. The woman was about to start up to the village, but delayed long enough to give the tramp a sandwich. She then went to the village, where Donaldson was waiting. The detective gained a point where he could observe all that transpired.

The young woman had a flask of liquor for her lover, also some cake. She stroked his mustache, and he in turn smoothed her tresses. The evidence alone gathered by the detective will be, it is said, sufficient for Gillen to procure a divorce. The detective met Gillen and told him of his discovery. He advised Gillen to make believe that he was going to the market the next day, and instead of going, to drive up the road and to stable his horses and return to the spot designated.

The orders were obeyed to the letter. The husband watched his wife and Donaldson for over an hour and was restrained from springing upon them only by the detective.

Soon the couple succumbed to the drugged liquor which Gillen had prepared and fell asleep on the bench where they had been sitting. The husband and detective crept upon them and bound them in standing positions to a tree a short distance from the road. In his rage Gillen stripped the captives of nearly every stitch of clothing. The bound couple recovered to find themselves in a forlorn plight. Donaldson's moustache was shorn, and his body bruised in a dozen places from blows inflicted by Gillen.

The miserable pair implored to be released, but Gillen would not relent until the pair were seen in their shame by fully a score of people, to whom the circumstances were made known.

Will "Fool" With Strange Women.

James Lee, who claims a residence at 33 Emerald street, Boston, made preparations for a visit to England, and in anticipation of his voyage drew out of the bank $850. This he put in a hand bag.

With the hand bag still in his possession, he wandered about town, taking a last look at old and familiar objects. About 10:30, while standing at the corner of Washington street and Temple place, a demure young woman, whom he describes as 32 years old, 5ft. 4in. tall, light complexion, wearing dark clothes and weighing 225 pounds, passed along. She turned and looked at him and he returned the admiring glances.

She stopped, and he advanced to meet her. Soon both repaired to a hostelry on Hayward place. Here he lavishly entertained his newly-made friend, afterward escorting her to a Brookline car. He then returned to his home, and while there something impelled him to open his handbag.

There was still money there, but it amounted to only $30. He rushed down to station 4, reported his loss, and the police are looking for the woman.

Edna May's Divorce Suit.

Edna May Titus, the actress, under the name of Edna May, who is suing Frederick Titus, the bicycle rider, for an absolute divorce, obtained a commission from Justice Scott of the supreme court, New York, so that her evidence may be taken in London. She married Titus in New York on April 14, 1896. She accuses Titus of intimacy with a chorus girl in "The Belle of New York," in which play the plaintiff took the part of the Salvation Lassie.

MANUSCRIPTS.

Thousands Pouring Into the Magazines on War Topics.

A gentleman connected with the office management of one of the successful of the current magazines, was in the city recently, looking over the Southern field. In the course of conversation he mentioned some interesting things discernible behind the scenes in the publishing business.

"During the last twelve months," he said "there has been a most extraordinary increase in the number of manuscripts received by the magazines from all parts of the country. You will hear it talked about in every office in New York. It seems as if the whole nation has simply gone daft on the subject of scribbling. Where we received a hundred contributions a year ago we are getting at least a thousand, and all the big magazines have been forced to double their staff of readers and correspondence clerks to take care of the increased mail. A large percentage of the articles submitted have some bearing on the recent war, and are written by members of the volunteers. They include a little of everything—stories, sketches, poems, personal reminiscences and historical sketches, and we have been obliged to get out a special circular letter stating that we would not undertake to even examine any more war matter. I believe most of the other magazines have done the same thing. The average writer doesn't realize that a greater monthly publication must be run on strictly business principles. We estimate that it costs us about 60 cents to put a manuscript of, say, 2,500 words through the hands of the first reader. It is handled by three clerks before it gets to him, and the first reading is merely to determine whether it is worth any further attention. If the verdict is favorable it is carefully examined by a special staff, who read it in rotation and submit a written report, an operation which costs considerable money. To give that amount of attention to even a tenth of the stuff that pours in on us would bankrupt any house in the country. Yet raw amateurs are constantly complaining because every word of their manuscript was not read. Often they purposely transpose the last few pages, and, when they go back undisturbed, they write us sarcastic letters. As a rule the first paragraph decides the fate of a contribution.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

SCARCITY OF SEALS.

Makes It Probable That Garments of This Fur Will Soon Be a Curio.

The Treasury Department has received a report from the special agent who has been superintending the catching of fur seals in the Arctic during the past season. His report shows that this valuable animal is getting scarcer every year, and that unless extreme measures are soon adopted to prevent their extermination, it will be but a matter of time before sealskin sacques will be regarded as curios. The Treasury Department restricted the catch of seals in the American district to 25,000, but the best the sealers could do was to catch 16,000 animals. This merely indicates the scarcity of the seals, for those taken under the supervision of the United States authorities will not be missed in the hrd. No females are permitted to be slain in our territory, the killing being limited to males over 2 years of age. The danger of complete annihilation of the herd is in the operations of the pelagic sealers, those who roam about the open water and slay right and left and without discrimination as to age or sex. The prey of these sealers is confined almost entirely to females, which are slow of movement and fall easy victims. A vessel leaving that territory with a load of some 200 skins and only one male in the lot is a frequent occurrence. During the season of 1898 the Treasury Department restricted the catch in American territory to 30,000, and during the year just ended a limit of 25,000 was named. Next year it is probable that this will be scaled down to 15,000, with prospects for the catch being hardly 10,000. The only thing that can save the herd from complete extinction, says the department officials, is an early agreement between Great Britain and the United States to prohibit the catching of all seals except males more than 2 years old.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Minimum and Maximum of Sleep.

"The old rule of eight hours' sleep is sheer nonsense," said a New Orleans physician, chatting after office hours. "Natural sleep is something that can't be regulated by any formula. The body takes what it needs, be it much or little, and the necessary amount varies with the individual. In a general way I would say that four hours is the minimum and ten hours the maximum for people in fair health. Either more or less is a pretty sure sign that something is out of gear—usually something in the brain. I have two patients who sleep only four hours, and keep in tolerable good condition. Both are middle-aged men and neither of them work very hard. They are simply so constituted that nature can repair its losses in four hours of unconsciousness. In many other people nearly three times as long is required; the nerve cells work more slowly—why, nobody knows. The queerest case that ever came under my personal observation was that of a bookkeeper, who used to sleep two or three hours a night through the week, and on Sunday would catch up in a twenty-four hour nap.

"That is no exaggeration, but an actual fact, well known to all his intimates. He seems to be able to store away nervous energy as a camel stores water. His general health during the twelve or fifteen years I have known him was excellent, but he finally died from an attack of pneumonia. All the lower form of animal life requires more sleep than man, with one exception, and that is the ant. As far as we know, the ant doesn't sleep at all."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Proceedings of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders.

(OFFICIAL.)

Adjourned regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N J., held Thursday, November 16th, 1899, at 2:30 o'clock p. m.

Roll call showed all members present except Freeholders Ehrlich, Hulskamper and Swain—3.

The minutes of the previous meeting, (reading of bills being omitted), were on motion approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

From Howard P. Reynolds, treasurer, etc., of Muhlenberg Hospital, Plainfield, acknowledging on behalf of the board of governors of said hospital, the annual contribution, $1,500, from this board, and returning sincere thanks therefor.

Pending the annual receipts from regular subscribers, the contribution from this board had come at a most opportune time.

A formal receipt had been sent to County Collector Wood.

On motion of Freeholder King received and placed on file.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Farrell:

Resolved, That fifteen hundred dollars be advanced to the sheriff by the county collector for court and jury fees for the present term.

Freeholder Miller moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Roll:

Resolved, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union relinquish control of that portion of St. George's avenue extending from Grand street, in the city of Rahway, to the Middlesex county line, and that the map of said road be changed accordingly, and that a certified copy of this resolution be filed in the office of the county clerk.

Freeholder Miller moved the adoption of the resolution, which was duly seconded.

Freeholder Roll said that the resolution as presented was in line with an agreement made at the time said road was macadamized, the city of Rahway agreeing if the county paid two thirds of cost of macadamizing said road to pay the balance of one-third, and to assume control of said road on completion of said work.

Freeholder Farrell objected; he said in part that the city of Rahway, without being given any notice, might not accept control of said road; the macadamizing of said road had caused Middlesex county to construct three macadam roads connecting with said St. George's avenue, thereby making a highway which should be under the control of the county; some years ago the city of Elizabeth petitioned this Board to relinquish control of the Newark Boulevard, but the Board refused to do so, and he (Mr. Farrell) thought the rule should not be applied in different ways in different places.

Freeholder King said he agreed with Mr. Farrell, and moved to amend Freeholder Miller's motion by adding that the resolution lie over to next meeting.

Freeholder Miller said that he would withdraw his motion, whereupon Freeholder King renewed his motion to lay the resolution over until next meeting, and which was so ordered.

The following bills, audited and approved, were read, and on roll call unanimously ordered paid, viz:

Saw Possible Trouble Ahead.

In the mountain district of Tennessee there are many people who never saw a train, and when a railroad was surveyed and constructed through a wild part of the State but little work was done by the natives for a year. They put in the greater part of the time watching the workmen but the greatest event of their lives was when the first train came along. Some of them were afraid of the engine and gave it a wide berth. The track was finally laid as far as the Cumberland River, and, owing to the delay in the arrival of the bridge material, the workmen crossed the river and began the construction of a tunnel.

One day a tall, raw-boned Tennessean stood watching the work. There was a puzzled look in his face, and he finally said: "They may be able to hit that hole every time, but if they miss it there will be h—l to pay."

The man actually believed that no bridge would be built and the trains would make a flying leap across the river and dask into the tunnel on the other side.—Hermann Advertising-Courier.

Chauncey Depew's Washington House.

The old Webster mansion on H street, diagonally across the street from Secretary Hay's home, is in the hands of the decorators. They are putting it in shape for the coming of its master, Senator-elect Depew. The New York Senator's purpose is to entertain lavishly. It is one of the most noted houses facing Lafayette square, around which has floated the tide of the capital's social life ever since the establishment of the White House on the opposite side of the historic square.

Senator Depew will spend twice the amount of his salary on the item of rent alone. It a square south of the McLean mansion, where Admiral Dewey was a guest during the sword presentation ceremonies.—Boston Herald.

ALASKA'S GOLDEN BEACH

Like a Chapter From the Arabian Nights.

WEALTH OF CAPE NOME

New Facts About the Golden Sands—Dawson Will Be About Deserted—The Country All Staked for Miles—Cost of Food and Fuel.

Who solves the riddle of the Cape Nome beach sands, gold laden beyond the dreams of the most avaricious, says a correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, will earn enduring fame and the gratitude of the hundreds of prospectors who will search during the coming year the low mountains bordering the Arctic Ocean and Behring Sea for the "mother lode." The offspring of this "mother lode" are the placers of Snake River, Nome River, Anvil Creek and a score of other streams bordering Behring Sea and the Arctic Ocean, 135 miles north of St. Michael, 200 miles northwest of the Yukon's mouth.

It is easy to tell the truth about Cape Nome, but a very hard thing to make people believe you are not indulging in the wildest flights of fancy, of the Arabian Nights order. However, it happened that such very well-known army officers as Major Philip Ray and Captain Walker, who were stationed in Alaska last summer, made a thorough investigation of the diggings, and their reports at Washington substantiate everything that is said in this article. But probably the best proof of all of the wonderful Cape Nome sands, where gold was as free as the air to over 3000 stranded miners last summer, lies in the sacks of the yellow stuff which have been brought down during the past three months and sold to Uncle Sam through the government assay office at Seattle.

Assayer Wing estimates that at least $400,000 in Cape Nome gold has been deposited with him this fall, while the records of the transportation companies show that as much more has been disposed of through other sources, or sent to San Francisco.

The discoverers of the Cape Nome district were Peter Linderberg, John Lindbloom and Johan Brandson. The first two were sailors on the whaler Alaska. Becoming dissatisfied with their lot, in August, 1898, they deserted, landing on the beach near Cape Nome, on Norton Sound. They hid for a few days and then were taken into camp, hungry and worn, by the tribe of Eskimos. A few days later they canoed up the Snake River on a little prospecting trip. The result was that Linderberg and Lindbloom found gold-bearing gravel on a shallow bedrock on the bed of a creek entering Snake River. They rocked out over $5,000 on the second day, when they had laid out their claims. They kept their secret for a few days, brought in some of their countrymen from Port Clarence, and then organized the district. Since that day they have located claims all over the district, which is thirty miles square. It is estimated that each one of the three discoverers of Cape Nome has taken out upwards of $100,000 since their lucky find was made.

The romance about Cape Nome, however, lies in the discovery of gold in the beach sands. In June, this year, the camp numbered not over 300 people. Late in the month steamers from Dawson brought hundreds of miners down the Yukon bound "outside," having found mining in the interior unprofitable. They camped in tents on the beach at Nome, waiting for the steamers to take them to Seattle. Half of them had barely enough money to pay their passage. The rest were preparing to work their way to Seattle. One day, one of the miners in a tent accidentally found gold colors in sand beneath his tent. He seized a pan, and with the sea water panned a dozen pans full of the dirt. The deeper he went into the moist beach the higher grew the number of colors. In an hour's work he found a pay streak, with pans averaging 10c to 15c. That settled it. The next day sluice boxes, men with pans and shovels were thick on the beach as flies around a molasses barrel in a country store.

For weeks the beach fairly swarmed with men. All made wages of $5 up to $80 per day. All who were working at wages in the little City of Anvil, now called Nome, threw up their positions and went to paning gold on the beach. The deposits lay in a 60-foot strip between low and high tide, reserved by the government. It was free to all who came. There was no staking of claims, as no title could pass from the government.

At one time there were over 3,000 men at work on the beach. The steamers that came from Seattle with miners bound for Dawson, for the Koyukuk, Tanana and Forty-Mile districts, landed their passengers at Nome. Soon the country was staked for miles. The steamers two months later began bringing the beach miners to Seattle. Instead of coming down from the north with empty pockets, all had money. The individual amounts ran from a few hundred to $10,000. Great excitement reigned among north-bound miners, and returning steamers went away with every foot of space occupied by passengers and men.

Out of a space of ground 20 feet square on Anvil Creek two miners took $10,000 in a day. Back to the hills went the prospectors, over the tundra, in which they found colors. In the spring an effort will be made to find the mother lode, from which, it is supposed by the miners, glaciers ground down the gold-bearing rocks into the sea ages ago, depositing their precious contents on the sands for American miners to find at the dawn of the twentieth century. Nome is a typical mining camp in Alaska. Half of the people will live this winter in tents. Every article of food is dear. Wages are $10 per day and up. Hundreds have already gone to Dawson to winter, expecting to take the first boats for the new mining fields in the spring, beating the all-water route several weeks.

STUDIES IN THE EPISTLE

SUBJECT OF THE BIBLE CONFERENCE TO BE HELD NEXT WEEK.

Front Session to be Held in the First M. E. Church Sunday Afternoon—Regular Session will be Held in Y. M. C. A. Hall.

The subject of the Bible Conference to be held in this city next week, by Don O. Shelton, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and the young people's societies, will be "Five studies in the Epistle to the Ephesians"

The first session will be held on Sunday afternoon in the First M. E church at 4:15 o'clock. This will be a popular meeting, and will be held at that hour in order that Sunday-school teachers and students may go direct from their various churches.

The first regular session will be held Monday night, in Y. M. C. A. hall, and sessions will be held every night thereafter up to and including Friday. The subjects will be as follows:

Monday: "The view given by the Epistle of God the Father."

Tuesday: "The view given by the Epistle of the Person and Work of Jesus Christ."

Wednesday: "The view given by the Epistle of the Work of the Holy Spirit."

Thursday—Standards of Duty.

Friday—The Panoply of God.

Mr. Shelton advances the following suggestions for preparation for the conference:

Pray daily for the blessing of God upon the conference.

Read the Epistle at least six times, observe its teaching on the foregoing topics.

Bring a note-book and take full notes.

Bring your Bible.

Make a note of difficulties and of questions to which you wish an answer.

Series of Popular Sermons.

Rev. J. W. Richardson, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, is to preach a series of popular sermons with the following significant titles: "Scales and yard sticks—plain talk to clerks." "Saws and Chisels—plain talk to mechanics." "Books and accounts—plain talk to employers." "Shopping—what customers teach the clerks." The first sermon will be delivered next Sunday night.

Spain's Greatest Need.

Mr. R. P. Olivia, of Barcelonia, Spain, spends his winters at Aiken, S. C. Weak nerves had caused severe pains in the back of his head. On using Electric Bitters, America's greatest Blood and Nerve Remedy, all pain soon left him. He says that this grand medicine is what his country needs. All America knows that it cures liver and kidney trouble, purifies the blood, tones up the stomach, strengthens the nerves, puts vim, vigor and new life into every muscle, nerve and organ of the body. If weak, tired or ailing you need it. Every bottle guaranteed, only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

FINE VIEWS SHOWS.

Stereopticon Lecture Given at Park Avenue Baptist Church Last Night.

The stereopticon lecture on the Yellowstone National Park given by Edward P. Tenney at the Park Avenue Baptist church last night proved interesting to a fair sized audience. The views were very fine and exhibited in a realistic manner the picturesque beauties of this wonderful formation of nature, with its imposing and gigantic mountains, startling gysers and majestic and inspiring canons—the entire park containing acres of interesting scenes as amazing to be told as they are marvelous in their entirety. The views were among the best ever exhibited in this city and are said to have cost a round sum of money.

A Remarkable Old Woman.

Mrs. Nancy Jackson, mother of Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, who has been visiting him for several weeks, was tendered a reception last night by the members of the church. She sails for her home in Petersburg, Va., tomorrow. Mrs. Jackson is a remarkable woman. She is 71 years of age, and is able to thread a cambric needle without glasses; has never had the need of a physician; has given birth to thirteen children, only two of whom are now alive; has not a gray hair in her head; her step is elastic and she is in general good health.

An Interesting Speaker to be Heard.

An opportunity will be given tomorrow afternoon to listen to Jacob Riis, best known perhaps as author of "How the Other Half Lives." Mr Riis is to address the meeting of the City Union of Kings Daughters in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The meeting will be free to all and a general invitation is extended to all. Mr. Riis is a delightful speaker and is particularly well informed on the life of the poor in the great cities. He will tell something of his work.

Is Willing To Accept $400.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Public Library was held last evening. It was decided that if Common Council authorize the payment to the library of $400 in satisfaction of the difference between the amount requested to be raised by tax, and the amount actually levied in 1898, that that amount be accepted by the board in full settlement.

First Game In Daily Press League.

The opening game in The Daily Press Bowling League was played at Westfield last night, between the Westfield Club and the Roselle Casinos. The latter team won. A detailed account of the game will be published tomorrow.

MR POTTER'S FUNERAL.

HELD YESTERDAY AFTERNOON FROM HIS LATE HOME.

The House Thronged With Friends Who Desired to Pay a Final Tribute—Services in Charge of Rev. A. E. Main.

The funeral services of the late Charles Potter, Jr., were held yesterday afternoon from the home, West Seventh street, when a large number of relatives and friends assembled to pay their last tribute to one of Plainfield's most prominent and best known citizens, who was respected and loved by both high and low. Rev. Dr. A. E Main, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, where the deceased was a member and attendant, was in charge of the services and introduced those who took part.

After the singing of "Thy Will be Done," by a quartette composed of Mrs. Frank Clawson, Miss Nancy Randolph, E E. Runyon, appropriate Scripture selections were read by Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, who was a friend and neighbor of Mr. Potter for many years. Then followed a fervent prayer by President Theodore L. Gardner, of Salem College, West Virginia; who was a personal acquaintance of the deceased. After another selection by the quartette, "There is a Wideness in God's Mercy," Rev. Dr. Main made a few remarks. He spoke in part as follows: "Early last Sabbath morning this message was received by me: 'Dear Pastor, Father Potter has gone to spend Sabbath in Heaven. He passed away at 7:15 this morning.' I cannot but speak of the excellence of one whom I loved. He never pretended to be faultless, but as a Christian and citizen his deeds are worthy of historical record.

"In the first place Mr. Potter was my friend, and for years he has been one of the truest and best of friends. During the three years of my pastorate his words have been those of encouragement, and he has been kind and regular in his attendance at all the church services, thus proving himself to be one best and helpful members. He loved and was loyal to his church, and a generous supporter with his means. The church was the object of his love and he prayed for her growth and success.

"He was the most friendly of men, and always manifested his kindness of heart. A young machinist once called on him for advice, and in speaking afterward about his call remarked that if he had been Mr. Potter's own son he could not have been treated more kindly. He was one of the most hospitable of men, and there was always a warmth and cordiality that was more beautiful than his surroundings. He was a liberal man and in many ways his means was drawn upon to assist in objects that were worthy. One man remarked one time 'I am willing that such men as Mr. Potter should be rich,' so generously did all feel his abundance.

"There are many enterprises in this city and elsewhere that speak of him, and among the last institutions that he spoke of as needy was Muhlenberg Hospital. He was a trained, cultured and educated laboring man, and above all he was a Christian. He remarked not long ago 'I do not fear to die, for I settled the question long ago when I first met God.' His precious testimonies in the prayer meeting and his good life may well deserve the name of Christian. His earthly life of changes has been followed by a more glorious life beyond."

Dr. Main's address was followed with one by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, one time pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, and a long time personal friend of Mr. Potter. In part he talked as follows:

"There is no life that lives for the best that does not live for something besides self. Early in life our friend learned to live for others. He was not a denominational man in the narrow sense of the word, but was broad and liberal. He represented Christian manhood everywhere. Striking with his hand and heart for all that was good as Plainfield knows so well.

He was a strong missionary supporter in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and the various fields of labor shared in his generosity. At the end of the Civil War, West Virginia, among other border states suffered regarding the interests of the denominational church and there was a separation between the south and north. At that time Messrs. Potter & Hubbard, of their own accord, sent missionaries into West Virginia for two years, and the result is that a strong tie has been cemented and Salem College stands today as a living testimonial of that work. During my pastorate Mr. Potter sent two missionaries south. In early life he was a teacher and he knew the value of education. At Alfred University he founded the "Charles Potter Chair of History and Political Science," that has made his name immortal.

At this time Dr. Lewis read a letter of condolence from the trustees of Alfred University to the bereaved family and friends, after which he continued to speak of Mr. Potter regarding his interest and membership in various societies. He was trustee and president of the Seventh-Day Baptist Memorial Fund, and he was the president of the publishing interests of the denomination. The speaker then referred touchingly to a picture before him of four men, President Allen, of Alfred University; George H. Babcock, Charles Potter and himself. This four men toured through Europe in 1884 and of the four he is the only one left and spoke feelingly of the memories of that journey in closing his remarks.

After prayer was offered by B. C Davis, president of Alfred University the quartette sang a favorite hymn of the deceased, "The Bright Forevermore." The benediction was then pronounced by Dr. Main, after which an opportunity was given those present to take a last look at the face of the departed.

The remains laid in a handsome black casket in the front parlor, and were completely hidden by a profusion of flowers in the form of wreaths and roses, while there was a bank of flowers directly back of the casket, and at each end was placed broken columns of flowers.

After the services the interment took place in Hillside Cemetery.

In one of the rooms the chair usually occupied by Mr. Potter was draped in smilax and cut flowers, and a photograph of the absent one stood on a table at its side. The music rendered by the quartette was under the direction of Arthur L. Titsworth at the organ.

ELIZABETHIANS FAVORED.

Union's New Sheriff Draws His First Jury Panel—The Plainfielders Who Were Selected

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, December 6.—Robert L Houston, Union county's new Republican Sheriff, drew his first jury panel yesterday, and the outcome was a surprise for the rest of the county outside this city. Elizabeth gets thirty out of the fifty-four juryman, a percentage that far surpasses all previous jury panels. Cranford is entirely unrepresented. Following is the partial list:

Plainfield — Abraham Angleman, George R. Rockafellow, J. Wiswall Drayton, Walter R. Mattox, James M. Dunn.

Westfield—Charles E. Smith, Adam F. Huffman.

Springfield — George W. French, Abner Stiles, Frank R. Aldridge.

Fanwood—James Johnson, Joseph Clark, William Terry.

Linden — Samuel Oakford, John Brammer.

Union—James A. Long.

New Providence—William Simmons.

Sheriff Houston has not discriminate in favor of that part of Elizabeth where he resides, as Elizabethport, which has more than half the population of this city, has only twelve out of the thirty Elizabeth jurors.

AGUINALDO'S VIEWS

HIS PROCLAMATION TO THE FILIPINO ARMY.

Not To Cease Its Efforts As Long As There Are Any Strangers In the Land Trying to Enslave the Philippine People.

A proclamation has just been issued by Aguinaldo from Tarlac to the Philippine army and people. It reached Manila two days ago, just after the return of General Alejandrino, who brought in the letter containing peace proposals from Aguinaldo which was returned unopened. Aguinaldo has disbanded a portion of his troops in the north and sent them back to their homes, and in his proclamation he tells them to be peaceful when they return, so as to ensure non-interference from the Americans. In part the proclamation is believed to be the purport of the letter which General Otis refused to receive from General Alejandrino. Copies were sent to all the foreign Consuls in Manila, by whom he wishes, no doubt, to be recognized. The document is printed in Spanish and bears the seal of the Filipino Government. Following is a translation of the principal passages:

"In accordance with the humanitarian principles followed by our Government and army, I make known to my beloved people that all those who have no official duties to discharge may, as far as we are concerned, retire into private life to attend to their own business at their own homes, even in cases where their towns are occupied by the enemy. I only ask them to observe strict neutrality, and in case the Imperialists attempt to enlist their aid either by threats or by other means, I leave it to the calm judgment of the people to adopt whatever line of action is best, because I am thoroughly satisfied that they are all perfectly loyal.

"Our Government does not now require any very large number of troops, but only sufficient to maintain a force in the field and perform other duties. You may, moreover, rest satisfied in the knowledge that our army, which is honored so much, will not cease its efforts as long as there are any strangers in the land trying to enslave the Philippine people. The Philippine army would a thousand times rather die in defence of justice than submit, and, in truth, what is life worth without honor and in slavery? Beautiful it would be after more than three centuries with our ancient mother Spain, which gave us our civilization, to let ourselves fall under the domination of strangers who wish to force upon us new manners and sufferings, as, for example, their language; which we would have to become children again to learn. Keep in mind the saying, "Aug isit na dilat ay mahirap nang mabulag." ("The fruits of civilization enter into the soul never to be displaced.")

"Does the invader say that we must be governed according to the laws taken over from Spain? I think I am not wrong in believing that we know a little more about that than the newly arrived foreigners. A people that have known enough to recover their independence know enough to use it.

"On the other hand, this war which we are waging against the imperialists is beneficial to us inasmuch as it enlightens our people and brings out their best points, and the more lives we lose of our beloved brethren in arms the stronger becomes our feeling of patriotism and solidarity.

"But we must not forget that having once become independent we must take care not to promise more than we can perform, as did the Americans on their arrival here, saying they came to benefit and help the oppressed people to make them free and independent and to build up for us a government of our own with a distinctive national flag of our own, a binding promise in their own conscience and in the sight of all the great nations.

"And I call the civilized world to witness that the Philippine people and army have not forgotten nor broken the alliance and friendship which they made with the representative of the United States that came here, namely, Admiral Dewey, through the medium of the American Consuls in Hong Kong and Singapore. And so strong is the heart of my people, animated by that famous convention, that on seeing the Americans had confidence in our power the people and army of the Philippines cried out with one voice to liberate them immediately, saying:

"'We don't want and we won't have war against the United States.

"'The sons of that mighty nation are our friends and brothers.

"'We only defend our recovered independence against the imperialists, and ask for recognition.

"'We, therefore, give back to the United States her sons that have fallen into our hands, because our brothers and friends cannot be our prisoners.'

"In face of this unanimous petition, which agrees with my own feelings, I set the prisoners at liberty, authorizing the Secretary of War to return them to General Otis.

"In America there is a great party that insists on the United States Government recognizing Filipino independence. They will compel their country to fulfill the promises made to us in all solemnity and faith, although not put into writing. For this reason we must show our gratitude and maintain our position more resolutely than ever. We, therefore, pray to God on high that the great Democratic party of the United States will win the next election, and that imperialism will fail in its mad attempts to subjugate us by force of arms.

"We may base our hopes on the right feeling of the American people. There are, moreover, some Americans here in the Philippines who have joined our side, because they disapprove of the war which Mr. Atkinson calls 'criminal aggression,' and these Americans when offered the chance to return to their own camp have declined.

"In conclusion, I repeat to my compatriots that they should conceal the beauties of the Philippines and the riches of the country, in order that the grasping imperialists should not cause us any more trouble, and we shall enjoy everlasting peace.

EMILIO AGUINALDO."

ELEPHANTS IN THE ARMY.

Some Points as to Their Employment by the British in India.

One of the most interesting features of the English army life presented to the layman in India is furnished by the remarkable efficiency of the elephant brigade, most highly developed through the skill of the Burmese in handling the giant animals. Their usefulness in India can scarcely be imagined by one not familiar with the amount and variety of work which they accomplish, but it would be a serious mistake to imagine that this degree of usefulness is attained through any aptitude of the unwieldy animals or natural tendency toward it. It is due solely and entirely to the wonderful ability of the natives in training the huge animals and overcoming their natural inclinations. This cannot be too highly praised. Neither must it be imagined that the use of elephants in army life is not attended by great disadvantages, not the least of which is the difficulty with which they are transported.

Naturally the elephant is not an intelligent animal. He can be taught remarkable things, in which his strength and endurance play an important part. He can never, however, perform these feats without continual attendance and direction. Abstractly, his power of work is unappreciable; when directed by skillful hands, however, it is remarkable.

The transportation facilities which are provided for the sole use of the elephants are quite as remarkable. I witnessed recently the loading and detraining of a lot of elephants on the Madras Railway. Both were remarkable processes. In loading a rope is fastened to his fore-leg, and a lot of natives haul and pull at it to induce the animal to take the first steps into the car. This is only accomplished, however, by admonishing him in the haunch by means of a tusk. The first step taken is rapidly followed by the others until he stands safely on the car.

This portion of the task is accomplished comparatively easily, however, when compared with the next. At first he is timid and slightly frightened, but when the car starts his fear is wonderful to behold. Though he may ride a hundred times he never overcomes this fear, though it is much more pronounced when he takes his initial ride after, say two months' acquaintance with civilization. He rends the air with wild trumpetings, endeavors fruitlessly to escape, and only ceases his efforts when the car has again come to a standstill.

Of course, wonderfully strong cars are necessary to hold him. They are made completely of iron, with huge iron bars rising to a height of ten or twelve feet above the platform. Often these cars are rendered useless by the twisting of the bars, due to the application of the occupant's remarkable strength.

In transporting the elephant by sea the difficulties are almost as great. They are raised by means of a canvas sling from the wharf to the ship, struggling to escape and rending the air with the cries. Once aboard ship they are easily managed, the motion not affecting them, because they do not see the moving panorama before them. Unloading them is easy. They are lowered to a raft beside the ship and allowed to swim ashore. They take to the water easily and are excellent swimmers, being able to swim eight or ten miles at a stretch without tiring.

The size of the Indian elephant is usually about eight feet in height and ten feet in length. The male is a little larger, perhaps, eleven feet, and weighing about 5,000 pounds.

TROLLEY CARS RUN GO-AS-YOU-PLEASE

Rank Service From Plainfield Street Railway Company.

WESTFIELDERS ARE MAD.

SAY THE COMPANY IS NOT DOING AS IT AGREED.

The Matter May be Taken to the Courts—Scotch Plains Getting a Very Poor Service Early in the Morning and Late at Night—Theatre Party Was Left Here to Get Home as Best as They Could.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company seems to be running its cars on a sort of go as-you-please plan now days. It may be a very satisfactory manner for the company, but it is far from that for the people who patronize the trolley cars. The cars apparently run on any old schedule.

Last night a large delegation of Scotch Plains people came to this city and attended the performance at Music Hall. They expected, as usual, to catch a car after the performance to go home. After a long wait the Scotch Plains party were told that the last car had left for Scotch Plains at 11 o'clock. Plenty of cars seemed to be coming from Scotch Plains, but none went the other way. The Scotch Plains people got home as best they could.

The early morning patrons of the trolley line in Scotch Plains are up in arms against the trolley company on account of the new schedule which went into effect Sunday. When the extension was opened from Plainfield to the village it was possible for those working in the factories in Plainfield to catch a car every twelve minutes after 6 o'clock. This made it very convenient, especially in stormy weather when wheels and walking are discarded, and all flocked to the trolley terminus and took the 6:30 a. m. car to work.

Monday morning being a disagreeable day, the usual crowd, 25 strong, gathered at 6:30 and waited in vain for their usual car. Several passed on the way to Westfield and Cranford, but none came along for Plainfield until 7:20. It is needless to say the conductor was obliged to listen to a great many spicy sayings about the company and their new schedule while making the run to Plainfield. The men working in the press works were docked two hours' time for their tardiness, and this did little towards smoothing their ruffled tempers.

The superintendent of the road was appealed to and promised to give the workmen better service by running a special car, so about 7 o'clock Tuesday morning a special car was run to the Plains to accommodate the working delegation. When the car arrived it was found to be a car belonging to the "sure death" or open-air line, so a number refused to ride, preferring to walk rather than freeze to death in an open car. There is strong talk of bringing the matter to the attention of the Town Committee and see if this was the service promised when the franchise was asked for and granted.

Westfield people are indignant over the fact that a ten-cent fare is charged by the Rikers to carry passengers from that place to the Plainfield station.

In some manner it has been generally understood that the fare to Plainfield was to be five cents. Now the people are talking of bringing the matter before the Board of Trade, and if that body does not take action, a number say that they will get together and have an injunction served on the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company.

Many of the citizens claim the Rikers by charging the ten-cent fare, got into Westfield under misrepresentation. Many of the property owners who signed consents for the trolley here claim that they did so believing the fare would be only five cents to Plainfield. Now they say they were deceived and if nothing else can be done they will boycott the trolley.

It is believed a public meeting will be held in the near future with the view of taking action to compel the trolley company to make the fare five cents.

Pneumonia Express in Elizabeth.

The North Jersey Traction Company continues to run open summer cars in Elizabeth each morning and evening to carry the Singer employes, and there is a good deal of indignation thereat. If the company persists Mayor Mack will take steps to prevent so many of the patrons of the road being thus dangerously exposed to severe weather.

—V. L. Frazee supplied refreshments to the clerks and inspectors of election in the Fourth ward for which they wish to return thanks.

HIS STORY NOT STRAIGHT

JAMES THOMAS WAS CONVICTED OF STEALING OVERALLS.

Took Them From in Front of O. M. Dunham's Store on Front Street—Sentenced to Jail for Two Months.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Dec. 7—At court of special sessions yesterday, presided over by Judge B. A. Vail, James Thomas, colored, charged with having on the night of Nov 10th last stolen a dozen pairs of overalls from the gents' furnishing store of Oscar M. Dunham, of Plainfield, was arraigned, tried and convicted.

Oscar M. Dunham, the complainant, swore that the overalls found in Thomas' possession were a portion of his goods.

Officer McCann, who arrested Thomas at New Brunswick a day or two later, said that he met Thomas on the street with two pairs of overalls in his possession, which he was endeavoring to dispose of to the passersby.

Thomas, on taking the stand in his own behalf, said that he belonged at Newark. He was at Plainfield on the night the goods were alleged to have been stolen, but knew nothing whatever regarding the theft. He bought the goods from a stranger and went to New Brunswick to dispose of them, but did not go there until the following day.

Closely questioned, he got considerably mixed up in his story.

He admitted having been arrested at Newark on two occasions; once for taking part in a bar-room fight, for which he was fined, and once on a charge of larceny, in which he proved his innocence.

The court found Thomas guilty and sentenced him to two months in jail.

GONE TO HER MAKER.

Obsequies Held Over the Remains of the Late Sarah A. MacDonald Yesterday Afternoon.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Sarah A., widow of Rudolphus MacDonald, were held yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the home, corner of East Front street and Watchung avenue. There was a very large attendance of friends and relatives who assembled to pay homage to the memory of one who was respected and loved by all.

After Elmer E. Runyon sang effectively "Abide With Me," Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, read appropriate Scripture selections, after which he very tenderly spoke of the great mystery of human suffering, and as to why God allowed His children to pass through such pain and suffering. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, then spoke concerning the beautiful Christian life of the departed, and what an example she left for those with whom she was surrounded. He referred to her patience in suffering, her generosity and of her noble Christian qualities, and told of how she had conquered death by living such a worthy life. At the close of Dr. Schenck's remarks he offered a fervent prayer. "Thy Will Be Done," was then tenderly sung by Mr. Runyon.

There was a profusion of floral tributes, both large and small and of great beauty. The Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, of which the deceased was an honorary member, sent a beautiful floral tribute as a token of the high esteem in which the departed was held.

After the service the remains were placed in the receiving vault at Hillside cemetery, pending the selection of a family plot. At the receiving vault Dr. Richards offered prayer and pronounced the benediction. Those who served as pall-bearers were J. B. Coward, G. L. VanEmburgh, E. H. Holmes, A. L. Force, Thomas E. MacDonald and William H. Martin.

Census Supervisor Busy.

Charles S. Tunis, supervisor of census for this, the fourth, census district of New Jersey, comprising Union, Middlesex, Somerset and Hunterdon counties, is a busy man. He particularly desires the aid of our public-spirited citizens in the endeavor to make a better showing by far than has been made at previous censuses. He will be in the city from time to time, and may be addressed at 417 George street, New Brunswick.

Non Union Men Employed.

After efforts for a compromise between the company officials and striking employes had failed the Summit Silk Mills has started up again with a number of non-union weavers. A committee of the strikers had a conference recently with President Othaniel De Forest, but no understanding was arrived at. The firm asked that three policeman be stationed at the mill to prevent disturbances.

THE NEW COUNCIL.

Caucus of the New Members Will be Held to Decide About the Organization of the Body.

The Common Council for 1900 will be made up entirely of Republicans as follows: B. Frank Coriell, B. I. Tolles, George P. Mellick, John VanHerwerden, Frank C. Smith, J. F. Buckle, J. B. Dumont, Charles B. Clifton, William L. Gloak, Robert L. Lee and James Craig.

Sometime during the present month there will be a caucus of the new Council when the slate for committees, etc., will be fixed, prior to the first meeting of the new body in January. As New Year's falls on the first Monday it is quite likely that the meeting will be held on the following evening. This can be arranged by the Council.

NEWARK CHUCH WANTS HIM

Rev. Lester Leggett Has Received a Call From the North Reformed Society, Which Has 900 Members.

Rev. Lester Leggett, of Washington avenue, who has for sometime past been engaged in evangelistic work, has received and accepted a call from the North Reformed church, of Newark, to become its assistant pastor. He therefore expects to close his evangelistic work at Schuylerville, Sunday, December 17th, and enters upon his new duties at the church December 19th. This call was unsolicited, and was therefore a surprise to Mr. Leggett.

The church to which he goes is the largest one of the demomination in Newark, having a membership of 900, and a Sunday-school of over 1,400 members. Mr. Leggett is a Christian worker of great ability and will no doubt be the means of materially increasing the interest and membership in his new field of labor.

SHE IS NERVY.

Audacious Book Agent Poses as a Government Agent in Order to Get Subscribers for Her Book.

A new method of securing subscriptions has been reported to the authorities of this city. Plainfield and Westfield residents report that a young woman of prepossessing appearance has been visiting their homes claiming to be in the Government employ and making a directory of school children. After ascertaining the names of the children from the lady of the house, she asks that the housekeeper sign it to authenticate the statement. A blank is signed. Just as this young woman prepares to depart she smilingly inquires whether they prefer the 3 or the 5-cent a day books. Then it is discovered that the young woman is a book agent and employs these means to obtain subscriptions. Such are the experiences of a number of local householders.

Twenty-Four at Children's Home.

The monthly meeting of the lady managers of the Children's Home was held at the Y. M. C. A. this morning. Since the last meeting one boy has been admitted to the institution, making the number twenty-four in all. The ladies are arranging for a Christmas festival during the holidays, but no definite date has been fixed upon yet. A committee will arrange for the festival, of which due notice will be given later.

Granted an Absolute Divorce.

Through the efforts of Codington & Swackhamer Chancellor Alex T. McGill has granted an absolute divorce, on the grounds of desertion, to Mrs. Charles B. VanWinkle. Mrs. VanWinkle's maiden name was Maria L. Way, of Galia. The couple were married in May, 1887. Mr. VanWinkle was at one time a well known lawyer of this city. The couple lived together for a number of years.

Sunday-school Officers Elected.

The annual meeting of the Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school was held last evening for the purpose of selecting officers for the ensuing year. The following were unanimously chosen: Superintendent, E. E. Anthony; assistant superintendent, F. E. Smith; librarian, H. C. VanEmburgh; assistants, James A. Love and H. W. Marshall; treasurer, T. A. VanZandt; secretary, E. H. Bird.

Stole Wearing Apparel.

The tailor establishment of Mantz Bros., on East Front street, was broken into a few nights ago. Entrance was effected by forcing the padlock of the door leading to the shop. The thieves first entered the hallway, the outside door being left unfastened. An overcoat and several pairs of trousers were stolen. The police were notified and Capt. Grant is making diligent search for the perpetrators.

Her Eighty-second Birthday.

Mrs. Catherine D. Woodruff, mother of W. A. Woodruff, is quietly celebrating the eighty-second anniversary of her birthday today at her home, 215 East Second street.

THE DAILY PRESS BOWLING LEAGUE.

Opening Games Rolled on Westfield Club Alleys.

ROSELLE TWICE VICTORIOUS

HIGH SCORES WERE ROLLED IN ALL THREE GAMES.

Roselle Won the First Game by a Single Pin—Led by Eleven Pins on the Second—Roselle Lost the Pace in the Third Game and Suffered Defeat 811 to 717—An Auspicious Opening.

An auspicious opening of The Daily Press Bowling League took place at Westfield Tuesday evening when the teams from the Westfield Club and the Roselle Casino met and rolled the first three games of the league. Roselle captured the first two games by small margins after exciting contests. The home club won the third game easily. The scores were all high, Townley, of Westfield carrying off the honors of the evening by his steady bowling.

The first game started with Westfield in the lead in the first frame, but the visitors soon changed this and kept ahead until the ninth, when Townley made a double-header and Forster came up with a strike and sent Westfield ahead by seven pins. In the last frame Patterson and Dean, of Roselle, scored strikes and Mulford doubled. Westfield failed to stand the pace and the visitors won by a single pin, 818 to 817.

In the second game the Roselle bowlers rolled a record game in which Patterson particularly distinguished himself. He opened with three strikes and a spare at the start and appeared in line for high score of the evening. His score fell off toward the last, however. The visitors kept the lead until the seventh frame when the Westfield team pulled up and took the lead by one pin. In the eighth, the home team still led by six pins, but the Roselle contingent did the trick, all except Dean, winding up with spares. Roselle won the game, 837 to 826.

Both teams started off poorly in the third game but Roselle braced slightly and managed to remain in the lead from the start to the sixth frame when Townley came to the front with a double and rescued Westfield from a third defeat. Westfield jumped into the lead by 22 pins and remained there until the end, rolling better and better each frame. The wind-up for Westfield was strong, Townley continuing his good work with three strikes. Roselle was weak on the final frames. Westfield took the game by 94 pins, the score being 811 to 717.

The individual scores were as follows:

WESTFIELD CLUB.

	1st game.	2d game.	3d game.
Forster	144	176	169
Condit	161	148	175
W. Smith	155	154	137

Vocal Sight Reading Class.

Immediately after the Christmas holidays Miss Anna O. Marsh will form an afternoon vocal sight reading class for young ladies over eighteen years, and an evening class for ladies or mixed voices, if enough pupils enroll. A sight-playing class on piano will also probably be formed. The classes will meet at Miss Marsh's home, 915 Madison avenue. Applications should be made promptly, and further information will be given if desired.

High School Teacher Ill.

Miss Ellen K. Cumming, instructress at the Plainfield High School, is ill at her home on College place. During her absence Ralph Campbell is filling the position very satisfactorily. Mr. Campbell graduated from the Plainfield High School in 1893, took a post graduate course and then entered the University of New York, where he graduated with honors in 1898. He has since travelled in Europe.

Pupils With Good Records.

The following is a list of the pupils of the Greenbrook school who have been most regular in attendance during the first three months of the year, ending Nov. 29th. Absence for one half day or tardiness causes the loss of one credit: Anna Doty, 1; Isabel Morris, 1; Ada Vail, 2; Willie Morris, 4; Arthur Morris 4; Benj. Vail, 4; Katie Vail, 4; Eva Randolph, 4; Lillie Peterson, 5; Nellie Vail, 6.

—The grill room at The Kensington is becoming very popular with many who like good service and a superior menu.

CHRISTMAS IN HIGH SCHOOL.

Senior Class Has Arranged an Entertainment to Provide for the Funds for the Festivities.

Christmas is to observed this year by the classes of the Plainfield High School with more than the usual ceremonies. The members of the Senior class have proposed a novel method of meeting the expenses to be incurred by their share in the festivities. They will hold a "Birthday Tea" in the Franklin school hall Monday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. There will be an informal entertainment during that time. Each guest will be expected to leave at the door as many cents as he or she is years old. The Seniors will be particularly happy to see as many as possible over three score years but all will be welcome.

PARALYTIC STROKE FATAL.

Mrs. Mary Dresselt Stricken Yesterday Morning and Passed Away Today—Born in Germany.

Mrs. Mary Dresselt, aged sixty-six years, mother of Charles Dresselt, of Lincoln place, died this morning from the effects of a paralytic stroke she received yesterday morning. She had up to that time been in remarkable good health and was about every day.

Mrs. Dresselt was born in Germany and came to this country about thirty-five years ago, settling in New York. There she remained ten years, after which she resided in Hoboken for a time, then she came to Plainfield, where she lived ever since. She had a host of friends and was well thought of by all who knew her. She was a member of the German Reformed church, where she attended regularly. She leaves one son, Charles Dresselt.

The funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon from the German Reformed church, Craig place, at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be in the North Plainfield cemetery.

FLESH WAS SCALDED.

Hot Water Upset by Mrs. John Van Fleet—Injury Had to be Treated by a Physician.

Mrs. John VanFleet, of Greenbrook road and Grove street, is laid up at her home the result of an accident which occurred yesterday. She was lifting a pot of hot boiling water from the stove at her home, when the contents were upset and spilled on her foot. The flesh was burned from the foot, leaving the bones exposed. Mrs. VanFleet suffered excruciating pain, and her cries attracted the attention of the neighbors who hastened to the house and gave their assistance. The sufferer was made as comfortable as possible and a physician was called who gave the proper treatment. It will be a long time before Mrs. Van Fleet will again be able to walk about.

Played Progressive Euchre.

The first progressive euchre party of the season at the Catholic Club was held last evening at the handsome quarters of the club on Liberty street. There were ten tables and a pleasant evening was enjoyed. P. J. Reville captured the gentlemen's first prize, a silver ash receiver. Miss Katherine Flynn won the ladies' prize, a silver bracelet. Refreshments were served after the games.

Prize Fighter Fined.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Dec. 7.—George Costello, of Brooklyn, one of the principals in a prize fight which occurred here a month ago, was brought before Judge Bartine at the close of the Somerset Court yesterday afternoon and fined $100. Costello fought in the ring under the name of "Kid Thomas," and defeated Antoni Bufano, of Pennsylvania.

To Spend Christmas in England.

Timothy Clark, of Spooner avenue, an employe of the Potter Printing Press Company, sails on the steamer Umbria on Saturday to spend Christmas with his parents, whom he has not seen for eight years, at his home in Barrow-in-Furness, England. His many friends wish him a pleasant voyage and a good time in the land of his boyhood.

Found it too Warm.

John Wilson descended from his post of observation on a passing freight train early this morning and made a short stop in Plainfield to get warm. Patrolman McCarty furnished him with all the advantages of a cell in the station house. This morning, City Judge Runyon suspended sentence and Wilson moved on.

Late S. B. Underhill's Funeral.

Samuel B. Underhill, who was well-known in this city, died at 885 West End avenue, New York, yesterday, aged eighty-three years. The funeral will be held tomorrow, Friday, at Friends' meeting house, Fifthteenth street and Rutherford place, New York, at 2 p. m.

—An important meeting of Stone Square Lodge, No 38, F. and A. M., will be held next Monday evening.

CHARMING DEBUTANTES.

FORMAL "COMING OUT" OF MISSES COX AND FISK.

Big Society Affairs This Week in Connection With Event—Reception This Evening—White Luncheon Tomorrow.

Plainfield society has looked forward with bright anticipation to the series of social events this week which mark the formal entrance into its ranks of the two charming young debutantes, Miss Fanny C. Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street, and Miss Louise G. Fisk, daughter of Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of West Seventh street. Today the formal "coming out" takes place at a reception given by Mrs. Rowland Cox at her spacious home to introduce the young women.

Preceding the formal function, an "ante coming-out" dinner was given last evening to Miss Cox, Miss Fisk and the young society women who will assist at the reception today, together with a few other invited guests, by Mrs. S. L. Schoonmaker at her charming home on Central avenue. Covers were laid for fourteen. The table decorations were very beautiful. The dinner was an informal affair, but proved a very enjoyable occasion.

Tomorrow a "white" luncheon will be given by Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, in honor of the young debutantes. In the evening a formal dance will be given in the Casino. Saturday afternoon Mrs. Fisk will give a theatre party to the young women at a matinee of the Kendals in "The Elder Miss Blossom" at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York. It will be followed by a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Stabbing Affray at Bernardsville.

A stabbing affray took place during a drunken frolic at the residence of M. Bosko, a Hungarian, living near the railroad station at Bernardsville. Bosko has had for some time a number of Hungarians boarding with him. During a general quarrel and fight, Bosko, it is alleged, stabbed one of his boarders in two places, inflicting serious wounds. Some of the wounded man's comrades assisted him to Dr. Sutphen's residence, where his wounds were dressed. It was found upon examination that the knife had laid bare the jugular vein, just missing it. Bosko was arrested and, after a hearing, was put under bail for $500 to appear before the Grand Jury.

LARGE INVESTMENT IN NEW DWELLINGS.

MANY FINE RESIDENCES.

REMARKABLE GROWTH IN THE NETHERWOOD DISTRICT.

More New Houses Built in Netherwood This Summer Than in Last Seven Years—Building in the West End Continues—Fred Endress is Making Repairs to His Store—19 Permits in November.

The steady growth of Plainfield continued during November despite the fact that the cold weather came and threatened to stop all building. The month was remarkable for the number of portentious dwellings that have been started. There were nineteen building permits issued during the month which is a slight decrease from the number issued during October. Six were for residences that will cost $4 000 or more to erect.

The new settlement in the vicinity of West Seventh street and Monroe avenue still continues to grow. A handsome residence has been designed for Frederick K. Fish, Jr., by Architect E. V. French, which has been started on West Seventh street next to A. C. Stebbin's new home, near Lee place. The house will cost over $4 000. Seaman Williams has the contract for the mason work and Charles M. Wilson the contract for the carpenter work.

Not far away, on West Seventh street, near the corner of Monroe avenue, Mrs. Minnie Stryker has started a charming residence that will cost $4,000. It was designed by Architect Fred L. Lancaster. A. A. Stryker is building it. Mrs. Stryker has started a similar frame dwelling at 1216 Watchung avenue which will also reach $4 000. The plans for the latter were drawn by A. L. C. Marsh, while A. A. Stryker is doing the building.

Another new residence for the West End is in the course of erection at 804 West Front street. It is owned by Mrs. Henry Liefke. It's cost will reach $4,000. F. L. Lancaster was the architect, W. Thompson the mason and W. H. Brokaw the carpenter.

A substantial boom seems to have reached Netherwood this summer and fall. Twenty-eight new houses have been built there since last spring, more than were heretofore erected in seven years. Manning and Runyon have started another $5,000 colonial residence on Belvidere avenue, corner of Park lane. It is a frame structure with a dressed stone foundation. W. H. Clum is the architect. J. Mitchell is doing the mason work and James C. Manning the carpenter work.

David Hand has a brick dwelling started on Berkeley avenue in the rear of the Hotel Hunterston property. It will cost $3,500. W. S. Jimerson is the mason and G. Hoffman the carpenter.

Edward F. Maynard has moved the cottage that formerly stood at 514 West Fourth street, and is erecting a $2,500 cottage in its place. W. Tallamy is doing the mason work and W. S. Pound the carpenter work.

A $1 600 cottage is being built on East Sixth street, near Berckman street. B. R. Cain is the owner and builder, while W. C. Smith has the contract for the mason work. F. L. Lancaster was the architect.

A $2,500 frame cottage is being built on Westervelt avenue, near Orange street, by John C. Abbott. He has given the mason work to J. H. Snyder and is doing the remainder of the work himself.

An extensive extension is being made in the present establishment of Fred Endress, the West Front street butcher. It will cost at least $4,000. The plans provide for a large extension in the rear for a larger ice plant and cold storage room. J. H. Snyder has the contract for the mason work and E. C. Schenck for the carpenter work.

The other permits granted during the month were for small additions in various parts of the city and for several barns and a greenhouse.

Patent for Plainfielder.

Louis Bagger & Co., Patent Attorneys, Washington, report that on last Tuesday William E. Brock, a resident of this place, obtained a valuable patent for improvements in portable buildings, and to other residents of this State seventeen patents were issued on the same date.

Wrecked by the Wind.

Yesterday afternoon one of the large sidewalk show cases in front of Leder-er's dry goods store was wrecked by the wind. The case was upset and the glass went into hundreds of pieces. Fortunately the hats inside were not damaged.

HUSBAND LED THE MOB.

Lashbrook Started Fire That Cremated Coleman.

HIS FRIGHTFUL REVENGE.

A Deaf Ear Turned to Colored Murderer's Plea For Life—Burning of the Negro Witnessed by Fully Five Thousand People—Wronged Husband Thinks he Did Right.

Maysville, Ky., Dec. 7.—Dick Coleman, the negro murderer of Mrs. Lashbrook, was taken from the officers by a mob of 1,000 men Wednesday and burned at the stake.

The mob, led by the husband of the negro's victim, dragged the shrieking criminal through the principal streets of the town, bound him to a small tree, set fire to the brush and stood guard until he was dead.

Coleman arrived under a special guard of deputies sworn in by the Sheriff, including Detective Fitzgerald, Constable Dawson, Chief of Police Donovan, all the police force and two deputy sheriffs.

When they arrived at the court-house they were met by a mob of fully 1,000 people, headed by James Lashbrook, the husband of the murdered woman.

The officers were compelled to deliver their prisoner, and the mob went immediately up Second street through the Central portion of the city, followed by fully five thousand of the citizens of the town and county.

No attempt at disguise was made by the members of the mob. They worked in grim silence, scarcely a word being spoken beyond the curt commands of their leaders.

A dozen men dragged Coleman from the grasp of his guards, and, throwing a rope over his head, dragged him through the streets. The wretch shrieked constantly for mercy, pleading for his life at every step.

The mob carried Coleman to a small hollow near the railroad, where they bound him tightly to a young sapling. Then they heaped a huge pile of brushwood and timber about him and fired the stack, while he continued his cries for help.

Some one cut out his eyes, and in a moment his head rolled around and he was believed to be dead. A dozen torches were applied simultaneously and huge tongues of flame swept up and around the senseless body.

As the flames burst forth the immense crowd broke into cheers, which continued as long as the fire burned. Before the roasting began Coleman was almost dead.

The rope had torn and lacerated his neck and his face was terribly beaten up.

Before Coleman was burned blue vitriol and cayenne pepper were thrown into his eyes and his face was smashed in with a chunk of wood.

Many women were present during the burning. Just before Coleman died he raised his head and is reported to have said:

"If you take the flames away I want to say something," then he sank back and died.

Judge Harberson will call a special grand jury at once to consider charges against the leaders of the mob.

Coleman had been kept in the jail at Covington since his arrest because of his fear of mob violence at Maysville.

Coleman was in mortal terror when he was handcuffed to be placed in the train. He begged piteously to be allowed to stay in Covington until after the trial was ended.

After the lynching was over, James Lashbrook, husband of the woman whom Coleman criminally assaulted and murdered last August, said:

"I touched the match to the fire that sent Coleman to his doom. I did as I thought right. I will stand for all that may follow."

Miller Plunder is Held.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 7.—United States District Judge Thomas has granted an order here to the attorneys for the creditors of "Syndicate" Miller, restraining Property Clerk Blatchford, of Police Headquarters, from paying over $13,000 to the receiver appointed to wind up Miller's affairs. The money is claimed by the creditors. Miller will be declared a bankrupt, and by this means all of his available assets will go to the creditors.

Union Pacific Strike Ended

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 7.—Grand President John McNeill of the Amalgamated Federation of Boiler Makers, who has been in Omaha several days in conference with President Burt of the Union Pacific Railroad relative to the strikers at Cheyenne, announces that the trouble is practically settled and that in all probability the strikers will return to work next Monday. The company will adjust wages satisfactorily.

Defies Capture in a Swamp.

Newburg, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Martin R. Cavanaugh, an inmate of the Matteawan State Hospital, escaped from the institution on September 30, and although deputies cornered him and had the handcuffs on his wrists, through the aid of a dozen relatives he made his way to a swamp in the rear of his home where he and his armed relatives have defied capture ever since.

Judge Houghton For Supreme Bench

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 7.—From present indications it is probable that County Judge Houghton, of Saratoga County, will be selected by Governor Roosevelt to fill the vacancy on the Supreme Court bench in the Third Judicial District, caused by the death of Justice Putnam.

Griffin May Play in Chicago.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 7.—"Tim" Hurst is responsible for the statement that "Mike" Griffin will play with the St. Louis club next season, and is only waiting for the final disposition of his suit against the Brooklyn club for one year's salary as manager—$2,500.

The Earth Shaken in South Dakota.

Faulkton, S. D., Dec. 7.—An earth quake shock was plainly felt in this vicinity on Wednesday The seismic vibration was very perceptible, but lasted only an instant.

BLAME FOR BERKLEY'S DEATH.

Gran Jury Investigating the Drowning of Cornell Student.

Geneva, N. Y., Dec. 7.—The Seneca County Grand Jury is in session at Waterloo, the county seat, and has taken up the investigation of the drowning of Edward F. Berkeley, the Cornell student who lost his life during the preliminaries of initiation into the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

It was thought that the explanation of the students had settled the matter to the satisfaction of the authorities, and the investigation is somewhat of a surprise. The District Attorney has announced that he intends to sift the matter to the bottom to find out if any crime was committed, and, if so, to punish the offenders. He is subjected to considerable criticism by citizens of the county for prosecuting the case, as they declare it a needless expense to the county, which, they say, can avail nothing.

It is believed Mr. Berkeley, the father of the drowned student, is investigating the matter. It was given out after his visit here that he was satisfied that the drowning was purely accidental and that no one could be blamed, but it is now said that he does not feel entirely reconciled and wants the authorities to push a formal investigation. The District Attorney says there has been a demand on the part of a large number of citizens to sift the case to the bottom.

It will be remembered that Berkeley was sent to pin a paper on the Lehigh Valley bridge, near Seneca Lake, by Philip S. Dickinson, a fellow student. As he went to perform the act in obedience to his upper classman, he came to the canal and plunging into the water, was drowned.

Can't Get Armor Plate.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The Secretary of the Navy has transmitted to the Senate a report made by Rear Admiral O'Neil upon the subject of armor plate for naval vessels. It reviews the whole subject of armor plate and the efforts that have been made to obtain armor at the price fixed by Congress. It goes into the subject of manufacture of armor plate in great detail, and ends by recommending that the restriction of price be removed. If it is not, it asserts that it will be impossible to continue the construction of modern naval vessels. As to the establishment of a Government armor plate factory it is asserted that owing to the increase in the price of materials, it is necessary to add 20 per cent. to the estimate of $3,000,000 made heretofore as to the cost of such plant.

Sues Mother For Wages.

New Brunswick, N. J., Dec. 7.—A curious case is being tried before Judge Strong and a jury. Lonselle Schenck, 40 years old, is suing his mother for $800, which he claims is due on a contract by which he was to receive 75 cents a week and his board for services. His mother, Mrs. Marinda Schenck, declares that her son did not work for her during the time alleged by the contract. She also presents an offset of about $1,400 for board during the time when he was not working for her. While Mrs. Schenck was on the stand, she broke down and became hysterical. Her daughter also burst into sobs, and the taking of testimony had to be delayed until the women recovered their equanimity. Mrs. Schenck is over 65 years of age. She lives in Jamesburg.

Bryan May Succeed Hayward.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Since the death of Senator Hayward of Nebraska there has been a revival of the talk about William J. Bryan's possible appointment to this place. It is pointed out that Mr. Bryan has broken all his enthat Mr. Bryan has broken all his engagements without apparent reason, and gone into retreat, so that he could not be accused of influencing Governor Poynter if the latter should appoint him. G. M. Hitchcock will, however, be the Senator from Nebraska, unless the authorities on politics of that state are widely astray. There is no doubt that if Mr. Bryan chose to put himself forward as a candidate Gov. Poynter would name him, but he has not done this, and the Governor is known to favor Hitchcock.

Wood Promoted a Maior General.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The President has sent the following nominations to the Senate:

War.—Brigadier Gen. Leonard Wood, U. S. V., to be major general of volunteers.

Colonels to be Brigadier Generals—Edward R. Kellogg, Sixth U. S. I.; Gilbert S. Carpenter, Eighteenth U. S. I.; William A. Kobbe, Thirty-fifth U. S. V.; J. Franklin Bell, Thirty-sixth U. S. V.

State.—Heaton W. Harris of Ohio, to be Consul at Mannheim, Germany.

Gen. Gordon Stands By Flag.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 7.—General John B. Gordon of Georgia, commander-in-chief of the Confederate Veterans of America, in speaking on the Philippines question Wednesday night said:

"My sympathies go out to the men who are fighting under the Stars and Stripes, wherever they are, and I am not in favor of pulling the Flag down. I guess that shows where I stand."

Canvass of Soldier Vote.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Secretary of State McDonough has informed the chairman of the Republican and Democratic State Committees that on Tuesday, at noon, he would count the official war ballots. The only soldier votes cast at the last election were by New York men in Cuba. The soldiers in the Philippines and Porto Rico had no facilities.

Miller and Waller Lead.

New York, Dec. 7.—Miller and Waller are still in the lead in the six-day bicycle race in Madison Square Garden, with Maya and McEachern, Gimm and Pierce, Fischer and Chevallier, Stevens and Turville and Babcock and Stinson, dangerously close to them. All of the riders named have made more than 1,416 miles already and the leaders are only eight laps ahead.

Unanimously Approved.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The Republican members of the House of Representatives have given their unanimous approval to the House Financial bill, recently introduced, and recommended its immediate consideration and passage. This was accomplished at the caucus held in the hall of the House.

WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS

THEY ARE FILTERS FOR THE BLOOD.

Few people understand the important part performed by the kidneys in filtering the blood. As the blood in its circulation through the body passes through the kidneys, its impurity is left in the kidneys, which in turn empties the secretions into the bladder in the form of urine

If the kidneys are blocked and filtration of the blood from poisonous or diseased germs prevented thereby, the result is one or all of the following: Sleeplessness Nervous Prostration, Weak Back, Pains in the Back and Loins; Scalding, Dark and Cloudy Urine; Dizziness, Rheumatism, Diabetes, Congestion of the Kidneys, Bright's Disease and Inflammation of the Bladder.

Unhealthy Kidneys Must be Treated.

A medicine is needed that will properly promote the filtration of the blood and check the over-secretion of urine.

Plainfield People Are Respectfully Asked to Answer These Questions.

Is there anything in the evidence of one's census?

Can the reader dispute and then disprove local evidence!

Can reliance be placed upon statements from people we know?

Are the opinions of residents of Plainfield of any greater moment than opinions held by residents of Maine or Michigan?

Would you sooner believe people living in those states than those in your own city?

Answer these questions honestly after you have quietly read the following:

Mr F O Smith, of 686 West Front street, contractor for painting, etc, says: "For sometime I had symtoms of kidney trouble and despite all my endeavors to get rid of it, I never was successful until I obtained a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at L. W. Randolph's drug store. There was a distressing pain across the small of my back which clung to me all the time. When I got seated at times if I moved a sharp pain struck me in the back and loins and almost made me exclaim. Any change in the weather if I caught the least cold always aggravated the trouble and cause me to suffer severely. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me by one of my employes who had been cured of a long standing case of kidney complaint by their use. I commenced the treatment and derived benefit from it immediately, and before I had finished the first box I was cured."

CAN MAKE HIS OWN PLEA.

Congressman-Elect Roberts to Meet With Committee.

SESSIONS MAY BE SECRET

The Discussion of Family Matters Likely to be Held Behind Closed Doors—Roberts Draws a Portion of His Salary—Petitions Presented in Senate Against Polygamy.

Washington, Dec. 7.—An initial meeting of the committee appointed to investigate the charges against Brigham H. Roberts, the member-elect from Utah, on which the accussed is barred from taking his seat in the fifty-sixth Congress, has been held to decide upon a plan of procedure by which the matter can be finally disposed of at as early a date as possible. The proceedings of the committee were not altogether of a public character, but enough has been learned of what transpired to warrant the statement that Mr. Roberts will be granted the privilege of making a personal plea before the committee and he will also be allowed counsel at the committee hearing of his case.

In discussing this important matter after the meeting had adjourned, Representative Taylor, of Ohio, chairman of the committee, declared that he could not say how soon the committee would be able to report, although he expressed the opinion that the inquiry would proceed with all due expedition as the claimant was entitled to an early decision. There are many witnesses here and some in Utah, but it is likely that the committee will not leave Washington, although there are some precedents for extending an inquiry to other points.

Mr. Taylor said the arguments in election cases were usually open to the public, but he had some doubt as to whether the hearings, particularly such parts as involved family matters, should be open.

These details are yet to be determined, Mr. Taylor saying that the essential question was to secure a calm and unprejudiced consideration of the eligibility of the claimant.

Mr. Roberts was about the House during Wednesday. There was no session and he was engaged most of the time in chatting with groups of members and visitors, who showed a friendly disposition toward him. He said he had no comment to make on the course of the House. He will likely look after his interests in person before the Committee of Inquiry.

Whether the pay of Mr. Roberts, of Utah, is stopped as a result of the action of the House in refusing him a seat has not been passed upon by the House officials, and will not directly arise until the January pay certificates are issued by Speaker Henderson, by which time it is expected that the case will be permanently settled.

Mr. Roberts drew his pay up to December 3, the day before Congress assembled, on the certificate of Clerk McDowell that he was a member-elect. With the opening of Congress the issuance of certificates developes on the Speaker, the monthly certificate reading that there is due the member a stated sum "as a member of the House of Representatives of the Fifty-sixth Congress."

Whether this certificate could be issued to Mr. Roberts as "a member" is open to doubt, but it is believed that the final action of the House in the case will remove all doubt before Jan. 3, when the next certificates are issued.

Mr. Rawlins, Utah, presented a resolution providing for a full investigation of alleged polygamous practices in the United States and of the charge that the President has appointed polygamists to federal offices. It was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. Jones, Arkansas, offered a resolution that Senator N. B. Scott, of West Virginia, is not entitled to a seat in the Senate. The resolution, together with a memorial of John McGraw on the subject, was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Petitions Against Polygamy.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Attorney-General, the Controller of the Currency and reports of other officials were presented at Wednesday's session of the Senate.

Few were in the galleries, as it was supposed that the proceedings of the day would be of purely routine character.

Mr. Kyle, Mr. Kean and Mr. Wolcott presented petitions against polygamy.

Mr. Aldrich, chairman of the Finance Committee, had the distinction of introducing the first bill at the present session. It was what is known as the Senate finance measure, and is "to affirm the existing standard of value of all forms of money, to refund the public debt and for other purposes." It was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Senator Chandler introduced bills applying the customs and internal laws of the United States to the islands of Cuba and Porto Rico after January 1, 1900. Goods between the islands and the United States are to be exchanged as between the States.

A concurrent resolution adopted by the Legislature of Michigan was presented by Mr. McMillan, Michigan. The resolution protested against the policy of the Russian government toward Finland and was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Senator Allison, chairman of the Republican caucus of the Senate, announced the committee which the caucus authorized him to appoint for the allotment of committee places in the Senate. The list is as follows: Senators Aldrich, Cullom, McMillan, Hansbrough, Lodge, Perkins, Elkins, Spencer, Platt, New York.

Mallory Liner Crash.

Boston, Dec. 7.—The Mallory line steamer Lampasas, Capt. Staples, has arrived here with a gaping hole in her bow, having collided with the Pollock Rip Lightship. The Lampasas is the regular boat plying between New York and Galveston, Tex., but came here this trip with cotton. Capt. Staples says he thinks the lightship is seriously damaged. The Lampasas will proceed immediately to New York for repairs.

GEN. JOUBERT QUITS NATAL.

He goes to Volksrust Across the Border in Transvaal.

London, Dec. 7.—A despatch from Pretoria says:—Gen. Joubert is indisposed and has arrived at Volksrust, across the Transvaal border (not far from Charlestown, in the extreme north of Natal) for medical treatment.

A despatch from the Hoad Laagor, where Gen. Schalk Burger is in supreme command during the absence of Gen. Joubert, announces that a council of war was held Dec. 2 with reference to assaulting Ladysmith. The State Attorney has arrived at the camp to advise the Boer commanders.

Everything is quiet at Ladysmith. Despatches from the West report that there was a heavy artillery duel at Mafeking during the morning of Dec. 2.

All quiet at Kimberley. Comfortable wood and iron houses have been erected at Waterfall, a few miles from Pretoria, for the rank and file of the British prisoners. Count Devillo Leblois, a Colonel in the French army, has joined the Transvaal forces as an authorized military attache.

Pope May Help Boers.

London, Dec. 7.—Emphatic advices from Rome assert that Pope Leo XIII. has declared without reserve that if Great Britain attempts to obliterate the two South African independent states, now at war with her, he will raise his voice in strenuous protest.

The declaration was called forth by a direct query addressed to the Pope from Dr. Leyds, the accredited representative of the Transvaal Republic in Europe.

The sympathies of Leo XIII. are with the Boers, as has been frequently shown in his expressions on the subject to members of the Sacred College and other prelates who have had audience with him within the last few weeks. The official Vatican press also has clearly reflected this attitude on his part.

The French Republic looks to the Vatican to give it unqualified moral support in an effort to prevent the suppression of the Transvaal Republic and Orange Free State if the war should result in the triumph of the British. The Ambassador of France to the Holy See has suddenly returned to Rome, and is in frequent consultation with the Papal Secretary of State, Cardinal Rampolla.

The Continental project of intervention in the war has not been dropped. France is conducting active negotiations to that end, and her Foreign Minister is constantly exchanging views with the Vatican on the subject.

The Pope keeps himself informed as to the progress of the war, causing the dispatches from South Africa in the English papers to be translated for him daily, by his personal secretaries.

Boers Do Great Damage.

Ladysmith, Dec. 7.—Great damage has been done during the last three days by the Boer artillery, which commands the camp here. A new and powerful gun has been located on Lombards Kop, and practice with it commenced on November 29.

This bombardment has been resumed and still continues. The camps of the Gordon Highlanders and of the Manchester regiment has suffered severely. Since this big piece of artillery commenced operations a number of the most effective British guns have been sheltered.

Ready to Attack Gatacre.

Queenstown, Cape Colony, Dec. 7.—There is great activity of Boer forces reported in this vicinity. Wires have been cut in all directions, and it is believed that the enemy has occupied Steynesburg. Some exchanges are reported between Gen. Gattarre's forces, and the Boer commando, and a general engagement may occur soon.

Motorman Run Over and Killed.

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 7.—Clarence W. Smith, a motorman on the Paterson, Passaic and Rutherford Electric Railway, was running his car through Carlstadt, and leaned out over the front of the car to see if his headlight was in good shape. He lost his balance and fell in front of his own car. The wheels passed over him, killing him. Conductor Baxter saw the accident only when his car had passed over Smith's body. Smith leaves a wife and three children.

Mrs. Van Praag Sentenced.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—Jessie Van Praag, the wife of "Sol" Van Praag, a levee saloon-keeper and ex-State Legislator, had been found guilty of robbing a Western stockman and sentenced to an indefinite term in the penitentiary. Sol Van Praag is best known in New York as "the man who touched Croker," and got $50 from him during the County Democracy's visit to New York last year.

Grip Attacks Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 7.—Just at this time, when numerous complaints are being made because the streets are not properly cleaned, Philadelphia is again suffering from the annual visit of the grip. Its ravages are widespread and apparently on the increase. Already it is apparent that the present visitation is more severe than last year's, although physicians are not yet convinced that it is an epidemic.

Count Tolstoi Near Death.

London, Dec. 7.—A dispatch from Berlin says Count Tolstoi has been seriously ill. For two days he was unconscious, but he is now slightly better, although great anxiety still is manifested in Moscow regarding him.

THE MARKET.

New York, Dec. 7.—The stock market showed a tendency to advance to-day. The prominent issues, except Manhattan and Metropolitan, all showed small fractional gains.

THAT'S THE IDEA!
You ought to see what we can do for you before doing anything for yourself. Painting depends upon the paint and the painter. Better preparations than ours were never put on by a brush. Wherever paint is put, it should be put there to stay long enough to make it worth while to do the job. The warring elements have no effect on our durable mixtures.

AFTER EFFECTS.
The way some dyspepsia and constipation remedies act reminds you of the Bible story of the man who drove a devil out of his house and then swept and garnished it so fine that the evil spirit came back again and brought with him seven other devils worse than himself. So "the last state of that man was worst than the first."
Sometimes disease appears to have been dislodged and driven out of the system by an unscientific medicine; it may seem to go with apparently wonderful suddenness, but is liable to come back seven-fold worse than before. A thoroughly scientific remedy like Ripans Tabules acts so naturally upon the system that the entire constitution is fortified against a return of the trouble. There is no re-action; no relapse; no depressing after effect. The Tabules relieve the acute symptoms like headache and sour stomach very quickly. The bowels are affected only in a regular, natural way, but the cure is permanent.
A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

W. J. KINSLEY TESTIFIES.

Handwriting Expert Appears in the Molineux Trial.

New York, Dec. 7.—William J. Kinsley was the first handwriting expert called in the Molineux trial. He came upon the stand late Wednesday afternoon, and his testimony was admitted by Recorder Goff after a vigorous protest from Mr. Weeks.

When the poison trial was resumed Wednesday afternoon Rudolph Heiles, Molineux's former confidence, was still on the stand. He had spent most of the morning under a trying cross-examination by Mr. Weeks, who asked him as to his purchases of silverware in Newark and led him to admit a personal hostility to Cornish.

Assistant District Attorney Osborne followed with a series of questions to show that Heiles could not have been implicated in the poisoning. He likewise submitted to the witness specimens of the handwriting of Molineux, Harpster and of Heiles himself.

One letter identified by Heiles was to John D. Adams, and in it Molineux tells of his resignation from the Knickerbocker Athletic Club, admitting that he had been a disturbing element in its counsels and saying that he was opposed to allowing an employe (Cornish) to use the club for his personal gain and to get even with gentlemen who happened to displease him.

Another letter to Dr. Peter T. Austen told of his dislike for Cornish.

YAQUI INDIANS DEFEATED.

Report That General Torres Forced Them to Retreat Nov. 28.

Ortiz, Mex., Dec. 7.—A courier has arrived here from the scene of the Yaqui war with despatches from Gen. Torres to the War Department. The courier reports that the fighting between the Yaqui Indians and Gen. Torres's troops ceased on Nov. 28 and that the Indians retreated toward Tonichi. Several hundred Yaquis, who have been fortified strongly in a position near Sahuarina, it is believed, are preparing to join the main body of braves driven back by Gen. Torres. Signal fires indicated that a concerted movement by the Indians was being planned.

The courier says that the Yaquis's losses in killed and wounded during the ten days' engagement was estimated at 200. The Mexican losses were fifteen killed and thirteen wounded.

Trial For a School Teacher.

Newburg, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Emma Duncan, a pretty school teacher, 18 years old, of Kent, Putnam County, will be tried on next Saturday, before Justice of the Peace there, charged with assaulting a girl pupil 13 years old. The alleged assault occurred some time ago, and since then the people of the country school have been ranging themselves on different sides of the question. The result was that Miss Duncan's enemy charged her with the assault and demanded a trial. The defenders of the teacher have engaged the best counsel they could obtain.

Thought Dead But is Alive.

Middletown, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Max Hemeyer, an apprentice on the United States ship Alliance, surprised his parents here Wednesday when he appeared before them after an absence of many months. They had heard that he had been washed overboard when the ship was 900 miles off the island of St. Thomas, and mourned him as dead. He said that he had been washed overboard in the night, but had attracted the attention of the men on board ship by whistling, and they saved him.

A Contractor's Queer Death.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 7.—William F. Harherson, aged sixty-seven years, a former well to do contractor of this city, met death in a peculiar manner here. While walking to his home he became benumbed with cold and fell down a railroad embankment into a small stream, which was frozen over. Harherson's head went through the ice, which formed a collar about his neck, and strangled him to death.

Editor McConnell Dead.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 7.—James McConnell, one of the editors and stockholders of the Evening Star, died on Wednesday at his home in this city. Mr. McConnell was associated in New York with Horace Greeley for many years, then came to Philadelphia and took a desk on the editorial staff of the Star, of which he was one of the owners.

Fire in Mississippi.

Meridian, Miss., Dec. 7.—Fire has destroyed the Rosenbaum block causing a property loss estimated at $250,000. The upper floors of the Rosenbaum block were used for office and lodge rooms and a number of lawyers, doctors and dentists are heavy losers.

Rats Cause Break in Canal.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 7.—There is a break in the Delaware and Raritan Canal at Turnpike Bridge, five miles above this city. Muskrats are held responsible for the accident. The water is now being drawn off and the break will be repaired in a few days.

Another Revolt in Guatemala.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—News has reached here of another revolutionary outbreak in Guatemala. Few details are obtainable as yet, but it is known that the movement so far is confined to the northern portion of the country, near the Mexican boundary line.

MADE THE FILIPINOS RUN.

Cronin and Parker's Forces do Some Hard Fighting.

IN A FOUR-HOUR BATTLE.

They Succeed in Putting to Flight 1,000 Natives at Vigan—The Enemy Leaves Thirty-Five Dead on Battlefield—Gunboat Wheeling Takes Men to Reinforce Americans.

Manila, Dec. 7.—Advices have just reached here stating that on the night of Dec. 4, 1,000 Filipinos attacked 200 men under Major Cronin and Lieut.-Col. Parker at Vigan.

The fighting was desperate at very close range. The Americans had eight killed and three wounded. The enemy escaped to the mountain pass, leaving thirty-five dead and several wounded on the field in addition to a quantity of arms.

The gunboat Wheeling has taken 150 men, the 3d Cavalry from San Fabian to reinforce Cronin and Parker.

Long Despatch From Gen. Otis.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Gen. Otis has cabled to the Secretary of War a long dispatch with reference to recent operations of the troops in northern Luzon and an account of the night attack on Vigan which resulted in the defeat of the invading insurgents. Gen. Otis remarks that Gen. Young has not been heard from since Nov. 29, but he thinks that he must be in the vicinity of Vigan with a large force. Gen. Otis, under date of Dec. 6, says:

"General Young with thirteen companies infantry and nine troops cavalry not heard from since 29th ultimo. He was then about twenty miles south Vigan and most of troops marching to his support, but then had with him three troops cavalry, battalion 33d Infantry and Macabebe scouts. One company of 23d Infantry sent by boat to Vigan to reinforce navy there; Lieut.-Colonel Parker, 45th, reports from Vigan 5th instant that he has not heard from Young for a week.

"Filipinos, 800 strong, made an attack on his force, consisting B company and 153 sick and footsore men 23d Infantry, 4 o'clock morning 4th, entering city in darkness. Severe street fighting ensued, continued four hours. Enemy driven out, leaving behind forty dead, thirty-two prisoners, including many officers, and eighty-four rifles. Now on outskirts entrenching. Parker says can hold out indefinitely. Plenty ammunition and rations. His loss, six enlisted men killed, three wounded. One hundred and sixty men now being transported from San Fabian to his relief. Young must be in vicinity with large force."

MURDER WILL OUT.

Quick Solution of the Scarsdale Crime.

New York, Dec. 7.—Edgar Burns, who has been arrested for the murder of Herbert P. Fallows, at Scarsdale, N. Y., has confessed to Chief McClusky that he had committed the crime.

"Burns stated to me," said Captain McClusky, "that he waited around the station until Fallows got through with his work. He said he saw the agent put the money into a bag.

"'I'll walk home with you,' Burns said to Fallows, 'as I'm going to Tuckahoe, anyway.'

"When about one hundred yards from Fallow's house Burns drew his pistol and shot him in the back of the head.

"Burns then pulled the dying man off the road into some bushes. He opened the bag, took out the cash and hurried to the Tuckahoe station.

"He caught the 11:01 p. m. train for this city. After his arrival here Burns spent all of his time up to when he was arrested at the bicycle races.

"Burns is a bicycle enthusiast and a cigarette fiend."

Snow-Bound Buffalo.

Buffalo, Dec. 7.—At the severe storm here, four inches of snow fell, and in many parts of the city it drifted to a height of two feet.

Early in the morning nearly every line of the Buffalo Railroad Company was tied up by the storm. Mrs. Elizabeth Martin, 65 years old, was found in the streets unconscious and freezing, having been overcome by the storm. Firemen were hampered by the gale at several fires, on of which occurred at police headquarters.

The marine interests were considerably worried. Upon all vessels that were in port the insurance expired, and to avoid this many of them put out for trips up or down the lakes. There is great anxiety felt by the owners of the vessels which are out.

Arsenic in the Tea.

Winstead, Conn., Dec. 7.—That a second attempt has been made to kill David Drinkwater was proven when the analysis of the dregs of the bowl of tea which made Mrs. Drinkwater ill was completed. Arsenic was found in the dregs. This attempt relieves from suspicion Charles Hart, now in jail, charged with shooting at Drinkwater a week ago. At that time it was thought that the would-be murderer mistook Drinkwater for J. B. Green, a neighbor, and as Hart had had trouble with Green, he was suspected.

Broker Takes His Life in Hotel.

New Rochelle, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Fredrick B. Russell, a real estate broker, with an office in room No. 810 of No. 19 Liberty street, Manhattan, committed suicide late Wednesday afternoon in an ante-room of Alderman Daniel A. Brady's hotel here. He fired a bullet through his heart. Russell was dead before help arrived.

Sold at a High Figure.

New York, Dec. 7.—A seat on the New York Stock Exchange was sold Wednesday for $40,000. This is the highest price ever paid for a seat on the Exchange. The name of the purchaser was not given.

Jones May Rest in Arlington.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Senator Penrose has introduced a bill for the removal of the bones of John Paul Jones from Paris to Arlington Cemetery.

Under private ownership the citizens of Bessimer, Mich., pay $1 per month for incandescent electric lights.

Under public ownership the citizens of Stanton, Mich., pay 50 cents for the same service.

County Care of Insane.

Middlesex County Freeholders see what they think will be a saving of $ 0,000 per year in the project of a county insane asylum. Like the legislators of Union county they have been investigating the subject, and at the session yesterday the committee on lunacy reported that Camden county maintained a successful county institution for the care of the insane at a saving of sixty per cent. over the cost when its dependents were inmates of the State asylums.

Middlesex now pays over $25,000 per year for the care of the insane, and it is believed that a saving of $10,000 can be secured if a county asylum is established and maintained. The Freeholders regard the subject with such favor that is is likely that the question will be submitted to the voters of the county at the next election.

The question of what might be saved in expense over the present system of putting the county's patients in State institutions is not the only phase of the matter that should be given serious consideration. One of the most important matters is whether or not the patients can be given as humane care in a small institution like that that would exist in Middlesex as they now receive in the State asylums.

Unless the people are convinced that they can there should be no change, even though the expense might be somewhat less. Those unfortunates whose minds have been wrecked deserve and must have scientific and careful attention in the institutions where they are confined. There should be no experimenting with them for the sake of saving money.

Congressman Fowler has introduced a bill in the House of Representatives appropriating $250,000 for the erection of a public building in Elizabeth. The introduction of such a bill is one of the easiest and simplest things that a Congressman can do, but getting it passed—there's the rub. Even sometimes when the bill is passed and the money is at hand to put up the building, the measure does not become effective. New Brunswick's far-famed public building scheme is an instance of it. There the project has been halted because of the big prices that local real estate owners want of Uncle Sam for a site for the structure. Uncle Sam is generally a liberal old fellow, but sometimes there is a point to which even he will not go, and in New Brunswick it seems to have been reached.

The promoters of the bridge over the North river, connecting New York and New Jersey, are again becoming active, and the New York officials have been notified that the company back of the project are ready to apply for the public privileges in the metropolis necessary to the consummation of the great enterprise. The interests of New Jersey would be immeasurably advanced and improved by the completion of this enterprise. As long as New Jersey makes a bid for commuter element, the lack of better facilities than ferries afford to cross the North river will always be a drawback to securing as good results as would prevail with either tunnel or bridge advantages for making the journey.

It would require several sheets of foolscap paper, a Philadelphia lawyer and a whole world of patience for one to make head or tail out of the election returns as prepared and printed in the esteemed News. Such a botch of printing election figures was never seen before—except in the same sheet.

Defeated, but not discouraged—say the local Democratic organization men The Democrats have now got a whole year in which to prepare for the next election struggle, and they aver that they are going to improve the time.

Senator Kean, if he is a man of sympathetic impulses, will soon blossom out in a full fledged orator in Washington. The Sage of Ursino occupies a set in the Senate right at the elbow of Senator Depew.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Plainfield did well at its city election. The clean sweep of the city by the Republican candidates in the face of thorough Democratic organization shows popular appreciation of the high principles for which the party stands in local government as well as in State administration and National policy.—New York Tribune.

Plainfield went Republican in its charter election Tuesday, the majority being nearly eight hundred The result of the November election evidently took all the heart out of the Democrats, who are, however, a minority in the town and had no prospects of electing their candidates.—Newark Advertiser.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

President of the Common Council F H, Andrews, who was one of the interested attendants at the city clerk's office election day evening, struck a happy vein in speaking of his retirement from office. He said that he was amused to see what a scramble there was on the part of persons to get in and out of office. As for himself he was glad that he was about to retire He felt strongly impressed with the idea of writing a book and ventured to say that Councilman Leifke and himself intend to write a book on the subject "What We Know of Public Life in Plainfield" In this book will appear a graphic account of the management of the City Industrial Home, and incidentally there may appear photos of the authors and some who have been associated with them in their work. It is safe to say that the book will have a great sale in this city.

Recent events have again brought forth a discussion regarding the individual communion cup to be used in churches. That the present method is not in any respect cleanly or sanitary, and that there is a opportunity for the carrying of disease, has led a number of people to discuss the question largely. It cannot be understood by any fair minded man why the individual cup is not used, when it is believed that it is the desire of officers in churches to prevent the spread of disease. It is contended that if there were guests being entertained at a private home the host or hostess would not think of passing one glass around and let that be used by every one present. A separate glass would be used for each one, and if this practice is so well established in the home, is it not more important that it should be the rule in a public place. This is one of the strongest arguments offered by those supporting the theory that the individual cup should be used. There are many people who are not very cleanly in their habits yet they cannot be deprived of the right to commune, for they are entitled to that right the same as others who are scrupulously clean. Yet, it is contended that a person who is perfectly clean in their habits should not be compelled to use a cup that has been used by a person who is not. That the individual cup has not been universally adopted in the Plainfield churches is a source of wonderment to many people who have given the subject serious consideration.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 7.—The community was shocked yesterday to learn of the sudden death of Miss Alice W. Pearce, which occurred yesterday morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. Smith Watson. Miss Pearce had been in ill health for some months, but it was not until about a week ago that she was confined to her bed. Her death was due to peritonitis. She was about 23 years of age, and the daughter of Mrs. George Pearce, of Point Pleasant. Undertaker Runyon will ship the body to Point Pleasant for burial.

Charles H. Adams, a well known citizen of the borough died last night at his home on Washington avenue, aged 68 years. Mr. Adams had been ill for several weeks with typhoid pneumonia and no hopes had been entertained of his recovery. Mr. Adams was a member of the Methodist church and a man highly respected. In his early life Mr. Adams followed the carpenter trade and was a builder of some local reputation. No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral.

At the last meeting of the Common Council a communication was received from the Brunswick Traction Company, stating that they would macadamize each side of the track from a point near Jefferson avenue, east to the county line. The contract has been let to Garretson & Gray to do the work.

Miss Mary Touzeau, daughter of James Touzeau, was married last evening to Herbert Williams, a young man employed by the Central Railroad in the New Jersey office. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. J. Martine in the presence of the family and a few friends.

The funeral of Jesse Darlymple will be held from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. A. L. Randolph, on Washington avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock. Revs. A. J. Martine and Frank Fletcher will officiate. The body will be taken to Bound Brook for burial.

The gentleman's supper, which is to be given in the Presbyterian church this evening, promises to be a novel affair. The young gentlemen are to don white aprons and show their dexterity as waiters.

Mrs. George Pearce, of Point Pleasant, is in town, called here by the sudden death of her daughter Alice.

The Dunellen football team has disbanded for the season.

There are many vacant houses in Dunellen at present.

SCOTCH PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec.—A party by the name of Wahl, hailing from New Providence, was the unfortunate victim of a runaway yesterday morning near Fanwood. Mr. Wahl was on his way to Rahway with a load of timber. While driving over the railroad bridge near Smith's lumber yard his team became frightened and started to run away down the hill. The driver held on to the frightened animals until near the bottom of the hill when he was thrown out under the wheels. The heavy load passed over one leg breaking it and bruising him quite badly. Dr. Westcott was called and set the injured member, after which he was carried to his home in New Providence.

The Sacred Literature Society of the Baptist church held a regular weekly meeting in the parlors of the church Wednesday evening. "Monuments of Phœnicia and Syria" was the subject of the evening's study.

Fanwood Bucket and Engine Company held their regular monthly meeting in their rooms last evening. Routine business only was transacted.

George Cottrell, who has been spending two weeks with his aunt, Mrs. Charles N. Flanders, has returned to his home in Bayonne.

"The Village Postmaster," at the Music Hall last evening, was enjoyed by a number of the residents of the village.

Mrs. Eben Goodwin and children, of Fanwood, are visiting friends in Washington, D. C., for several weeks.

Mrs. Maria Noble will leave shortly for Newark, where she will spend the winter with her son, Morton C. Noble.

Mr. and Mrs. George Goodbrough and child will spend the winter with relatives in New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gere are entertaining Mrs. Gere's sister, Miss Brockway, of Brooklyn.

The Borough Council of Fanwood held a regular meeting in the borough rooms last evening.

In its advanced and chronic form a cold in the head is known as Nasal Catarrh and is the recognized source of other diseases. Having stood the test of continued successful use, Ely's Cream Balm is recognized as a specific for membranal diseases in the nasal passages, and you should resort to this treatment in your own case. It is not drying, does not produce sneezing. Price 50 cents at druggists or by mail. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York. Give up prejudice and try it.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Dec. 7.—There will be a special school meeting at the Westfield Club hall Thursday evening, when the Board of Education will ask for an appropriation of $45,000 with which to build a new primary building on Elm street, also for $4,000 to build a new school-house at Mountainside. It is not likely that they will be successful, however, as the people expressed themselves at the last regular school meeting as being in favor of building two small schools instead of the one large one.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. will meet this evening.

—Owing to the opening of the Bible conference at the M. E. church Sunday afternoon the usual men's rally meeting will be omitted Sunday afternoon.

—The public drinking fountain fund originated by the W. C. T. U. still continues to grow and it is hoped that before long the fountain will be a reality.

—An entertainment will be given at the residence, 112 West Fourth street, Saturday afternoon next at 3 o'clock, by some little folks for a worthy object.

—W. O. Chapman is chairman of the Christmas committee at the First Baptist church Sunday school, and the committee is now planning for the annual entertainment.

THE PURSUIT OF GENERAL AGUINALDO.

The map shows the field of recent operations in the northern part of Luzon. It was here that the troops under Generals Young and MacArthur put to flight the Filipino forces under the command of General Aguinaldo himself. The Americans captured town after town, but Aguinaldo escaped into the province of Zambeles.

PARTICULAR MENTION

PERSONAL GOSSIP OF INTEREST TO CITY AND BOROUGH.

In Brief are Told the Daily Doings of Many Residents and Visitors Who Go and Come in a Social and Business Way

Miss Edith Hulburt, of West Front street, is improved from a severe illness.

William Pangborn, of Princeton, has been visiting relatives in the borough.

George Opdyke, of Chautauqua, N. Y., formerly a resident of West Eighth street, is in town calling on friends.

William J. Kilfoil, of Princeton, has returned home after a short visit with friends in town.

Linn Randolph, of Newark has been visiting his brother, L. W. Randolph, of Washington Park.

Charles H. Herring, of New York, has been visiting his son, Rev. C. E. Herring, of Watchung avenue.

Councilman J. F. Buckle, of Westervelt avenue, who has been quite ill, is reported to be slightly improved.

Patrick Kelleher is seriously ill, having suffered from bursting a blood vessel Monday night at his home in the borough.

Miss Hattie Bush and Clayton Ackerman, of this city, were married last week at Bound Brook by Rev. Mr. Davis, of that place. The bridesmaid was Miss Kittie Ackerman, sister of the bride, and John McCollough was best man.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

"The Village Postmaster," which is a good deal like "The Old Homestead" and other bucolic dramas, was produced in Music Hall last night before a large audience. A large company of players were engaged in the presentation, and a carload of special scenery furnished many realistic scenes of New Hampshire life of a half century ago. The action of the piece is subdued throughout, but notwithstanding there are many intense and thrilling climaxes. The cast of characters was portrayed by a company which was capable in every respect.

The coming of the ever funny farce-comedy "Peck's Bad Boy," at Music Hall Saturday afternoon and night, will delight every small boy, for there is nothing short of a circus that will make the eyes of the small boy sparkle with delight as quickly as a sight of the flaming posters along the walls announcing the coming of "Peck's Bad Boy." But not only does the small boy enjoy it but adults as well, for it carries them back to the days of long ago and for the time they forget all cares, and imagine themselves back to their boyhood days. The play is full of bright and sparkling specialties, catchy music, combined with the pranks of the bad boy, make it one of the most entertaining of plays.

The programmes at F. F. Proctor's two continuous performance theatres, Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre and Proctor's Palace, are always unusually attractive to the suburban visitors who weekly visit New York city. At Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, week of Dec. 11th, some of the features are Gertrude Mansfield and Caryl Wilbur in a bright comedietta; Watson, Hutchings and Edwards in a funny German farce; Mr. and Mrs. Augustin Neuvelle, comedy players; Vernon, ventriloquist; Dobert's poodles, and others. At Proctor's Palace, week of Dec. 11th, the leaders are John C. Cox and Katie Allen & Co. in a new comedietta; West and Williams, talking comedians; Dellaven and Nale, singers and cake walkers; Freeze Bros., tambourine spinners; Musical Ravens, kalatechnoscope, with a number of new moving pictures of the Transvaal, etc. Unusually good entertainments are being prepared for the Proctor houses for Christmas week and the doors will open Christmas day at 9:30 a. m., and run continuously till 11 p. m. that night.

—The advertisement in The Daily Press asking for the return of a lost setter pup has been successful in finding the dog. It has been returned to its owner at 967 Madison avenue and a reward was paid.

—Doane & Edsall are advertising a special sale on a lot of women's shoes, just purchased of a large shoe firm in New York that have closed out their stock at a discount and gone out of business. See their ad.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. "All thought she must soon die from pneumonia, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, saying it had more than once saved her life, and had cured her of consumption. After three small doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Oesterreich.

Wien. Das Unterrichtsministerium hat in das diesjährige Budget den Betrag von 400,000 Gulden zur Errichtung eines neuen elektro-technischen Instituts an der technischen Hochschule eingestellt.—Hier starb der Scharfrichter Sellinger, der in seinem Leben 140 arme Sünder vom Leben zum Tode befördert hat.—Im laufenden Wintersemester wurden an der philosophischen Fakultät der Wiener Universität 13 ordentliche und 34 außerordentliche, zusammen daher 47 Hörerinnen neu inskribirt. Außerdem wurde 44 Frauen die Bewilligung einzelne Vorlesungen als Hospitantinnen zu besuchen, ertheilt. Rechnet man hierzu die im letzten Studienjahre inskribirten 39 Hörerinnen, so ergibt sich für dieses Wintersemester eine Gesammtfrequenz von 130 Frauen.

Brünn. Der in der hiesigen Möbelfabrik Sigmund Deutsch u. Co. angestellte 20jährige Max Epstein ist unter Mitnahme eines Betrages von mehr als 2000 Gulden flüchtig geworden.

Budapest. Der Professor am hiesigen Polytechnikum, Dr. Eugen Petersfy, hat sich auf der Fahrt zwischen Karlstadt und Fiume im Schnellzuge erschossen. Dr. Petersfy war ein begabter Schriftsteller, dessen Arbeiten auf philosophischem und ästhetischem Gebiete in der ungarischen Gelehrtenwelt Aufsehen erregten. Er war leider andauernd kränklich.

Dignano. Hier tödtete die Friseursgattin Civitico ihre in gemeinschaftlichem Haushalte mit ihr lebende 64jährige Schwiegermutter, indem sie ihr mit einem Rasirmesser die Kehle durchschnitt. Die Mörderin stellte sich selbst auf der städtischen Wachstube. Der That war ein heftiger Wortwechsel vorangegangen.

Innsbruck. Mit dem Bau der Zillerthalbahn wird es nun ernst. Ueber die Herstellung der neuen Eisenbahnbrücke von Jenbach an's rechte Inn-Ufer schweben bereits Verhandlungen. Es soll, wenn es die Witterung einigermaßen erlaubt, noch in diesem Jahre mit den Bahnarbeiten begonnen werden. Also wird die neue Bahn jetzt endgiltig das linke Ziller-Ufer berühren.

Krakau. Der Direktor der Sparkasse in Wieliczka, Nowacki, gewesener Bürgermeister von Podgorze, einer Vorstadt Krakaus, wurde wegen entdeckter Mißbräuche bei der Sparkasse suspendirt.

Lemberg. In dem Prozesse wegen Unterschleife bei der galizischen Sparkasse verneinten die Geschworenen sämmtliche Fragen bei Szepanowski einstimmig, bei den übrigen Angeklagten mit Stimmenmehrheit, worauf sämmtliche Angeklagte freigesprochen wurden.

Prag. Dieser Tage wurde von dem Erkenntnißgericht der wiederholt bestrafte Arbeiter Karl Steger, der bei den Exzessen am Wenzelsplatz Steine warf und sich der Arretirung widersetzte, indem er den Wachmann mit einem Steine in's Gesicht schlug und ausrief: „Brüder, laßt mich nicht verhaften!" zu vier Jahren schweren Kerkers verurtheilt.

Schweiz.

Luzern. Durch die abgelaufene sehr gute Saison ist die Baulust auf dem Rigi neuerdings angeregt worden. Die Aktiengesellschaft des Hotels Kaltbad hat das sogenannte „Klösterli," das heißt den südlichen Anbau an das Badegebäude, abreißen lassen; an dessen Stelle wird ein schöner Neubau aufgeführt, durch welchen die Bettenzahl, über welche dieses Etablissement verfügt, um 80 vermehrt wird. Das kleine Hotel Felchlin oberhalb dem Staffel wird bedeutend vergrößert und auf dem Riedboden, rechts oberhalb dem Klösterli, ist ein stattlicher Neubau entstanden, durch welchen diese vielbesuchte Pension nun bedeutend vergrößert ist. So wird auf dem Rigi immer mehr Raum zur Aufnahme von Gästen geschaffen.

Millinery Novelties—The Question of Gloves.

Fur borders on toques and hats are much worn and are usually very becoming.

Fringed scarfs of silk, satin or panne are a winter millinery novelty which is rather picturesque. The scarf is twisted around the crown of the hat, the fringed ends being allowed to drop a little at the side or back.

The question of gloves is one upon which uncertainty sometimes exists with regard to the proper time of wearing or removing them. It is a rule that they should always be taken off at table when eating whether the meal be luncheon or a full dress dinner. On any informal, friendly occasion the gloves need not be replaced when one returns to the drawing room, but at formal dinners, where evening dress is worn, the gloves are resumed. Men, however, may dispense with them after dinner.

The reception gown shown in the illustration is of blue taffeta. The skirt is sun plaited and has a train, the redingote tunic of black lace spangled and beaded with jet being open at the back to allow the train to emerge. The back of the bodice is plain, but in front the lace opens over fichu folds of blue taffeta, which inclose a plastron of black embroidered lace. Across the front is a drapery of black mousseline de soie, which is held in place by choux and forms epaulets. The sleeves are of black lace, the little belt of jet and spangles on black silk.

VARIOUS NOTES.

Fur and Thick Materials—A Dainty Wrapper.

Fur, which is still on the pinnacle of favor, as it was last winter, is used in several new ways. It composes some very attractive hats. For example, a hat covered, crown and curling brim, with chinchilla is trimmed with a drapery of violet mousseline de soie, and at the left side is a large bunch of violets. Fur boleros are much worn, short pile furs being selected for them. A bolero of otter opens over an ermine plastron and has a flaring collar lined with ermine and large ermine cuffs.

Cape mantles are made on the lines of the old fashioned visite. They have no sleeves, but are close about the shoulders and arms and are curved in to the figure at the back. The richest materials are employed for them, with equally rich passementeries and applications. They are worn at the theater, for ceremonious calls and at church.

The jacket is by no means thrown out of fashionable calculation, however. It has a permanent place as a general utility garment, comfortable, warm and convenient, and for walking, shopping, skating, etc., nothing takes its place.

The picture shows a charming wrapper of the finest transparent nainsook. It has lines of valenciennes insertion and is inset with Louis Quinze bars of the insertion. The fichu has long ends, which tie at the back, and is edged all around with a ruffle of valenciennes lace, a similar ruffle finishing the foot of the wrapper and the edges of the half length sleeves. Down the front is a fine plaiting of nainsook. A colored silk slip is worn beneath.

Affinity.

"Billy, why do you take that homely Miss Hopkins to the opera every night?"

"She isn't very pretty, that's true, but she doesn't know any more about music than I do."—Chicago Record.

A DAINTY WAIST.

It Will Be Found Attractive and Easy to Make.

This dainty waist is fashioned in bright-red Paquin serge, with velvet trimming of a darker shade. Great care should be taken in selecting one that is becoming. This waist is mounted on a tight-fitting lining, which is shaped with all the seams, and opens in front.

The back is shaped with two pleats on either side which start at the shoulders and terminate in a point at the waist line. The upper part of the blouse front is underfaced with velvet and turned back in small revers over a tucked plastron of white liberty satin. The front is decorated with five bands of velvet, on which narrow white lace is applied. The velvet scarf gives a jaunty touch to this dressy waist. A velvet epaulet, lace trimmed, adorns the upper part of the close-fitting two-piece sleeve, which is finished with a pointed velvet cuff.

This would be a pretty model for a fancy silk waist trimmed with lace, figured satin or velvet. It also makes up prettily for ordinary wear in serge, cheviot, poplin or Venetian cloth, with plastron, revers and epaulets of velvet, omitting the straps which decorate the front.

To make the waist for a miss of fourteen years will require one and five-eighth yards of forty-four-inch material.

MAY MANTON.

A Table of Proportions.

The following table will be found very useful and should be hung in every kitchen along with the "cook's golden rules."

One teaspoonful soda to one pint sour milk.

One teaspoonful soda to one cup molasses.

Three heaping teaspoonfuls baking powder to one quart of flour.

Half a cupful of yeast or quarter of a compressed cake to one pint of liquid.

One teaspoonful salt to two quarts of flour.

One teaspoonful salt to one quart soup.

One scant cupful liquid to two full cupfuls flour for muffins.

One quart water to each pound meat bone for soup stocks.

Four peppercorns, four cloves, one teaspoonful minced herbs, and one tablespoonful each of chopped vegetables to each quart of water for soup stock.

One saltspoon of white pepper to each quart of soup stock.

One teaspoonful extract to one quart of custard.

One tablespoonful extract to one quart custard or cream for freezing.

One teaspoonful extract to one plain loaf cake.

A pinch of salt or spice is a saltspoonful.

A few grains is less than a saltspoonful.

Select Wall Papers Carefully.

Don't paper a new house until it settles, unless you are prepared to repaper it after the walls have cracked. Certain colors and styles of wall-papers are designed for certain rooms, and it is easy for an inexperienced person to make mistakes when ordering paper.

In a small apartment the rooms should follow one color scheme, and connecting rooms should always harmonize. Soft colors in cartridge paper are always in taste for living-room and give a good background for pictures. For parlors, library or sitting-room, plain colors in shades of terra cotta, old rose, sage green and red are excellent. An effective dining-room is papered in delft blue and orange or tapestry. Bedrooms may be papered in floral designs, and a novel fancy employs flowered cretonne. Relief work in stucco is now fairly cheap; it is suitable for halls and parlors.

Furnish the Kitchen Completely.

It is a mistake to lavish money on drawing-rooms and sacrifice the kitchen. Kitchen utensils are of the first importance. The cook cannot do her work well without proper tools and proper environment. A kitchen outfit costs little. New oilcloth for the floor, table and sink are cheap and add immeasureably to the contentment of the maid.

An attractive kitchen bespeaks the good housekeeper. It is easier to convince the servants of the desirability of keeping it clean. Neat tin and wooden boxes with labels are a delightful acquisition to the kitchen closets and much more pleasant to handle than leaky paper bags. Colored paper with pinked edges for the shelves will work wonders for the general effect, and a growing plant or two gives an air of luxury which surprises those who have never tried it.

The Swell Driving Coat.

The girl who drives has by this time ordered her driving coat. The most striking form of this article is a half-length box coat, which goes by the French name of paletot. Black and biscuit are the favored colors. The characteristics of this coat are a loose back and front, plenty of lapped pockets, velvet collar and strapped seams, with sleeves reaching quite to the collar.

Long Trains for Brides.

French brides are now wearing very long dresses, indeed, almost Court-trains, and over their heads tulle veils reaching to the ground in front, and being nearly as long as the train behind. French brides never wear anything but dresses high to the throat, whether cut out of the stuff itself, or filled in with tulle or chiffon.

THERE ARE BILLIONS IN IT.

Enormous Investments in Utilizing Electricity.

THE GIGANTIC FIGURES

Capitalization of $3,000,000,000 Based on the Use of Their Power—Some Will Get Rich and Others Be Ruined—The Railways Are in the Lead.

In the twenty-four years which have elapsed since the modern development of electricity investment in it has been swollen to the almost fabulous sum of $3,000,000,000 in this country, by the capitalization of four or five branches of electrical industries alone. There are various other branches, whose stocks, bonds, and obligations reach a total of at least $500,000,000 more. In this list is not included the manufacture and operation of the automobile, the youngest application of electricity.

These figures, telling the story of a growth unparalleled in history, from a financial standpoint, are given in a pamphlet written by T. C. Martin for private circulation. What is even more astonishing is that the aggregate earnings of the various departments of the industry are sufficient to pay dividends or interest of from 4 to 5 per cent, and even more, on the whole mass of securities.

Mr. Martin is editor of a semi-technical electrical paper. He draws most of his material from official reports, and in the instances where these are not available makes estimates.

In point of capitalization electric railways are by far the most important branch of the industry. Electric railways are the growth of ten years. That it to say, in 1888 the electric mileage in the United States was insignificant. In 1899 the proportion of street railway service which is not based on electricity is so small that Mr. Martin dismisses it as unworthy of notice.

At the close of 1898 the capital liabilities of the street railways of the country were $1,621,820,000, a gain of nearly $150,000,000 in a single year. There were about 900 roads or systems. Of these 220 earned $130,000,000 in 1898. Estimates made by several authorities working from different bases placed the gross earnings of the roads outside of the 220 at $45,000,000, or $175,000,000 for the whole number. If the net were estimated at around 40 per cent. there was thus yielded a sum between $60,000,000 and $70,000,000, or sufficient to pay from 4 to 5 per cent. on the whole capitalization.

Electric lighting is next in importance. There are upwards of 2,400 central station lighting companies operated by corporations. They have a gross capitalization in stock of over $275,000,000. With bonds, floating debt, and other obligations, the investments, Mr. Martin asserts, stand not less than $600,000,000.

These plants include a capacity of 1,000,000 horse-power in engines and water wheels, to which are connected 175,000 arc lights and over 10,000,000 incandescent lamps. Here is a capitalization of $600 to the horse power of engines and generators in the station and all other appurtenances. To the capitalization of the quasi-public companies Mr. Martin adds $400,000,000 for isolated and municipal plants. Taking arc lamps at $90 a year, he estimated an increase of $22,750,000 is yielded, besides $36,000,000, as the proceeds from incandescent lamps, and $7,500,000 as being derived from the sale of power for driving machinery, or a total of $66,250,000. The costs charged against this he places at 60 per cent., leaving $26,500,000 as the net profits of the central station industry, or the equivalent of 4½ per cent. on the face value of its capitalization of $600,000,000. No attempt is made to give the earnings of municipal plants and those owned by private concerns.

In the matter of earnings the telephone makes a dazzling exhibit. There are over 2,300 "independent" companies in the country, but the Bell and its constituent companies are taken into principal account by Mr. Martin. The last Bell annual report gave 1,231,000,000 as the number of conversations exchanged in 1898, and the cost at between 1 and 1½ cents. At 4 cents a message this would yield $49,240,000. The Bell long distance service last year amounted to 32,205,000. If the earnings of the independent companies, which operate at a lower rate of charges, are placed at only $5,000,000, or $20 a telephone, and the entire total of earnings be figured at $50,000,000, or considerably less than the totals given, there is realized $20,000,000 as applicable to dividends, after deducting the high rate of 30 per cent for the cost of operation. The profits are sufficient to pay 5 per cent. on a capitalization of $400,000,000, or double and more than that rate on the sum actually invested.

Mr. Martin places the investment in telegraphy in this country at not less than $250,000,000, including that of the Western Union and the Postal commercial companies, and those of the hundreds of railroads operating their own systems. Nearly every large city has its own elaborate police telegraph system, and upwards of 750 cities and towns are equipped with fire alarm telegraphs.

In the manufacturing branch of the electrical industry, Mr. Martin states fully $100,000,000 is actually invested. Three concerns alone represent a capitalization of $50,000,000. In seven years it is estimated that concerns engaged in long distance power transmission and in the manufacture and operation of electric mining appliances have issued securities aggregating $100,000,000. There are over 400 electro-plating establishments in the country, with an invested capital of $50,000,000. Mr. Martin says; a number of electrolytic plants, representing several millions, more are invested in electrical bells, hotel annunciators, electro-therapeutic equipment, "interior" telephones, and an endless variety of miscellaneous appliances. Allowing $10,000,000 for these minor appliances and the electrolytic plants, Mr. Martin makes the total capitalization of the electrical industry $3,260,000,000.

In this figure no account is taken of the rapid development of automobiles. According to figures given in the trade journals, there have been built and are under construction not less than 40,000 vehicles. The cost ranges up to several thousand dollars for each. The capitalization of the automobile industry is vastly in excess of $20,000,000, and, although in the cases of numerous companies only part of it has been paid in, it is a fact that several large dividends on the whole have been distributed.

The capitalization of the electrical industry has not escaped "watering." It presents numerous glaring instances, but, on the whole, probably shows a larger number of independent plants and undertakings than many other branches of American industry. American electrical machinery, almost unknown in foreign lands ten years ago, is now shipped to every country under the sun. Enormous sources of consumption have opened up, and innumerable new uses have come out of cheapened production, so that it is safe for no man to predict what employment will not yet be made of a force which was an almost unmanageable mystery three-score years ago.

TELEPHONE COMPANY.

It Is Furnishing News to People Upon Prominent Current Events.

The project of President Morris F. Tyler, of the Southern New England Telephone Company, to station an extra operator at all the large exchanges to give subscribers the latest news on stocks, athletic topics, the theatre, the prize ring, the doings of society and the South African war does not disturb the people who already control instruments for the distribution of news on any of these subjects.

"Yet it isn't going to hurt our business," said a representative of the New York Quotation Company, which operates the "tickers" of New York City and furnishes news to the outside ticker companies throughout the country. "In the first place it could never take the place of a ticker in the saloons and hotels, where most of our instruments are located. Anybody can watch a tape, but news sent in by telephone would have to be copied down for the crowd to read, and very few proprietors would care to take the trouble, even if they saved money by it. In the second place, they wouldn't save money. A ticker costs just $20 a month. You can get a telephone for less. If you don't use it much, but if you spend your time calling up central to ask for news, your bill would run up into the thirties mighty quick.

"A similar plan was once tried by an Australian telephone exchange, with a view to taking the place of the local newspapers. It worked fairly well, but of course, it could not at all affect the Australian press."—N. Y. Post.

A CURIOUS STORY.

The Beautiful Girl Who Celebrated Mass.

Extraordinary excitement prevails in Leghorn and the adjacent provinces over the reported marvelous appearance of the Blessed Virgin. In a small village a few miles from Leghorn, a young woman, marvelously beautiful, called on the cure and requested him to allow her to celebrate mass. Naturally, so the report continues, the cure believed that he had to deal with a deranged woman, but, in order not to excite her, he gently explained that the sacred books prohibited the celebration of mass by a woman.

The beautiful stranger insisted, and finally the cure called in gendarmes and requested them to convey her to an asylum, but the young woman spoke to the gendarmes in such eloquent terms that they joined her in begging the cure to give the requisite permission. Then the cure fell beneath the spell, had the altar prepared, and he himself acted as assistant to the illegal celebrant. As soon as the mass was completed the stranger raised her arms toward heaven and cried: "Now O God, thou wilt not destroy the world." Then the little church was flooded with dazzling light, in which the young woman disappeared. Nobody in the district doubts the story, and all are convinced that the apparition was none other than the Blessed Virgin herself. The cure himself is absolutely convinced, and has informed the Bishop, who is making investigations. The visitation is associated in the popular mind with the recent earthquakes and meteors. Fearing reactionary intrigues the Government thought it advisable to re-enforce the gendarmerie and prohibit public meetings.—Rome Cor. N. Y. Sun.

Miss Anthony's Opposition.

Miss Susan B. Anthony, the distinguished champion of women and their rights, has very much dampened the ardor of the Anti-Roberts Crusaders by holding that his title to a seat in Congress had best be left to that body itself. But she has gone further, and this has stirred up trouble. She says so far as a plurality of wives goes, Roberts is no worse than his Congressional colleagues. The end is not yet.

Belgian Queen's Home.

The Queen of the Belgians was brought up in her father's castle at Pesth amid surroundings and customs which remind one of the feudal ages. At night her father himself descended the great staircase to lock the outer gate and the door of the principal hall. This hall was divided into two parts, one end being raised a little above the other. At the elevated end the daughters of the house sat at their needlework or painting or music, while their attendants sat at the lower end of the hall.

PROPAGATING FISH.

Methods That Are Employed in This Very Delicate Work.

There are two methods which are employed by fish culturists to propagate food and game fish. One is to catch the young fish, the fry, and transport them to other waters where it is desired to introduce them. The other is to strip the female fish of her eggs and to impregnate them artificially.

All the attempts that have been made to propagate black bass by stripping the female of their eggs have been failures so far, and the only method that can be applied to them is to catch the fry and nurse them till they are strong enough to be liberated. Other fish, notably the shad and the salmon, are readily stripped, and the results are wonderful, as the percentage of eggs that fail to hatch is exceedingly small.

Were either fry or eggs left to nature only an excessively small proportion would grow into adult fishood. Apart from those which would die naturally a tremendous quantity would fall prey to the host of enemies—insects, crustacea, fish, birds and mammals—that is waiting for the spawn, or the tiny fish.

Any one who has handled fish freshly caught knows how delicate they appear to be and how quickly they die after leaving the water. Yet the experts in the service of the various State and of the United States fish commissions handle millions of the most sensitive food and game fish every year, and few of them die from the process.

The pictures here presented show the process of handling a female salmon that is heavy with spawn. First the fish are led to swim into a confined space where they can be reached with the landing net. The manipulation of this dip net alone requires no mean skill. It must not bruise the floundering fish and must lift the creature in such a way that it does not scrape the scales from its sides as it struggles. Wherever a scale is torn from a fish, particularly in fresh water, fungus is almost certain to form, and that is generally fatal.

After the fish is in the net the latter is lifted carefully and the operator's hand slides downward, gently but firmly, till it grasps the body immediately above the tail. Then he draws the fish from the net and holds it head downward. That serves to show at once whether the fish is "ripe"—that is, whether the eggs have reached that stage of development which permits of stripping. If the fish is perfectly ripe the eggs sink toward the head. If the fish is found satisfactory the operator places a pan between his legs and holds the fish firmly in his arm. With the right hand he encircles the salmon just back of the gills, and, squeezing the fish gently, slides the hand down toward the tail, when the eggs spout into the pan. They are hard then and rattle into the receptacle like peas. Later, after they have been in the hatching frames for a time, they get larger and softer, having absorbed much water. After the eggs have been drawn from the female fish she is placed back into the water, none the worse for her trials. Then the milt from a ripe male fish is pressed into the pan in the same way, and the impregnated eggs are ready to be hatched.

Under favorable conditions ninety days is the period of incubation for the grand land-locked salmon, one of the finest game fishes in the world, and hardly inferior to any as a food fish. The first sign of life in the eggs is the formation of a little clot, generally red or pink, which increases with remarkable rapidity, until in a few days the complete form of a little fish is plain to the eye. But it is rather a hideous little monster that wriggles out of the egg finally. It resembles a fish only because it wriggles and moves like one. Otherwise it looks more like a fevered dream after too much broiled lobster of welsh rarebit. It is a transparent body, with a globular swelling where its fine fish-like lines ought to be, and its eyes are immense goggles. Then the fish-wise men watch the things most carefully.

This is a critical period of the young things' growth, and a fall or a rise of a degree in the temperature of the water may mean death to millions of salmon. Generally men remain on guard night and day in the big hatcheries to watch their charges at this time. If they pull through it is beautiful to see the successive changes as the tiny swimmers cast off their hideous appendages and turn into dainty, slender, silvery creatures that dart through the water like bubbles of air, and form in thick swarms in the corners of the tanks, where they hang like bees.

It Couldn't Be Popular.

The conversation had flagged a little, and he felt it his duty to say something.

"In an address made in Boston," he remarked, "a reverend gentleman greatly deplores the use of arms."

"Bostonians are so cold, anyway," she returned, spiritedly, "that lovemaking on that plan may satisfy them, but he fools himself if he thinks it ever will be popular elsewhere."—Chicago Post.

"Here," said the statesman who had been temporary chairman of the convention, "I would like to know what kind of a party organ you're running anyway."

"Why," the editor asked, "what's wrong?"

"In your account of the proceedings you have not once referred to my speech as 'a ringing address!'"

NEW MACHINE.

To Run a Locomotive and Furnish Fresh Air at the Same Time.

If all is true that August Peters, recently of Chicago, claims for a machine he has invented, he can not only run a locomotive or a steamship but can supply the steamer or the train with fresh air—with cold air for the furnace rooms and ice for the storage departments—and, to cap it all, it runs itself, he says. Mr. Peters to-day showed his machine in working order. To outward appearance the apparatus looks like an immense ice chest, but as soon as the doors are opened a mass of piping is revealed. At the back of the chest is a cylinder and a force pump. By means of an electric motor air is forced through the cylinder and force pump into a storage chamber, and thence through a series of pipes surrounded with ice. To start the machine in action to its fullest power, it must be loaded with 90 pounds of ice. After that it makes its own ice.

Mr. Peters says the machine is the nearest thing to perpetual motion ever invented; that it will furnish motive power to ocean steamships; that the one he now has working at 113 Bedford avenue, Brooklyn, will easily run a 2,500 horse power marine engine; that it will at the same time provide fresh, dry air for a ship at the rate of 1,000 square feet per minute and simultaneously manufacture ice at the rate of 1,800 pounds an hour.

Slightly modified, Mr. Peters says, his machine, as it now stands in his Brooklyn work shop, could be fitted into the Holland submarine boat and enable the crew of that boat to remain under water indefinitely.

When Mr. Peters started the machine in action a strong current of air was expelled from the escape vent so cold that in a few minutes the temperature of the shop was greatly reduced. He said it was an easy matter to bring the temperature of the surrounding atmosphere down to 50 degrees below zero, and that he could get it down to 200 degrees below zero inside the ice-box. There was no ice in the machine at the time of the exhibition.

By means of an air tank placed above the machine a sufficient amount of compressed air was constantly being stored, which would keep the apparatus running indefinitely, said Mr. Peters.

Peters moved to Brooklyn three months ago from Chicago, where he said he had lived for 27 years.—N. Y. Special in Chicago Tribune.

A DUMMY DECK.

Cards Rung In On Four Poker Players in Camp.

"A rather amusing thing happened at a fishing camp at which I was last summer," said R. R. Reynolds, of Hartford, at the Hotel Manhattan, New York. One of our party, while otherwise a thorough good fellow was an interminable talker and, as such, an awful bore. The description, once applied to a certain statesman, that he used to set his mouth going and go away and leave it talking, fitted him to a T. We stood it for a couple of days, and then we put up a game on him. After supper, when we started in on his regular conversazione, we got up in a body and decamped. He saw the point and gracefully yielded to the inevitable, although he swore revenge. About this time we found that we had no playing cards with us, and telegraphed back to the club for 20 packs, which arrived in due time, and that night we had a game. After we had played some time the conversationalist dealt the cards. I held the ace, and when I picked up my hand I held four tens.

"The next man simply stayed, so did the next, but the other two whooped her for the limit. The dealer dropping out, I raised again, and so did every one else in turn. This went on until we all got tired, and then came the draw. Some stood pat, and the balance drew one card each. After the draw we went it fast and furious. All the chips had gone up long since, and the falling of I O U's looked like a snowstorm. It finally resulted in a show down, and every blessed man present laid down four tens. When we recovered from the trance we were at first thrown into we looked for the dealer. Wise in his day and generation, he had disappeared and returned no more that night. It took about an hour and a half's hard work to get that pot straightened out. It seemed that the dealer had been alone in camp when the cards arrived, and all the 20 packs happening to have the same backs suggested the idea to him, and he put up the dummy pack, which he held in his lap. The substitution was easy, and we did the rest."—New York Tribune.

It Comes To a Prodical Turned Out Into the World Many Years Ago.

After more than twelve years of dire poverty Douglas Wilhelm is walking from New York to his home in eastern Tennessee to claim a fortune of $100,000, which his father left to him. Wilhelm started from New York on Saturday morning and intends to walk all the way to Memphis. He says that he has managed to live twelve years in want without asking charity and that he does not intend to ask for it now.

He has enough money to pay for his lodging and food on the trip, and does not intend to ask for transportation. Wilhelm was at the Twenty-fifth District Police Station, and was there seen by a reporter for the Times, to whom he told his story.

His father, he said, owned a large cotton plantation about forty miles from Memphis, and he and his son lived together until twelve years ago, when the son fell in love with the plantation overseer's daughter. Several months later they ran away and were married. The boy's father would not be reconciled to the marriage and turned the son out on the world. He and his wife wandered and he and his young wife wandered from place to place, making a living as best they could. They finally drifted to New York, where the wife died. Wilhelm made a living by selling papers, and continued to struggle on alone until a few weeks ago, when he saw in a Southern paper that his father had died leaving him his entire fortune.

Wilhelm wrote to the administrator of the estate, but received no answer, and is now on his way to his home claim the estate. He looks worn and haggard, but seems confident that he will be able to make the trip.—Philadelphia Times.

Fought Five Bulldogs.

A man by the name of Walker, who lives near here, has a pack of five bulldogs. While at supper with his family, a drunken man named Elliott came on his porch, and putting down his bottle of liquor and coat and hat, began to jump from the porch continuously. The dogs pretty soon came tearing around the house spoiling for a fight, so to speak, but not dreaming of a fight with a wild and woolly madman. He met them on all fours, and, yelling like an Indian, jumped from the porch into the midst of the dogs, seizing some, kicking others, and such a whirligig of arms and legs was never seen before. Elliott astonished them with his lion-like agility, and, amid yells, curses and ravings, the man and dogs tumbled over each other in a mad rage and scramble, making the dogs ashamed of themselves, for, as soon as the dogs had liberty to do so, they ran into the cellar. Elliott followed, and in the pitch dark the howls of the dogs and the screams and noise of the battle seemed a cellar with terror and pandemonium in full blast until the dogs could get out. One of the dogs has never been found.—Haley (Tenn.) Cor. St. Louis Dispatch.

Youngest Woman Preacher.

Melesin K. Sowles, a girl of sixteen years, is probably the youngest woman preacher in the world. In June of this year she preached the opening sermon in the yearly meeting of the Baptist church, Honey Creek, Wis., and she has been granted an unlimited license to preach at the quarterly meeting of that church. Miss Sowles' home is at Prospect, Wis., where her father is in charge of the Baptist Church. Miss Sowles has frequently during the summer spoken from her father's pulpit. Before she was 10 years old she evinced a great interest in theology and, unaided, outlined a sermon.

Why He Won't Sell.

THE ART OF DEFENCE

A FEW HINTS IN FIRST STEPS IN BOXING.

Lessons as Given by Terry McGovern, the Greatest Boy Fighter in the World—The Position, the Guard and the Leads—Excellent Gymnasium Practice.

Young Terry McGovern, the champion boy boxer of the world has been giving some lessons in the art of self-defence, in the New York World, in which he says:

"You and your opponent should start about equal. As you learn to box better you can begin to box with men a little more expert than yourself, in order to improve your skill; but don't do it at first.

"While I believe that the best fighters are men of the John L. Sullivan type—"natural" fighters who trust to nature rather than to science—yet it is important for an amateur to learn the old rules and motions of regular boxing. Stand up in front of me now, put on your eight-ounce gloves and I'll give you your first lesson.

"Now, then, come to guard! Stand with the left foot advanced about 15 to 18 inches in front of the right. Don't spoil your balance by holding your feet a yard or so apart, as people do in fancy boxing pictures. Rest the weight on the ball of the foot. Rest most of it on the left foot in advancing. This not only braces you to resist a blow, but adds force to your own blows, and enables you to throw more strength into back, arms and shoulders.

"The toes of the left foot should be straight in front, not turned out or in. Turn the right foot out at an angle of about 45 degrees, as a rule, though you will soon learn by experience at what angle you can most conveniently hold it. When standing on guard keep the knees unbent and the legs straight. Stand so that your weight can be readily shifted from foot to foot. Practise this until it become natural. The right heel always should be on line with the left.

"Now that disposes of the body below the waist. Before we go higher let me impress on you the absolute need of learning how to use the feet and legs in boxing. They are well nigh as important as the hands. Work hard to gain a "boxing balance" by constantly shifting the weight from foot to foot, by jumping backward, forward and sideways, always coming down in position, but with the knees slightly bent to avoid any jar. Hold the body upright, above the hips, not bending forward or leaning too far back. Keep the chest out and the shoulders back, when on guard. Bend back very slightly, but not enough to injure your balance or to prevent you from changing position or from hitting with quickness.

"Hold the right arm partly across the body with the right glove in the centre to guard the wind. The glove should be held only about six inches or so from the body. The right glove should usually be held (while at guard) at about the height of the solar plexus. The solar plexus is the nerve centre, situated just below the point where the ribs begin to diverge into a letter A. It is about here that many a man has been struck, with the effect of losing the bout, or at the very least ,having his wind badly damaged. It is an important point to guard.

"The left arm should be extended somewhat further, but not so far that it cannot guard the heart in a close-quarter scrimmage. It is with the left arm, remember ,that you do most of your leading, while the right should be reserved for cross-quarter work and for guarding.

"After you become proficient you can change this guard to suit yourself, but it is well to begin in this way. Turn the head a little more to the right, not too far, but enough to avoid offering a full face to your opponent's attack. The move in boxing (as taught in many good schools) is the straight left lead.

"Hit out with your left for the face. Don't haul your arm away back before hitting. If you did that in a real fight I would not only know just what you were about to do, but, while your arm was going so far back, mine would be shooting forward.

"Just hit out straight for the face with your left; not stiffly, but letting the shoulder go with the blow, and at the same time not twisting the body out of position, but bending slightly forward to give weight to the blow. The moment the blow has fairly landed get your arm back to position. Be sure not to lower your right-hand guard when hitting thus with the left. If you do you have both heart and wind exposed. Next lead with the right for the face in the same manner, avoiding the same mistakes. Get back on guard. Lead for my face with the left and bring it back to guard. Then lead for the face with the right, bringing that back, too. Repeat this several times. Don't bend the knees when leading for the face. These two simple blows are among the first principles of boxing, and, easy as they seem, they need a lot of practice."

A Billiard Pointer.

The cue must be as much sighted as a gun, but let your stoop when necessary be a graceful one. A player needs rigidity. If necessary, hug the table with your knee when making a difficult shot. Don't take chances when bending over a table, as so many players do, with one foot in the air

Whist is constantly increasing in popularity, especially in the west.

SPORTING.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The second series of game in the Daily Press Bowling League will be rolled on the alleys of the Park Club this evening. This will be the first of the games in the League to be rolled in the city. The three games will be rolled between the teams of the Park Club, of this city, and the Cranford Casino.

F. O Ball is captain of the Park Club team this year and he is quite confident that the Parks will be the first of the clubs to have their names engraved on the Daily Press trophy as winners of the season of 1899 1900. He has not yet announced positively the composition of his team H D. Hibbard, L H. Van Buren of last year's team will probably roll It is not yet certain whether or not Dr. C R Thiers will take his old place. There are several new candidates for team honors who have been doing some great work on the alleys this fall.

GOLF

Notwithstanding that the active season at golf closed at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club there will be many enthusiasts who will continue to visit the course and play while the good weather lasts

The Piano Fixture.

People who are bothered by a young musician practicing on the piano may be somewhat consoled by a knowledge of some of the many devices which have recently been patented for the use of such students. Recently an apparatus closely resembling a thumb screw was put on the market and was endorsed by some music teachers as calculated to greatly increase the reach of piano players. Now a piano player's harness is given to the world, with equally strong endorsements. It is intended to prevent pupils from dropping the wrists too low and is fitted with handcuffs and an adjustable strap, which passes over the shoulders. While sustaining the hands in the proper position for fingering the keys of a piano it is yielding to a sufficient extent to permit the hand to reach all the octaves of the keyboard.

The Theory of Hearing.

In the Physiological Section of the British Association Dr. Albert Gray (Glasgow) read a paper on "The Theory of Hearing." His view of the function of the cochlea, as set forth in his paper, is like that of Helmholtz, that sound is analyzed into its simple constituent tones by the basilar membrane. The result of this analysis is that variations in pressure on the nerve terminations will occur, and that these pressure variations are analyzed in the central nervous system. In support of the theory he puts forward he cited the close analogy which it shows between the sense of hearing and that of touch. It further explains the existence of noise as distinguished from musical sounds, and the fact that under certain circumstances the ear is able to perceive differences of phases.—London Daily News.

A Provident Requirement.

Germany has a law, which has been in force for ten years, which requires that every man with an income of $750 or over must insure his life against sickness and old age. The number of people thus insured was reported last year at 11,200,000. As far as can be learned conditions of health have had little to do with ability to secure the insurance. The insurance companies seem to have found it a matter of economy to adopt preventive measures, and have erected a great sanitarium for the treatment of their sick.

Wm. D. Pike, of East Front street, will be a guest at the bankers' banquet, Saturday evening, at the Savoy, New York.

—School children under 15 years of age will be admitted for fifteen cents at the illustrated lecture on Rome and Italy to be given by Mr. A. W. Tyler at the Y. M. C. A. this evening.

Spain's Greatest Need.

Mr. R. P. Olivia, of Barcelonia, Spain, spends his winters at Aiken, S. C. Weak nerves had caused severe pains in the back of his head On using Electric Bitters, America's greatest Blood and Nerve Remedy, all pain soon left him. He says that this grand medicine is what his country needs. All America knows that it cures liver and kidney trouble, purifies the blood, tones up the stomach, strengthens the nerves, puts vim, vigor and new life into every muscle, nerve and organ of the body. If weak, tired or ailing you need it. Every bottle guaranteed, only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

What Can You Do With It?

This is a question we can answer better after we have seen the garment you want dyed. When our wagon is in your neighborhood, let it bring your goods to the store and then, at your convenience, come in and let us tell you just what we can do and the cost. Don't be prejudiced against dyeing. Oftimes you can't tell the goods from new.

Jersey Central's Unchartered Ferry.

At the meeting of the New York Sinking Fund Commission yesterday President Guggenheimer called attention to the fact that the Central Railroad of New Jersey was still operating a ferry from Communipaw to the foot of Whitehall street without a franchise and without paying anything to the city. The ferry has been in operation ever since consolidation went into effect. The Commission voted to request the Corporation Counsel to take matter into the courts and secure an injunction restraining the company from operating the ferry without a franchise.

To Elect Officers.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order of Foresters, at their meeting tomorrow night, will initiate five candidates. The annual election of officers for the ensuing year will then be held and important business of interest to every member will come up for consideration.

FLAMES BELCHED FORTH.

STARTLING SIGHT WITNESSED ON A TROLLEY CAR.

Women Passengers Terribly Frightened and Jumped From Car While in Motion—Motorman in a Dangerous Predicament.

As a result of running old and dilapidated trolley trolley cars the Plainfield Street Railway Company narrowly escaped having a lawsuit on its hands yesterday. Car No 2, one of the first of the cars received in this city, was making a trip over Somerset street shortly afternoon and was in charge of Conductor Boss. There were two women and a boy in the car.

Just as the car was opposite the residence of Surrogate Spencer the passengers were startled to see a large flame shoot upward from the front platform and completely envelope the motorman. The women turned their faces away, believing that the man would be burned to death. He staggered and almost fell from the platform.

The next thought that filled the minds of the women was how to get off the car. The small boy, who most always thinks first of himself, ran from the car and shut the doors afterwards, leaving the women alone. They screamed and escaped, jumping from the car while it was in motion. They were thrown but not injured. As soon as the conductor got his senses together he pulled the trolley from the wire, and thus shut off the current. The car was then towed to the switch, hooked on to another car and taken to the car house.

The cause of all this trouble was that the fuses under the car had burned out. If the trolley had not been disconnected quickly the car would have surely burned up.

The motorman escaped serious injury and is able to work as usual.

ROME'S CONCESSION.

Catholic Sisters Permitted to Attend Outside Lectures in Secular Garb.

Advocates of the higher education of women are surprised by an unexpected and extraordinary concession from that most conservative of authorities, the Pope. The head of the French teaching Sisters of the Sacred Heart, a very progressive woman, went before the Vatican authorities not long ago with an educational plan by which the novices of the order were to be allowed to take a normal school course outside their convent restrictions and taught by outside up-to-date professors.

Some eminent French ecclesiastics favored the idea, but in Rome it was frowned upon, and a formal refusal was given to permit its application.

A much more important and wide-reaching concession has now been made by the Pope in favor of the Marcelline Sisters, the most educational of all the religious communities in Italy. They are not only allowed to attend the lectures in the public universities of Rome, mingling there with laymen and listening to lectures by professors of every mental order, but they doff their religious dress to do so. When they return to the convent in the evening they put on their religious habit again.

The congregation of Sisters is comparatively new. They applied to the Pope for approbation in December, 1896. He has just given them a definite sanction as a community with simple vows, the decree being published by the Cardinal Prefect of Bishops and Regulars the last week in October.

Here in New York there has been trouble with the State authorities where Sisters taught in some of the public schools in the interior cities wearing their religious garb. A solution of the difficulty may be found in this new precedent established in Rome.—N. Y. Herald.

Wireless Telegraphy.

Wireless telegraphy is to be used in a novel and practical manner at Halifax. The harbor there is often difficut of access, especially during storms, and as a result many vessels have been wrecked while approaching it. Mr. A. F. Hamilton has now invented an apparatus with the object of facilitating the approach to the harbor and thus minimizing the danger of shipwrecks.

The aparatus consists of what may be called an electric buoy on which is a bell connected with the land by means of a submarine cable. In addition to the bell the buoy is intended to hold a Marconi transmitter from which signals may be sent from land to a distance of four or five miles. Now the inventor asserts that in this manner all vessels provided with receivers suitable for wireless telegraphy can not only be readily warned of danger as they approach the coast, but can also ascertain their exact sitution if they will only pay heed to the signals transmitted.

The inventor's intention apparently is to have a buoy placed in each spot where there is the most likelihood of peril and to have signals sent by the Marconi system of wireless telegraphy whenever there is any danger of a storm. The successful manner in which the Marconi system worked during the international yacht races has satisfied Mr. Hamilton that it may be relied upon to do good service in connection with his buoys.—N. Y. Herald.

—The letter-carriers have received their new winter uniforms and they present an attractive appearance.

AN ORDINANCE

to Provide Funds for Permanent Improvement of Streets in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That for the purpose of obtaining the money by the sale of bonds hereinafter specified, for the permanent improvement, pursuant to city ordinances, of the streets and highways of the city of Plainfield with permanent and durable macadam pavement, in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits, the Common Council of the city do hereby, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, authorize the issuing of twelve registered municipal bonds of the city of Plainfield, of One Thousand Dollars each, amounting in all to Twelve Thousand Dollars, which bonds shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum per annum, payable semi-annually and be payable three years from said date of issue with the option of the city to redeem or pay off the said bonds, or any one or more of them at any time after one year from date of issue, and before three years from date of issue, on giving personal notice to the holders of said bonds, or thirty days' notice by advertisement in the official newspapers of the city, of the intention to make such redemption or payment, which bonds may severally or collectively be sold for an amount not less than par value, and the interest on said bonds shall be raised annually by taxation and the principal be paid by the city at maturity, and the money derived from the assessments upon the property benefitted, shall, when collected, be held as a fund toward the payment of said bonds.

Adopted by the Common Council Dec. 4, 1899; approved by the Mayor Dec 4, 1899.

FLOWER FAIR AT ALL SOULS CHURCH.

Its Attractions Are in Accordance With the Season.

THE LADIES ARE IN CHARGE.

USE OF FLORAL DESIGNS ARE CLEVER AND BEAUTIFUL.

Numerous Tables Fill the Sunday-school Room, Where the Saleable Articles Are on Display—Church Women Preside Over Them—In Conjunction With the Fair a Supper is Served.

A highly successful flower fair and and sale is being held at All Souls' church, under the auspices of the woman of that church. It opened yesterday and will be continued this afternoon and evening in the Sunday school room which has been transformed into a place of beauty. There is a general air of holiday times about the affair that is attractive. Through the efforts of the women there has been arranged a display of flowers that is really a feature. These flowers are made of paper and so true to nature are they that they can scarcely be detected.

At the left of the door as one enters there is a table devoted to useful articles. The fair had been open only a short time when many of the articles were spoken for. At this table the prevailing color is pink, and the particular flower is cosmos. Mrs. Leonard is in charge, assisted by Miss Reynolds, Mrs. E. B. Smith, Miss Anna Haviland, Miss Andrews and Miss Leonard.

Adjoining this table is one devoted to the sale of all kinds of fancy and plain bags and cushions. The flower at this table is sweet peas. Mrs. C. E. Ryder is presiding and those assisting are Mrs. Haff, Mrs. Gates Willard, Miss Walker and Miss Perry.

The next table is set apart for the sale of candy and various kinds of sweets. It presents a Christmas appearance through the use of small evergreen trees. Those in charge are Mrs. VanWyck, the Misses Wells and Miss Alice Thompson.

Another attractive table is the one devoted to pictures, casts, paintings, pottery from Boston, and many other things usually found in a department of art. The prevailing color is purple. Mrs. W. L. Brownell is in charge and those assisting are Miss Caroline Haviland, Miss M. B. Browne, Miss Caroline Hall, Miss Conklin, Miss Barber.

Adjoining the art table is one devoted to a display of embroidered articles. Here is a pretty display of apple blossoms that encircle the booth. Mrs A.C. Nickerson presides, assisted by Mrs. Conklin, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Mumford and Miss Laura Osgood. In connection with the general decoration there is a pretty arrangement of evergreens that add to the attractiveness of the whole scene.

In conjunction with the fair supper is served and those in charge of this department comprise Mrs. A. C. Nickerson, Mrs. Collins, Mrs. L. B. Woolston, Mrs. W. L. Brownell and Miss Pierce. Many stopped last evening for supper and the receipts for yesterday were pleasing to the women.

Mr. Biglow in Charge of Music.

The music at the Bible conference to be be held next week is under the charge of L. H Biglow, Jr. Mr. Biglow is organizing a chorus choir to lead the singing, and desires that all singers who wish to assist in the choir will write to him at 921 Central avenue, sending their names and mentioning the part they will sing. They will then be notified by mail, of the evenings when their services will be needed. Mr. Biglow would like, if possible, to have all such names as early as tomorrow.

Its Eighth Anniversary.

The eighth anniversary of the Christain Endeaver Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will be observed Saturday morning in that church when the anniversary exercises will take the place of the usual morning service. Reports of the secretary and treasurer and junior superintendent will be made. Rev. C. L. Goodrich will deliver the address.

His Twelfth Year.

John B. Dumont, of East Seventh street, will commence his twelfth year as a Councilman January 1st. This member has served the city as such eleven years in all, although not consecutively.

To Speak at Grace P. E. Church.

Don O. Shelton, who is to conduct the Bible conference at the Y. M. C. A. next week, is expected to speak at Grace P. E. church, East Seventh street, next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

WANT DR RICHARDS.

BIG CHICAGO CHURCH ANXIOUS TO SECURE HIS SERVICES.

Committee From Chicago Attended the Crescent Avenue Church Last Sunday and Was Much Pleased With Him.

Since the time that Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards began his pastorate of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, there have been a number of other churches who have made various offers to Dr Richards with a view to securing his services. None of them have yet been successful. A large Presbyterian church in Chicago is the latest to consider Rev. Dr. Richards as a possible successor to the position of its pastor.

The Chicago church thought so seriously of the matter that a committee of its prominent members came to this city last week and attended service at the Crescent Avenue church, last Sunday. They listened to Dr. Richards' sermon and were much impressed by his ability. It is not understood that any formal offer has been made but if the report of the committee is satisfactory, the offer of the pastorate will be made.

WOMEN ON HAND TO VOTE.

Westfielders Greatly Interested in the Proposed New School Buildings for That Place.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Dec. 8 — The Westfield Club Hall was crowded with residents, many being women, last evening when the special school meeting was held for the purpose of voting on the proposition of the Board of Education to erect a twelve-room primary building on the low ground on Walnut and Orchard streets at a cost of $45,000, and the building of a new schoolhouse at Mountainside borough, which is in the Westfield School District.

Martin Welles was chosen as chairman of the meeting and Wellington Morehouse, secretary. District Clerk J. Cloger read the official call, when it was found that the printed notices, in the description of the property, were wrong, calling for 351 feet on Walnut street instead of 231 feet. Therefore it was decided that the question not be taken up and voted on, as it would be impossible to float bonds should the appropriation be voted for.

On motion of W. G. Peckham it was decided to discuss the subject. A. L. Russell, secretary of the committee appointed at the last meeting to advise the Board of Education in the securing of additional school facilities, read the report of that committee, which favored the adoption of the resolution naming $49 000 to be used in building the new school.

A vote was taken for the purpose of learning if the people wished two small building instead of one, and the latter won.

INTERESTING TO STUDENTS.

Stereopticon Views and Lecture on Rome and Italy in Y. M. C. A.

The illustrated (stereopticon views) lecture at the Y. M. C. A. Hall last evening by Arthur W. Tyler, formerly organizing librarian of the Public Library, on "Rome and Italy," under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, was not as well attended as have been previous entertainments provided the public by this organization. The views were very handsome and the lecturer explained in an interesting manner the many historic places in the great Roman Empire, to the delight of an appreciative audience. There were about 100 views, some of which had not been exhibited in this city. To students of Roman history the lecture proved as interesting as the handsome views were pleasing to look upon.

Fifty Unexpected Visitors.

An enjoyable surprise party was given last evening to Mr. and Mrs. John Abbott, of Park avenue, corner of Fourth street, by about fifty of their relatives and friends. So complete was the surprise that the surprised had not the slightest inkling of it. After the guests arrived the evening was passed in a social manner and dancing was a feature. At a late hour supper was served.

District Meeting of the Pythians.

A district meeting of the Knights of Pythias will be held in this city Friday of next week. The Grand Lodge officers will be present and the Grand Lodge degree conferred on past officers. Delegations will be present from Perseverance, No 74, Unity, No. 102, and Goodwill Lodges, No. 101, K of P. Deputy Grand Chancellor S.J. Robinson, of Perseverance Lodge, willl preside at the meeting.

NOBLE WORK OF THE KING'S DAUGHTERS

Reports Made at Semi-annual Meeting of City Union.

REVIEW OF THE BABY CAMP.

MUCH GOOD WAS ACCOMPLISHED FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

A Balance Left in the Treasury Which Will be Used to Commence the Enterprise Next Summer—Jacob A. Riis, the Noted Author, Delivered an Address, Telling of Work Among Poor of New York

The semi-annual meeting of the City Union of King's Daughters, held yesterday afternoon in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church, drew together a large number of the members of the union as well as many ladies and gentlemen who have taken an interest in this organization. Miss Florella Bliss, the president, presided and Miss Lillian A. Force occupied the corresponding secretary's chair. Reports were received from various committees, including those of Miss Edith B. Little, chairman of the camp committee, and Miss Emily B. Tracy, chairman of the nurse committee. Miss Lillian A. Force, the corresponding secretary, also read a report of the spring meeting and what it was proposed to do as regards the Baby Camp, all being well known to the public, which has watched with interest the successful efforts of the ladies who have had in hand the laudable and noble work.

Miss Little's report first referred to the destruction of the first cottage on the mountains and the erection last summer of the new building, costing $346, which had been finished and the Bapy Camp opened on July 18th, thanks to the generosity of the public which had been appealed to by the press and clergy of the city. The register showed that there had been 100 visitors present on the opening day and since then and until the close 110 persons had called to inspect the camp. These had come from Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Texas, Maryland, Michigan, Nova Scotia and many cities in New York State.

Miss Octavia Setzer, the nurse who had charge of the camp, had made sixteen trips from July 18th to September 13th, there being an average of three mothers and three little ones taken at each trip.

The report showed $759 90, with disbursements, including insurance, etc., of $517 84, leaving a balance of $242 06 in the hands of the treasurer. At the last meeting of the executive board it had been decided that the balance should be reserved to carry on the work of the Baby Camp next year, instead of being used to carry on the winter work, as had been suggested.

The report of Miss Emily B. Tracy, chairman of the nurse committee, was equally as interesting as that of Miss Little. It stated that the nurse had paid twenty-seven visits to the sick during July and August and early in September. There had been found comparatively little in Plainfield during the summer and the nurse had been called less than usual, but as cold weather approaches the work is expected to increase. From May 11th to November 1st, thirty-four patients had been cared for—seven improved, one unimproved and three died.

Owing to the resignation of Miss Setzer, the committee had been compelled to secure another nurse in the person of Miss Delaney, a graduate of Muhlenberg Hospital, who will assume charge of the work on February 1st. Thanks were extended to all who had contributed liberally and sent contributions through the Needlework Guild.

Reports were then received from the various circles attached to the church and sums of money, which in the aggregate amounted to over $400, were reported.

Jacob A. Riis, of New York, author of "The Other Half" and other works, who has been identified with tenement house work, and incidentally that of the King's Daughters, gave an entertaining talk along the lines of charitable work, particularly with reference to the good that has been accomplished in New York city. Charity, he said, must come from the heart. Machine charity, he likened to a wheel barrow that had to be pushed along. Education and self help were the two rocks to stand upon in charitable work. First educate the one you purpose helping to help himself, even if only in a smal way. It is by looking after the little things that greater ones are accomplished. Mr. Riis referred feeling to the introduction among the poor of flowers and how much had been accomplished by opening the PARK CLUB WON THREE.

THEY LEAD IN THE DAILY PRESS BOWLING LEAGUE.

Gave the Home Team a Good Fight in First Game, But Visitors Went to Pieces After That and Lost.

The Park Club now stands in the lead in The Daily Press Bowling League, as a result of good bowling at the opening match on the Park Club alleys, this city, last evening. The Park Club team was opposed by the Cranford Casino team and took three straight from the visitors.

The first game, while neither side did anything brilliant, was decidedly close. The Parks led most of the frames by a small margin. On the the ninth, the visitors jumped ahead and would have won had not Dumont missed a rather difficult spare on the windup. As it was, the Park Club won by three pins.

The second game was close for the first four frames. Then the visitors weakened, while the Park Club bowlers made strikes and spares galore, winning easily by a hundred pins.

In the third game of the series the Parks took the lead and kept it. For the first five frames the bowling was but fair, then the home team woke up and made clean frames on the seventh and eighth, scoring 106 and 103 respectively. Cranford grew weaker and wandered far in the rear. VanBuren and Dr. Thiers both wound up with three strkes. The Parks won by 158 pins, with 864.

BOYS MUST BE HOME AT 9

NO MORE ROMPING OF STREETS AT UNSEMLY HOURS.

City Judge Runyon Establishes a Curfew-Like Order, and the Police Are Instructed to Enforce it Strictly.

The small boys of the city of Plainfield will be expected to be home by 9 o'clock at night hereafter. The custom of some of them to wander about the city until long after midnight, despite the protests of their parents, is going to be stopped. William Ashton, twelve years old, of 126 Johnston avenue, was the first of these youthful wanderers that the police took cognizance of. He was found lounging about the North Avenue station at 2 o'clock this morning and was locked up by the police. City Judge Runyon dismissed the lad this morning with a warning and lecture.

William admitted that he had been away from home until after midnight for some time and that his parents objected to such conduct. There wasn't any curfew law under which to act but the Judge told the youthful prisoner that he must obey his parents and be home at 9 o'clock hereafter. If he didn't the police would take a hand and see that the parental rule was enforced. The Judge then gave instructions to the police to arrest the lad or any of his companions of that age who were found roaming about the city evenings after 9 o'clock.

STRANGER IN A STRANGE LAND.

A Native of Jerusalem Talks Interestingly to Junior Endeavorers.

Miss Nabeelia Aramoonie, of Jerusalem, gave a very interesting address before the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, yesterday, about Jerusalem as it is at the present time. She spoke of the Jews going back to their native home and build up outside the city walls. Then she took her audience to Bethany in her story, to the birthplace of Christ, and told of the beautiful star that is supposed to hang over the place where Christ was born. After her address she exhibited her beautiful hand-made needlework and other expensive articles in embroidery which she makes in her own country. She was partly educated in this country by missionaries and was a helpful interpreter for Miss Dunn, who is in Jerusalem now and who is well-known by Plainfielders.

BOOTHS MADE TO REFLECT HOLIDAYS.

Elaborate Fair Being Given in Vincent Chapel.

DECORATIONS ARE UNIQUE.

AN INDIAN CAMP WHICH LOOKS VERY TRUE TO LIFE.

Women of the Church Have Been Planning for the Event for Sometime, and the Results Justify and are Highly Creditable of Their Efforts—Names of Those in Charge—Turkey Supper is Served.

An affair of the season of more than passing interest is the "Fair of the Holidays," now being held in Vincent chapel under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church. The fair opened yesterday afternoon and was continued last evening. It will also be held this afternoon and evening. For sometime past the women have been planning and making efforts to produce the results now realized.

The various holidays are represented in a manner that is unique. For instance, there is the Easter booth, one of the most attractive on account of its location, in the centre of the main room. It is of octagonal shape, and trimmed in green and white. Fancy articles are for sale. At this booth Mrs. Joseph Yerkes is the chairman, assisted by Mrs. J. W. Jackson, Mrs. George H. Whitney, Mrs. Burgess, Miss Whitney and Miss Bertha Whitney.

Then comes the booth representing Washington's birthday. Here everything is of the colonial style. Suspended at the top is an excellent likeness of Washington. The prevailing colors are green and white. Fine home-made candies are for sale. Miss Bessie Valiant is chairman, and she is assisted by Mrs. A. B. Meredith, Miss Elsie Horne, Miss Persis Snodgrass, Miss Edna French and Mrs. S. Tugwell. These women are dressed in colonial costume and their hair is powdered.

A very attractive booth is the one representing Christmas. Here are to be found all kinds of dolls and toys. At this booth Mrs. J. C. Peck is the chairman, assisted by Mrs. Charles Lyman, Mrs. Western, Mrs. Clark, Miss Chandler, Miss Fanny Chandler and Miss Humble.

Next in order comes the Labor Day booth, where a fine assortment of both plain and fancy aprons are to be found. Those in charge are Mrs. C. E. Horne, chairman; Mrs. O. L. Jenkins, Mrs. D E Davis and Mrs. J. P. Homan. On the other side of the room is a pretty booth representing Decoration Day. Mrs. J. H. Howell and Miss Saidee Mae Howell are in charge, and they have arranged a very attractive place through the use of potted plants and flowers which are for sale. Adjoining this booth there is another entitled "The Indispensable Cook-Book," which is devoted to food products in great variety. Mrs. J. M. McNaughton and Mrs. N. W. Pike are in charge.

"Fourth of July" is well represented by a lemonade well, where Miss Derby and Miss Lucy Palmer Davis dispense lemonade of the best kind.

In the gallery there are to be found other attractions. There is the Indian encampment, which is arranged in true style with evergreen trees. There is a model of a papoose the work of Miss Davies that is interesting, and George H Fountain has a display of Italian relics that he explains willingly. This was arranged by J. Hervey Doane. Wilson Darby, Miss Mabel Templin, Clyde Doane and Charles Lyman, Jr., impersonate the Indian characters. Miss Crowther is in charge at the entrance.

Another feature is the doll show in charge of Miss Davies. Here are to be found a great variety of dolls of all ages, kinds and nationalities.

"Thanksgiving Day" is represented in the supper room, where a turkey supper is served for a nominal price. Last evening nearly 150 suppers were served under the direction of Mrs W.C. Snodgrass and a committee composing twenty women and twelve young women as waitresses. The decorations are yellow. The supper is served in the old Sunday-school room, which has been made attractive. Nelson Miller acts as general director, and Miss Gertrude Sharp is the cashier.

In the upper part of the church proper a stereopticon entertainment is given under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Gee, the Misses Davies, Miss Crowther, J. Hervey Doane, Nelson Miller, J. R. Joy and Clifford McGee. John Naegel assists in running the machine. Illustrated songs and poems are given. Last evening

WILL HOLD ASSEMBLIES

THAT SERIES OF DANCES WILL BE RESUMED THIS WINTER.

The First Assembly Will be Held in the Casino December 27th—Two Others to Follow—The List of Patronesses.

The prospects for an unusually active social season in Plainfield this winter are very bright. The latest announcement of importance is that the Assemblies will be resumed this winter. The first will be held in the Casino at the holiday season.

The last Assembly was held three seasons ago. For the last two winters no attempt was made to continue the old custom. Instead a series of subscription dances took their place in a measure. This winter there has been a general feeling that the Assemblies should form part of the happenings of the social world.

The invitations for this series of formal society dances will be issued this week. The first is to be held Wednesday evening, December 27th. The next will be held during the middle of January and the third in February, just before the beginning of Lent.

The patronesses will be Mrs. C. E. Brooks, Mrs. Rowland Cox, Mrs N. E. Edgerton, Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, Mrs. Pliny Fisk, Mrs. H. M. Stockton, Mrs. Henry Talmage, Mrs. H. G. Runkle, Mrs. W. T. Kaufman, Mrs. S. L. Schoonmaker and Mrs. J. Kirland Myers.

SOMEREST HOSPITAL.

After Several Years of Agitation Somerville is in a Fair Way of Securing a Community Sick Room.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Dec. 8.—After several years of agitation and work Somerville is in a fair way of securing a hospital, articles of incorporation having been filed in the County Clerk's office for the "Somerset Hospital," under which name the institution will be established. The trustees elected are as follows: James Brown, Jr., Nelson Y Dungan, H K. Gaston, Chas Schwed, D N. Messler, J Q TenEyck, Wm. E. Haynes, Wm. DeMond, of Somerville; W. W. Smalley, John Olendorf and Charles W. Thomas, of Bound Brook; W. H. DeHart, of Raritan. The trustees met last night and organized by electing the following officers: President, James Brown; vice-president, W. W. Smalley; treasurer, J. Q TenEyck, secretary, Chas. Schwed; finance committee, John Olendorf, J.Q TenEyck, W. E. Haynes, Rev. W. H. DeHart and William De Mond; committee on site and plans, D N. Messler, W. W. Smalley and W. E. Haynes.

SUPREME DICTATOR THERE

Official Visitation to Senate Lodge, Which is Reported to be in a Prosperous Condition.

There was an interesting meeting last evening of Senate Lodge, No 3542, K. of H., at which time the following dignitaries were present; Supreme Dictator J. C. Shannon, of St. Louis, Mo.; Grand Dictator C J. Feytel, of Newark; Vice-grand Dictator C. E. Tooker, of Demarest, N. J; Grand Reporter J. M. Mayhew, of Newark; Past Grand Dictator Peter Sherf, of Elizabeth; Past Grand Dictatator and District Deputy Chas. Mayhew, of Newark, and other representatives of lodges in this vicinity.

It was an official visit of the officers and a good time was had. The order was reported to be in better condition than ever and increasing in membership. It was decided that in the near future to give a smoker for the members. The annual meeting for the election of officers will be held Thursday evening, December 21st, followed by a collation.

A Big Carpet Department.

The new carpet department of Woodhull & Martin, which has been established in the store in the Babcock building, formerly occupied by Van Emburgh & Son, is one of the finest and most extensive in New Jersey. Few of the biggest store in large cities carry as extensive a line of this sort of goods as is to be found in Woodhull & Martin's department. It certainly makes it unnecessary to go out of town to get either variety or low prices. Mr. Johnson has charge of the department.

Married Over a Month Ago.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Mary Kleiner and John D. Scott, both of this city. The event took place Thursday, November 2d, in New York At present the happy couple are residing in Newark, where the groom is employed.

YOUNG SOCIETY BUDS BLOSSOM IN STYLE.

Formal Coming Out of the Misses Cox and Fisk.

WAS A BRILLIANT AFFAIR.

RECEPTION GIVEN AT HOME OF MRS. COX YESTERDAY.

Debutantes Looked Charming and Were Introduced to Over Six Hundred Guests of This City, New York and Other Places—Today a White Luncheon is to be Given—Theatre Party for Tomorrow.

With an elaborateness of detail that has never before been equalled in this city, Miss Fanny C. Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street, and Miss Louise G. Fisk, daughter of Former Mayor and Charles J. Fisk, of West Seventh street, were formally introduced into Plainfield society at a reception given by Mrs. Cox at her spacious home yesterday afternoon and evening. This "coming out" of these two charming young debutantes is marked with a series of functions that make it a leading social event of the season.

The reception of yesterday was complete in every particular. The decorations at the Cox residence were bestowed with a lavish hand, and the rooms were fairly transformed into floral bowers of pink and green. American Beauty roses and southern smilax were used in profusion. Over 1,000 invitations were issued for the reception. Between the hours of 4 and 7 there were fully 600 guests from the elite of society of Plainfield, New York and neighboring cities, who thronged the parlors and gave life and beauty to the scene.

At the left of the entrance to the drawing room the two debutantes awaited the guests. They were both charmingly gowned in white. Miss Cox carried a bouquet of white daisies, Miss Fisk's bouquet was of pink roses. Both young women are attractive in appearance, Miss Cox a pronounced blonde and Miss Fisk a less decided type, and both looked very beautiful indeed in their superb toilets. About them were grouped Miss McCormick, of Herrisburg; Miss Wood, of Pittsburg; Miss Meachem, of Chicago; Miss Waterman, of Southport, Conn., and Miss Bradford, of New York, all of them pretty and charming and gowned in a becoming manner.

The mothers of the two debutantes were present in the drawing room, where they were assisted in receiving by Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Mrs. C. W. McCutchen and Mrs. S. L. Schoonmaker. A string quintette was ensconsed behind a floral barricade and rendered selections during the reception. In the dining room the table was magnificently decorated in the prevailing colors. Refreshments were served by Sherry.

About the mantel and fireplace in the drawing room a perfect bank of American beauty roses set in southern smilax was arranged. At each bow window curtains of smilax were held back with pink roses, while others were arranged along the top. In every possible space roses and smilax were artistically distributed with a profusion that was fairly bewildering.

The affair was one of the most elaborate of its kind ever held in this city. It formed a grand opening for the society careers of these two young women, daughters of two of Plainfield's leading families.

Today and tomorrow will be equally busy ones for the young debutantes. A white luncheon is given them today by Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, an aunt of Miss Cox. A dance is to be held in the Casino this evening in their honor. Tomorrow Mrs. Fisk gives them a theatre party to be followed by a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria.

No Trouble in K. of H.

A report has been circulated that there is trouble in the Knights of Honor of this State and that a number of lodges have withdrawn. This is entirely false. There is absolutely no trouble in the order. There is some trouble in the Knights and Ladies of Honor, an entirely separate organization.

Important for Pythians.

A meeting of special importance of Perseverance Lodge, Knights of Pythias, will be held this evening, a special committee will report and it is particularly important that all members should be in attendance.

Testimony Before Special Master.

William Newcorn appeared before Judge Harris in Newark as the lawyer for the defendant in the case of Serratelli against Miliano. Testimony was taken before Judge Harris as a special master in chancery.

HARD FIGHT AT MARBACAN

General Young Has Pushed Through to Vigan.

SHIPS SENT TO APARRI.

General Otis Cables the War Department in Regard to Situation in Luzon—Filipinos Still Maintain Position South of Manila—Resistance of a Feeble Nature.

Manila, Dec. 8.—The Navy is sending ships to Aparri in anticipation of the arrival of Major Bachelor's battalion, which is working through the Cavagan Valley. Major Bachelor has not been heard from since last Friday.

The transport Romulus has sailed for Vigan to bring 600 Spanish prisoners to Manila.

All fears for the safety of the command under Gen. S. B. M. Young in the northern part of Luzon have been quieted by the receipt at the War Department of the following cable despatch from Gen. Otis, dated Manila, Dec. 7:

"Gen. Young reports arrival at Vigan, evening fifth, having encountered force of enemy Narbacan, twelve miles south of city, whom he drove to eastward of same into San Quentin, Cagayan. His troops now pressing them back; country extremely rough, strongly entrenched.

"About six hundred prisoners escaped reported that natives allowed all but American and prominent Spanish prisoners to escape from Banguel; latter driven back into mountains.

"Send transportation with subsistence and medical supplies to Vigan tomorrow to bring prisoners to Manila and to supply Young's troops with necessary quartermaster's stores.

"Our casualties one killed, twelve wounded, wounds mostly slight. Enemy left in trenches twenty-five dead, few rifles, several thousand rounds of small ammunition, forty shrapnel. Gen. Young has sufficient troops to meet all difficulties. OTIS."

Later in the day the following review of the military situation in the island of Luzon was received from Gen. Otis:

"In central Luzon no native force of importance, except in Bulacan Province, near mountains, where Pilar holds together 1,000 or more men, who will be attacked soon.

"Gen. Grant has moved small column down east coast of Battan Province, encountering little opposition. Column moving westward from mountains expected to reach western coast Luzon 10th inst.; many small Filipino armed bands in country robbing and in some instances murdering inhabitants, which are being pursued by troops quite successfully.

"To the south of Manila Filipinos still maintain positions; necessary force to scatter them will be sent there at once. OTIS."

Boston School Teachers Scored.

Boston, Dec. 8.—At a meeting of the Public School Association, Mrs. Edwin D. Mead made the statement that one-fourth of the teachers in the Boston public schools were unsatisfactory, encouraging bigotry, narrowness and immorality. The schools were on the decline, she averred, and the souls and minds of the pupils were being placed in jeopardy. The Association will endeavor to elect a ticket for School Committee at the election next Tuesday.

Coleman's Remains in Potter's Field.

Maysville, Ky., Dec. 8.—All that was left of the body of Dick Coleman who was burned at the stake by a mob here on Wednesday afternoon has been raked out of the embers and buried in Potter's Field. It was only a skull and two or three charred bones. The remainder of the body consisted of ghastly fragments, widely distributed among relic connoisseurs. Perfect quiet prevails in the city.

Hanged in Presence of 5,000 People.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 8.—Reuben Ross, colored, who some months ago assaulted an aged woman, was hanged at Lumberton, N. C., Thursday. It was a public execution and was witnessed by 5,000 people. The crowd was an orderly one. Ross's neck was broken by the fall. He confessed to the crime and warned other negroes to refrain from assaulting white women.

One Killed, the Other Injured.

Fishkill Landing, N. Y., Dec. 8.—F. H. Timoney, one of the oldest and wealthiest brick manufacturers on the Hudson, while in company with a man named Doyle, was struck by a train on the New York Central Railroad here Thursday. Doyle was killed outright and Timoney is seriously hurt.

More Trouble For the D. L. & W.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 8.—The breaker boys of the Taylor mine here, owned and operated by the D., L. & W. Railroad Company, have gone on strike and the colliery was closed, down throwing 400 men out of employment. The strikers claimed that they worked ten hours a day and receive only seven hours' pay.

Escaped Death by Good Luck.

Rutherford, N. J., Dec. 8.—W. W. Scott, seventy-four years of age, narrowly escaped being killed here by an Erie train. In attempting to board the train he missed the step and fell on the tracks. The train had just stopped, otherwise he would probably have been killed, for his head was across the rails.

Miss Brown Goes to an Asylum.

Akron, O., Dec. 8.—Miss Katie King Brown has been adjudged insane and taken to the Massillon Asylum. Ten years ago she inherited $50,000 from her father's estate, but lost her mind grieving over his death. All of his money with the exception of $6,000 has been expended in attempting to restore her reason.

Gilmore's Old Drum Major Dead

Attleboro, Mass., Dec. 8.—Ernest Meyers, who was drum major of Gilmore's Band, of New York, during the civil war, died this morning. He was seventy years of age, and was known in all Grand Army circles throughout the State.

THE MOLINEUX CASE.

What the Prosecution Has Thus Far Proved.

New York, Dec. 8.—Judge, jury, lawyers and experts, to say nothing of the young man on trial for his life, had a half day's respite. One of the Molineux jurors wished to attend a funeral, so Recorder Goff ordered that court should not reconvene until 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

Messrs. Weeks and Battle, Molineux's counsel, spent the morning in further cross-examination of William J. Kinsley, the expert on handwriting, who yesterday testified that he believed that Molineux had written the "Harpster letter," signed H. Cornish. This was the finishing touch of Assistant District Attorney Osborne's "coup" in springing the Harpster testimony at the very beginning of the trial. He first proved by direct testimony that Molineux had considered the question of writing to the Stearns patent medicine concern in Detroit for Harpster's record, with a view to injuring Harpster, for whom, as for Cornish, Molineux felt a great dislike. Then Mr. Osborne clinched the point by getting the expert to identify as in Molineux's handwriting the letter which was sent to Detroit asking about Harpster and which was signed "H. Cornish." The mere opinion of the expert might not have had much weight with the jury, but taken in connection with the testimony of Rudolph Heiles, that Molineux wanted to write such a letter, it must have some force. There is no question of Cornish having written the letter. In the first place he was very friendly to Harpster; in the next place he was well acquainted with the head of the Stearns concern and frequently met him in this city.

Thus it will be seen that the defence felt it very necessary to do all it could to shake the assumption of proof that Molineux wrote this letter. While it has no direct bearing upon the murder of Mrs. Adams—that is to say, there is nothing in it concerning anybody's intention either to kill Mrs. Adams or to send poison to Harry Cornish—still the admission that Molineux forged Cornish's name would be very damaging to his case. The prosecution has in its possession a large number of letters, all of the same nature (requesting a certain kind of patent medicine), many of which are signed with Cornish's name. It is the assertion of the prosecution that Molineux wrote them all, and it is the expectation to show that the handwriting is the same as that on the package containing the poisoned bromo-seltzer, sent to Cornish, which caused Mrs. Adam's death.

FLOWERS FOR THEIR FRIEND.

Member of the Virginia Legislature Kindly Remembered.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 8.—Frank Hume, member of the House of Delegates from Alexandria county, found on his desk in the House Thursday a magnificent bouquet of American beauty roses, the gift of Coxey's Army.

Mr. Hume is one of the wealthiest merchants of Washington City. When Coxey's Army went there several years ago he conferred with Secretary of War Lamont and President Cleveland, to whom he proposed a plan of dispersing the army to keep them from suffering. His suggestion was to send the men away in batches of one hundred each, so as to break up their organization entirely.

This plan met with immediate favor. After the men were sent away, and were scattered through the northern part of Virginia Governor Tyler sent a battalion of State militia to drive them out. The Coxeyites were scattered, and many of the wanderers suffered greatly for food. Then Mr. Hume came to the rescue, and from his wholesale store furnished hundreds of the Coxeyites with food.

Will Contest Settled.

New York, Dec. 8.—It can be stated authoritatively that the skeletons in the Hilton family closet will not be aired, and the contest for the millions of the late Judge and partner of A. T. Stewart has been declared off

Henry Hilton, whose pursuit of pleasure, so angered Judge Hilton that he cut him off with only $25,000 of the estate that was valued at $6,000,000, has accepted a compromise. Mr. Hilton and his counsel refuse to give the terms of the settlement and it may be they will be permanently withheld from the public.

No End to Family's Grief.

Wabash, Ind., Dec. 8.—E r in the present year John Wysong, of Markle, died of pneumonia, and ever sin family has been supported by public charity. A month ago the eldest son, Emmett, was seized with pulmonary trouble, and, though his life was saved, he became violently insane. The youngest girl, Cora, aged 7, died of a bronchial affection Saturday, and Thursday the eldest daughter, aged 17, passed away.

Chili Holds On to Moore.

Santiago De Chili, Dec. 8.—The Supreme Court has confirmed the decision of a lower court, allowing the United States forty days, the time expiring December 25, in which to present documents to prove the identity and guilt of Frederick T. Moore, arrested here on the charge of embezzling $53,000 from the National Bank of Commerce of Boston.

THE MARKET.

New York, Dec. 8.—An upward movement of prices was noticed in the Stock Exchange to-day. Gains were moderate, and excepting Sugar and Delaware did not exceed a fraction. The Industrial Specialties showed rather wider advances. In the railroads, American Sugar, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and Minneapolis and St. Louis second preferred were the features.

BOERS RRE AGGRESSIVE.

Contradictory Rumors About Ladysmith Attack.

GENERAL JOUBERT IS ILL.

Report That the Boers Were Defeated and Retreated—Most Contradictory Reports—How the Situation is Viewed in London—Kruger Anxious to Go to the Front.

London, Dec. 8.—While to a certain extent the attitude of suspense as to the two centres of engrossing interest, Ladysmith and Kimberley, continues, so far as Natal is concerned there are signs, faint but significant, that the tension is relaxing; that the inhabitants returning to Estcourt are right when they declare that the tide of war has turned.

There are rumors that President Kruger is seriously alarmed about the possibilities of a British invasion of the Dutch Republic and is counselling the abandonment of the Ladysmith investment; that General Joubert is ill and has gone back across the frontier to recover; that there is illness and hunger in the Boer camps, and disaffection between the Transvaal and Free State burghers growing out of a feeling that the siege has been a failure and that the soldiers might be much more usefully employed in the defence of Bloemfontein.

The report of General Joubert being succeeded by Schalkburger might mean a more vigorous campaign on the part of the Boers who have blamed Joubert for his caution. It lends color to the report that Ladysmith is to be assaulted. It may be taken for granted, however, that so long as Frere camp remains quiescent it is tolerably certain that Ladysmith is not in very great straits. While there is communication between Frere and Ladysmith by searchlights and runners, any advance for the relief of the latter place would mean very hard fighting, as it is known that the Boers have strongly fortified the hills between Ladysmith and Colenso.

Most contradictory reports are in circulation as to the movements of the Boers around Ladysmith. Despatches so late as Monday report large numbers of them to be retiring. It is said that a column four miles long has been seen departing. Another message on the same date places the Boers in great strength along the line of the Tugela.

The fact that the Boers are not weakening in front of Kimberley is very important as showing their strength.

Definite news of General Methuen's advance has arrived. The Boers have been located by the Lancers six miles to the north, in a strong position. It is feared that Methuen will once more have to deliver a frontal attack. There are indications that the Boers in this quarter have been reinforced.

Great efforts are being made to reduce Mafeking. An additional force, with heavy guns, has started to cooperate in the siege.

Hospital Wrecked.

Ladysmith, Dec. 8. (delayed in transmission).—The Boer bombardment is becoming hotter. They are using thirty-two guns, the shells from which have smashed some of the British howitzers, thrown down tents and killed horses.

The garrison has suffered numerous casualties. There are now 207 sick and 225 wounded.

One of the Boer's shrapnel shells penetrated the hospital and exploded, scattering its bullets among the patients.

Boers Bar Methuen's Path.

Kimberley, Dec. 8.—The Boers are massing in the Kopjes, around Spytfontein. They are continually reinforced and are working hard piling up stones forming screens and digging rifle pits.

The Boers have behaved well, even offering facilities for the exchange of dead. Cecil Rhodes is employing 1,400 natives in the construction of a siege avenue, which now stretches into the veldt. The enemy have not molested the laborers.

A Rumor Only.

London, Dec. 8.—A story was current at Durban Tuesday, December 5, to the effect that the Boers made what is thought to have been their final effort to capture Ladysmith on December 4 and were defeated and retreated. As the story was brought by runners it should be received with caution, as the unreliability of these "Kaffir-grams" is notorious.

Kruger Wants to Fight.

Lorenzo Marquez, Dec. 8.—President Kruger is anxious to go to the front, but is being dissuaded from the move by the Transvaal officials.

Both Wives Will Claim the Pension.

Springfield, O., Dec. 8.—Peter Pope, of Donnellville, who dropped dead on Tuesday evening, was buried Thursday afternoon. After his death a young man, claiming to be his son, demanded the body. An agreement was reached and the funeral was held. Both wives were at the funeral, accompanied by several children. Pope had not been living with Wife No. 1 and Wife No. 2 did not know of her existence. He recently was granted a large pension, and both will claim it.

Died in the Jury Box.

Oshkosh, Wis., Dec. 8.—John Schallkopf, a talesman drawn in the trial of John Campfield, of Rushford, for the murder of Alphonse Sanden, an old French hermit, died suddenly in court while sitting in the jury box. Apoplexy is thought to have been the cause. Schallkopf, who was a well-to do contractor, was apparently in robust health.

Wood to be Governor of Cuba.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Gen. Leonard Wood has been at the War Department for another conference with the Secretary of War. It is not denied by the War Department officers that General Wood will succeed General Brooke as Military Governor of Cuba, but there is no confirmation of the report that General Brooke will be relieved by Jan. 1.

A practical sportsman with humanitarian instincts relates that on one occasion, in the forests of Maine, his catch was so large that he gave way to much enthusiasm, which was added to by certain good spirits that, during the excitement, escaped from a glass bottle and took possession of him and his guide. Before going to sleep that night, however, each man swallowed a and in the morning neither had a touch of anything like the headache that on previous occasions had pretty uniformly followed unusual success with rod and reel.

TO RUSH CURRENCY BILL.

This Measure to be Taken Up in the House Monday.

WILL BE SPECIAL ORDER.

A Committee on Rules to Control the Subject is Named by the Speaker—No Date Yet Fixed For a Vote—Committee on Privileges and Election to Pass on Quay Case.

Washington, Dec. 8.—The Republican and Democratic leaders attempted to perfect an agreement for the debate of the financial bill, which is to begin next Monday, but the negotiations failed. The Republican leaders then decided to resort to a special rule to be brought in at once.

Mr. Overstreet (Indiana), who is to have charge of the bill, introduced the formal resolution for a special order, upon which the Committee on Rules will act. It provides for the consideration of the bill, beginning Monday and continuing until a date to be decided upon by the Committee on Rules.

The Speaker announced the appointment of the Committee on Rules, as follows: The Speaker, Mr. Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Grosvenor, of Ohio, Republicans, and Messrs. Richardson, of Tennessee, and Mr. Bailey, of Texas, Democrats.

A Day in the Senate.

Washington, Dec. 8.—An invitation has been extended through President pro tem Frye to the Senate to attend the George Washington centennial memorial services, to be held in this city Thursday, December 14, under the auspices of the Improved Order of Red Men. Senator Depew is to deliver the oration.

Mr. Chandler (New Hampshire) offered resolutions instructing the Committee on Privileges and Elections to investigate the right of William A. Clark, of Montana, and Nathan B. Scott, of West Virginia, to seats in the Senate and to take testimony. The resolutions were referred to the Committee on Contingent Expenses.

Mr. Berry, of Arkansas, offered a joint resolution in favor of the election of United States Senators by the people, and gave notice that at a later date he would address the Senate upon the subject.

After discussing the bill offered by Mr. Chandler to increase the efficiency of physical training at the West Point and Annapolis Naval Academies, the Senate adjourned until Monday. The bill was referred to the naval committee.

To Hear Counsel on Quay's Rights.

Washington, Dec. 8.—The Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections has arranged the preliminaries for the consideration of the protests against Senators Quay, Clark and Scott.

In the Quay case it was decided to hear counsel on Saturday, the 16th inst. and that the hearing should be concluded on that date. Former Senator Edmunds and Hon. Jeremiah Wilson, of counsel for the remonstrants, were present, and stated that the time selected would be satisfactory to them. Only legal questions were involved in this case, and no witnesses will be heard.

The preliminary preparations on the Clark and Scott cases were placed in the hands of Senators Chandler and Pettus. They were authorized to decide for the committee what persons should be summoned and when they should be heard.

The New Canal Bill.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Representative Hepburn has re-introduced in the House his bill for the construction of the Nicaraguan canal. It has been changed so as to provide for the control only of the canal and not for the full ownership and jurisdiction of the territory through which it passes, as the similar bill last session.

The annual report of the Martime Canal Company, of Nicaragua, was presented in which it is claimed to have spent $4,000,000 on work but was prevented by the interposition of the Government from fulfilling its contract. Protests have been filed with the Secretary of State against plans to freeze out the company.

After a short session the House adjourned because of the death of Representative-elect William L. Green, of Nebraska.

Wants Postoffices United.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—First Assistant Postmaster General Heath and Postmaster Van Cott, of New York, are to have a conference on the details of the bill to be introduced in Congress to provide improved postal facilities for Greater New York.

Mr. Van Cott has already drawn up a bill, which he sent to the Post Office Department for the comments of the officials. It was confined simply to a provision for an uptown post office. Mr. Heath returned it with a recommendation that it be expanded so as to embrace all of the postal facilities needed in the greater city. Then an appointment for an interview was made.

Released Convict Killed.

Paducah, Ky., Dec. 8.—A call was received here Thursday afternoon from Vienna, Ill., for a bloodhound to be used in tracing the assassin of James Winchester. Winchester had just been released from prison at Chester, where he served a term for manslaughter. While sitting by the fire at his home with his family around him, all happy in his return, some one thurst a gun through the window and fired. The ball struck Winchester in the head, killing him almost instantly. There is no clew to the murderer, though it is thought that he was a relative of the man Winchester killed.

Child Has a Bullet in His Brain.

Newark, Ohio, Dec. 8.—While playing with a revolver James Matheny's nine-year-old son accidentally shot his six-year-old brother Washington in the forehead. The wounded child is not only conscious, but he expresses a desire to play. A twenty-two-calibre bullet is imbedded in his brain five inches from the surface.

IVORY SOAP PASTE.

In fifteen minutes, with only a cake of Ivory Soap and water, you can make a better cleansing paste than you can buy.

Ivory Soap Paste will take spots from clothing; and will clean carpets, rugs, kid gloves, slippers, patent, enamel, russet leather and canvas shoes, leather belts, painted wood-work and furniture. The special value of Ivory Soap in this form arises from the fact that it can be used with a damp sponge or cloth to cleanse many articles that cannot be washed because they will not stand the free application of water.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory'" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

ROBERTS TO THE PUBLIC.

Denounces the Methods Used to Barr Him From Congress.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Brigham H. Roberts of Utah, who was not allowed to take the oath as a Representative in Congress, has issued an address to the American people. It contains much that was said by Roberts on the floor of the House, and by Mr. Richardson, the Democratic leader, who opposed the resolution of Mr. Taylor of Ohio. In the address Mr. Roberts says that the committee is made up entirely of those hostile to his cause—all of whom voted against the Utah member taking his seat. He argues that he is being unfairly treated and asks the American people to look upon the matter in that light.

After discussing the different phases of the matter at considerable length Mr. Roberts in closing says:

"American citizens, it is a Mormon who is the object of the popular clamor to-day may it not be the Catholic or the Methodist or the freethinker tomorrow? If the rights of the Representative from Utah and of his State cannot be safeguarded by the provisions of the Constitution and the laws from the frenzy of popular fury, set on fire by falsehood and distortion, what guarantee have we that any one's rights are secure? And is it true that this mob law by indirection is to reach within what should be the sacred precincts of the House of Representatives itself? I shall do all I can to maintain my rights, and indirectly yours, too, under the Constitution. I stand alone, save for the very few who gave me their very guarded support by voting against the monstrous proceedings that prevent me from taking the oath of office. I am without a dollar at my command except the salary attached to my office, with which to fight the battle now pending before the special committee. I am without legal counsel, except for the kindly suggestions of here and there a word from a lawyer, acquaintance, or friend. And, indeed, I prefer it to be so now, for my case is so firmly rooted in justice that it needs but a plain statement of the facts and a fair application of the lay to them in order to make my right to my seat apparent; and I want the condition here named to stand as a refutation to the sensational charges that have been made against the Mormon Church standing behind me with any amount of money for legal counsel and the maintenance of a lobby in Washington. But it is possible in the present state of public sentiment that sophistry and special pleading, adroitly put, may be accepted for the law and many of your representatives, influenced by the fear they have of your disapproval of their acts, may vote against what are clearly the Constitutional rights in the case.

I know not whether in this fight I shall win or lose, whether justice shall triumph or malice bear down justice, but I shall have this satisfaction if I fail, that when future ills grow out of this high-handed measure, now being enacted, I did what I could to prevent them."

MILLER BETWEEN TWO FIRES.

American and Canadian Officers Have Him Cornered.

New York, Dec. 8.—William F. Miller, he of the Franklin Syndicate and 520 per cent. a year notoriety, is in Canada, in the province of Quebec, and not far from Montreal, it is now said. Captain Reynolds of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau has returned to New York after being in consultation with Governor Roosevelt in Albany, and it is expected that as soon as the formalities between the State Department in Washington and the proper officials of the Canadian Government are complied with, Miller will be arrested and brought here.

Captain Reynolds authorized the statement that Miller had not been arrested. He said, however, that Miller's whereabouts was known. He refused to say where he was, fearing the ends of justice might be defeated, even when he was called as a witness in the Adams Street Court, Brooklyn, where Miller's brother, Louis H. Miller, was being tried on the technical charge of larceny.

Besides the detectives from the United States who are watching Miller, a warrant has been issued by the Canadian police, charging him with bringing stolen goods into Canada. But the Canadian police do not care to arrest him on that charge, for they fear they may not be able to hold him. For this reason, it is thought best to wait until the formalities are completed for bringing him back here. It will take three or four days to have the papers attended to in Washington and in Ottawa.

Aguinaldo Gone Again.

Manila, Dec. 8.—The expectation of catching Aguinaldo in the north has been abandoned practically and the probability now is that he will turn southward, if he is not already there, with his destination Cavite Province, his home, where the insurrection began and where it still has its greatest strength. The Filipino soldiers in that province recently have been showing increased enthusiasm and boldness, and captured natives say that Aguinaldo is coming to join them with a large army. The same belief prevails among the natives in Manila and elsewhere that Aguinaldo intends to make his headquarters in Cavite Province.

Watchman Crushed to Death.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 8.—A railway train crashed into a vehicle at the Martindale avenue crossing of the Lake Erie Thursday, and W. H. Morley, the aged watchman, was so flustrated that when the next train came along he stood between the rails waving his danger signal until he was run down and crushed to death.

Circus Man Wants Divorce.

Columbus, O., Dec. 8.—Late Thursday afternoon Peter Sells, one of the proprietors of the Sells-Forepaugh circus, and a millionaire by reason of his investments in other concerns, filed a sensational petition for divorce. In it he charges his wife, Mary A. Sells, with infidelity, extending over a period of ten years.

Miller and Waller Still Lead.

New York, Dec. 8.—Miller and Waller still lead in the sixday bicycle race at Madison Square Garden. They have covered upward of 1,865 miles are only one lap ahead of Maya and McEachern.

Jersey Incorporates More Concerns.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 8.—These companies have been incorporated here. The Atlantic Iron & Steel Company, capital stock $10,000,000. The company is empowered to mine, produce and manufacture iron and steel. The Lehigh Power Company capital $500,000, to furnish water and construct and operate plants for furnishing electric light, heat and power. The Consumers' Tobacco Company, capital $300,000.

The Republican Convention.

Indianapolis, Dec. 8.—Evans Woolen, secretary of the Commercial Club, has proposed to leading hotelkeepers a plan to bring the Republican national convention of next year to Indianapolis. The hotel men approved the plan, but it was decided not to make it public before Mr. Woolen should have gone to Washington and consulted with Senators Fairbanks and Hanna.

A $500,000 Blaze in New York.

New York, Dec. 8.—Fire in the building 577 Broadway, occupied by Speigle & Co., manufacturing chemists, destroyed property to the amount of half a million dollars. About half of this amount was on the stock and the balance on the building and fixtures. The loss is only partially covered by insurance.

Van Praag's Saloon Closed.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Mayor Harrison has revoked the saloon license of Sol Van Praag, the well-known politician of this city. When Mrs. Van Praag was recently convicted of robbing an Oregon man and sent to the penitentiary the Mayor concluded that it was time to close the saloon.

Mrs. C. A. Burling Dead.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 8.—Mrs. C. A. Burling, mother of Mrs. William T. S. Sampson, wife of the Admiral, died at her home on Park avenue, in this city, aged seventy-four years. She had been in feeble health for some time past, and her death was not unexpected.

Anti-Labor Law in Germany.

Berlin, Dec. 8.—The Reichstag has passed the third reading of the bill repealing the law prohibiting workmen's associations.

Reform in Primaries.

Speaking of the trickery and dishonesty at the recent Republican primaries in Plainfield the West Jersey Press says:

What is needed in this State—and it is the greatest political need of the day—is a law throwing about the primaries the same safeguards as are afforded at our general elections. In no other way can the people be guaranteed a free and fair expression in the nomination of party candidates. That it would be expensive goes without saying, but it would be worth all that it would cost, and more to boot. Some time this reform is bound to come in New Jersey—as it already has in other States—and the sooner it is inaugurated the better it will be for the entire body politic.

This leads the Elizabeth Journal to add:

"There are already laws galore, but they are not effective. The West Jersey Press touches the core of the matter when it argues that primaries should be guarded as carefully as elections. In some respects primaries are more important than elections. The latter merely ratify the former. Primaries choose candidates—or delegates who are empowered to choose them—and elections can never improve on or supercede the primaries. Attendance at both primaries and elections should be imperative, and the former as well as the latter should be safeguarded in a way that would permit of no trickery, no dishonesty, no intimidation, no improper voting."

The culinary editorial department of the esteemed News, echoing the sentiments of the able press agent of the Riker-Hine trolley syndicate, advances the opinion that the argument of The Daily Press that the syndicate is conducting a game of bluff in Elizabeth, is not sustained. The menu editor of The News avers that there is no parallel between the contentions of the trolley company and the Elizbeth City Council, and the difference between the same corporation and the local solons a year ago. Every move in both places has been similar, a fact that the editorial chef of The News must know if he has followed the franchise proceedings before the Elizabeth Council. The bugaboo of a private right of way was brought into play by Mr. Riker when he refused the franchise in Plainfield, and at that time there were the same sycophantic utterances among the unthinking Plainfielders as there is now in Elizabeth and the pantry department of The News office. What proved to be the case in Plainfield will undoubtedly be the same in Elizabeth—the final acceptance of the city's terms by the trolley company.

Referring to the fact that it is alleged that Senator Clark, of Montana, bought his way into the Senatorship by corrupting the Montana Legislature, and that he should therefore be rejected, the Philadelphia Record wants to know if his title by purchase shall be rejected what hope can there be for Quay, who was unable to get even a purchased legislative majority?

Elizabeth Republicans are again looking to the Legislature to make their cup of happiness full. Noah F Morrison, one of the faithful of the county seat set, hopes to land the journal clerkship of the Assembly again, and like all loyal Elizabeth Republicans he has the support of his townsmen of the same political faith. He will probably get there.

The local merchants are already making elaborate displays of holiday goods—the equal of any to be found in the larger cities. They deserve the liberal and ready patronage of all Plainfielders, not only because such enterprise should be encouraged, but because the variety and the price of the goods will prove perfectly satisfactory.

For the first time the Speakership has now crossed the Mississippi. Only twice has it been held by western men—Keifer and Kerr—since 1869, when Schuyler Colfax went out. Since then the east has had three Speakers, Blaine, Randall and Reed; the south has had two, Carlisle and Crisp

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Senator Reed has been spoken of for the Republican leader in the Senate this year. The Senator's friends would like to see him in that important position, but it seems more than probable that Senator Pitney will be tendered the position. This would put him in line for the presidency of the Senate next year, which is the last of his present term. With Senator Johnson in the chair and Pitney on the floor, there is not much chance for bad legislation this year.—Somerville Unionist Gazette.

* * * * *

Plainfield has again gone Republican, and with a majority that makes the whole party in Union county happy. In spite of treachery at its primaries, discontent among some of its workers, and rumors and splits and disaffections and what not, the Plainfield Republicans and their old, tried and trusted leaders, came out away ahead. One of the best results of the Plainfield election, to the county at large, is the return of Freeholder J. Frank Hubbard. He has been so long in the board and has become so valuable to it, that his place could not be filled, not even by any other eminent Republican from Plainfield.—Elizabeth Journal.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Now that the city election is over, Plainfield will have a respite from elections until next fall when the National election comes. The National election is always the season for a particularly aggressive campaign by both parties and much general interest is always shown in the result. The Republicans are jubilant and the oft repeated "I told you so" is heard many times. The Democrats haven't much to say. Considerable money changed hands on the election, particularly on the result in the First ward. Many Democrats even gave odds, so sure were they that Hetfield would be elected.

Must Have Gone Through Elizabeth.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—President Lincoln passed through New York on his way from his home at Springfield, Ill., to Washington, on the occasion of his first inauguration. I distinctly remember him coming down Broadway in an open carriage and bowing to the crowds of citizens on the sidewalks and at the windows. The people cheered him all along Broadway to the Astor House, where he stopped to spend the night. Later he left hurriedly for Washington, making the journey in disguise, wearing a Scotch cap, according to Joe Howard, the well known New York journalist, for fear of assassination. Lincoln must have passed through Elizabeth, as at that time the Pennsylvania Railroad was the only direct line to Washington. The files of the New York papers ought to make this clear if anyone will take the trouble to look it up. H. E. B.

Keep Everlastingly At It.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Again we are outvoted in our most laudible efforts for a more economical administration of our city government. The Democrats never presented a better ticket to the voters in our city's history, but the free use of money, and a life struggle to hold power on the part of the Republican office holders, made the odds too great to overcome. But the battle is not yet finished. That great party of the people will not down. We will again face the foe to gain economical municipal government in the next city election. J E Martine.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

There is probably no show on the road that is more humorous and that causes more side-splitting laughter than the antics of that young imp of good nature, "Peck's Bad Boy," and the tricks that he plays on his pa, his ma and the groceryman are well known to nearly every man, woman and child in America. But since our war broke out with Spain his poor pa and the poor grocer have found it hotter than Cervera's fleet did at Santiago July 3 1. The Bad Boy and his capable company will appear at Music Hall tomorrow afternoon and night. The matinee is for the especial benefit of the ladies and children, and prices of admission have been fixed at the low sum of 10 cents for children and 25 cents for adults

"On the Suwanee River," which comes to Music Hall next Tuesday night, is a new departure in the line of southern dramas. While it introduces some colored people in the plantation scenes, it does not in any way depend upon them to attract attention, to the disadvantage of the story and the interest of the audience. The scene in which the colored people appear is a perfectly natural one and in it are introduced the songs, dances and pastimes of the plantation hands. When the scene is finished the darkies are no more in evidence This is as it should be; this kind of talent is all well enough in its place, and, when not overdone, is interesting and amusing.

—Surveyors are busy in the borough staking out lines and taking measurements for the proposed widening of Somerset street, from the county line to Jackson avenue.

—Chief Marshal Campbell's picture adorns the frame of a Somerset street photograph gallery, and more than one person has commented upon the good looking officer

—Those who are interested in Huyler's candy will be pleased to know that at Legett's pharmacy in the Y. M. C A building a full line is kept. Now is the time to place your orders.

—M. Weinberger, manager of the New York Clothing Co., 214 West Front street, has placed on sale 1 000 overcoats and ulsters at very low prices. So prepare yourself and boys for the big snowstorm promised for Sunday.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning." writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. "All thought she must soon die from pneumonia, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, saying it had more than once saved her life, and had cured her of consumption. After three small doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Our Holiday Display -:- -:-

The extent and variety of our holiday show is most comprehensive and includes nearly every conceivable kind of toys of foreign and domestic manufacture that are new and desirable. We are direct importers of toys and games, importing for our four "united stores" in very large quantities saving the jobbers profits procuring the choicest and best of everything and offering at very moderate prices a stock unmatched and unequaled. The price saving must be apparent to the consumers. Our facilities for buying, combined with our unequalled store service places us in a position where we are at once recognized as the only department store in the community and without a competitor. Juvenile books and games are very important items in our display for the little folks.

DOLLS -:-

You can hardly conceive of a good kind of doll that is not shown in this immense display. Jointed dolls of every imaginable kind made by the best French and German makers. Kid body dolls of all sizes—dressed dolls in a bewildering assortment—dolls that represent all the heroes of the late war; in fact, everything in the doll line is here.

The more staple lines of useful and decorative articles for the people of more mature years are largely in evidence everywhere around the store. Solid brass goods in candlelabra, mirrors, inkstands and scores of useful and ornamental articles attract considerable attention by artistic beauty combined with moderate prices.

SILVER-PLATED WARE -:- -:-

Table ware is another very important item. We show a very complete line of Roger Bros. famous ware. Not the Wm. A. Rogers or any other of the Rogers imitations that are palmed off as equal to the genuine Roger Bros. goods, but the very best goods priced very moderately for strictly first-class ware. The staple line of goods have not been lost sight of in the great holiday rush. Handkerchiefs, gloves, umbrellas, neckwear for men and women, Hosiery, muslinwear and all the kindred lines are shown here in the largest varieties. We claim that the most liberal guarantee that any merchant can give with their merchandise is this—your money back anytime you prefer the money to the merchandise. That is our guarantee with every dollar's worth of merchandise we sell.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Preußen.

Provinz Brandenburg.

Berlin. Der sozialdemokratische Stadtverordnete Bogtherr legte sein Mandat nieder, da er nach Stettin verzogen ist. An seiner Stelle wurde der sozialdemokratische Kaufmann Hintze gewählt.—Aus Furcht vor einer ihr drohenden körperlichen Züchtigung wegen ungenügender Beaufsichtigung der ihr von der Mutter anvertrauten Geschwister stürzte sich die elf Jahre alte Tora des Buchdruckers Weykopf aus dem Kammerfenster auf den Hof hinab und zog sich so schwere Verletzungen zu, daß sie bald darauf verstarb.—Seit Kurzem hat die hiesige Oberpostdirektion einen von der Gesellschaft für Verkehrsunternehmungen gebauten elektrischen Postwagen ihrem Betriebe angegliedert. Der Wagen hat täglich im Ausfahrdienste eine Strecke von etwa 30 Kilometer zu durchlaufen und bewährt sich gut.

Angermünde. Die Landwirthschaftskammer für die Provinz Brandenburg, welche den Import von Schweizerziegen lebhaft betreibt, hat in's Auge gefaßt, eine Ziegenausstellung für die ganze Provinz zu veranstalten.

Frankfurt a. O. Der Rentner Ludwig Lange, der „älteste Leibgrenadier," ist hier im 99. Lebensjahre gestorben. Der Heimgegangene, der sich noch vor Kurzem guter Gesundheit erfreute, war in weiten Kreisen unserer Bürgerschaft unter dem Namen „der alte Papa Lange" bekannt. Er trat im Jahre 1824 bei der 11. Kompagnie des 8. Infanterie (Leib)-Regiments ein und diente bei dieser bis zum Jahre 1827. Dem Verein ehemaliger Leibgrenadiere gehörte Lange bis zu seinem Tode als Ehrenmitglied an.

Provinz Hannover.

Hannover. Der vor einigen Monaten wegen Mißhandlung einer Handelsfrau zu einer längeren Gefängnißstrafe verurtheilte Schutzmann Hauschild ist jetzt begnadigt und zu der neu eingerichteten königlichen Polizeiverwaltung nach Rixdorf bei Berlin versetzt worden.

Isenbüttel. Auf dem hiesigen Bahnhof stürzte der Schaffner Friedrich Gose von dem in Fahrt befindlichen Güterzuge Hannover-Berlin, und zwar von seinem Dachsitz, herab. Der Unglückliche kam unter die Räder, so daß der ganze Zug über ihn hinwegging. Als man den Verunglückten, welcher Vater von drei Kindern ist, aufhob, war er todt; beide Beine waren ihm total abgefahren worden.

Provinz Hessen-Nassau.

Flörsheim. Der Gemeinderath beschloß, die elektrische Beleuchtung im ganzen Flecken einzuführen. Eine Wiesbadener Gesellschaft hat sich erboten, die Erbauung der gesammten Anlage zu übernehmen, sobald sich die Einwohnerschaft für eine bestimmte Anzahl Flammen verpflichtet. Die Kosten der Anlage sollen sich auf gut 500,000 Mark belaufen.

Melsungen. Ein hiesiger Metzgermeister hatte das Unglück, seiner 13jährigen Tochter, die ihm durch Halten eines Stückes Fleisch behilflich war, mit dem Beile die rechte Hand vom Arme abzutrennen.

Provinz Pommern.

Belgard. Rechtsanwalt und Notar Hartsch, ein sehr beliebter Jurist, ist den Folgen einer Blinddarmoperation erlegen.

Greifswald. Die Rittergutsbesitzerin Laurette Schilling auf der Insel Oehe wird wegen Beleidigung und falscher Anschuldigung steckbrieflich verfolgt. Sie ist flüchtig geworden.

Ornshagen. Der frühere Mühlenverwalter Stein wurde in Berlin verhaftet und in das Regenswalder Untersuchungs-Gefängniß eingeliefert. Stein hat in seiner letzten Stellung als Mühlenverwalter des Grafen v. Perponcher-Ornshagen circa 30,000 Mark unterschlagen und dieselben durch falsche Buchungen verdeckt.

Provinz Posen.

Posen. Die hiesige Strafkammer sprach den Verleger Biedermann der polnischen Wochenschrift „Praca" von der Anklage frei, als Mitthäter durch Veröffentlichung eines Gedichtes „An die Jugend" zum Klassenhaß aufgereizt zu haben. Der verantwortliche Redakteur Lipinski wurde seinerzeit zu drei Monaten Gefängniß verurtheilt.

Swentroschine. Auf der Besitzung des Ackerwirths Schwarz, welche auch noch von dessen Bruder und Eltern bewohnt wurde, brach Abends Feuer aus. Der vierjährige Neffe des Besitzers hatte Streichhölzer erlangt und das unter einem Schuppen lagernde Stroh angezündet. Bald darauf brannte die ganze Besitzung. Nur mit dem Hemd bekleidet, rettete sich die 80 Jahre alte Mutter aus dem brennenden Gehöft. Den ebenso alten Vater trug man bewußtlos aus den Flammen. Gerettet wurde fast nichts. Das Wohnhaus, die Scheune, der Stall und der Schuppen brannten nieder.

THE NEW WOMAN IN OLD LANDS.

Eliza Archard Conner Writes From Marseilles And the Channel Islands, Where Women Do Men's Work.

The longer and farther away from home a thoughtful American woman travels the more highly, at every stage of her journeying, she will learn to appreciate her own blessed land. It is not what it ought to be, so far as the rights and liberty of woman are concerned—no, not by a long step—but, such as it is, is the best on this earth and the freest.

In other lands than ours, even in the most civilized countries, woman has more than her share of so called man's work and duties, with hardly any of the honors and emoluments at all that go with the responsibilities.

The first glimpse I had of woman in civilization on her own ground was at Marseilles, France. That was the first port where we landed after leaving Port Said and the Suez canal. We reached Marseilles on Sunday, steaming into the harbor past the rocky islet whereon is the world famous castle of Monte Christo, the one from which the hero makes his melodramatic escape and stands upon the shore, tattered and in rags, waving his arms and shouting:

"The world is mine!"

It was Sunday, 4 o'clock, when we tied up at the dock. Before we landed I noticed standing on shore, evidently awaiting us, a large, strong looking woman, with bleached blond hair, arms akimbo, fully understanding herself and knowing what she was there for.

She came aboard the moment it was possible and down into the saloon. There I saw her and the brown Japanese stewards in close conversation, accompanying their jabbering with counting out and rolling together immense piles of ship's linen, both for beds and table.

Three carriages, ordinary two horse livery hacks, waited outside on the dock. The woman with the bleached hair, the color of reddish champagne, aided by two assistants, women also, carried the huge bundles of linen out to the carriages. The drivers helped load them into the vehicles, piling them high above the horses, like a load of hay, and away the procession went.

The woman with the bleached red champagne colored hair was at the head of a laundry for renovating ships' linen. There were some 800 pieces altogether from our ship, and they had to be washed, ironed, folded and returned to the vessel in 24 hours. This was really accomplished.

I interviewed the woman at the head of the laundry next day when she brought the clothes back. They were beautifully done, pearl white, all folded, so many pieces to a bundle, for convenience in counting, the bundles neatly tied with red and blue tape. I asked the woman how she did it. She said so soon as she got the bundles home on Sunday afternoon she put 40 women to washing at once. They toiled all night long from Sunday evening, and the next morning a fresh relay took their places and finished the task barely in time.

"But of course you did it by machinery?" I said. "You use the modern washing and steam conveniences for laundry work, don't you?"

"No," answered the woman; "we have no machines or steam. We do it all by hand, every bit, and it is hard work."

Actually those poor creatures had handled all the work, part of the linen consisting of heavy tablecloths a dozen feet long, with their own weak arms and fingers, without a single one of those American steam laundry conveniences that lift so much of the drudgery of washing from weary human shoulders in the States. They earned their money.

So the woman with the bleached hair works on, planning, hustling, dreaming, hoping for better days to come, like all the rest. Probably the hilltop of human ambition and ease would be reached for her if she had a steam laundry and modern renovating machinery.

The harbor at Marseilles is artificially pieced out by a magnificent stone breakwater, with a double promenade on top. This is a favorite walk and lounging place for the common people. During a walk along it out over the blue water I noticed dozens of men in the clothing of workmen lying in the shelter of angles, steps and walls, whether drunk or dozing I know not, perhaps both in some cases.

These were mostly stevedores and men who work about the docks and shipping. One who knew Marseilles well told me they got good wages, but spent it all for drink and on themselves, giving nothing to their families. To support themselves and their children the wives keep little shops or do washing, scrubbing, etc. The man of the family is kept for the honor and the pleasure of his company.

Here in the beautiful island of Jersey, although a British possession, it is much the same as at Marseilles. Women get more than their share of the poorly paid work. French peasants from Brittany have swarmed over here like bees because the chance for life is better than in their own country. The women are the quaintest looking creatures, short and broad, wearing the odd and absurd caps you see in French pictures. The women are not very picturesque looking, however. They work in the fields with their husbands, and their daughters go out to service among the Jerseyites. I have seen women coming into the town here wheeling heavy handbarrows loaded with vegetables, which they peddle from door to door.

One morning I looked early out of my window and saw another sight that you might hunt the States over with a searchlight and could not find its like. A French peasant woman in her fussed up white muslin cap was wheeling a man's big trunk to the steamer wharf upon her little handbarrow. She had come in from the country, a mile and a half away from the wharf at least. She was trudging along, puffing like an engine.

PEASANT WOMAN WITH JERSEY COW.

Behind her, some distance away walked the owner of the trunk, a big tourist, twice as strong as the woman. He was going away by the steamer that morning and had hired the woman to wheelbarrow his trunk to the wharf. No doubt she did it much more cheaply than a man with a cart would have done. An American man would have been ashamed to let a woman do such a thing.

I have heard of one woman doctor who has just established herself in Guernsey, the first and only one in the Channel islands, and she is a nine days' wonder. Old women, I am sorry to say, are the first to disapprove of her. They say a woman hasn't got "the power," whatever that is, to be a doctor. I have never heard one of them question a woman's "power," however, to do a man's work in the fields and wheel a heavy handbarrow about the public streets all day. When I tell them of honored and well beloved women physicians in the States who have a practice of from $5,000 to $10,000 a year, they stare like idiots and shake their heads.

There is at present, however, one woman in the islands who is in professional life and at least partially approved by the members of one of the dissenting sects here. She is advertised widely as a "lady evangelist." Bills like circus posters are attached to fences and other places announcing that the "popular lady evangelist" will hold a series of revival meetings in a given chapel. A house of worship not belonging to the Church of England is not a church here, but a chapel. I saw one of the posters full length in a meat shop one day, along with the bloody beef quarters and the slim lamb legs, and I went to hear the lady conduct her meeting Sunday evening.

She was a well educated young woman, with a sweet, clear English voice that could be heard with perfect distinctness to the farthest corner of the big, crowded chapel.

Her sermon was proper enough of its kind, but it was a kind that carried one back to the days of primitive revival and camp meetings at home long ago, services where the preacher's best work was a whooping of the outsiders up and drawing them into the denomination that they might be useful in adding to the funds of the organization and helping defray its expenses.

FASHION NOTES.

Methods of Converting Old Clothes Into New Ones.

Gown bodices made in the coat style have very short basques, but coats themselves are longer. A coat which is too short may be lengthened by the addition of a wide band of fur. Capes also may be rejuvenated in a similar fashion. The short cape with a straight edge has practically disappeared, the capes now worn being longer and sloping downward toward the back, with the front corners rounded off. Old capes may be cut to the desired form and then be made longer by a circular ruffle or a band of fur, or a band of the same goods may be cut to the right shape and added, the junction being concealed by passementerie or other applied trimming.

TAFFETA GOWN.

The straight sack of medium length is another new garment which may be made out of an old one. The skirt of a long redingote will supply material for the body of the sack, and as sleeves have been growing steadily smaller the old ones can be cut down to the right shape and size. The goods may even be pieced if the seams are planned so as to be concealed under little, stitched straps of satin or cloth which form a trimming.

The gown illustrated is of sky blue taffeta. The skirt is terminated by two circular flounces, the upper simulating a pointed tunic, headed by applications of white silk embroidery. The fitted bodice is stitched in front and has a yoke of guipure on white satin and a plastron of shirred white mousseline de soie. The revers are of white satin embroidered with pale blue silk. White lace bretelles are gathered at the shoulders by little bows of white satin. The hat of black velvet is trimmed with black plumes or a cluster of pink orchids. JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION HINTS.

Heavy Garments For Use During Cold Weather.

The straight sack is decorated sometimes with a short bolero, sometimes with yoke or a pelerine. Circular ruffles also frequently follow the edge. These sacks always suggest a nightgown, and the woman who ventures to wear one must be tall, well formed and of a fine and dignified carriage, else the undressed look is exaggerated. It also needs a woman with the same characteristics to carry off the old fashioned shawl wrap, which has been revived. It has a point back and front and is rather long and on the wrong woman is the acme of dowdiness.

Cloth polonaises, jackets or long wraps are much trimmed with applications of cloth of a contrasting color and of velvet outlined with fine galloons.

MANTLE.

A novelty is seen in the shape of plaid perforated cloth, the cut designs being brought into prominence by a backing of plain color.

Fur is now treated like ordinary material and is adapted to all the usual forms of dress—bodices, gowns and hats, as well as wraps. It composes circular flounces and even large cravat bows.

The mantle illustrated is of velours du nord, which forms a point at the back, the front and each shoulder, and is embroidered with jet. Below the velvet is a deep border of satin, headed by a jet cord and edged by a band of embroidered velours du nord. The collar is of embroidered velours and has a satin chou in front. The mantle is lined with white broche silk. JUDIC CHOLLET.

MENTAL PICTURES.

The Mistake One Man Made and the Result.

"Did you ever notice that when an idea becomes fixed in the mind it is very difficult to change it, especially in the case of extremely sensitive and highly nervous persons?" asked a Brooklyn expert on nerves. "Not long ago I had a visit from a man who was afraid he was losing his reason because of a very simple persistence of a certain thought or idea which he could not shake off. The history of the case is one often found in cases of hypochondriasis developed from using the telephone. My patient for about a year's time had occasion to telephone every day to a trade customer in New York—Manhattan, if you like. The New Yorker had a peculiar high tenor squeak to his voice, and somehow my friend got to picturing him as a little chap with a thin face. This habit grew day after day until the customer took a real shape and form in the mind of my patient, all based, of course, upon his voice. As he talked over the telephone there always was mentally pictured that little chap with the thin face and squeaky voice. Well, one day my patient called at the office of his New York customer, and as he walked into the place and saw a tall, fat man weighing nearly 300 pounds he could scarcely believe his eyes. When the fat man opened his mouth and talked, my patient says, the squeaky voice with which he was familiar sounded strange and unnatural. He told the owner of the absurd voice, in view of his size about having pictured him as a little thin person, and there was a good laugh over the odd difference of the reality.

"But the next day when my friend used the telephone and the squeaky voice came to him, he had to struggle to get away from thinking of his fat patron as being little and thin. He talked the matter over with his wife and laughed about it, but soon there came a time when he forgot all about the actual existence of his customer, and the little thin-faced chap was again talking to him over the wire. Then it was that he came to see me. He feared, he said, that his mind was giving away, because of the persistence of the odd picture of the thin man. I thought the case was easily disposed of, and told my friend to go to New York every day for a week and visit his fat customer. This he did, but every time he telephoned the squeaky voice would bring up the mental picture formed before he had set eyes on its owner.

"I was in despair and my patient was growing gray from worrying when I hit upon the happy expedient of placing a photograph of the fat man on the telephone, where the eye of the patient could rest upon it as he talked. The result was the disappearance forever of the thin chap. My patient, in looking at the picture of the owner of the squeaky voice, got his mind working upon the same lines that would have been followed had he met the fat man face to face the first time he heard his voice. These cases are common every day. We form queerly opposite pictures of men and women we hear over the telephone and never see, but in the great majority of instances, the impression is a momentary one, and it is seldom that the mistake is ever forced upon us in the startling way described by the patient I told of.

"The telephone, by the way, has produced very many queer cases of neurasthenia that remain unaccountable excepting on the hypothesis that the new habit brings them into existence. I have had very many patients who had to give up the use of the 'phone altogether where it had been used to a great extent before."

The Tanning Industry in Japan.

In a recent report on the leather industry in Japan, United States Consul Samuel S. Lyons of Osaka says there are but two tanneries of any importance in operation throughout Japan—one located in Osaka and the other in Tokio—and they are chiefly occupied in supplying the leather wants of the army and navy.

A large tanning establishment is located near Kobe. It was formerly under European management, but, after several unsuccessful attempts to operate it, it has been closed. There are, however, many small "home tanneries" in this country, and they are operated exclusively by the "Etas," a class of persons whose occupation is looked upon as unclean. The beggars "Kojiki" constitute the lowest class in Japan, and next above them are the "Eta," who monopolize the occupation of killing animals for food, the tanning and dressing of leather, grave digging and similar work. The "Etas" are popularly supposed to be in possession of a secret method of tanning.

Tanning being looked upon in Japan as a degrading calling, it is not probable that the industry will materially improve here in the near future; and it is for that reason, together with the additional ones that cattle are scarce in this country, and that there is a growing demand in Japan for leather of all kinds, that the United States has a field in which it may largely increase its exportation of this article year by year.—The Manufacturer.

Hair for Manufacturing Purposes.

The hair of the wild animals of South America is in great demand in America and Britain for manufacturing purposes. The reason is obvious. It is longer than the hair of animals in almost any other section of the world. First quality horse hair is chiefly supplied by South American wild horses for haircloth and upholstery. The tails and manes are generally used, and owners of horses bind the hair up in coils. Hair which is over sixteen inches long is utilized for the manufacture of haircloth; second quality is a mixture of the short hairs of horses and cattle, and third rate is Siberian goat hair. All these varieties of the hair of horses, cattle and goats fetch a good price in upholstery circles in the United Kingdom and the United States.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 10, "The Indwelling Presence." Text, Col. i, 21-29; Gal. ii, 20.

"I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me."

It is clear to the least observing that some folks are different from others and that the same persons are different at times. People change. Some who were vicious and impure become gentle and virtuous. Opinions and practices have been altered. The whole appearance is transformed. We can see the outward difference, and they often speak of the inward change in themselves.

In our own personal experience each one is conscious of inclinations to evil and also of impulses to good. At times an ugliness of spirit seems to take possession of one. The very gentleness and excellence of others arouse contrariness and dislike to them in us. We feel ourselves impelled by passions rather than led by reason. Argument only irritates. We know we are wrong, but take malicious delight in persisting in it. It makes us unloving, miserable and dissatisfied, and all the more because we know the fault to be our own and unnecessary and unreasonable. To some extent all have had such experience as this. With some it becomes confirmed and permanent in disposition.

Others, recognizing its wrong and wickedness, strive against it and finally find escape. They find themselves drawn out in affectionate regard toward others, wishing to help them in trouble, sympathetic and sorrowful for their misfortunes and deeply solicitous for their good. Weariness is forgotten in helping others. Cares and personal needs give way before the greater burdens and wants of others. Love replaces all sense of enmity and jealousy. The enthusiasm of lifting others brings a deep joy and fixed determination.

The chief cause in all these changes is usually the sense of our obligations to Jesus Christ and His infinite love to us. We desire to please Him. Giving ourselves to His service, we catch His spirit and are sure He is in us.

The Secret of Happiness.

It lies in forgetting self. Many, if not the most, of us are too busy with ourselves to find true happiness. Our bodily aches and needs, our hopes and sorrows, our plans and ambitions, our opinions and disappointments, our likes and dislikes, jealousies and envies, all keep us very busy and never give any great satisfaction. It is a hard world for any one who is much given to self consciousness and sensitiveness. It never was made so as to run for our special individual benefit, and when we try to get it to run that way we get pinched and crowded.

The only way to find real enjoyment is to stop thinking so much about self and get interested in some one else, not some one as little and unworthy as ourselves, but the perfect and all good One.

Real joy comes in learning His will and carrying out His plans and in seeing how all things work together for good when He is supreme. If you want to be happy, let Christ come in and own you in all things. Love is self abandonment and devotion to another. Jesus is the highest object of love. True love is the highest condition of human bliss. Love Him and keep His commandments.

Social Life.

It is natural for young people to desire social life. Companionship is most attractive in those years when character is forming and life alliances are to be made. In after years social duties become burdensome to the tired business man after the work of the day is done and are often distasteful to the mother of the family. They prefer the quiet of the home and sometimes come to think that the young people need only what they relish in their older years. In fact, the young people need acquaintance of those outside the home circle. They can develop the best in them only by association with those of their own age, to some extent. They must together meet life's problems and duties. Recreation and amusement are not the chief ends of social life, but are rather incidental to it. Our young people should give a tone of helpfulness and moral worth to all their social functions. For this reason every church needs that, through the League or some other agency, provision should be made for frequent meetings of the young people, and all necessary appliances should be secured for the best intellectual, spiritual and physical development.

The New Reading Course.

Everybody reads. Most read too much of some kinds and not enough of other varieties. Every Leaguer should become intelligently acquainted with the matters of his own church. This can be most easily done by the use of the reading course. It is not necessary for each person to own all the books. The whole chapter can purchase a single set and let the members in turn read the volumes. An excellent way is to have some public meetings where the different books are reviewed. Spend a whole evening on a single one and have several members present essays or addresses on the different chapters. There is no better way to preserve the old Methodist fire than to read Methodist history.

Any Conversions Lately?

If not, why not? Are all the sinners saved or moved out of town? Perhaps they have become so refined that they don't look like old fashioned sinners. Do not be deceived. Sin is deadly, however you may paint it over. Men are lost, now and here, and must be saved. Whoever does not love God supremely and his neighbor as himself is a lost sinner and needs your help to get saved. Realize his condition, pray over it till the Holy Spirit burns it into your soul and gives you an agony for his salvation. Then bring him to Jesus Christ.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 10—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The indwelling presence.—Col. i, 21-29; Gal. ii, 20.

The topic refers to the indwelling of Christ in the believer's heart. This is a truth of Scripture that is not sufficiently recognized and emphasized. The atonement of Christ, by which we are reconciled to God, is constantly dwelt upon, and rightly so, but too many Christians ignore the second great and blessed truth that Christ dwells in us to keep us faithful to God and to assure us of our hope of eternal glory. Christ died to justify us. He lives within us to sanctify us, and sanctification is necessary to complete and perfect justification.

That the Bible teaches the doctrine of the indwelling of Christ and the Holy Spirit in the heart of believers cannot be denied. Paul declares that Christ dwells in the Colossians. He prays that Christ may dwell by faith in the hearts of the Ephesians and testifies that he himself no longer lived after he had been crucified with Christ, but that Christ lived in him. Such language can mean but one thing, and rightly understood and appreciated it is one of the most precious doctrines of the word of God. It teaches us that, in addition to His saving us by His death, Christ keeps us saved by His life in us.

There are two phases of the indwelling of Christ that are presented to us in the topical references—(1) Christ in us as our life and (2) Christ in us the hope of glory.

1. Christ in us as our life. Gal. ii, 20, "I am crucified with Christ, and it is no longer I that live (R. V.), but Christ liveth in me, and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave Himself for me." Here is Paul's doctrine of the indwelling Christ as the life of the Christian. Paul has ceased to live. He has died with Christ, and as a result Christ lives in him and does through him that which he would have him do. This is the only real and true consecration of ourselves to Christ. This is the only way in which we can live the real Christ life after we have been saved. We must abdicate the thrones of our own lives and place Christ upon them as our King and give Him complete control of our lives. Thus, and thus only, can we live a blameless life before God and advance toward that perfection of life, our sanctification, which is the final goal of Christianity.

2. Christ in us the hope of glory. "Christ in us the hope of glory" (Col. i, 27). This, says Paul, is "the riches of the glory of the mystery among the gentiles." And what a mystery—Christ in the hearts and lives of gentiles, the hope of their glory! The glory referred to here is future, eternal glory. It is future, but it is certain. It can come only through Christ. Man has come short of the glory of God. Christ supplies the shortness and makes it possible for man to glorify God and as a result to enjoy Him forever, and this is the glory for which the Christian hopes, and which will be realized in Christ.

Bible Readings.—Ex. xxix, 45, 46; Ezek. xxxvi, 26, 27; Jer. xxxi, 33; John vi, 35; xiv, 23; xvi, 7; Rom. vi, 6-12; Gal. iv, 19, 20; Eph. iii, 14 19; Col. iii, 16; I Thess. v, 19; I Tim. iii, 16; I John ii, 1-6; iv, 12.

Universal Toleration.

Toleration is often regarded as a virtue. When there has been no liberty of opinion and action, it is a sign of progress if tolerance is accepted as a rule of action. But after a time men begin to object to the word "toleration." They say: "I will not tolerate or be tolerated. To tolerate another's opinions is to assume superiority to them." But on further reflection it appears that mutual toleration does not imply superiority on either side, but equality and liberty. But now, having come so far on the way, the idea of toleration is expanded to cover something more than opinions which are not our own. We bear with one another's infirmities and faults, and when we are tolerant enough we begin to bear one another's burdens. Universal toleration means mutual helpfulness and good will. There is danger that when we decline to tolerate the opinions of others because we will not assume an attitude of superiority we may go further and end in a supercilious indifference to the thoughts and conduct of others which is even worse than toleration.—Christian Register.

Responsibility.

God in His word addresses us as free to choose our course and control our action. It must be in order to responsibility. If any man fails of salvation it is his own fault. The needed grace is at hand. The infinite love calls and mercy waits. Whatever the influence of others, whatever the conditions in which we may be placed, the call of God is to us, and the answer to it is within our choice and free act. The responsibility of eternity is upon us.—United Presbyterian.

Patience.

Let us be only patient, patient, and let God, our Father, teach His own lesson His own way. Let us try to learn it well and learn it quickly, but do not let us fancy that He will ring the second bell and send us to play before our lesson is learned.—Charles Kingsley.

Live It Down.

Remember that the true way to conquer prejudice is to live it down.—Christian Instructor.

Secure In Thee.

God Almighty, Father, guide us!
Thou alone the power hath;
Thou alone can cheer or chide us,
With Thine aid, the rugged path.

Smoothed and fitted to our footsteps,
Faltering footsteps though they be,
Erring, wayworn, weary footsteps,
Rest at last, secure in Thee.
—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

SNAKES AND NOTHING ELSE

The Sole Product of Linkville Near Southern Border of Oregon.

"Linkville," or "Klamath Falls," is situated in an obscure corner over the California border line in Oregon, and may be reached in twenty-four hours' travel from San Francisco. You have only to take the northern-bound train for Ager, thence a stage line of about twenty miles conducts you to your destination.

It is impossible to associate "snakes" with the beautiful and varying scenery through which you pass as far as Klamath Hot Springs. Trees and streams and all the glories of mountain scenery greet you on every hand. You drive through a luxurious growth of evergreens and shrubbery; you cross and recross numerous streams; you breathe the soft air of Shasta and Siskiyou. But when you have left Klamath Hot Springs a few miles behind, there is an appreciable difference in the landscape. Sparcity of vegetation is the first observable change. At every turn of the road, the aspect becomes more barren, more forlorn, and more desolate. Finally, you seek in vain for a tree or a shrub, and at last, dust-covered and weary, you pull up at a dry, withered village that produces nothing on its hard, rocky soil but revolting snakes. You have reached Linkville, the haunting retreat of serpents.

There is a bridge in Linkville that spans Klamath River. From this bridge, which is a vantage point as far as view is concerned, a most extraordinary sight meets the eyes. Along the river banks, at irregular intervals of a few yards, are seen dark balls ranging from a foot to three feet in diameter. They are stationary and as passive as a boulder, which they resemble in color. But if a stone is hurled at any of these strange spheres to your horror snakes will crawl off in every direction, and the ball will melt away as lard melts in a frying pan. The repulsive creatures that have thus been coiled up in a perfect sphere glide away under rocks, and one minute later not a snake is to be seen in that particular spot. But the other balls of snakes in the vicinity are little disturbed by the stone.

As has been said, Linkville is in a very barren district. Nothing whatever grows upon the rocky soil, not even sagebrush. And so the river banks, which are a mass of driftwood and rocks, seem a befitting place for snakes. But it is surprising that they should develop in such great numbers. When not rolled in balls, they may be seen slipping in and out along the rubbish, and the ground for yards will be a squirming, wriggling mass.

These snakes are perfectly harmless. Indeed, if it were not for this fact, Linkville would not be habitable, for, while the immediate neighborhood of the river is their favorite haunt, they roam for many hundreds of yards away and may be seen along the roadways and around the houses and creeping over the porches. They possess a marked degree of tameness. You may pick them up with impunity, and children play with them on the doorsteps.

The Linkville snakes are dark in color, with two yellowish stripes on their backs. The average size is about an inch and a half in diameter and a yard in length though many are smaller and some attain much greater proportions.

A Window Dresser's Happy Hit.

"Funny thing happened to me when I was working for Blankety Blank & Co. in Chicago," said a New Orleans window dresser. "I had a big window on Clark street that seemed as if it was hoodooed. No matter what I put there it appeared to be impossible to attract any attention, and the manager, who was keen as a hawk, began to grumble because he never saw anybody looking in. I used to lay awake nights racking my brains for new schemes, but it was no go. One day, when I was feeling pretty blue, I told our negro porter to clear everything out preparatory to making a big display of a special line of shirts.

"He was a fat, black, trifling fellow, and I guess he must have been out at a cakewalk the night before, for he fell fast asleep in a chair in the middle of the window. I was on the point of waking him up and giving him fits, when I happened to notice how extremely indicrous he looked. His head was on one side, his enormous mouth wide open, and his limbs relaxed in the oddest postures imaginable; in short, he was a perfect picture of a lazy rascal in happy slumber. That gave me an idea. I didn't say a word, but grabbing a piece of pasteboard I dashed off a sign: 'Dreaming of Our Dollar Shirts,' and stood it quietly against his knees.

"Then I gently rolled up the curtain and awaited developments. Well, the hit that window made is the pet tradition of the store to this day. People simply blockaded the sidewalk, and you could hear them laughing a block away. The funniest part about it was that nobody supposed for a moment it could possibly be the real thing. They thought it was a clever piece of acting, or else a wonderful wax figure. That the coon was actually asleep never occurred to any one, and I stood around with my heart in my mouth for fear the noise would arouse him.

"It didn't, however, and he snored away peacefully until nearly 4 o'clock. Then he woke up with a start, and was so surprised he came near jumping through the plate glass. The spectators howled, and that night the house raised my salary. I tried to work the same scheme afterward, but it was a failure. The darky couldn't pretend worth a cent."

Age Attained by Birds.

We are often asked how long different species of birds live, but there is little definite information to be had on the subject. Recently Mr. J. H. Gurney has brought together a number of statements on this subject, and discusses it at some length. Mr. Dresser, in his "Birds of Europe," gives an instance of a raven having lived 69 years. Mr. Meade-Waldo has in captivity a pair of eagle owls (Bubo maximus), one of which is 68 and the other 53 years old. Since 1864 these birds have bred regularly, and have now reared ninety-three young ones. A bateleur eagle and a condor in the Zoological Gardens at Amsterdam are still alive at the respective ages of 55 and 52. An imperial eagle of 56, a golden eagle of 47 and a sea eagle of 42, and many other birds of the age of 40 downward, are also recorded.

STAGES OF STARVATION.

Diary of a Young Woman Who Recently Died in New York.

Come to the rescue or I shall soon lose my reason. I cannot hold out much longer. The last stage of despair is upon me * * * the creeping by inches to the end of all things.

O God! Can the Christian world be so cruel? So cold and mercenary? * * * Bowed down with despair * * * and yet through it all she raises her eyes to the beacon light and a smile comes to her lips. "I shall yet be an author! I shall yet succeed."

I have sent them a telegram. They will hardly send a favorable answer. Yet what a grand story it is. "Don't want it." Ah, well! I expected it.

"There's a basket of fruit for you." etc. Good God, and not a sou in my pocket and they are worth a million. Why didn't they slip a $10 bill into the basket. "As they help the least of these"—but in my anguish I have to smile bitterly. But I shall yet succeed.

Hungry—so faint—I would not object to something nice to eat—long time since I've tasted anything good. Now, to-morrow I'll have to go and buy the paper. I wonder if I'd better eat or save a penny for it.

The past forgot the future? Sweet spirit of prayer, lead me right, I pray. Keep me worthy.

He doesn't like my writing; says I scrawl all over the paper. But I don't suppose he knows all authors do that.

I don't know what they (the publishers) are waiting for unless it is to get my shroud to make into rag paper to print the book on. They'll have it soon if this keeps on.

1887—Sept. 30.—Arrived in Boston. Stopped at he Hotel Waterson, No. 8 Bulfinch place. Saw Gen. B. F. Butler and took his advice in regard to the Adams case.

1887—Oct. 22.—Returned to New York and engaged in business at No. 239 East Fourteenth street $60 a month.

1888—Sept. 5.—Went to Boston. Delayed in the Adams case.

1888—Sept. 21.—Wolfborough, N. H., to prosecute my claim against Susan P. Adams, of Ossipee, N. H.

1889—Feb. 23.—Finished the first chapter of "Fly and Lightning, the American Explorers," by Evelyn Adams.

1890—April 11.—Finished XVI, chapter "Fly and Lighting."

1890—May 1.—Sick for three weeks and couldn't work much of the time.

1890—April 11.—Finished XVI, chap- "Fly and Lightning." XXIII chapters, 573 pages, about 100,000 words.

July 12.—Made arrangements with the Union News Company. Asked assistance and was refused. Suffered the worst—suspense is a killing thing—not knowing what to do. Sept. 20, sold all my clothes to raise a little money to help along.

Oct. 6. Commenced "Is Marriage a Lottery?" Have only $7 left. Am trying to keep up.

Nov. 24.—Writing "A Gay Christmas" to send to Philadelphia Transcript.

1891—March 1.—Sold collection of minerals and stamps for $20. Have 20 cents in my pocket. Received food from Mrs. Mears for the last two weeks. Hope to succeed yet. Calm within; ferment without.

March 22.—Still keeping up courage, nil desperandum. Have tried ten different ways to raise the money to publish the book "Is Marriage a Lottery?" Failed each time; still hoping. "Be of good courage, ye shall yet triumph." Have resorted to sewing to keep the wolf from the door. Have gone to every possible place from —— to the Sacred Heart Convent. By the kindness of Mrs. Mears life has been sustained a little longer. They have deprived themselves for my sake, I fear. O! poverty—death—slow torture!

They will hold the plates of my book. I shall yet win a fortune. An author's or an artist's works always live long after they have gone. And this is my determination, to make a success before I do die.

"Good-by, Hubby."

A divorce case heard in Cincinnati the other day was that of C. H. Maguire against Minnie Maguire. He is a telegraph operator. She is an actress and known as Lillian Waltone. She was a singer in the musical Humpty Dumpty which was at the Walnut Street Theatre a few seasons ago. She also appeared in other productions of a musical character. Her husband said she was a good wife for a time. One day his employer told him he must not allow the woman who was coming to the office to see him to do so any more. He said the woman was his wife, but his employer would not believe it, and when the fact was insisted upon he was told he would better, under such conditions, watch her. One night he found her with a man named Jack Cox. He asked her to go home and she would not. Cox said if she was the wife of Maguire she must go home and he would accompany them. He did so, and they all drank some beer together in Maguire's flat. After that she said, "Jack, I will go with you. Good-by, hubby," and the two left together. She refused to live with her husband again and he sued for divorce. They were married in 1892. A decree was granted.

Accused of Wife-Beating.

An edict has been issued by the Right Rev. Bishop Huntingdon suspending the Rev. R. Eugene Griggs, an Episcopal minister of Binghamton, N. Y., pending the investigation by an ecclesiastical court into charges of wife-beating and desertion made by Mrs. Griggs. Mr. Griggs has already been fined $25 in the police court for wife-beating, and was compelled to give security to support his wife for a year. Other charges effecting his moral standing will come up before the ecclesiastical court.

While Chaplain J. W. Comfort, of the Indiana Reformatory at Terre Haute, Ind., was appealing for sympathy and better reform measures for criminals at the First Methodist Church, some thief stole his overcoat, hat and gloves.

Robert M. Rouss, a man without legs was found guilty of murder in the criminal court at Birmingham, Ala., and sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary.

COST IN BLOOD.

Expense of All the Wars Since the Days of the Trojans.

Beginning with the Trojan war, which is usually regarded as the first chapter in European and Asiatic history, it is calculated that war has claimed 40,000,000 of men every century. In Europe alone the loss of lives every 100 years since the date of that war has been between 18,000,000 and 20,000,000. Three thousand years have elapsed since that opening chapter of history was unrolled, so that during these 30 centuries the most inconceivable number of 1,200,000,000 men, women and children have been sacrificed to settle disputes concerning some few miles of territory, to gratify the ambition of some monarch, or to sooth the wounded vanity of rulers and states.

The present population of the globe is estimated at 1,400,000,000; therefore, if all people alive at this moment were stricken down simultaneously by some fell disease the awful result would be but little more terrible than the result brought about by the wars of the centuries.

In the war that raged between 1793 and 1815 no fewer than 1,900,000 men were either killed outright or died from wounds and disease. In the campaign of 1828 the number was 120,000. In the Crimean war the losses sustained by the four countries which participated amounted to the terrible figure of 600,000. In 1859 the French and Austrian forces suffered to the extent of 63,000, while in the Civil War in the United States the victims numbered 656,000. The Franco-Prussian war caused the death of 290,000 and the Russo-Turkish war meant death to 180,000 men.

In order to show the fearful carnage that may be wrought in one battle two instances in recent wars are cited. In the Battle of Gravelotte, in 1870, the combined losses of the French and Germans were 44,000 men killed, and in the two chief attacks on the stronghold of Plevna, so gallantly defended by the Turks under Osman Pasha, the Russians and their allies lost 30,000 men, independent of those who died from their wounds after the battle.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Cookery in Bolivia.

The stoves of the Bolivian Indians are curious things. A hole is dug in the ground about eighteen inches deep and a foot square, and over this is built a roof of clay with holes of different sizes to receive the various cooking pots. Roasting is done on spits passed through the holes, so that the meat comes out very much smoked unless care is taken to have only live coals at the bottom of the oven.

The national dish and the common food of the masses is "chupe," a sort of first cousin to the Irish stew. It is a conglomerate, composed of irregular constituents from the animal and vegetable kingdoms—a mess of mutton and such other meats as are available; chicken, fish, fruits, potatoes, carrots, barley, corn, rice, onions, yams, etc., chopped up, highly seasoned with peppers and herbs, and stewed to a consistency of porridge. What happens to be left from meal simmers in the pot until the next. If the fire goes out the "chupe" is allowed to cool, but it is warmed up again and a new supply of the ingredients added to the water-logged and greasy stuff for the next meal. In the cities, at the hotels and restaurants, where there are French or Swiss cooks, the "chupe" is savory and palatable, but the further you go from the centres of civilization the worse it gets. One eats it at first under protest, then from necessity and only to escape starvation.—Chicago Record.

Don't Blame the Chair.

"It is strange how much dynamic force we throw into all our movements," remarked a physician. "We think we are moving gently and deliberately, but we are actually wasting enough power to run an engine. Sit down on a chair that is an inch lower than you expected and you come near going through the seat. It's the same way when one encounters any unanticipated obstacle. The other day one of my patients attempted to light a cigar, and in carrying the match to the weed he struck his knuckles against a door and broke his index finger. Not long ago I was called to attend a lady who had miscalculated the height of the bottom step in descending a flight of stairs. She thought it was similar to the others, but it was only half as high, and the result was that she landed on the pavement with a jar that sprained her knee. She was laid up for a couple of weeks. On one occasion I was myself knocked almost senseless by bumping my head against a rafter in the basement of this building. I thought I was moving along very cautiously, because it was quite dark, but I nearly fractured by skull. When you total up the amount of vitality you lose in this manner during a year you begin to see why people only live to fifty instead of one hundred."—Answers.

The Oldest Letter Carrier.

Richard B. Reed, who has just begun his forty-fifth year of continuous service as a letter carrier in Salem, Mass., claims to be the oldest carrier in the country in point of uninterrupted service. Buchanan was President when Mr Reed was first appointed. In those days letter carriers had no regular salary, and depended for compensation on the pennies they collected from people to whom they delivered letters. In January, 1856, he distributed 3,409 pieces of mail and collected $26.24 from his patrons. Mr. Reed is still strong and active, and says he feels as young as when on his twenty-first birthday he started out for the first time with a mail sack swung over his shoulder.

Theatrical Snowstorm.

Realistic snowstorms for theatres are produced by a new machine, which has two revolving perforated cylinders to drop flaked and granulated substances respectively, with electric fans under each cylinder to drive the "snow" across the stage as it falls.

The mate of the ship at the critical moment of the storm shouted out, "Let go the topsail halliards!"

"I ain't touching of 'em, sir," was the reply of a newly shipped sailor.—Melbourne Weekly.

GONE AFTER BLACKFORD.

Chief Tenney, of Elizabeth, Will Bring Him Back to Jersey With Him.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Dec 8—By tomorrow afternoon at the latest it is expected that John L Blackford, the railroad detective, now in jail in the Tombs prison, New York, on the charge of bigamy, will be a prisoner in the county jail in this city.

Chief of Police Tenney left here yesterday morning bound for Albany with the necessary papers to secure the signature of Governor Roosevelt. As soon as that is secured Blackford will be extradited. At noon today the Chief had not yet returned with his prisoner. The Grand Jury will not meet again until the second Tuesday in January when it is expected that Blackford will be indicted.

Solid Trains to Northern Michigan.

What Can You Do With It?

This is a question we can answer better after we have seen the garment you want dyed. When our wagon is in your neighborhood, let it bring your goods to the store and then, at your convenience, come in and let us tell you just what we can do and the cost. Don't be prejudiced against dyeing. Oftimes you can't tell the goods from new.

windows of their minds with the natural beauties of God's handiwork. His reference to the pine coffin, containing the body of a poor child, which had been covered with field daisies supplied through the charity organization of New York, produced an inspiration among the audience that the sentiment clearly reflected in the faces of all who heard the story. The speaker interspersed his talk with several anecdotes which served to illustrate the humorous side of the subject to good advantage. In closing he spoke of the good work accomplished by the King's Daughters in the establishment of the kindergarten and cooking schools, the latter he maintained being particularly helpful in the way of teaching temperance more strongly than was at first thought possible. By supplying the stomach with good wholesome food rum was not used quite as freely and in time might be entirely dispensed with. Mr. Riis impressed upon the young ladies of the City Union the importance of looking after the little things, for by so doing he said they would "carry the little stones and in time help build the palace of justice."

Many of the ladies brought with them glasses of jelly and other delicacies which are to be be stored in the closet of the Union to be used for the sick.

At the close of the meeting the lady members of the Union and their friends were provided with a tea and light collation served in the Sunday school room.

there were the following readings: "Charge of the Light Brigade," J. R. Joy; "The Courtin'," Miss Davies; "Maude Muller," Miss Whitney, while Miss Etta Raybert sang "The Swaunee River." This evening there will be shadow pictures, and the "Ruggles' Family" will also be given with other attractions.

The officers of the society giving the affair are Mrs. H. A. McGee, president; Mrs. W. C. Snodgrass, first vice-president; Mrs. G. H. Whitney, second vice president, Mrs. L. M. French, secretary; Mrs. S. C. Peck, treasurer. Mrs. Sutphen is in charge of the coat room.

The attendance yesterday afternoon and evening was large and the receipts were gratifying to the women in charge.

A Divided Rehearsal.

There will be a divided rehearsal of the chorus which is to render "The Messiah" this month. Tomorrow afternoon the sopranos and altos will meet in the usual place at 3:15 o'clock. The basses and tenors will meet in the same place tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock. The conductor is very anxious for a full attendance which is essential to the proper rendition of the oratorio.

Republican Smoker.

The Republican county executive committee has arranged for a "smoker" to be held in Hermann Hall, Elizabeth, Saturday evening, December 16th. Tickets for the "smoker" can be obtained from the local members of the committee.

Items of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—Special sale of women's $2.50 shoes at $1.98. Doane & Edsall.

—There will be an important meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps this evening.

—Boehm, the dry goods merchant, is prepared for the holiday trade, and he offered many bargains.

—Fred Endress, the butcher, says the quality of meat he sells is guaranteed the best in the market.

—The W. C. T. U. shipped a barrel of literature yesterday to the Brooklyn Navy Yard for the sailors.

—There was a slight break in the fire alarm wire yesterday afternoon, causing the whistle to blow once.

—At the meeting of Court Plainfield, I. O. F., this evening there will be initiation and election of officers for the ensuing year.

—It is proposed to give a "Song of Nations" as a Christmas entertainment at the First Baptist church Sunday school.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. C. S. Hughson, of Ironia, Morris county, is visiting her niece, Mrs. E H Cory, 55 Somerset street.

Bert Rogers, of this city, has completed the contract he had in Rahway on the public school and has returned to his home.

Thomas Muir, the night operator at the telephone office, has about recovered from the effects of an eye trouble, and he is now able to work again.

Y. M. C. A. is Attractive.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. was held last evening at the Association building. The record of attendance for 1899 shows an increase over 1898 of 39 per cent. in the men's Bible classes, 11 per cent. in the Sunday afternoon men's meetings and 120 per cent. in the boys' meetings. The receipts from the Thanksgiving night star course entertainment were 74 per cent larger than for any entertainment given on that night since we have been in that building.

A Frightful Blunder

Entertained Euchre Club.

Mrs. Frank H. Smith, of Madison avenue, entertained the members of the euchre club of which she is a member last evening. First prizes were won by Miss Mabel Maxson and Herbert Buxton. The club will be entertained in a fortnight by Miss Teller, of Madison avenue.

Firemen to Meet Here.

There will be a meeting in Plainfield next Monday of the State Firemen's Mutual Benefit Association, after which a dinner will be given at 5:30 in the afternoon at the Kensington Hotel by the local association for the visitors and board of engineers.

A Distinguished Visitor.

Rev. Thomas Bowman, of East Orange, Senior Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, will be the guest on Sunday of Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, and will preach morning and evening in the Monroe Avenue church.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Miss Belle Skellenger, the aged widow of the late Benjamin Skellenger, was stricken with paralysis yesterday morning at her home, corner of Fourth and New streets, and little hope is entertained of her recovery.

A Big Check.

City Treasurer Wm. F. Arnold mailed a check yesterday for over $65,000 to pay the city's share of the State and county tax, all of which show that Plainfield is doing her share.

A San Francisco millionaire has the credit of paying the largest surgeon's fee on record for a successful operation for appendicitis. Thirty thousand dollars was the tidy sum, representing one man's gratitude to his physician.

"You've got an awful cold, Smithers. Why don't you go to a doctor and get him to give you something for it?"

"Give me something for it? Man, he can have it for nothing, and welcome."

The Spanish are among the most charitable people on earth. Without a poor tax Spanish communities of 50,000 self-supporters feed a pauper population of 5,000 or more.

HOSIERY FACTORY BURNED.

One Girl Loses Her Life and Many Others Are Injured.

Reading, Penn., Dec. 8.—One of the most appalling fires that ever have visited this city occurred Thursday when the Nolde & Horst Company hosiery mill took fire, destroying the plant, causing the death of one person and injuring about sixty other employes. The corpse of Miss Louisa Clay has been recovered from the ruins. Of the fifty seven persons who were injured thirty are hurt seriously.

The hosiery building was a large four-story structure, and nearly 600 persons were employed, most of them being women and girls. In a few minutes after the fire was discovered the girls were panic-stricken. They made a dash for the fire escape and the stairs, but found that the latter means of escape could not accommodate all of them at the same time.

Several hundred of the girls then made a rush for the windows, and appealed to those in the street to save them. Ladders were brought into use, and many girls were taken safely from the burning building. Most of them, however, jumped and were injured.

The injured were picked up and taken some to their homes and some to the hospital. The property loss will reach $275,000 on which there was an insurance of $150,000.

To Discuss Tuberculosis in Chicago.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 8.—Physicians here are much interested in a meeting of the Medico-Legal Society that has been called to discuss "Studies on Tuberculosis. Its Management and Modern Treatment." It has been decided by the society to devote an extraordinary session to this one subject at a convention to be held in New York City on February 21. Dr. Thomas B. Keyes, of this city, is the chairman of the Committee on Arrangements. A number of leading American scientists and specialists have been invited to contribute papers and take part in the two days' discussion.

Bryan Out of Senatorial Race.

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 8.—Gov. Poynter's work is cut out for him. He has been attending the funeral of the late Senator Hayward, and on his return home he will find himself in the thick of the fight on the Senatorial succession. Mr. Hitchcock and former Senator Allen are candidates, and each is backed by men influential in party politics. William J. Bryan is no longer considered as a factor in the fight, his campaign having been passive, to say the least. At present the sentiment is strongly in favor of Judge Allen.

Died at Sea From Fever.

Port Townsend, Wash., Dec. 8.—The British bark Ravenscourt, eighty days from Panama, has arrived here, and is to be sent into quarantine at Diamond Point. Yellow fever broke out at Panama, and Capt. A. H. Scott the mate and three sailors were stricken and sent ashore. Three sailors died of the disease a few days after sailing. A number of other cases developed and another sailor died. There were no new cases during the last fifty days of the voyage.

Widener to Build a Home.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 8.—Peter A. B. Widener has announced that he has purchased thirty-six acres of land at Logan, a suburb of Philadelphia, on which he intends to erect and endow a home, hospital and school for crippled children, at a cost of $2,000,000. The announcement was made in a letter from Mr. Widener to Mayor Ashbridge. The institution will be known as the Widener Industrial Home for Crippled Children.

Overcoat and Ulster Sale

WE EVER HELD.

If you wish to purchase an overcoat or an ulster for yourself or your boy, do not fail to take advantage of this opportunity. We buy and sell more clothing than any two stores in Plainfield; we purchase in very large quantities for spot cash and are able to buy it at our own prices We recently bought over 1,000 Very Fine Ulsters and Overcoats from a financially embarassed manufacture far below his cost of making; not sample overcoats, but regular stock made for one of the largest clothing houses and rejected on account of the late delivery The assortment are in all shades and sizes and as they are not likely to last long at the prices noted we advise an early selection.

MEN'S ALL-WOOL MELTON ULSTER at 4.00, that would readily sell in other stores at 8.50.

MEN'S FINE ULSTERS made of very heavy and Genuine Shamrock Irish Frieze, strictly all-wool, in greys and browns, regular 12.00 value, at 4.90.

Strictly all-wool men's beaver and melton overcoats at 4.25, honestly and truly worth 7.50.

MEN'S OXFORD GREY OVERCOATS, the new shade, a very handsome business overcoat, only 40 in this lot, we offer them for this sale at 5.25, wholesale prices was 8.50.

50 VERY FINE DRESS OVERCOATS, coverts, meltons, friezes and kerseys, these garments are very handsomely made up, have satin linings, silk velvet collars, full backs and are short cut, would easily command from 15.00 to 18.00, to be sold at this sale at 7.25.

CHILDREN'S REEFERS and OVERCOATS, sizes from 3 to 8 years, at 1.00, worth 2.00; 1.50, worth 3.00.

Very fine blue and black chinchillas, made with either velvet or sailor collars, at 2.25, regular price 4.50.

BOYS' OVERCOATS from 8 to 16, at 1.75, 2.25 and 2.75. This selection is worth double the price.

YOUNG MEN'S OVERCOATS, ages from 14 to 19, at 1.75, 2.50 and 4.00, worth from 5.00 to 7.00.

Remember this is a very special sale and it will pay you to attend for your own interest, as this will positively be the best chance you will have between now and Christmas.

If for any reason whatever you are not satisfied within 3 days you can have your goods exchanged or money refunded.

Hundreds of other overcoats in our stock that are great bargains that are not mentioned in this advertisement.

IN HONOR OF THE FAIR DEBUTANTES.

White Luncheon Given By Mrs. George Wharton Edwards.

FORMAL DANCE AT CASINO.

EVENTS ATTENDANT ON "COMING OUT" OF MISSES COX AND FISK.

Charming Luncheon Given Yesterday Afternoon in Their Honor—Everything Was White—Dance Given in the Evening by Mrs. Cox—Large Number of Guests—Theatre Party This Afternoon.

The social gaiety attendant on the formal introduction into society of the fair young debutantes, Miss Fanny C. Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street, and Miss Louise G. Fisk, daughter of Former Mayor and Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, of West Seventh street, was continued yesterday. In the afternoon a "white" luncheon was given in their honor by Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, an aunt of Miss Cox, at her home on Franklin place. In the evening a dance was given to the young women at the Casino by Mrs. Cox. Today a theatre party and the dinner following bring to a close the series of events that mark the immediate entrance of the two young women into the ranks of Plainfield society. A series of teas and luncheons in their honor will give an added interest to the next few weeks.

The luncheon given by Mrs. Edwards was the first "white luncheon" ever given to a debutante in Plainfield. It was a charming affair in every way. Thirty-eight young girls were present, including friends of the debutantes from Plainfield and other cities. All were young and bright, and exquisitely dressed, and there has seldom been a gathering of the kind at which there were present so many unusually pretty young women.

Mrs. Edwards' pretty and artistic home was decorated in white and green, chiefly white carnations and laurel. Palms were grouped about the doorways. In the dining room the table was entirely white and green and over it hung a great umbrella of white flowers. The china was all white and the delicious luncheon which was served consisted almost entirely of white articles, beginning with a white soup and ending with white confectionery. Miss Marion S. Dumont and Miss Elizabeth Ginna, who presided at the table, wore white gowns, as did the two debutantes, and some of the guests. Mrs. Edwards was gowned in green and white. Luncheon was served by the light of many wax candles. The favors were an especially pretty feature of the affair, being bunches of snowdrops, fastened with green.

The dance at the Casino was the first of the season. It was a formal affair, arranged on a remarkably lavish scale. Four hundred invitations were issued and nearly three hundred guests were present. The younger set of Plainfield society with many guests from New York and other cities thronged the Casino. During the dancing, the floor was crowded with the couples, the ladies in their evening gowns of brilliant silks and satins in striking contrast to the somber black and white of the evening dress of their escorts.

The decorations of the ball room were wonderfully elaborate and very beautiful. Pink and green were the principal colors in the decorations as at the reception the day before. A great bank of palms and potted plants half hid the orchestra that occupied the stage. Palm leaves covered the edge of the stage.

The balconies which were used as the dressing rooms, were screened by asparagus vine and a huge bank of palms. Below another grouping of the palms and potted plants formed a semi-bower in which Mrs. Cox and Mrs. Fisk received the guests. Screens of southern smilax covered the windows while the handles of the huge Japanese umbrellas, suspended from the ceiling, were hidden with the same. At the base of each hung a magnificent bouquet of American beauty roses. The southern smilax and the asparagus vine were used to decorate the walls and where else was possible.

The electric lights were each covered with pink crepe paper which gave a subdued pink tint to the whole room and contrasted strikingly with the prevalence of green at every hand.

Supper was served by Sherry at 11 o'clock. Then the dancing continued without intermission until long after midnight.

TO MAKE NEW ASSESSMENT.

Important Decision Rendered With Reference to the Extension of Watchung Avenue.

Last Monday in the Supreme Court that body put an end to the controversy over the assessment for the extension of Watchung avenue by virtually confirming the report of the commissioners, which was set aside some time ago. The dissatisfaction arose over the assessment of several lots along the avenue. The plan adopted by the commissioners was to assess a certain amount per front foot for a certain distance on either side of the avenue. In these few cases the number of feet estimated according to the sum to be raised carried the assessment limit over the property lines so as to include only a part of adjoining properties, which were not entirely included in the prescribed number of feet. In raising the necessary amount at a certain assessment per front foot, it was not necessary to include more than the portion of the properties in question, and yet the properties could not be excluded from the assessment without changing the prescribed limit. In accordance the commissioners submitted their report. In adjusting the difficulty the Court has placed the assessments for the portion involved on the whole property, thereby changing the amount per front foot without altering the whole amount.

WILL HELP PLAINFIELD.

FACTORY ENTERPRISES TO BE DEVELOPED IN SUBURBS.

Silas Drake's Scheme is Booming—A Summer Resort is to be Established—Several Acres Have Already Been Sold.

About three months ago Silas Dewey Drake addressed the Plainfield Advancement Association, and stated that if a large tract of land could be bought in Plainfield or nearly on its westerly limits he could locate factories on the site and it would be in time of incalculable benefit to mechanics and the merchants of Plainfield. Since that time Mr. Drake went quietly to work and purchased the Nelson Runyon farm and Adam Dealaman tract, running from the westerly line of Dunellen to the tank house, having a frontage of 3 000 feet on the Central Railroad and over 3,000 feet on the old road that is traversed by the trolley line.

Mr. Drake immediately formed the Middlesex Land Company to develop the tract. The company has purchased the property and will take title to the same Jan. 1st.

The company has already sold by contract five acres of the Nelson Runyon farm for $3,000—nearly one-half that the company paid for the 60 acres of land. As soon as the title to the property is taken Mr. Drake will close a deal to locate two large manufacturing plants on this property.

In addition a number of capitalists from New Brunswick have bargained for ten acres of meadow land near the tanks to be dug out to form a lake for boating in summer and skating in winter, and they also secured the five acres of woods to establish a park or picnic ground.

Lincoln Boulevard will be opened up from Lincoln to Dunellen through this property, and when Mr. Drake has brought out this improvement he will be the means, during the past three years, of opening up a boulevard from Dunellen to New Bound Brook. All these improvements will aid Plainfield's material interests.

Josiah Brown Convalescing

Josiah Brown, secretary and treasurer of the American Tobacco Trust, who has been dangerously ill with typhoid fever, is convalescing. His illness is believed to have been contracted while taking dinner with a personal friend on Long Island not long ago. Both Mr. Brown and his friend were taken ill with the disease, and during Mr Brown's illness, his friend died. The circumstances of the case are particularly sad.

Vocalists For Chorus Choir.

All singers who desire to join the chorus choir which is being organized to lead the music at the Bible conference next week are requested to write to L. H. Biglow, Jr., 927 Central avenue, as soon as possible, giving their names and mentioning the part they will sing. They will be notified by mail of the evenings when they are to sing.

Flower Sale Continued

The flower sale and fair which was continued yesterday afternoon and evening at the Unitarian church, was largely attended and nearly everything was disposed of with little trouble. Many stopped for supper and thus assisted in making the affair a great success.

TREATS AT THE THEATRE.

HIGH CLASS ATTRACTIONS BOOKED BY MANAGER EDWARADS.

The Week Before Christmas Will See Music Hall Dark, but Several Good Pieces Will be Seen Before and After.

Theatre-goers and amusement seekers who failed to witness the very superior performance of "The Village Postmaster" at Music Hall last Wednesday night, missed one of the very best presentations seen here. A large audience was present, but the house should have been crowded, for here we had the original company from the Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York, and everything intact, a rare thing in suburban theatres. It was a performance long to be remembered, and will rank with "The Old Homestead" and "Shore Acres" in the scale of public opinion.

The ever-popular "Peck's Bad Boy" is the attraction tonight and the management says everything is new about the laughable skit except the name.

Manager Maze Edwards announces the following attractions for balance of month of December. Two fine plays are promised the coming week: "On the Suwanee River" Tuesday night, and Lincoln J. Carter's great scenic production, "The Heart of Chicago" Thursday night.

Stephen C. Foster's beautiful song, "The Old Folks at Home," or as it is better known, "The Suwanee River," has long been one that arouses the pathetic side of almost every nature. There is in its quaint melody and mournful words a life of the sunny south, of which so many in the north know little. Wm. C. Sterling, the author of "On the Suwanee River," has taken as the locality of this new play the region about the little village of Suwanee, on the banks of the famous old stream, and presents to us the story of the first settlers in Florida. It is not claimed that the developments of the play are entirely new, nor that the story possesses any great amount of originality in its telling. Mr. Sterling has simply written a romance of the south, true in character, and placed it in this little known region, depending upon the strength of his play and its romantic surroundings to win public approval.

Few more effective dramas have been sent on the road in recent years than Lincoln J. Carter's "Heart of Chicago" which comes Thursday night. The story told is a powerful one of love and intrigue and of greed of gold. It is constructed on original lines and cannot be said to approach the stereotyped form of melodrama at any time. Quite as much interest is felt, however, in the marvelous scenic aids as in the story itself. In the first act a section of the great Chicago fire is reproduced with wonderful fidelity to detail and thrilling effect. Not less worthy of praise is the famous approaching engine scene, which is said by many to be the best thing in the play. It is absolutely unlike in every particular all other engine effects ever devised.

The week before the holidays is always a bad week for theatres, so no attractions have been booked for the week commencing Monday, 18th inst., Christmas Day, the Burrill Comedy Company will inaugurate a week of new plays at popular or repertoire prices. The Burrill Company has become one of the standard repertoire organizations of the country, and the star, Miss Laura Hulbert, one of the greatest favorites travelling. A cordial welcome awaits them here.

REFORM CLUB TAXED.

Some of the Members Believe That the Organization Should Be Exempt From Taxation.

Some of the members of the Reform Club are very much dissatisfied that the city should tax the property of the club. They claim that it is a beneficial organization and, as such, should be exempt from taxation. For a number of years the club paid no taxes. Two years ago, however, they received a bill and did again this year. The matter was brought to the attention of the commissioners of appeal, but they refused to change the decision of the assessors. Next year the members say they will make a strong fight to have the club exempted from taxation.

Borough on Good Behavior.

The Borough Recorder and Marshals have not been kept very busy this year with court matters, for there has been precious little to occupy their time. There is very little law breaking and it is now a rare event when a case is called in the borough court.

—The afternoon vocal sight reading class to be formed by Miss Anna O. Marsh will be for young ladies over sixteen years of age. Yesterday it was announced that eighteen years was the limit of age.

COUNTRY CLUB IS NEAR THE FINISH.

Receiver Meeker Making Inventory of the Property.

CLUB DEBTS ARE $17,000.

THE ASSETS WILL NOT REALIZE MORE THAN $3,500.

Club House and Effects is Now the Property of C. J. and Pliny Fisk and H. G. Runkle—Tangible Property to be Sold for Benefit of Creditors—Many Large Bills are Owing to Defunct Club.

The end of the Union County Country Club is in view. Receiver Robert A. Meeker is now busy making an inventory of the property of the defunct club in preparation to selling it for the benefit of the creditors. The total liabilities of the club amount to over $17,000, while the only assests are the furniture and equipment at the club house, which are not likely to realize over $3,500, if they do that amount. The club house itself and the real estate were purchased by W. C. Kinney, as trustee, when they were sold under the foreclosure of the mortgage of the Mutual Life Insurance Company. They are now the property of H. G. Runkle, Charles J. Fisk and Pliny Fisk.

The claims against the club are as follows: C. J. Fisk, for cash advanced to meet the running expenses of the club, $884 45; DeWitt C. Ivins & Co., for lumber, coal and other supplies furnished, $521 78; John T. Baker, promissory note to cover cash advanced for running expenses of club, $250; City National Bank on notes discounted for the club, $2,383 29; Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Co., promissory note given for gas and electric light account, $1,078.82; debenture bonds held by various members of the club, with large arrears of interest, $8,500; notes of club amounting to $2,800, divided as follows: H. G. Runkle, $500; J. W. Reinhart, $500; J. T. Baker, $200; John W. Murray, $500; Henry P. Talmage, $300; J. B. Dumont, $200; Mason W. Tyler, $200; Henry B. Stockton, $200; C. J. Fisk, $100, which are secured by $6,600 of debenture bonds held by J. B. Dumont as trustee; several other sums amounting in all to $207.36.

THE RIKERS CORNERED.

WILL PROBABLY BE EUCHERED IN PRIVATE RIGHT OF WAY.

If the Company Has No Right to Cross the Streets Without Permission Mayor Mack Will See That They Do Not.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, December 9.—Mayor Mack, of this city, yesterday asked City Attorney Connolly to look up the law and render an opinion as to whether the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company can cross any streets in this city without permission of the City Council.

Mayor Mack's reason for doing this is because he has been informed that the Hine-Riker syndicate, which has verbally refused to accept the franchise to enter this city on the conditions drawn up by the City Council, intends to evade the city authorities, and by buying certain tracts of land in the western part of Elizabeth secure the right of way which would enable the company to connect at El Mora with the tracks of the North Jersey Traction Company.

In order to do this, however, the Elizabeth and Westfield Company will have to cross two of Elizabeth's streets, and the Mayor says if the City Attorney decides it has no legal right to do this, he will send a force of policemen to the disputed territory, with orders to arrest anybody attempting to lay tracks across these streets.

COURT PLAINFIELD OFFICERS.

LeRoy DeCamp is Chief Ranger of Independent Order of Foresters.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order of Foresters, at their meeting last night accepted twelve applications and initiated five candidates, after which the following were elected to serve the court for the ensuing year: Past chief ranger, J. J. Praed; chief ranger, LeRoy DeCamp; recording secretary, James Patterson; financial secretary, John F. Casey; treasurer, J. W. Kerr; T. Woodward, W. Monsell; chaplain, A. J. Jennings; finance committee, A. J. Jennings, W. H. Toms; trustees, H. H. Lowrie, J. J. Praed. The installation of the newly-elected officers will take place the first meeting night in January, 1900, by the High Court officers.

A bright bouncing baby girl has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hughes, East Second street, and congratulations are being offered.

HOLIDAY FAIR IS OVER.

THE SUCCESSFUL FESTIVAL IN VINCENT CHAPEL.

Netted Over $500 For the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. Church—Change of Programme Last Night.

"The Fair of the Holidays" at Vincent chapel closed last evening, a decided success. Besided being a great success from the social standpoint, the affair netted the Ladies' Aid Society, under whose auspices it was held, a sum amounting to over $500.

Yesterday was the second day of its continuance. The booths were just as pretty as ever and the attendance was large. There was a slight falling off in the patronage of the supper-room, which was to be expected on the second night. There were 111 suppers served. The articles in the booths were disposed of. Where there was a prospect of a few articles being left over, they were auctioned off by Charles H. Lyman.

A word should be said in praise of the efforts of the decoration committee, composed of Mrs. Nelson A. Miller and Mrs. J. H. Howell. The results of their work added greatly to the success of the affair.

There was a change in the entertainments for the evening. In the place of the stereopticon, a series of shadow pictures were given illustrating the "Bird's Christmas Carol." The story was read by Miss Rita Pond. "Mrs. Ruggles" was impersonated by Miss Susie Davies. The other characters were taken by the Misses Mabel Stevens, Helen Joy, Gertrude Geier, Edna Kennedy, and Maud Disbrow, Leslie Hallock, Roland Horne, Harold Fenno and Charles Lyman. The pictures were very clever. The children were drilled by Miss Luella Crowther.

HORDE OF RATS.

Half a Hundred of the Rodents Killed This Week Around a Meat Market in Dunellen.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 9—The increase in the rat colony about the meat market of William H. Carman so alarmed the the proprietor of the establishment that he recently decided to have a general roundup of the rodents and if possible rid himself of the pests. Carman set a trap for the intruders and Monday morning succeeded in killing sixteen. Tuesday he captured fifteen, and Wednesday and Thursday eleven and eight respectively, were the fruits of the catch, making an even half-hundred killed for the week. Adjoining the butcher shop is the feed store of Garretron & Gray, and it is believed that the rats have been attracted to the place owing to the grain which they found there. Tom Kee, who keeps the Chinese laundry, denies that he has made Mr. Carman a liberal offer for the dead rats.

The author of the above rat story is one of the most reputable citizens of the borough. He says it is true to the best of his knowledge and belief.

Greenbrook Council Elect.

At the meeting of Greenbrook Council, No. 1725, Royal Arcanum, last Thursday evening, these officers were elected: Regent, Frank Cobb; vice-regent, L. B. Skillman; orator, W. F. Oliver; secretary, Webster Grant; collector, J. F. Bamberger; treasurer, Harry Coward; chaplain, Nelson VanWinkle; warden, J. M. Higgins; sentry, Ralph Bunyon; trustee, C. C. Davis; trustees of hospital bed association, L. B. Skillman and Frank Cobb.

Recipient of a Loving Cup.

Timothy Clark, of this city, who sails today on the Umbria to spend Christmas in Barrum-in-Furness, England, was the recipient of a loving cup from a few of the men in the erecting department at the Potter Press Works Thursday night. George Bold, in an appropriate address, presented the gift and the surprised recipient returned thanks in a pleasing manner.

Theatre Party in Honor of Mrs. Saunders.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Roome, formerly of Plainfield, but now of New York, gave a theatre party last evening in honor of Mrs. William L. Saunders, who recently returned from abroad. The party attended the Casino and saw the production of "The Singing Girl."

Mr. Gallup Hangs Out His Shingle.

Carlos C. Gallup, the young attorney-at-law who passed his entrance examinations to the Jersey Bar so successfully last month, has established offices in room 15, Marsh building, right over the law offices of Craig A. Marsh, where he studied for four years.

Reform Club Officers.

THE BIBLE CONFERENCE.

Will be Opened in First Methodist Church Tomorrow and Continued in Y. M. C. A. Hall Next Week.

The Union Bible Conference, for which preparations have been making for some time, will open tomorrow afternoon, with a popular meeting to be held in the First Methodist church, at 4:15. While the meetings are under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and the young people's societies of the city, they are for all, and will undoubtedly be of great interest.

Don O. Shelton, who is to conduct the conference, is now devoting his whole time to the promotion of Bible study. He was for nine years secretary of the East Side Branch of the New York branch Y. M. C. A., but was so constantly called upon to conduct Bible study conferences that he resigned from his work in the association. He is an Episcopalian, but his studies are conducted along undenominational lines.

The subject of the conference will be "Studies in the Epistle to the Ephesians." The first regular meeting for study will be held Monday evening, in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. Wherever Mr. Shelton has conducted a conference, hitherto, interest in Bible study has been increased, and those who attended the meetings have gained in spiritual strength.

The music of the meetings will be led by a large chorus choir of local singers.

WORK OF SUNDAY-SCHOOL

CONVENTION OF TEACHERS TO MEET HERE NEXT TUESDAY.

Meeting to be Held in the Seventh-Day Baptist Church, and it Will be Addressed by Workers Who are Experienced.

Tuesday evening of next week a meeting is to be held in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, in this city, which promises to be one of unusual interest for the Sunday-school workers of Plainfield.

The State Secretary for the New Jersey Sunday School Association, Rev. E. Morris Fergusson, is to address the meeting, and will probably outline some of the methods and plans for the general State work in New Jersey. Mr. Fergusson is an interesting speaker and is so thoroughly familar with all the detail work of the entire State, that his address can not fail to be of unusual interest.

Rev. George Buckle, of Elizabeth, the President of the Union County Sunday-school Association is expected to outline the Sunday-school work in the county. Mr. Buckle is an enthusiastic Sunday-school worker, and an eloquent speaker, and the people of Plainfield should avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing him.

Rev. Arthur E. Main, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, who is the Union County Home Department secretary, will present the work of this department and explain the methods and plans for the formation of home departments in schools not now organized with this addition to their work. The series of Sunday-school lessons which begin the first Sunday in January and continue for the next eighteen months, afford a splendid opportunity for the beginning of the home department wherever one can be organized.

It is expected that plans will also be suggested for the formation of local Sunday school organization for our city, the same as now exists in Elizabeth and many other of the large cities in the State.

This is the first meeting of this kind that has been held in Plainfield for a number of months, and the committee of arrangements are especially anxious that the result of the meeting may be as far reaching as possible, and to this end trust that a large attendance may greet the speakers.

If in Doubt, go to Powlison & Jones.

This is the time of year when one is often in doubt as to what kind of a Christmas gift to make. If you will only visit the furniture house of Powlison & Jones, East Front street, and take a look at the many handsome and useful things in their stock you will no longer be in doubt. The pick of the factories is there displayed, and the prices are so reasonable that one cannot help but find something suitable for a gift. A glance at their advertisement will give you an idea of what you want.

Fire in a Chimney.

Last evening between 7 and 8 o'clock an alarm of fire was sent in from Box No. 143, corner of Grandview avenue and Somerset street, a fire having been discovered in the chimney at the house 94 Grandview avenue, occupied by James White. The department responded, but the firemen were able to extinguish the fire with one extinguisher. The damage was very slight.

AFTER THE SIGNERS FOR LIQUOR LICENSES.

Law and Order League Of Scotch Plains.

TO INVOKE THE LAW'S AID

IN PREVENTING THE SALE OF LIQUOR IN THE TOWNSHIP.

Those Who Sign the Petition for a License to be Summoned Before the Courts to Explain Their Rights to Do so—A Printed Circular Sent to Every Citizen in Scotch Plains and Fanwood.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 9—The executive committee of the Citizens League of the Scotch Plains and Fanwood townships have issued a circular to the voters and freeholders for the purpose of laying before them certain things which they claim to be a menace to the fair name of the townships and the lowering of the standard of morality in these communities. Reference is made to the licensing to sell intoxicated drinks at the inns and taverns in these places. The league has been formed for the purpose of suppressing the sale of liquor, particularly on Sunday. As the means so far used to bring about this result have been without effect, it is now proposed to resort to more extreme measures to not only stop the sale of liquor but if possible to prevent the flocking to these towns a disorderly element which the sale of liquor induces. The League believes the solution of the problem lies with the signers of the applications for licenses. If the applicant cannot get twelve freeholders to sign the legal petition a license cannot issue. Following is the legal form of the application for a license:

We, the subscribers, freeholders of the Township of Fanwood, in the county of Union, do certify that ....., who is desirous to obtain a license for keeping an inn or tavern in the township of Fanwood, is a person of good repute for honesty and temperance, and is known to us to have at least two feather beds more than is necessary for his family use, and is well provided with house room, stabling and provender, and that the place where he now resides is very necessary and proper for a tavern; and we pray your honors to license him accordingly. And we do further certify that the said tavern is necessary and will conduce to the public good.

The league states in the circular that it does not believe that the places are a necessity or conduce to public good, and they purpose to contest the applications for license. For that purpose able counsel has been secured and it is proposed to examine the qualifications of all who sign the above petition, and if possible to ask the courts to compel them to show their right to sign. These circulars were yesterday sent to every citizen in the town. This latest movement of the league has caused considerable comment. A prominent member of the league told a Daily Press reporter last night that the members of the executive committee would, if it was possible to do so, have every signer of an application summoned to court and compel them to testify to the facts. In this way the committee believes it will be successful in reducing the number of signers to a minimum. This latest movement of the Law and Order League will be watched with interest by all classes.

YALE CLUB TO MEET.

Will Elect Officers and Decide Whether or Not to Hold the Annual Dinner.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Yale Club will be held Tuesday evening at the home of Leander N. Lovell, of Crescent avenue. The election of officers will be held at that time and it will then be decided whether or not the club will hold a dinner this winter. For the last two years the annual dinner has been given up on account of lack of interest.

RELIEF CORPS ELECT.

Auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post Chose Their Officers for a Year.

At the regular meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps, auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., held last evening, the annual election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Casper Bolsterli; senior vice-president, Mrs. W. R. Mattox; junior vice-president, Mrs. Charles Stephens; treasurer, Mrs. Walter Walker; chaplain, Mrs. M. C. Dobbins; conductor, Mrs. Andrew Cox; guard, Mrs. Alexander Sergeant; first delegate, Mrs. Kline; second, Mrs. Devine; first alternate delegate, Mrs. Samuel Terry; second, Mrs. Alexander Sergeant. The installation will take place early in January.

William L. Saunders, who is now in Russia, on business, is expected to return home about Christmas time.

Polygamists Not to Be Allowed to Hold Federal Office.

BRISTOW FEELS NETTLED

Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Declares Statements Made by Mr. Roberts Are Untrue—If the Charges Are True Resignations Will Be Asked For.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Polygamists will not be allowed to hold Federal office under the present administration..

Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow declares that the statement made by Mr. Roberts that the President had knowingly appointed two polygamists as postmasters is untrue.

"You can state positively," said Mr. Bristow, to a newspaper reporter, "that no complaints whatever were filed at this department against Mr. Graham or Mr. Smith at the time of their appointment, or since, alleging that they were maintaining polygamous relations."

At the room of the Senate Post Office Committee, which would have received any complaints against Graham or Smith, it is also stated that there are no papers on file indicating that such a complaint has been made. It is understood in official circles that the President has no intention of appointing any man to office who is charged with polygamy. If a complaint of this character were to be received against a postmaster it would be investigated, and, if supported by evidence, would result in a request for the man's resignation.

Will Uphold the President.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—Representative Grosvenor's place on the Committee on Rules is regarded in the House as signifying that much closer relations will exist during the Fifty-sixth Congress between the House and the White House than existed during the Fifty-fifth Congress, under the regime of Mr. Reed. Mr. Grosvenor is, rightly or wrongly, regarded as the mouthpiece of the Administration on the floor, as Senator Hanna is in the Senate, and in view of the confidential relations between the Speaker and the Committee on Rules, the Administration is assured of friendly assistance.

It is safe to say that no favors will be granted by the Committee on Rules to members of the House desiring to further anti-Administration measures. Under these circumstances, the passage of at least two bills to which the Administration is committed, namely the Currency bill and the Ship Subsidy bill, may be counted upon, to say nothing of various measures dealing with our insular possessions.

To Promote Sampson and Schley.

Washington, D. C. Dec. 9.—President McKinley, during an interview with Senator Wellington, of Maryland, has expressed himself in favor of reviving the grade of vice admiral in the interest of both Rear Admiral Sampson and Rear Admiral Schley. He believes that this is the simplest solution of the whole Sampson-Schley controversy, and it is expected that Senator Wellington will introduce a bill in a few days providing for the appointment of two vice admirals without specifying names.

The President very frankly said that if such a bill became a law he would promptly nominate both Sampson and Schley in the order named. This arrangement, both the President and Senator Wellington believes, will meet the approval of a majority of the friends of both officers.

Proceeding of Congress.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—Mr. Roberts, the Mormon representative-elect from Utah, was not in the hall when the House convened Friday. It was agreed immediately after the reading of the journal that when the House adjourned it should not meet again until Monday.

Mr. Roberts (La.) announced the death of the late Representative G. S. Baird, of Louisiana, and after the adoption of the customary resolutions, as a further mark of respect, the House adjourned until Monday.

It Was Only Chandler's Joke.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—Senator Chandler has tried jokingly to take national cognizance of the growth of athletic sports in colleges, but he ran afoul of staid and sober Senator Hale, who takes everything seriously. The bill was one for the regulation of Annapolis and West Point, and authorized the cutting out of higher mathematics and languages and substituting golf, bicycling and baseball. Hale, as chairman of the Naval Committee, thought his body ought to have charge of the measure, and grew real enthusiastic before he discovered the joke.

Was Let Off Cheaply.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 9.—Sylvester Willis, Assistant Postmaster at Cerro Gordo, has been found guilty by Judge Baker of trying to operate a "green goods" swindle, but as he failed to land any victims he escaped with 60 days in jail. Willis received a green goods letter, and it looked so alluring that he concluded to operate on his own hook. One of his circulars fell into the hands of a postmaster in Iowa, who remailed it to the department, and in this way Willis was cornered.

The Venezuelan Revolution.

Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 9.—Troops have left here for Maracaibo, which had been declared blockaded to trade. The city, it is said, will surrender at once. The situation, from the government standpoint, it is announced is improving daily.

Women in Bucket Shop Business.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 9.—Mrs. Marion La Touchon has been bound over to the Criminal Court on two warrants charging her with keeping a bucket shop at 167 Dearborn street. All witnesses in the case are women.

HOG-STEALING PARSON'S FATE.

Athens Negroes Awed at What They Think is Direct Judgment.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Dec. 9.—The negroes of Athens, Ala., are holding nightly prayer-meetings to ask delivery from the sort of retributive justice that on Wednesday morning before daylight overtook a preacher of one of the negro congregations there. A neighboring planter had taken advantage of the first cold weather to kill hogs on Tuesday. Next morning the biggest hog was missing. A track was taken leading toward the home of the negro preacher and, after a short search, the hog was found.

It was standing on one side of the fence, its nose down, and the negro was standing on the opposite side, caught about the neck by the gabling-stick that had been used to swing the hog to the pole. The negro had taken down the hog and, slipping the gambling-stick to its place, had swung the hog around his neck by use of the gambling-stick. When he reached the fence he had undertaken to climb over, and the weight of the hog had pulled him back. The negro's neck was broken, and while his body was left standing on one side of the fence the hog stood upon its nose on the other. The negroes there think it a direct judgment sent upon the hog-stealing parson.

Students May Not be Punished.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 9.—Members of the faculty of the University of Chicago are struggling with the problem of how to discipline the rioters of last Friday without injuring some important features of the university life. The number of students implicated is so large that a wholesale suspension would play havoc with musical and athletic clubs, nearly empty some of the fratenity houses, and endanger the success of social and musical events that have been planned. The faculty finds it hard, moreover, to discriminate between the different degrees of guilt. It was rumored that Professor Laughlin would resign if no punishment was meted out to the offenders, but the professor denies he ever had any such intention.

A Big Baseball Deal.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 9.—There has been concluded in this city one of the largest baseball deals in the history of the sport. The Pittsburg Club has exchanged Chesbro, Fox, O'Brien and Madison and $25,000 for Cunningham, Waddell, Philippi, Flahrety, Doyle, Woods, Zimmer, Lattimer, Kelley, Richey, Leach, Clarke and Wagner, of the Louisville Club. "Fred" Clarke will be made manager and captain of the Pittsburg Club, while it is understood "Barney" Dreyfus will secure an interest in the Pittsburg Club and become its president at the election to be held soon.

Says He Couldn't Help Stealing.

Greenburg, Pa., Dec. 9.—Peter Zimmerman, who is seventy-five years old, has pleaded guilty in court here to horse stealing. He acknowledged that he could not resist the impulse to steal horses and said that if he were liberated he would probably commit the same offence again. Zimmerman's attorney made a plea for mercy on the ground that the prisoner was a kleptomaniac. The court sentenced him to seventeen years' imprisonment and $1,000 fine. Zimmerman has already spent forty years in prison for previous convictions on similar charges.

Weeks is Discharged.

New York, Dec. 9.—The indictment against Nelson Weeks, of Hackensack, N. J., the Sunday school superintendent charged with having caused the death of Miss Aimee Smith, at the Victor Hotel, this city, on March 8, 1897, has been dismissed by Justice Fursman. Miss Smith was a teacher in the Sunday school, very beautiful and was the organist in the church.

Edison Will Make Cement.

Phillipsburg, N. J. Dec. 9.—A company, headed by Thomas A. Edison, has purchased the John W. Cline farm at Stewartville, five miles from this place, and has secured options on a number of adjoining farms. The company has been prospecting for cement rock for several months. An excellent quality of rock has been found on and about the Cline farm.

Eastern Plant Going West.

New Haven, Dec. 9.—The plant of the American Fish Hook Company of this city is being moved to Akron, O. The plant was purchased by the Enterprise Manufacturing Company of Akron in September but the removal was delayed. A number of skilled workmen will leave New Haven with the plant.

Samoan Natives Indifferent.

Auckland, N. Z., Dec. 9.—Advices received here from Apia, Samoa, dated November 28, say that the news of the German annexation of the islands, as a result of the Samoan agreement, was received by the natives with apparent indifference.

Gold Miners Fight Corporations.

Seattle, Dec. 9.—Cape Nome miners have held a series of meetings in this city and employed counsel to defeat what they say is an attempt on the part of certain corporations to withdraw in their own favor the famous Cape Nome beach diggings.

Leather Factory Destroyed by Fire.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 9.—The factory of the Lindenwold Leather Company, at Lindenwold, Camden county, N. J., has been totally destroyed by fire. The entire stock was consumed by the flames. The loss is about $50,000 and no insurance.

New Gold Mining Company Organized

Charleston, W. Va., Dec. 9.—The Guyana Gold Mining Company, with its principal office at Marietta, O., has been incorporated in this state by A. D. Follet and other persons of Marietta. The authorized capital stock is $3,000,000.

Army Captain Ayers Killed.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—Captain J. C. Ayres, United States Army, of the Ordnance Department, was killed here Friday afternoon by a fall from his bicycle, being afterward run over by a wagon.

To the Sick.

Indisputable Facts.

Disease, fermentation and decay are caused by microbes and germ life; when these organic pests are destroyed there can be no sickness.

Antiseptics are so called because they destroy microbes; surgeons always use antiseptics in performing dangerous operations.

Carbolic acid is a common antiseptic, but is poisonous if taken into the system strong enough to destroy the germs of disease.

Radam's Microbe Killer, composed of GASES, is an antiseptic, perfectly harmless to the human body, but doubly powerful in destroying disease if faithfully applied. Physicians frequently use Microbe Killer in treating Cancers, and recommend it for Catarrh, Tuberculosis, etc.; others know it to be invaluable in Bright's Disease and Bladder Troubles.

Fermentation of food in the stomach causes Dyspepsia, Sourness, etc.; Radam's Microbe Killer destroys the CAUSE and sweetens the stomach.

Impoverished blood is the home of germ life; when pure it is the fountain of life, the source of all health and vigor.

Radam's Microbe Killer is the only rational remedy for all diseases; its antiseptic power eradicates every disease from the human body.

These facts are incontrovertible, and we invite the fullest investigation by all interested people, professional or otherwise.

We would like to mail you, absolutely free, a book containing testimonials and advice.

IN A PERILOUS POSITION.

Aguinaldo is Believed to Be Hemmed in Tightly.

SOLDIERS ON ALL SIDES.

The Filipino Leader Closely Pursued By American Troops in His Hasty Flight to Bontoc—Hopes of the Natives Said to Be Based on False Rumors—Outbreak in Negros.

Washington, D. C. Dec. 9.—General Otis has cabled the War Department in regard to the uprising in Negros as follows:

"Manila, Dec. 8.—I am informed that the outbreak of natives in the district of South Negros was the result of reported recent great insurgent victories in Luzon and Panay, which the natives believe.

"The extent of the outbreak has not been ascertained. Lieutenant A. C. Ledyard, Sixth Infantry, was killed and two privates were wounded.

"One of the chief difficulties arises from the circulation of falsehoods among the natives.

"Defamatory newspaper articles of the United States and Europe are promptly published in Spanish in San Francisco and Madrid and by the Hong Kong Junta and circulated in the Philippines. The insurgents have based all their hopes upon false rumors."

A second despatch from General Otis dated at Manila, Dec. 8, says:

"The Hospital ship Relief has just returned from Vigan, bringing two hundred and seventy-two sick soldiers, and two hundred and thirty-two Spanish prisoners. It reports several hundred Spanish prisoners at Vigan, for which we will send a transport this evening.

"Colonel Hare, Thirty-third Infantry, took Bangued on the 5th inst., and now with portions of the regiment and a battalion of the Thirty-fourth Infantry is in pursuit of insurgents on the road southeast of Lepanto, and thence to Bontoc, on which Aguinaldo and three hundred natives are supposed to be retreating with American prisoners. The inhabitants of the western Luzon coast are friendly and give assistance."

General Otis also reports the arrival of the transport Olympia, with the Thirty-ninth Infantry, one battalion of the Forty-fifth Infantry and some recruits. There were no casualties during the voyage.

The town of Bontoc, toward which Aguinaldo with his bodyguard is said to be retreating, lies in the mountain fastnesses about fifty or sixty miles southeast of Vigan. If this last report as to Aguinaldo's whereabouts is true, it indicates that he has been headed off to the northward for the first time and is being compelled to retrace his steps toward the south. If he is striving to regain his old stronghold in Cavite province, his chances of success are very slight.

Directly in his line of march is a considerable American force at Bayonbong; to the westward of that point is Wheaton's force, and to the east of Bayonbong is an almost impassable mountain range. So with Young behind him, with Colonel Hare close in his rear, and his front obstructed, the War Department officials feel that Aguinaldo has little chance of escaping to the southward.

Major Batcheller is said to be making rapidly for Aparri, about the only port on the extreme north end of the island, so as to reduce the outlet in that direction. The best chance remaining to Aguinaldo is believed to be to abandon the escort of 300 men now traveling with him, in which case he could easily insure his personal escape in disguise.

The Richard Peck Smashes a Bridge.

New Haven, Dec. 9.—The steamboat Richard Peck of the New York & New Haven Line chashed into the Tomlinson Bridge, near Belle Dock, the regular landing for the boat. The trusses supporting the bridge were smashed and only foot traffic will be possible over the bridge for some time. The steamboat was only slightly injured and will be able to resume her regular trips without delay.

Fifth Sentence For Manslaughter.

New Kirk, O. T., Dec. 9.—Clyde H. Mattox, the slayer of five men, has been convicted here of manslaughter and sentenced to twelve years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. The crime for which he was sentenced, his fifth of this sort, was the killing of Lincoln E. Sweeney, a ranger, with a reputation as a dangerous man, in a barroom fight at Ponce City last spring.

The Output of Klondike Mines.

Vancouver, B. C., Dec. 9.—Gold Commissioner Graham of the Atlin Mining district has made his annual report to the provincial government, showing that royalty has been paid this season on 20,000 ounces of gold. Eight thousand placer, ten hydraulic leases and 650 mineral claims have been recorded.

Cigar Manufacturer a Lunatic.

Tampa, Fla., Dec. 9.—Julius Ellinger, head of the cigar manufacturing firm of Julius Ellinger & Co., of New York and Tampa, is insane and the business is handled by his brother, Ernest E. Ellinger.

Burnz Will Plead Insanity.

New York, Dec. 9.—Edgar Burns, the youth who killed Postmaster Fallows at Scarsdale, a few days ago, will offer as a plea that he was insane from the excessive use of cigarettes.

Railroad Section Men Killed.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 9.—A passenger train on the Burlington road ran down a hand car bearing five men at Alton, Ill., killing two men outright and fatally injuring two others.

Negro Hanged in Maryland.

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 9.—Samuel Johnson, colored, aged twenty-two years, was hanged in the jail yard here Friday afternoon for assault.

THE MOLINEUX CASE.

What the Prosecution Has Thus Far Shown.

New York, Dec. 9.—The progress made in the Molineux case so far lies entirely in the attempt to prove that Molineux wrote the letter signed "H. Cornish" asking for Harpster's record. The prisoner's counsel tried vigorously of course, to discredit Kinsley's testimoney. In cross-examining him as to his qualifications as an expert, Mr. Weeks brought out that Kinsley was interested in poultry farming and advertised hens that would lay twenty eggs a day. The fact that a man sells poultry need not tend to show that he is not an expert in "the science of handwriting," but Mr. Weeks did it all so cleverly that he had everybody in the court room shaking with suppressed laughter.

It is considered that Mr. Osborne scored a point over Mr. Weeks in getting the whole mass of letters in the case before the jury. These letters, which play so important a part in the trial, have all been photographed and bound in albums, one for each of the jurors. Most of the letters have not yet been admitted in evidence; yet, in order to allow the jury to see those about which discussion raged yesterday, the albums containing the whole lot were supplied to them. Bits of tape were tied about the pages on either side of the open book, and the jurors were told not to look at the other letters.

The sensation of the day was the arrest of a girl who worked for Molineux in Newark. The detectives had been tracking her for months. She was finally lured into New York State where she could be summoned as a witness for the prosecution.

Court has adjourned until Monday morning.

Was Married on His First Trip.

Ohio Falls, Ind., Dec. 9.—Judge C. E. Croman, of La Maure, North Dakota, has been married to Mrs. Annie Stine, of Jeffersonville. Their marriage was the outcome of an interesting romance. Both are interested in church work, and through the medium of a mutual friend a correspondence was begun. Judge Croman came to visit his correspondent and an engagement resulted. Their wedding was announced to take place next March, but the Judge insisted that it was not necessary for him to make two trips to Jeffersonville, and the consent of Mrs. Stine to be married at once was secured. The groom has been three times elected Judge of the Judicial Circuit in which he resides.

Jailer Held For Prisoner's Escape.

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 9.—The Grand Jury, in the United States Court, has returned indictments against William M. Shockley, the county jailer, and his son, Harry Shockley, who are charged with "voluntarily and negligently" permitting a federal prisoner, Captain T. C. Jobe, to escape from jail. Father and son were arrested and held in $500 bail each. Captain Jobe was himself indicted for using the government envelopes for private correspondence and forging an order for transportation of recruits to Manila.

Business Men in Fatal Scuffle.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 9.—John J. Jackson, a manufacturing jeweller, of No. 91 Mechanic street, Friday afternoon had a dispute with Christian Fleissner, a leather manufacturer, and his brother John who occupy the same building, over fumes which came through the floor into Flessner's place. There was a scuffle, and Jackson, who was about sixty years old and weighed three hundred pounds, fell, and died in a few minutes. The Flessners were arrested. The cause of death has not yet been learned.

No More Bodies Found.

Reading, Pa., Dec. 9.—After twenty-four hours search of the ruins of the burned hosiery mill of Nolde & Horst, no more bodies have been found. The missing, it is thought, have all been accounted for, and no more deaths are reported among the sixty injured girls, although several of these are in a dangerous condition. The last reports of the State Factory Inspector and State Insurance Inspectors speak very highly of the condition of the factory, the fire escapes, doorways, and stairways.

Large Fishing Sloop Wrecked.

Provincetown, Mass., Dec. 9.—The thirteen-ton fishing sloop Gold Eagle of Tiverton, R. I., has been wrecked near Wood End light at the entrance of Provincetown harbor. The crew of five men were rescued after some difficulty by the Wood End life-saving crew. The vessel was on the fishing grounds near here when a squall carried away her sails, and those on board could not prevent her from going ashore.

Koenigin Luise Runs Aground.

THAT'S THE IDEA!

You ought to see what we can do for you before doing anything for yourself. Painting depends upon the paint and the painter. Better preparations than ours were never put on by a brush. Wherever paint is put, it should be put there to stay long enough to make it worth while to do the job. The warring elements have no effect on our durable mixtures.

"Almost with the regularity of clock-work," said the editor of a New York trade paper, when relating his experience with . . . . . .

Ripans·Tabules

"I used to feel at about 11 o'clock that something had gone wrong with my breakfast. Especially was this true if I had had a restless night, as you know is not an uncommon thing with head-workers. My stomach," continued he, "is under the standard as to strength and it used to seem at times to act only indifferently and sometimes to even stop work. Clouds would come before my vision and then a slight nausea would be felt. Years of that sort of thing had made me know the symptoms as well as I know my name, but since I learned about Ripans Tabules I have practically overcome the difficulty and it is not often that any one gets as enthusiastic over anything as I do over them. Nowadays, whenever I recognize the old familiar symptom,

DOWN GOES ONE OF THE BLESSED LITTLE CONCENTRATED BOONS,

And in a few minutes the visual clouds lift, discomfort passes away, my stomach apparently resumes its operations and at half past 12 or 1 o'clock I go out for my usual rather hearty luncheon—all in delightful contrast with my former practically ruined afternoons which I used vainly to seek to escape by fasting and various doses."

CHICAGO'S FINANCIAL CRISIS.

A Special Session of the Legislature May Have to be Called.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 9.—A special session of the Legislature is looked upon by a number of Chicago public men as the only means whereby relief can be obtained from the financial crisis which threatens Chicago's City Government next year owing to the increased needs for revenue.

As if to emphasize the necessity for relief intelligence was received in the office of the Corporation Counsel from Springfield indicating that the city's revenue from the tax levy will be even less next year than it was this year, despite the predictions of vast increases expected from the operation of the new revenue law. Major Marshall's report was filed at Washington and its showing as to how navigation in the river is obstructed has also served to again call attention to the decayed condition of the city's bridges and the immediate necessity for new structures at over a score of crossings.

This year Chicago received $4,420,000 for corporate purposes from the tax levy—not enough to maintain the city and Fire Departments—and the city had to depend upon saloon licenses and other special sources of income for its maintenance. It has been supposed heretofore that the city would obtain at least $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 from the levy.

TRIED TO FOOL COAL TRUST.

Dealer Arrested Because He Bought Under Another's Name.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—Where formerly W. H. Barton operated twenty-five teams and sold an average of 125 tons of coal a day, he says that now his horses are idle and a score of men without employment, owing to the ruling of the coal trust. Mr. Barton came under the ban of the coal combine because he insisted on selling coal at a cheaper rate than the rules of the coal trust allowed.

This condition of affairs was brought to light by a suit brought against the Lehigh Coal Company, of which Mr. Barton is proprietor, by the firm of Emil G. Harz & Co., wholesale coal dealers. Harz & Co. swore out warrants for the arrest of Mr. Barton, charging him with obtaining property under false pretenses and impersonating another.

The plaintiffs declare that Barton bought 400 tons of coal from them and represented himself as W. T. McAuley of the firm of McAuley Brothers. Mr. Barton did not deny the assertion that he bought the coal under the name of W. T. McAuley, and his reason for doing so was the fact that he had been put on the "blacklist." He declares that Mr. McAuley agreed to have the coal bought under his name.

Married Life Not Worth a Dollar.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Seasoned as he is to queer experiences, Frederick W. O'Connell, the Washington marriage license clerk, was rather staggered on Friday afternoon by a man named Edward J. Morgan. Morgan is about fifty years old, and some days ago he obtained a license to marry a widow named Emma R. Remy, thirty-seven years old, of Chester, Penn. After a while Morgan discovered that the lady was too fond of having her own way. He accordingly called on Mr. O'Connell and demanded his money back. He also requested that the names be erased from the record. Mr. O'Connell was compelled to decline both requests. The license fee is a dollar, and Morgan claims that married life is not worth it.

Warrant Out For J. F. Gaynor.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 9.—The prosecution has made out enough of a case against those alleged to have conspired against the Government with Captain O. M. Carter to rob it of more than $1,000,000 in the Savannah Harbor work to find four or five indictments. These were returned by a grand jury in the United States District Court. The indictments have not been announced and will not be until bench warrants have been served. Judge Emory T. Speer issued these warrants, and two of them were for John F. Gaynor and B. D. Green of the Atlantic Contracting Company. Anson M. Bangs, who appeared as bondsman in some of its relations with the Government for the Atlantic Contracting Company, was not indicted.

Zeigler Beaten in Chicago.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 9.—Jack Bennett of McKeesport, Pa., gained a decision over Owen Zeigler of Philadelphia here Friday night after six rounds of the fastest kind of work. The decision was unpopular, as the majority of the spectators appeared to be of the opinion that the Philadelphian, who had forced the fighting all the way, should have had the big end of the purse.

For an Anti-Trust Campaign.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 9.—C. M. C. Peters, in charge of the Commercial Travelers' Department of the Democratic National Committee, has begun an anti-trust campaign in this city under the auspices of the National Committee, and he has called a meeting for next Saturday night for the organization of an Anti-Trust Commercial Travelers' Club.

An Ex-Postmaster Suicides.

Plymouth, Ind., Dec. 9.—Matthew R. Erwin, of Bourbon, suicided by cutting his throat at Martinsville, Ind., where he had been taking treatment at the sanitarium. Mr. Erwin was appointed postmaster at Bourbon by President McKinley, but ill health caused him to resign soon after his appointment.

Tim Kerns Defeated.

New York, Dec. 9.—George McFadden was given the decision over Tim Kerns at the Broadway Athletic Club Friday at the end of the twenty-fifth round. Kerns was badly punished and when he left the ring was in considerable distress. McFadden outfought Kerns from the start.

Taylor Wins in Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 9.—It is practically assured that the certificate of election as Governor of Kentucky will be given to the Republican candidate by the State Board of Election Commissioners.

IN A DESPERATE BATTLE

Methuen's Forces Fiercely Attacked By Boers.

WIRES AND RAILWAY CUT

The Result Is Not Yet Known—Hard Work Ahead for Buller—He Will Meet With Resistance at Any Point He May Attack—The Boers Are Stubborn—Gist of All the News.

London, Dec. 9.—General Methuen has been isolated. A flying column of Boers has cut the telegraph and railway near Grass Pan.

Another simultaneously attacked Methuen's rear. The War Office has issued the following bulletin received at Cape Town from Orange River:

"The railway culvert was blown up this morning near Grass Pan. The telegraph line was also cut. It is reported that there is heavy firing of guns to the north."

Desperate fighting is now proceeding. The first news of the battle came in a dispatch from Pretoria received here Friday evening, which says it is reported there that fighting was resumed at the Modder River Thursday. It was confirmed by later dispatches from Cape Town.

Ladysmith Shelled Again.

Pretoria, Dec 9. (delayed in transmission).—The following despatch, dated Friday, has been received from the head laager, near Ladysmith:

"The British are advancing on Colenso, but last night passed without an attack. There was a desultory cannonade this morning, the naval guns in Ladysmith replying vigorously to our fire."

The Fighting is On.

London, Dec. 9.—Gen. Lord Methuen must have begun his advance to Kimberley, according to the Pretoria despatch saying fighting is now on. He has fully 16,000 men, it is believed here. The Boers are strongly intrenched at Spytfontein, between Modder River and Kimberley, with 11,000 men.

Pretoria, Dec. 8.—General Buller has gone to Frere, where General Clery had preceded him by three days. With the commander in chief in the camp of the relief column it seems to be a well founded supposition that all the preliminaries have been arranged, and that the advance to raise the siege of Ladysmith will begin very soon, if it is not now actually under way.

The British will not march very far before finding the Boers in their front. Even if a flank movement should be made the Transvaal leaders have the entire region of the Tugela and Little Tugela rivers covered by their alert and swift moving scouting parties.

General Buller can count on having his crossing or further advance stubbornly contested. The Boers have moved part of their main force from Grobler's Kloof to near Onderbrook Spruit. Four thousand Free Staters are fortified on the slopes of the Black Mountains, ten miles west of Colenso, while reconnoisances from Frere have developed the existence of fortified camps below the ridges along the northern bank of the Tugela east of Colenso.

Wherever Buller feints or actually crosses he will find the Boers waiting for him.

The Boers have some heavy guns mounted to defend the approach to Ladysmith, but General Buller, it is known, has greatly strengthened this important arm of his column.

The Boers are said to be at Spytfontein, with 11,000 men well intrenched, and supported by powerful artillery, with all the ranges measured.

It appears that all three of the beleagured towns are still safe, that Colonel Baden-Powell, Colonel Kekewich and General White all agree in the confident assertion that they are proof against all and every assault, and that decisive battles in both Natal and on the western frontier of the Free State are near at hand.

Communication Re-opened.

London, Dec. 9.—General Forestier Walker has sent the following dispatch, dated at 8 o'clock Friday evening, to the War Office from Cape Town:

"Telegraph and railway communication to Modder River has been reopened. A battery of field artillery and a battalion of infantry were dispatched from Modder River against Commandant Prins Loo's force of 1,000 Boers, with one gun, who had destroyed the railway. Our losses were fourteen wounded."

Reported Dissentions.

Modder River, Dec. 9.—Communication with Kimberley by means of searchlight was established last night. The town was reported all well, with ample stores of provisions and forage for present and probable needs. The Boers have not been shelling the town since November 25.

It is reported that serious dissensions have broken out in the Boer camp between the Transvaalers and the Free Staters. General Cronje insists upon putting Transvaal officers in command of the Free State forces and says that the latter will not fight.

Troops for South Africa.

London, Dec. 9.—Mr. J. Powell Williams, Financial Secretary of the War Office, in the course of a speech at Queensbury, said that when all the troops arrived in South Africa, the total, including the colonial and naval contingents, would be 105,770. The Daily News says it is intended, as soon as the sixth army division is embarked, to prepare to mobilize the seventh, in case it should be needed.

Operations Around Mafeking.

Magalapye, Bechuanaland, Dec. 9.—Preparations have been completed for an advance in force to repair the railway line and endeavor to restore communication with Mafeking. The Boers are reported in force near Gabrones, in a strong natural position, with a seven-pounder and a Maxim commanding the line.

Miss Josie Kelly, of Fishkill Landing, N. Y., was waylaid and robbed of $50 by a tramp.

Municipal Lighting Investigation.

The facts about municipal ownership which we have been printing at the head of this column for the past month, have been instructive and interesting, as indicating by comparison what economy can be gained when public utilities are owned and controlled by the people.

These excerpts from the compilation known as "Municipal Monopolies," while they are truthful and to the point, do not present all sides of the question. For instance, we have been favored with a pamphlet containing the official reports of two independent commissions on the municipal ownership and operation of electric lighting plants" in Springfield, Mass., and Zanesville, Ohio. When we say that this pamphlet was put into our hands by one of the officials of the Plainfield Electric Light Company, it may be concluded that it is not favorable to public ownership of the utility which this company is now furnishing to Plainfield as a private enterprise This does not alter the facts that are reported in the pamphlet, however.

Both Springfield and Zanesville officials investigated the question of municipal ownership of lighting plants, with a view of adopting the system in their cities, with considerable energy and thoroughness.

In Springfield reports were received from thirty-four cities lighting under private contract and from seventeen cities operating municipal plants The cost of arc lights under private contract varied from $61 86 in Erie, Pa, to $164 25 in Burlington, Vt. Under municipal ownership the cost varied from $90 in Detroit, Mich, to $38.55 in Danville, Va.

While these figures look favorable to municipal ownership, the conditions that surrounded Springfield in dealing with the problem made it the reverse. There a State law required the city to purchase the existing plant of the private electric light company, thereby entailing upon it an extra expense that a new plant to be established by the city itself would not necessitate. This meant a loss in taxes to the city of $5,000 a year, the acquisition of an old plant that included much obsolete machinery and would necessarily mean an extraordinary and continuous expense to keep the plant in repair for efficient operation. In the face of this condition the old private company had promised to reduce rates in a short time, and the special committee of city officials that was investigating the subject decided that under the circumstances it would not be worth the while of the city to attempt to own and operate its plant at that time. The consequence was that the municipal ownership idea was allowed to die.

But had the city not been confronted with the law that required them to buy the old plant if they were to have a lighting system operated by the municipality, it would have undoubtedly been to their interest to have taken the step that prompted the investigation. If a new plant could have been established irrespective of the existence of the old one, Springfield could have saved a considerable sum of money by the action.

The report of the committee investigating the subject of municipal ownership in the city of Zanesville does not indicate that that place was confronted with the legal stipulation that the private plant then in operation should be purchased if the city decided to do its own lighting. The Zanesville report is very lengthy. It rehearses that after diligent inquiry it was impossible to get satisfactory facts from cities operating municipal plants, and it was then decided to employ an electrical expert who should figure the cost of establishing a plant in that city. After considering the question from what the commissioners declare took in every standpoint that would tend to serve the interests of the city, the report decided against the municipal ownership.

The Elizabeth Daily Leader says with considerable confidence that it is able to assure the public that the ordinance adopted by the Elizabeth City Council giving the Riker-Hine syndicate the right to use certain streets of that city for trolley purposes, will be accepted by the company. The Leader says: "A certified copy of the ordinance was delivered to President Riker of the Westfield company, and he put the document in his inside pocket and departed—to study its provisions at his leisure during the next thirty days, which is the time allowed for the purpose."

Few men can resist a bargain when they have the money to buy, says the Philadelphia Record A good advertisement daily reminds them of desirable bargains and of the merchant offering the same, and secures for the advertiser the floating custom he would not otherwise receive. The advertisement benefits him who buys and him who sells.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The Republicans were successful in Plainfield at their local election on Tuesday as usual. The Democrats put up a straight ticket, and were better organized than usual, but "the tide has not turned yet."—Rahway Democrat.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

With the retirement of Elliot T. Barrows, who was the originator of the police drill, from the Council, it is considered doubtful if these drills will be continued. Mr. Barrows is a military man and always has taken a great deal of pride in having the police force present a military bearing. If the drills are not continued the men ought to regret it for it has been productive of much good, and besides it gives an opportunity for frequent inspection.

The Holiday Bulletin issued by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., is full of suggestions of delightful reading and pleasant associatoins. The picture of Julia Ward and her brothers, Samuel and Henry, is a very pretty old-time group from "Reminiscences 1819 1899" by Julia Ward Howe, the mother of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Madison avenue. "A Jersey Boy in the Revolution," by Rev Everitt T. Tomlinson, D D., of Elizabeth, was written after the author with his two Jersey boys went over all the scenes of his story, gaining from the "oldest inhabitants" plenty of traditions which he has included in his book, combining much information with entertainment for his readers. Dr. Tomlinson is pastor of the Central Baptist church, Elizabeth, and a relative of Dr. T. H. Tomlinson, of LaGrande avenue. Another page contains the notice of The Atlantic Monthly for 1900, one of the attractive features of which will be the "Autobiography of W. J. Stillman." The accompanying picture of Mr. Stillman bears a striking resemblance to his brother, the late Charles H. Stillman, one of Plainfield's honored physicians, after whom Music Hall and the block in which it is set, is named.

MAP OF ESTCOURT AND VICINITY.

Estcourt is 43 miles from Ladysmith, and when the war began was a village of less than 300 inhabitants. Since then it has held an encampment of more than 10,000 troops and has been one of the rallying points for the force sent to the relief of Ladysmith. General Hildyard was placed in command of the troops mobilized at Estcourt.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

"Peck's Bad Boy" will be the attraction at Music Hall tonight. There is probably no farce-comedy on the road that has lasted so long and given such general satisfaction to the fun-loving public, as that funny play "Peck's Bad Boy" as played by the Atkinson Comedy Company. The piece is under the management of George W. Heath, the veteran showman, whose years of experince in catering to theatre going public has no doubt had a great deal to do with the fifteen years of continued success of the piece. This year he has had the piece rewritten and brought up-to-date with new scenery, new costumes, catchy music, graceful dancers, quartettes, duetts, choruses, medleys, etc The cast this year is stronger than ever, and contains many old and new favorites.

* * * * *

The first act setting of "On The Suwanee River," the new southern drama, which comes to Music Hall next Tuesday night, shows a perfect reproduction of one of those old southern residences which stand today as one of the greatest charms of the south to a visitor from the north. The outlying grounds which surround the homestead, the beautiful foliage of the Florida shrubbery, the old Suwanee River in the distance, and the home itself with its broad piazzas and long windows, will bring back fond memories to many a heart up in the north. Stella Mayhew heads the company as "Aunt Lindy," the old colored woman. Others in the company are Willie Simms, Chas. W. Porter, Harrison Steadman, Fred Truesdell, Allen Bailey, Earl Atkinson and the famous Fountain City Quartette.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

—The work of improvements being carried on at Holy Cross church are nearing completion.

MAJUBA HILL.

The Gordon Highlander's Dash and Their Kilts

The air seemed thick with bullets, while above our heads the shriek of the shells and the thunderclaps of the bursting shrapnel made a din that was appalling to those who had not had previous experience of modern projectiles. So keen were the rank and file of the Devonshires that more than one man exposed himself to the deadly aim of the Boers merely in order to satisfy himself as to the progress of the fight. I heard one soldier invite his comrade to put up his head and see how the Boers were getting on. "I will as soon as there is room for it," was the reply—a very natural one, considering that the air seemed to consist of flying lead.

The Gordon Highlanders were especially anxious to teach the enemy a lesson. Their regiment was represented at Majuba Hill, and the Boers had afterward referred to them in derision as "Kaffirs clothed in kilts." The men were keen on wiping out the insult, and to this end bore themselves with the most reckless courage. Nor were the Manchesters one whit less ardent or determined.

It was a magnificent and soul stirring spectacle as our gallant fellows dashed at the enemy, driving him irresistibly from point to point. The Boers stood their ground to the last, with the courage of despair; but they were no match for our men in personal combat, and were driven back in hopeless confusion. Fifty or sixty of them, mounting their horses, made off at full speed over the hills toward the east. Another fifteen minutes of deadly work and the last shot had been fired.

With a loud cheer, and a shout from the Gordon Highlanders of "What price Majuba?" our men dashed down the opposite incline right into the heart of the Boer position, with bayonets fixed. But the white flag, stuck into the muzzle of a Mauser, was already flying in the laager, and the officers checked their men in their mad career.

No praise can be too high for the courage and self-sacrifice of our officers. Their behavior was worthy of the finest traditions of the British army. Their courage was not mere recklessness, but deliberately calculated, with the object of encouraging and directing the men who followed them. Yet it is only just to the rank and file to say that they would have advanced as steadily on their own initiative.—London Standard.

THE TRANSVAAL ARMY.

Far Larger Than Any Ever Before Sent Abroad by England.

It has been officially stated that General Redvers Buller, V. C., will have under his command during the present war in the Transvaal no fewer than 70,000 British troops. This, says Pearson's Weekly, is probably the largest number of men ever placed at one time under the supreme control of one leader, viewing the fighting strength of the British army (Europeans) in the great wars of comparatively modern times.

At Waterloo the Duke of Wellington had just fewer than 24,000 British troops under his command, while Lord Raglan, in the Crimea, never had more at one time than 26,000 Britishers fighting under him. In the Indian mutiny Lord Clyde (then Sir Colin Campbell) had but 40,000 troops, with whose assistance and the help of that portion of the Indian army which remained faithful to its allegiance, he was enabled to quell the most serious outbreak of modern times.

Going a little further back, to the time of the great and prolonged Peninsular war, Wellington thought he was a fortunate man if he could direct an army corps of 30,000 British troops.

Lord Wolseley was expected in the Egyptian war, of 1885, to scatter the forces of the Mahdi, a very considerable force, consisting of over 50,000 Arabs and to assume the practical dictatorship of the Soudan, with a British force of only 30,000 men, while Lord "Bobs," as the hero of Candahar is playfully called, that is to say, Lord Roberts, could rely on no more than 13,000 European troops to oppose the forces of the then turbulent Ameer of Afghanistan, in the Afghan war of 1878. Sir Redvers Buller is, therefore, an exceedingly fortunate man in finding himself at the head of a fighting army whose numbers exceed by 2,000 the total allied forces which Wellington commanded at Waterloo.

THE CROSBY & HILL UNITED STORES.

Plainfield, N. J.
Wilmington, Del.
Morristown, N. J.
Perth Amboy, N. J.

Our Holiday Display

The extent and variety of our holiday show is most comprehensive and includes nearly every conceivable kind of toys of foreign and domestic manufacture that are new and desirable. We are direct importers of toys and games, importing for our four "united stores" in very large quantities saving the jobbers profits procuring the choicest and best of everything and offering at very moderate prices a stock unmatched and unequaled. The price saving must be apparent to the consumers. Our facilities for buying, combined with our unequalled store service places us in a position where we are at once recognized as the only department store in the community and without a competitor. Juvenile books and games are very important items in our display for the little folks.

DOLLS

You can hardly conceive of a good kind of doll that is not shown in this immense display. Jointed dolls of every imaginable kind made by the best French and German makers. Kid body dolls of all sizes—dressed dolls in a bewildering assortment—dolls that represent all the heroes of the late war; in fact, everything in the doll line is here.

The more staple lines of useful and decorative articles for the people of more mature years are largely in evidence everywhere around the store. Solid brass goods in candlelabra, mirrors, inkstands and scores of useful and ornamental articles attract considerable attention by artistic beauty combined with moderate prices.

SILVER-PLATED WARE

Table ware is another very important item. We show a very complete line of Rogers Bros. famous ware. Not the Wm. A. Rogers or any other of the Rogers brands that are palmed off as equal to the genuine Rogers Bros. goods, but the very best goods priced very moderately for strictly first-class ware. The staple line of goods have not been lost sight of in the great holiday rush. Handkerchiefs, gloves, umbrellas, neckwear for men and women, Hosiery, muslinwear and all the kindred lines are shown here in the largest varieties. We claim that the most liberal guarantee that any merchant can give with their merchandise is this—your money back anytime you prefer the money to the merchandise. That is our guarantee with every dollar's worth of merchandise we sell.

WANTED

WINTER FASHIONS.

Notes of Various Styles Now Prevailing.

Ivory satin velours is employed for some very elaborate bridal gowns.

Velvet and cloth in combination are much used this winter. The velvet is often of the same shade, but covered with close lines of stitching. It forms collars, cuffs, revers, bands and pocket flaps.

Hats are of large or medium size, no very small ones being seen. Although bright and light colors are fashionable, many black hats are worn. They are chiefly of velvet or drawn silk and are trimmed with ostrich plumes. Infantile hats of taffeta, with a large, full crown and a brim composed of fine plaitings, are adopted by many women, but they are really suitable only for very young girls and little children.

For stationery light tints, such as blue, mauve, gray and a dull green, are used, but many of the most elegant women always use white or cream, with either a dull or a glace finish. The cipher or other device is placed at the middle or left corner of the top of the sheet.

The wedding gown illustrated is of white satin and is in the princess style. The yoke is composed of horizontal plaits of white satin and continues downward in front in the form of a plastron and tablier. All three are outlined by a ruche and plaited ruffle of mousseline de soie, which continue around the foot of the train. The sleeves are plain, with flaring wrists and a frill of mousseline de soie. Sprays of orange blossoms are placed at the shoulder and the waist, and a tiny crown of them fastens the illusion veil to the hair.

THE MODE.

Mourning Fashions—Velvets For Winter Wear.

The fashion of motifs for application has won such favor that even mourning costumes, when not of the severest order, are decorated with applied motifs of crape of all sorts of odd forms. Bands of crape also design chevrons, Greek patterns and other ornate effects.

A novelty in mourning handkerchiefs is of white lawn, with an insertion and ruffle of black chantilly lace. This lace washes perfectly.

For very little children's wear the preferred mourning dress is pure white. Black ribbons, sashes and stockings may be adopted.

Velvet is enjoying immense favor this winter. Not only silk velvets are worn—and they are seen in bewildering variety—but there are many velveteens, plain, printed and fancy woven, as well as corduroy of all kinds. Golden brown, blue, Russian green, wine and chinchilla are fashionable colors, and dark gray is also very well worn. These gowns are trimmed with little olives in jeweled effects.

The picture given today shows a morning jacket of blue surah. It has a watteau plait at the back and falls straight in front and is trimmed with bands of valenciennes insertion, of which two simulate a bolero, with ribbons drawn through and tied in bows at the top. The third band follows the outline of the jacket in a zigzag pattern. A frill of lace encircles the neck, and the lace passes down the front in cascades and follows the edge of the basque. The half length sleeves are plaited in the middle, the top forming a puff and the lower part a flounce, with a lace ruffle at the edge. There are lace epaulets and bands of lace insertion on the sleeves, with ribbon drawn through and tied in bows.

THE CAUSE OF WOMEN

ALICE STONE BLACKWELL ON WORK AND WAYS.

The Right of Women to Work When They Are Not Obliged to Do So—The Question of Working to Get Extra Money for Luxuries.

Everybody will admit, at least in theory, that women may work without blame when they must do it to earn a living, says Alice Stone Blackwell in the New York Sun. But many persons bitterly denounce those women, and especially those married women who work for wages from choice, not from compulsion. As ex-Senator Ingalls expresses it: "They want pecuniary independence. They desire more pleasure and recreation, finer raiment, travel, society, and so seek public and private employment;" and he complains that each woman who succeeds displaces some man with his living to earn. The question, therefore, resolves itself into this: Have women a right to earn money when they are not compelled?

But the question whether a married woman shall or shall not engage in outside work is a question between herself and her family, not between herself and the government. It is doubtless best for the community that the average man should undertake only one business and should give his full attention to it but the government does not step in to prevent him undertaking two, or three, or half a dozen, if he chooses. There is no reason why it should be more meddlesome in the case of women.

A woman has, and should have, the legal right to earn money for luxuries, if she is able and desirous but has she the moral right? To answer this we must broaden the question and ask, "Have people a moral right to work for money when they are not compelled to do so?" Mr. Ingalls would answer, "Yes if they are men; no, if they are women." But no such double standard of ethics can be maintained. A famous clergyman was once told by a young scoffer that the religion he preached might be very good for old women, but it would not do for men. The minister answered, "Sir, either the religion I preach is true or it is not true. If it is true it is good for everybody; if it is not true, it is neither good for old women or for anybody else." If a law of right and wrong is valid at all, it is valid all around. When a young man inherits from his father a fortune sufficient to support himself and a family, is it wicked for him to go into business and try to make more, thus displacing some man who has his living to earn? If it is not wrong for a millionaire's son, why should it be wrong for his daughter? When the average man has accumulated enough for himself and his family to live upon is he under a moral obligation to retire from business, and cease competing with men who have not yet accumulated a competence? Mr. Ingalls would say that every man, married or single, has a perfect right to stay in business as long as he chooses, in order to earn luxuries either for his family or for himself. He may heap up money beyond the wildest estimate of his or his family's possible needs; and the more money he makes, the more people will think of him, so long as he makes it honestly. By what possible process of reasoning can Mr. Ingalls claim for himself and all other men the right to work for luxuries, and at the same time enjoin upon all women a literal compliance with the Scriptural injunction "having bread and raiment, therewith to be content?" The members of the Salvation Army have a right to rebuke the women who work for luxuries, but no other men under the sun are entitled to cast a stone at them; least of all American men, who as a class possess in a high degree both the liking and the talent for making money.

Does it follow that it is never wrong for a married woman to work for luxuries? Sometimes it is. It is wrong for people to neglect their families in order to earn luxuries, of course; but this sin is not found wholly or chiefly among women. As Gov. Roosevelt said the other day to the Assembly of Mothers at Albany, a father's influence as well as a mother's is essential to the best bringing up of a family; yet how many men do we know so absorbed in the race for wealth that they hardly see their children except on Sundays! There are twenty such fathers to one mother who neglects her family.

There is no denying that the competition of underpaid women has been a great injury to men's wages; but scolding at the women will not help the matter. Organization will do something. Let parents be educated to see that no girl is fully equipped for marriage unless she is mistress of some trade by which she can earn a living for herself and her children if she should be left a widow. This will lessen the oversupply of unskilled labor. Let women who are assured of a support be educated to see the wrong that they do if they offer their labor for less than the market price. Let husbands be educated to realize that the wife is a partner in the matrimonial firm who contributes cash value, if she does not contribute cash, and that she is entitled to some regular share of the family income to spend as she chooses. There are thousands of married women working for wages to-day (mostly at sewing, knitting, worsted work, and other such things as can be done in odd moments at home), who would never have thought of doing it if their husbands had realized this simple fact. Let any fair-minded man put himself in his wife's place. Let him consider how he would feel if he could never get any spending money except in one or two ways—either by asking his wife for it, and satisfying her that he was going to make a wise use of it or else by earning it outside of his regular business. Would he not sell every string of trout he could catch during his holidays, even if he did interfere with the profits of the professional fisherman? The average woman is in just that position. Her regular business is taking care of a house and family. It ensures her a support, but no spending money. There is a legitimate wish in every human heart for the unquestioned control of some amount of money, however small. To get it she must earn it outside of her regular business, and, naturally, she tries every conceivable way.

A CHINAMAN'S FATE.

Declared Dead by a Society, He Was Tabooed and Killed Himself.

In San Francisco there's a Chinese secret society, the laws of which are as strict and unchanging as those of the Medes and Persians. One of the members of this society told some of its secrets—an offense punishable by death. He was to be tried in the usual way before a tribunal of the society.

The night of the ordeal was fixed. The culprit was represented by able counsel, but the sentence was death—as was expected. An executioner was called from an adjoining room. He was a strapping big Chinaman, and wore one of those hideous wooden masks that art critics think so beautiful. He carried a double-edged sword fully five feet long. To test the edge he folded a newspaper in eight parts, and the knife went through those eight thicknesses of paper as if it were a bit of butter in summer time.

The culprit was brought in upon his knees, and another Chinaman, also on his knees, faced him and caught the traitor by the cue. He drew the culprit's neck toward him, the smock was pulled over the shoulders, and with one mighty swing the double-edged sword descended. Like a flash it clove the air and then stopped. A fractional part of an inch separated the sword from the victim's neck. Very, very gently the executioner brought the weapon down until it just touched the traitor's neck. Then, as it is a crime to kill a man in San Francisco, he stopped. He brought the sword to his side again, turned to the judges and said: "The culprit is dead."

The newly executed got on his feet and said something to the judge. The judge did not heed— for the culprit was dead. He tried to speak to the Chinamen, who were hurrying from the hall But he spoke to deaf ears. To all intents and purpose he was a dead man.

He made his way into the street, and the first thing that caught his eye was a hugh poster proclaiming to all Chinatown that he had been executed that evening. No one would speak to him, no one look at him—he was a dead man—just as dead as if the executioner's sword had in reality descended.

For a whole week that man wandered about Chinatown, the posters proclaiming his execution staring him in the face at every turn. Not a crust of bread could he beg—not a mouthful of water. His people knew him as dead—he was past, gone, buried.

And so one day he wandered up into the American portion of San Francisco and stole a revolver from a messenger boy, who was showing it to some companions. Then he ran down into Chinatown, sat down on the pavement beneath one of his own death notices and blew the addled brains out of his poor Chinese head.

Baby's Tooth Set in a Ring.

Exclusive young matrons of the smart set who are also doting mothers have just introduced into fashion a new ring, which is exciting the greatest attention.

The woman who first wore one of these mysterious rings told all about it the other day to a girl friend who was admiring it and wanted to copy it. She said, "Why, the little white stone wouldn't be considered a gem to any one but me. It is only one of my baby girl's pearly white teeth. She knocked out a little front tooth not long ago, and as it was too precious to throw away, I took it to my jewelers and asked him if it couldn't be set in a ring. And here is the result. I told him to surround the tooth with diamonds and turquoises, alternating with one another, as I think just the touch of blue adds much to the beauty of the ring. The baby tooth encircled with diamonds looks too white. A number of my friends who have copied my idea have taken one of their baby's teeth to the jeweler's and had it surrounded with the child's birth stone."

The Horse in Battle.

A veteran cavalry horse partakes of the hopes and fears of battle just the same as his rider. As the column swings into line and waits, the horse grows nervous over the waiting. If the wait is spun out, he will tremble and sweat and grow apprehensive. If he has been six months in the service he knows every bugle call. As the call comes to advance the rider can feel him working at the bit with his tongue to get it between its teeth. As he moves out he will either seek to get on faster than he should or bolt. He cannot bolt, however. The lines will carry him forward, and after a minute he will grip, lay back his ears, and one can feel his sudden resolve to brave the worst and have done with it as soon as possible.

Small Vegetables the Best.

Epicures are developing a taste for miniature specimens of the earth's products. To supply the demand in larger cities for young vegetables, such as the French consider the most delicate and appetizing, the truck farmers bring to market tiny potatoes, turnips, carrots, cauliflower and even heads of cabbage the size of a baseball. Such vegetables are, it is said, more easily digested, their fiber being tender and succulent, instead of tough and often of a woody nature as the growth arrives at maturity.

The Right of Burial.

Despite the growing difficulty of finding space for the interment of public men within the walls of Westminster Abbey at least one notable family still enjoys a prescriptive right of burial there. These are the Dukes of Northumberland, who have the exclusive use of a spacious vault in the chapel St. Nicholas. The vault, which was the last resting place of the Seymours, was opened as recently as 1883 to received the remains of Lady Louisa Percy, the elder sister of the present Duke.

An Automaton Duck.

Of all inventors of mechanical curiosities Jacques Vaucanson was certainly the king, says the Scientific American. His automatic duck was to connoisseurs an object of admiration. The bird waddled off in search of food and picked up and swallowed the seeds that it met with. It was impossible to distinguish this duck from a living one. It splashed about in the water and quacked at pleasure.

40 YEAR'S STRUGGLE

BISMARCK'S MEDICAL ADVISER ISSUES A STATEMENT.

Reveals That the Iron Chancellor Was Face to Face With Death From Disease Many Times During That Length of Years —At Times Was Out of His Mind.

Prof. Schweninger, the medical adviser of Prince Bismarck during his declining years, has just issued a pamphlet entitled "Andenken Bismarcks," describing his medical diagnosis and treatment of his distinguished patient. Intended for medical readers, the pamphlet is intensely interesting to lay readers, says the New York World.

It reveals that thirteen years before the humbling of France in 1870 Bismarck so injured his leg that its amputation was threatened; that in the Sadowa or Koniggratz campaign in 1866 he broke down and cried like a child; that so early as 1883 he was almost in a dying state, and that in his later days he not only suffered intolerable agonies but was sometimes for brief periods out of his mind.

For forty years the life of this man of iron, whose name was in the popular estimation almost a synonym of rugged strength, was one continual fight with disease, suffering and death.

Prof. Schweninger paints a thrilling picture of Prince Bismarcks' grim struggle with death.

"Several times during nearly forty years," he writes, "Bismarck was face to face with death. In 1857 an injury to his leg, received while hunting, developed, from neglect and quack treatment, into a serious wound, so that the doctors strongly advised the amputation of the left leg above the knee. But Bismarck decided to fight the disease.

"After two years of keen suffering he regained his strength, but this left leg always remained the seat of weakness. In the Koniggratz campaign of 1866, when he was broken down by work and worry, this leg became violently painful. He was reduced to the lowest state of nervous prostration, the attack culminating in a violent storm of hysterics, in which the 'man of iron' cried like a child. When he returned from the campaign he had aged greatly, but the excitement of the war of 1870 once more raised him above his physical ills.

"When I saw him first, in 1882, I said: 'If he goes on as he is now, there will be a serious collapse in six months, with results concerning which I should entertain great fears.'

"My prediction was fulfilled. The Chancellor was reduced almost to a dying state in 1883 by mistreatment, his doctors diagnosing his case as cancer of the liver and stomach.

"I put him under a strict regimen and in a fortnight he was so well that in my absence he drank an immense quantity of buttermilk—enough for three ordinary men—bringing on jaundice in a serious form; but careful treatment and dieting mitigated his sufferings from faceache and headache and for years he was almost rejuvenated.

"But again from time to time gout-like pains in his left leg came on, the precursors of his fatal illness, and on Oct. 17, 1897, (nine months before his death on July 30, 1898), there began an intolerable pain whose sudden appearance and terrific strength were almost inexplicable, rendering his life thenceforward an unbearable burden.

"I diagnosed these symptoms as incipient old age mortification, which the protracted and relentless course of the disease had confirmed, though the Prince was never informed of it and harmless bulletins were prepared for the papers, so that he might not learn the truth from that source.

"The process of decay was attended by slight aberations of the mind, by delusions of which he was afterward conscious. 'This afternoon I was partly outside of myself; now I have found myself within me again,' was his description of these attacks.

"But two days before his death he was able to sit in his accustomed place at dinner and drank the foaming wine in which he delighted. His intellect was as bright as ever.

"So he was taken. After ten months of this awful agony death was a gentle deliverer and we had succeeded in our object of arresting the disease until the decay of the vital forces brought about the end."

Origin of "Hip-hip-hurrah."

"Hip-hip-hurrah" has always been regarded as a thoroughly British cry, typical of the exuberant temperament of the race. Compared with it the "Vive" of the Frenchman, the "Hoch" of the German, and the "Slava" of the Russian are tame and expressionless; but the "Hip-hip-hurrah" from Anglo-Saxon throats rings through the spheres and carries everything before it. It is a cruel blow to find that the words are not English at all. The one consolation left us is that they were not "made in Germany."

A gentleman named Adams has been investigating the mysteries of the pyramids and monuments of Egypt, and has found the phrase "Hip-hip-hurrah" among the early hieroglyphics of that country. The only consolation derivable from this remarkable discovery is the argument which may reasonably be deduced that the presence of these British words among the etymological treasures of Pharaoh-land give us a prior right to the whole of the Nile valley. And this theory is strengthened by the fact that according to Mr. Adams, the hieroglyphic "Hip-hip-hurrah" means, when translated, "On, on to plunder."

Thought She Needed It.

A Boston lady of great respectability was recently traveling to North Dakota a rigid prohibition state, and in the dining-cars this notice was posted: "No intoxicating liquors will be served while the train is passing through the state of North Dakota." The train had been rolling along through that interminable state a long time, when the Boston lady came into the dining-car for her dinner. Casting her eye out of the car window upon a somewhat changed landscape, she said to the waiter, with purely geographical interest:

"Are we still in North Dakota?"

"No, ma'am," said he alertly, and with a hospitable grin: "what'll you take to drink, ma'am?"

Every man is a hero and an oracle to somebody and to that person, whatever he says, has an enchanted value. —Emerson.

GUTTA PERCHA.

The Supply Short and a Substitute Wanted.

There is a fortune awaiting the chemist or inventor who will supply the world with a satisfactory substitute for gutta percha. At present there is almost a famine of this useful article, and the future holds but little comfort for those who are willing to pay double prices for all they can get.

The announcement that the United States government would call for bids for the laying and building of a cable from California to the Philippines, coming as it does soon after the announcement that Great Britain and France are soon to lay two great ocean cables, has startled the gutta percha trade and caused the engineers of the world to look appealingly toward the chemists and inventors. The simple fact is that the world's visible supply of gutta percha is not sufficient for the building of any one of the three projected cables, and, according to good authorities, it may be five years or more before the supply of gutta percha will be equal to the task, even at almost prohibitive prices

Owing to the inroads made on the gutta percha supply by the manufacturers of golf balls and manufacturers of toilet and fancy articles, the surplus of which the gutta percha market boasted years ago has been completely exhausted. Prices have steadily risen, till now they make manufacturers wince.

Ten years ago the price of gutta percha was about eighty-two cents a pound, while to-day it is worth over $2 a pound, and the better grades are no longer quoted, for the simple reason that they are not on the market.

Nothing has been discovered that can be substituted successfully for gutta percha for deep sea use. Even when adulterated with rubber and cement it will not stand a depth of a thousand feet. Owing to the fact that the density of gutta percha is the greatest known to a vegetable product, equalling that of copper itself, it successfully resists water pressure.—N. Y. Herald.

American Railway Service.

It is beyond question that American railroads to-day furnish the best service in the world at the lowest rates of fare, at the same time paying their employes much higher wages than are paid for similar service in any other country on the globe. In the United States the first-class passenger fares last year averaged 2.14 cents per mile, although on some large railways the average was several miles less than two cents per mile; in England the first-class rate is four cents per mile; third-class fare for vastly inferior service is two cents per mile, but only on certain parliamentary trains. In Prussia the fare is 2.99 cents per mile. Our passenger cars excel those of foreign countries in all that goes to make up the comfort and convenience of a journey. Our sleeping and parlor car system is vastly superior to theirs; our baggage system is infinitely better than theirs and arranged upon a much more liberal basis. American railroads carry 150 pounds of baggage free, while the German railroads carry only 55 pounds free. The lighting of our trains is superb, while the lighting of trains on most foreign lines is wretched.

I may be pardoned for citing two examples of what I mean by the unsurpassed passenger train facilities of American railways:

A single locomotive recently hauled a passenger train of sixteen cars, nine of which were sleeping and parlor cars, from New York to Albany, a distance of 143 miles, in three hours and fifteen minutes, which is forty-four miles per hour, and is the regular schedule time of this train. The train weighed 1,832,000 pounds, and was 1,212 feet—or nearly a quarter of a mile—in length.—From the Home Journal.

Immunity From the Plague.

Apropos of the bubonic plague now creeping into Portugal, has it ever been noticed in what an erratic manner immunity from this disease seems to have been conferred upon certain races, and even sects? Thus in 1854 it was noticed that the Protestants of Lyons escaped almost to a man. So did the Jews in an outbreak at Nimeguen in 1736. Something of the same sort has been noticed with regard to other diseases, and while in the outbreak of typhus at Langoenis in 1824 the Jews remained immune, their coreligionists in Poland have always been the first to catch cholera. But the strangest thing in connection with the plague is that in most cases the seeds of the disease seem to remain dormant in the systems of those exposed to the rank of contagion until some new epidemic calls them into activity. Procopius, who observed the plague in Constantinople pretty closely during Justinian's reign, declares that if persons born in an infected town settled in a town hitherto free from it, they are sure to be first attacked if the plague again visited the country, even after the lapse of several years. A similar fact was noted during the Nimeguen outbreak, where two children of one Van Dam were sent to the immune town of Gorcunen, and remained there in perfect health for three months. At the end of that time the plague came to Gorunen, and they died there at the same time as the rest of the family.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Blasted.

"Yes, his business reputation is blasted."

"How did it happen?"

"He dropped a can of his new process dynamite."

"Blasted him, eh! Blew him up?"

"No, it didn't go off!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Extrordinary qualities are possessed by the River Tinto in Spain. It hardens and petrifies the sand of its bed, and if a stone falls into the stream and alights upon another in a few months they unite and become one stone. Fish cannot live in its waters.

In all these years of tea drinking, tea has not been drunk at meals in China. The water from which it is made is always freshly boiled and used as soon as it reaches the boiling point.

A SMOKER'S VIEW.

Using Milder Tobacco and Less of It as He Grows Older.

"As a youngster in the army, thirty odd years ago," said a smoker, "I smoked plug tobacco and liked it; I used to cut off thin shavings, across the layers, from the end of the plug, and roll them and crumble them between the palms of the hands and then load up the old pipe and smoke. It took a powerful draft to get this tobacco started, but it held fire well and made a good, long smoke; and after a supper of boiled pork, hard bread and tincup coffee—that, you see, was what you might call pretty solid food to smoke on—a pipe of cut plug was a delight. But gracious goodness! I couldn't begin to smoke that now; a pipe like that now would knock me clean over; but I do like to get a sniff of just such a pipe on a cool morning before breakfast in the open air, when I happen to walk behind a man smoking one.

"I continued smoking after I got out of the army. Smoking a pipe a good deal, but not plug tobacco, and coming finally to smoking chiefly cigars, and these rather strong; and I came finally, too, to rely on tobacco a good deal to brace me up in my work, and it was a great help and comfort, and I could do better with it than without it; but at last the time came when it was just the other way; when it did not stimulate me; but when rather, my fire seemed clogged by it; when though freely used for fuel, tobacco didn't generate the heat, nor afford the stimulus at all that it once had. It was still a comfort, but no longer a help in the work, and in time it came to be a drawback; to retard rather than facilitate my mental operations. It gave a little glow at the outset, but it was soon lost, and the brain, as one might say, became opaque and insensible, and so tobacco came to be worse than no help, a hindrance, as far as work was concerned.

"One time a wise friend told me of a friend of his who had been immensely benefited by abstaining from tobacco, and I made up my mind to try that myself—I was sort of run down and half played out—and for two years and a half I used no tobacco whatever. It was hard work to give it up, but I soon got used to being without it, and soon I began to feel better, a better tone, a better nerve, and a better grip generally. It did me a pile of good to give up smoking that two years and a half; it seemed to sort of shake out of me the ragged nerve ends and to freshen me and brighten me and stengthen me. It was giving nature a chance, and nature responded by giving me buoyancy and power of resistance. Nothing ever did me more good than that long period of abstention from tobacco. It brought me around in good shape again, and then once more I took up smoking. What may seem foolish; perhaps it was, but that's what I did.

"I had a few cigars, the last of a box from which I had been smoking when I stopped, and I got out one of them with anticipations of great pleasure. These anticipations were realized, though not only at the beginning, for the smoking of the cigar before I got through with it pretty nearly upset me. But the next cigar didn't affect me that way. With that I fell into the old habit of smoking readily, so hard is it to give up the habit and so easy to resume it.

"But I soon found that for my own comfort and welfare, if I were to use tobacco at all, I must use it in moderation. Mine is a mental occupation, but I suppose a man can work as hard with a pen as he can with a pick. When I resumed smoking I tried it as a stimulant at work, but I promptly found that that wouldn't do at all. It gave a light and agreeable exaltation at the outset, but, as before, one not at all lasting nor of sufficient force to be valuable, and not only that effect, brief and fleeting, but continued smoking while at work served now, as it had come to do years before, only to clog up the brain. In fact, I found that as far as I was concerned I could not work and smoke, too."—New York Sun.

The New Skirt.

The sheathlike skirt that fits the figure like a glove is one which should be avoided by every woman with the slightest tendency to embonpoint. But the poor stout woman cries out in her perplexity, "What am I to do?"

There is something else, a style which will just suit her, and which seems to have been modeled especially for her. The modists are clever enough to know that the stout woman is as much to be considered as the slim one, and with this object in view has been designed a skirt which is built upon lines certain to appeal to the woman who continues taking on flesh.

This new and probably permanent wrinkle in skirt topography is intended for women whose form is such that a certain amount of drapery is essential. It is a skirt with the triple box plait, folded narrowly at the placket and flowing out wide and gracefully into the train, and promises to be a boon which will be eagerly welcomed by women of ample build.—Exchange.

Living Without Salt and Water.

Many people have acccustomed themselves to do without salt, and the other day we recorded—with some scepticism—a story that a busy medico of Hawic (N. B.) was in the habit of doing entirely without water for drinking purposes. This gentleman, Dr. John Haddon, now writes to us: "I should like to be allowed to assure you and your readers that it is quite possible if a strict vegetarian diet is adhered to. We get plenty of fluid in a cup of tea or in fruit and other foods, and I find it to be a great advantage, more especially when traveling, to do without drinking either water or milk, the well-known vehicle of so many diseases." So there are teetotallers who do not drink water.—London Chronicle.

RATS CLIMB TREES.

THIS IS NO FAIRY STORY BUT A PLAIN STATEMENT OF FACT.

If You Don't Believe It Just Take a Trip to Cocos and Christmas Islands and See for Yourself—Some Wonderful Crabs Are There Also.

Cocos and Christmas Islands would be pretty comfortable resorts if it were not for their extreme remoteness and for the bad habit the rats and the crabs there have acquired of climbing the trees, and making themselves perniciously active in other surprising directions. Mr. Darwin said that he didn't believe crabs could climb trees, but Mr. Darwin had never lived on the Christmas Islands, and unhappily did not live to read the report that has just been issued, with all due formality, by the Government of Her Majesty Queen Victoria.

It is a sisterly interest that the Queen takes in these two islands off the southern coast of Sumatra, for these little dots on the map have a monarch of their own, King George Clunies-Ross III. The Queen has made a practice of sending a commissioner to visit her brother monarch once a year, and, according to the report of the latest visit, the labor problem recently has been more troublesome than usual, owing to the fact that the phosphate beds are worked by Bantamese coolies, fourteen in all, who are such a bad lot that it requires the entire supply of native Cocos, seventeen in all, to keep the Bantamese working, one Cocos being told off to watch one Bantamese, with three left over for emergencies. Just why the Cocos natives are not set to work in place of the Bantamese is not exactly apparent, except that they are said to be rather stupid, and, like the inhabitants of Pitcairn Islands, are degenerating; one indication of the degeneracy, according to Her Majesty's commissioner, being the preference of Cocos women for European medicines, with which they dose themselves quite regardless of the nature of their ailments. It is also reported that on days when the water is smooth the women spend the whole day gazing at their reflections on its surface, and get lost in admiration, although the commissioner does not report that they have any especial excuse for this conduct on the ground of extreme beauty.

Unhappily, the commissioner did not see any of the Cocos crabs actually engaged in climbing trees, but there was so much testimony to that effect that he had no doubt about it. Another queer custom of one variety of the Cocos crab is to march down to the margin of the sea in December or January, the entire crab population of the island going down in procession, which lasts for fifteen days. The female deposits her eggs, and then the procession faces about and marches back, extending its return over another fifteen days. When the eggs are hatched, the young crabs likewise form in line and move uphill.

The other variety of crab, which is a big land crab, has for an enemy the Cocos rat before mentioned. The crab carries an oil sac under his tail which is esteemed as a special luxury by the rat, and many and gallant are the fights that take place, for while the young crabs are not a match for the rat, the old crab is, on the other hand, too much for him, and when you get a crab at just the right age there is a fight worth seeing.

The big rat is the bane of King Ross's domains, and it is said that if it were not for dogs the houses on the islands would not be habitable. In the simple language of the commissioner, this devastator has "reddish brown hair, deepening into black, with half-white tail, which retires by day under stones and rocks, and comes out at night to devour everything it can get hold of." The commissioner adds: "As their number has increased, and the difficulty of obtaining food has increased also, they have adapted themselves to circumstances by climbing the fruit trees for food. An attempt to grow Indian corn was frustrated by this pest." The commissioner who visited the islands in 1897 reported that he was considerably startled at dinner one day by a commotion in the cocoa palms outside the window, but discovered that it was due to a fight up in the branches between a rat and a bat. A group of dogs, who had learned by experience that one of the combatants would presently tumble to the ground, were waiting expectantly underneath.

One Foot Walks Faster.

You may think this a very silly question to ask, but is it? There is no catch about it. It is a simple demonstrable fact which you can prove to your own satisfaction in a very few minutes.

If you will take any pavement that is clear of other pedestrians, so that there shall be no interference and walk briskly in the centre, you will find that before you have gone a hundred yards you will have veered very much to one side. You must not make any conscious effort, of course, to keep to the centre, or you may do it; but if you will think of something, and endeavor to walk naturally, it is a hundred to one you cannot keep a direct line.

The explanation of this lies in the peculiarity of one foot to walk faster than the other. Or, to be more correct, perhaps it should be said that one leg takes a longer stride than the other, and this, combined with the quicker movement, causes one to walk more to one side than the other.

It is well known, for instance, that if one is lost in the woods, the tendency is to walk in a circle and eventually to return to about the starting point. This demonstrates the fact also that one foot walks faster than the other.

You can try an interesting experiment in this way if you will place two stakes in the lawn about eight feet apart, and then stand off about sixty feet, allow yourself to be blindfolded, and endeavor to walk between them. You will find it an almost impossible task, because one foot will go a bit faster than the other, either to the right or left. Now, which one of your feet walks faster than the other?

We love to expect and when expectation is either disappointed or gratified we want to be again expecting.—Johnson.

ON THE COAST LINES.

DELAWARE AND CHESAPEAKE BAYS WERE ONCE VALLEYS.

A Highly Interesting and Instructive Talk on "Coastal Topography"—Jersey Coast Said to Be Sinking—California Comparatively a New Country.

Prof. Oscar C. S. Carter, of the Central High School, Philadelphia, gave an illustrated talk before the Engineers' Club, recently, on "Coastal Topography." The subject was treated in a manner quite new to the older members of the club, and illustrated by photographs of various portions of the coast line of North America, bordering on the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

Taking up a definite portion of the coast line, like that of Maine, or an island, like Nantucket, he showed what forces had been at work, ancient, and comparatively recent, to produce the results now seen. The coast line of Maine, its rocky character, studded with islands, is due to the submergence of the mainland; the islands are simply drowned hills; the valleys that intervened have also been submerged.

The islands of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard have no bed rock, but are made up of morainic material and recent formations, some tertiary and cretaceous. These islands are entirely distinct in character from the rocky islands of Maine, and are made up mostly of sand, clay and gravel. The lantern illustrations gave the general topography of Nantucket, showing the coast line and harbor and the jetty made by the Government, constructed by bringing bowlders weighing several tons each from the coast of Connecticut and dropping them in parallel lines, several hundred yards apart, for a distance of over a mile out from the harbor. The wash of the tide was depended upon to scour out the ship channel thus formed.

Coming down to the coast of New Jersey, a series of slides showed where land was being made and where the sea was cutting it away. This coast also was shown to be sinking. He regarded Delaware Bay as a submerged valley, once high enough to be above the ocean with the river running through it. In like manner the sinking of the coast had produced the Chesapeake Bay, Pamlico Sound and the lagoons that are found along the coast from Norfolk to Florida, making a chain of sounds which could be used for navigation with a few short portages.

On the Pacific Coast the illustrations showed the few harbors to be found there, Santiago, San Dominica, Monterey and San Francisco, in California, and then a few near the Columbia R. He gave as reasons for this that the mountains and valleys had been lifted up along the shore line, and there had been very little submergence. There were few river valleys, the rivers being mostly "young." Their valleys had been cut out deep and the sides were precipitous, whereas an old, mature valley sloped off in V shape.

Speaking of the alternate submergence and elevation of the coast, he said that in the glacial period, when the ice cap on the entire Northern portion of the United States was a mile thick, and when the Adirondacks stood up as islands and were submerged by the ice sheet, then the weight of that mass of ice pressed down the earth's crust and caused it to sink.

The whole coast line of a continent was not necessarily involved, and the Professor called attention to the fact that the northen coast of Norway was sinking, while the southern coast was being elevated.

New Cure For Lockjaw.

When the Navajo Indian is ailing he builds himself a little hut just large enough to crawl into, plasters it inside and out with mud so as to make it airtight and then, taking with him a heap of stones intensely heated in an adjoining fire, he closes the entrance of his machine hut from within and remains there, violently perspiring until all but suffocated. He then comes out, has a rubdown, which to an Indian is a phenomenon, and believes he is cured, and he generally is.

What is practically the same primitive treatment is now recommended for the cure of lockjaw. This affection, when caused by a wound, has long been considered incurable, and only of late years has it yielded in some degree to the administration of a new class of remedies, among which are the Indian woorali poison, and enormous doses of alcohol. It is now said that all the alarming symptoms of the seizure can be removed by violent perspiration. The case is quoted of a young man whose hand was caught in the gearing of a threshing machine. Part of the skin was carried off. For a fortnight everything seemed to be progressing, but one morning the patient awoke with rigid jaws, intense pain over the sternum, difficult breathing and convulsive starts in the lower limbs.

The doctor immediately put hoops under the bedclothes, in order to prevent their contact with the body, and then got four pots filled with quicklime, which he slightly moistened with water. To prevent the skin from being scorched each pot was wrapped in linen, and then placed on each side of the patient, orders being left with the family to moisten the quicklime occasionally and to change it when exhausted. The heat engendered was so intense that on the first day the bed clothes caught fire. The perspiration induced was beyond all belief; but the patient, though greatly prostrated, was cured, and after a few days of good nourishment and close attention he was able to go to work.

-- THE GREATEST --
WE EVER HELD.

If you wish to purchase an overcoat or an ulster for yourself or your boy, do not fail to take advantage of this opportunity. We buy and sell more clothing than any two stores in Plainfield; we purchase in very large quantities for spot cash and are able to buy it at our own prices We recently bought over 1,000 Very Fine Ulsters and Overcoats from a financially embarassed manufacturer far below his cost of making; not sample overcoats, but regular stock made for one of the largest clothing houses and rejected on account of the late delivery The assortment are in all shades and sizes and as they are not likely to last long at the prices noted we advise an early selection.

MEN'S ALL-WOOL MELTON ULSTER at 4.00, that would readily sell in other stores at 8.50.

MEN'S FINE ULSTERS made of very heavy and Genuine Shamrock Irish Frieze, strictly all-wool, in greys and browns, regular 12.00 value, at 4.90.

Strictly all-wool men's beaver and melton overcoats at 4.25, honestly and truly worth 7.50.

MEN'S OXFORD GREY OVERCOATS, the new shade, a very handsome business overcoat, only 40 in this lot, we offer them for this sale at 5.25, wholesale prices was 8.50.

50 VERY FINE DRESS OVERCOATS, coverts, meltons, friezes and kerseys, these garments are very handsomely made up, have satin linings, silk velvet collars, full backs and are short cut, would easily command from 15.00 to 18.00, to be sold at this sale at 7.25.

CHILDREN'S REEFERS and OVERCOATS, sizes from 3 to 8 years, at 1.00, worth 2.00; 1.50, worth 3.00.

Very fine blue and black chinchillas, made with either velvet or sailor collars, at 2.25, regular price 4.50.

BOYS' OVERCOATS from 8 to 16, at 1.75, 2.25 and 2.75. This selection is worth double the price.

YOUNG MEN'S OVERCOATS, ages from 14 to 19, at 1.75, 2.50 and 4.00, worth from 5.00 to 7.00.

Remember this is a very special sale and it will pay you to attend for your own interest, as this will positively be the best chance you will have between now and Christmas.

If for any reason whatever you are not satisfied within 3 days you can have your goods exchanged or money refunded.

Hundreds of other overcoats in our stock that are great bargains that are not mentioned in this advertisement.

STUDY OF THE GOOD BOOK IS COMMENCED.

Opening of Union Bible Conference in First M. E. Church.

VERY LARGE ATTENDANCE.

DON O. SHELTON PROVES TO BE A MAGNETIC SPEAKER.

In His Address He Gave a View of Epistle to the Ephesians, Which is to be Studied Throughout the Week at the Meetings in the Y. M. C. A. —He Will Tell How to Study the Bible.

The Union Bible Conference that has been in preparation for some time past, opened yesterday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock in the First M. E. church with a popular meeting. The attendance was larger than anticipated, as fully seven hundred people were present. Ira W. Travell, chairman of the executive committee, was in charge, while Horace J. Martin conducted the service of song preceding the meeting, which was very inspiring.

This meeting and the conference is held under the auspices of the Young People's Societies of Christian Endeavor, Epworth Leagues, Brotherhood of St. Andrew and Y. M. C. A., of this city. Don O Shelton, of New York City, who for nine years was secretary of the East Side Branch Y. M. C. A. in that city, will conduct the conference. The meeting yesterday was one of the greatest interest to the many Bible students present. Seated on the platform were Mr. Travell, Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes and W. D. Murray. After the song service Dr. Yerkes offered prayer. Mr. Murray then spoke briefly concerning the conference and its object.

Mr. Shelton is a young man and he has a great amount of magnetism. He is a clear and outspoken talker, and from the first he made a decidedly favorable impression.

Mr. Shelton gave a brief general view of the Epistle to the Ephesians, which is to be studied throughout the week. He said that even in his imprisonment in Rome, Paul was not idle. He received his friends; he taught and preached; and he wrote several of his great epistles, among them the remarkable letter to the Ephesians which he sent forth about 62 A. D., addressed to the Gentile Christians at Ephethus. That Paul was able to compose this matchless letter, under such adverse circumstances, is marvelous, and cannot be explained apart from the fact that Christ dwelt in him, enabling him to will and do His pleasure, even under the most unfavorable circumstances."

Continuing, Mr. Shelton said: "The writer of the epistle to the Ephesians was in many respects the most wonderful man the world has known since Christ. In intellectual strength he surpassed Gladstone; in fearlessness he equaled Livingston; in his devotion to Christ he was steadfast as St. John; in spiritual fervor he was superior to Whitfield; in concentration of purpose he was the peer of Edison; in humility and self-denial he was as great as John the Baptist. His entire life, from the moment that he heard the voice of Christ on the Damascus road, was marked by perseverance, by courage, by courtesy, by faithfulness of duty, by intense love for the Savoir and by an utter dedication of his time, his life, his all, to Jesus Christ.

"In his sublime loyalty to the one purpose of glorifying Jesus Christ, Saul, of Tarsus, rises above ordinary men like some 'o'ertopping Alp.'

"This epistle ranks among the greatest productions that man has been led to compose. Paul wrote out of a heart filled with the Holy Ghost and stated his inmost feelings freely. The epistle is marvelously rich in thought, and traces the greatest truths back to first principles. It is within the bounds of truth to say that no other treatise, of the same length, contains such a full and pure system of ethics, such a vivid portrayal of man's relations to God and such a clear presentation of the glorious doctrines of the Gospel. The epistle is filled with exalted views of God, of his love for man and of His exceeding great power toward those who trust Him."

Mr. Shelton said that the first ten verses of the second chapter indicate in a general way the purpose of the epistle.

"1. Paul brings to the minds of the Ephesians their former sinful conditions.

"2. He then reveals to them the great love of God and desires that they shall rightly esteem the plan of redemption and the blessing which they had received thereby.

"3. He presents clearly the wonder-

GIVEN $14,000 DAMAGES.

Brooklyn Man Secured Big Financial Salve For the Injuries he Received by Motor Starting Up.

A verdict for damages to the amount of $14,000 was given in the Kings County Supreme Court, Brooklyn, Friday, jointly against the American Engine Company, of Bound Brook, and the World's Medical Despensary Association, of Buffalo. The plaintiff in the case was Henry M. Flynn, of Brooklyn.

Some time ago the American Engine Company, of which F. H. Ball, of Myrtle avenue, is general manager, installed a motor in the press rooms of one of the large newspapers on Park Row, New York. The motor was given by the Dispensary Association in return for advertising. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, is the principal ower of both Dispensary Association and the engine company. July 12th, 1898, one of the workmen of the engine company was looking over the motor to regulate some trouble reported there. Flynn was a pressman. The motor started unexpectedly and caused the press to revolve. Fyhn's hand was caught between the rollers and crushed so that amputation was necessary.

Suit was then brought by Flynn for $50,000 damages and the case was argued in Brooklyn last week. Friday judgment was given for the plaintiff to the amount of $14,000.

YALE CLUB MEETING.

To be Held at the Home of Fred Yates Tomorrow Night Instead of at the Residence of E. N. Lovell.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Yale Club will be held tomorrow evening at the residence of Fred Yates, of Kensington avenue, instead of at residence of L. N. Lovell, of Crescent avenue, as stated in Saturday's Press. The meeting is an important one and a large attendance of members is requested. The annual election of officers will be held and it will be decided whether or not to hold the annual club banquet this year. For the last two years, the banquet has not been held on account of the lack of interest.

WHAT "SPARKLETS" ARE.

An Ingenious Device Which Makes Soda Water by Dissolving it.

Everybody is wondering what "Sparklets" are, of which Messrs Moore and Audsley, of 310-312 Park avenue, have so much to say about. "Sparklets" are an ingenious device whereby everybody is enabled to have a soda water fountain of their own. Carbonic acid gas is compressed under very great pressure into little steel capsules or shells. With the use of bottles, fitted with patent stoppers, these capsules or shells can be opened and the contents of the bottle charged as thoroughly as can be wished. With the aid of tablets, any kind of mineral water can be readily prepared. Pure water can be transformed into carbonated water to which the regular syrups can be added, equalling the best soda water sold at fountains.

Tribute to Rev. Robert Lowry D. D.

The obituary notice of Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D., published in the New Jersey Baptist Bulletin contains the following tribute to the musical ability of the eminent song writer and composer. "It is his music that voices the cry of the soul, 'I Need Thee Every Hour,' 'Savior, Thy dying love' is so wedded to the music of Lowry that Dr. Phelps, its author, once said his hymn would never have been known had not Lowry given it wings in song."

Doing the Preliminary Work.

It is quite likely that this month there will be a speeial meeting of the Mayor and Borough Council for the purpose of furthering plans looking toward the widening of Somerset street from the county line to Jackson avenue. Surveyors have been busy of late getting the necessary measurements and data that will be presented at the meeting of the property owners.

Epidemic of Mumps.

There is quiet an epidemic of mumps among the employes at the Pond Tool Works, no less than fifteen men being laid off with the trouble. None of the cases are considered serious and a rapid recovery is looked for.

District Meeting of Pythians.

There will be a district meeting of Knights of Pythias next Friday evening in Perseverance Lodge rooms, when some of the high officers will be present and business of great importance considered.

To Close up Year's Business.

One week from this evening the Common Council will hold an adjourned meeting when some important business closing up the year's work will be considered.

—The Thursday Night Whist Club will meet this week at the home of one of the members.

PROGRESS OF CADETS.

HIGH SCHOOL BATTALION NOW DIVIDED INTO THREE COMPANIES.

Commissioned Officers Have Been Chosen —Instruction to Go Forward by Companies—Prof. Meredith Will Instruct.

Excellent progress is being made by the cadet battalion of the Plainfield High School. Every Friday morning the last hour is devoted to drill and instruction. Heretofore the entire battalion has been drilled in the fundamental movements and facings and in the setting-up drill. Friday the cadets were divided into three companies, A, B. and C.

The assignment of the recently-elected officers to the companies was made as follows: Company A, Captain Lawrence S. Tweedy, Lieutenant Hooley Titus; Company B, Captain Fred Mason, Lieutenant David Pond; Company C, Captain Albert Schomp, Lieutenant Ames Brooks. Cadet Major Mason has appointed his non-commissioned staff and the appointments have been confirmed by the faculty. They are Mellick Tweedy, sergeant-major; Edward F. Janes, quartermaster-sergeant.

All the commissioned officers have now been chosen, and the staff of the commanding officer is also complete. There still remain the sergeants and corporals to be appointed. They will be chosen by the officers of the different companies and the suggestions approved by the faculty. This will be done in a few weeks. Now that the battalion is divided into companies, instruction will go forward by companies. A. B. Meredith, instructor in tactics, will devote special attention to the officers, who will thus be enabled to give better attention to the work of their respective companies.

HIS HAND IN SPLINTS.

Lawyer Isaac P. Runyon Met With a Painful Accident Assisting His Wife.

Lawyer Isaac P. Runyon is carrying his right hand in splints today, as he will for several days, all owing to having broken one of the small bones in the back of the member. Mr. Runyon was attempting to assist his wife to increase the size of the dining table by the addition of an extra leaf. The latter did not fit to a nicety, and that it might conform to the evenness of the other portion of the table, Mr. Runyon dealt the leaf a sledgehammer blow that would do justice to the striking abilities of a pugilist. The result was the damage to his hand. Dr. Clawson's skill was sought to reduce the fracture. Mr. Runyon, although somewhat handicapped, is still attending to business as usual.

CALLED ON THE RECTOR.

And When They Left Miss Bertha Stites and Arthur E. Ford Were Husband and Wife.

The many friends of Miss Bertha Stites and Arthur E. Ford, of this city, will be surprised to learn that they were quietly married last week Monday evening at the rectory of the Church of the Holy Cross by Rev. Wm. M. Downey, pastor of the church. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Ford, of East Fourth street. His wife is also well-known in this city, where she has many friends. For the present the couple will reside in Jersey City, where the groom has a lucrative position.

Dr. Raymond Preached.

The pulpit at the Crescent Avenue church yesterday was occupied both morning and evening by Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, D. D., formerly pastor of Trinity Reformed church, and now president of Union College. Interesting and helpful sermons were delivered and there were large congregations present at both services to greet this popular divine.

Death of Samuel Layton.

Word has been received of the death of Samuel Layton, of Jersey City, which occurred at that city yesterday. He was 54 years of age and a brother of John A. Layton, of 437 East Fifth street, from which place the funeral services will be held Wednesday next at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

A Firemen's Convention.

The annual meeting of the State Firemen's Mutual Benefit Association is being held here this afternoon and a banquet will be given to the association by the local branch at the Kensington Hotel at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Arcanum to Elect.

An important meeting of Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, will be held this evening when the annual election of officers will take place. There will be an entertainment and refreshments.

Miss Martin Had Imbibed Too Much.

Miss Jane Martin was found intoxicated on Liberty street Saturday evening and locked up. This morning City Judge Runyon fined her $5.

FOUGHT FIRE IN BURNING GARMENTS.

Narrow Escape of Mrs. Michael J. DeCourcy.

A DEADLY PARLOR MATCH.

SET FIRE TO FANCY GRASSES AND THE FLAMES SPREAD RAPIDLY.

Mrs. DeCourcy Was at Home With Her Baby—Fought the Fire With Pails of Water While Her Skirt Blazed Unheeded—Her Danger Was Seen and the Flames Extinguished.

Alone in the house with her little child late yesterday afternoon Mrs. Michael J. DeCourcy, of 310 East Second street, bravely fought the flames in the parlor until the firemen and neighbors arrived. She did not realize that her gown was all ablaze, but carried pails of water from the well at the rear of the house and checked the progress of the conflagration that threatened her home with destruction.

"Never mind the house," exclaimed William Warnock, one of the first men to arrive as he saw the flames spreading about her skirt. "We'll look after you first." They dashed water on her and extinguised the fire. Her hands and face were badly burned.

It was shortly after 5 o'clock when Mrs. DeCourcy started to light the large lamp in the parlor. Then the "deadly parlor match" got in its work. As she struck the match part of the head flew off. A vase of fancy grasses was standing in the corner and the spark set fire to them. In an instant they blazed up and the flames spread to the curtains and the shades. The fire traveled from one curtain to another until the whole side of the room was ablaze.

Mrs. DeCourcy seized the grasses and tried to trample out the fire. Her skirt caught fire and the flames spread to the carpet. Then she went to the well in the rear of the house and carried pails of water. Her cries had alarmed the neighbors, who hurried to her rescue, while an alarm was sent in from Box 15, corner of East Second street and Washington streets.

Then came the firemen and Mrs. DeCourcy was saved from a horrible death which she did not realize threatened so closely. The flames were extinguished with pails of water and hand extinguishers from the apparatus.

The house is owned by Mrs. Margaret McGinley. The total loss to contents and building will reach $300, all of which was covered by insurance.

Mr. DeCourcey, an employe of the Daily Press, had left the house a few minutes before the fire started. He heard the alarm and hurried home to find his house the scene of general interest. The fire was out, however, when he arrived.

NEW SOCIETY BELLES.

FINAL EVENTS IN "COMING OUT" OF THE MISSES COX AND FISK.

Theatre Party to See Mr. and Mrs. Kendall, After Which an Elaborate Dinner was Served at the Waldorf-Astoria.

A theatre party and a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, were the concluding events of the "coming-out" of Miss Fanny C. Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street, and Miss Louise G. Fisk, daughter of Former Mayor and Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, of West Seventh street. They were held Saturday and were given by Mrs. Fisk.

The theatre party numbered twenty in all. They attended the matinee of Mr. and Mrs. Kendall in "The Elder Miss Blossom" at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, occupying seats in the orchestra. After the conclusion of the play, they went to the Waldorf-Astoria where a very elaborate dinner was served in the "Palm Room." French dinner cards were used.

Handsome bouquets of pink roses tied with pink ribbon were provided for the young ladies, while their escorts received bunches of carnations.

A luncheon will be given in honor of the debutantes by Mrs. Charles E. Brooks, Thursday. Another luncheon will be given in their honor by Miss Lotta Lowe, Saturday.

Appointed Administrator.

Robert M. Clark, counsellor-at-law, has been appointed administrator of the estate of Mrs. Mary A. Cooper, deceased, of Harmony street, the borough.

—J. Scriven has resigned his position as janitor at the Babcock building and the place has been filled by engaging T. B. Titsworth, of New Market.

TROLLEY WORK GOES ON

PLANS FOR BRIDGE TO GO OVER B. AND O. R. R. CROSSING.

It Will be Twenty-One Feet High and 300 Feet Long—Cars Now Run Under the Fifteen - Minute Headway.

The Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company is now running cars under fifteen-minute headway, and it is expected that the cars will be running every twelve minutes before many days pass. The company is expecting three more new cars for the line, like the two already in use, and when these cars arrive with others ordered, all the cars will have the appearance of new ones. The work on the road at Westfield is about completed for the winter, and it is expected all workmen will finish up tomorrow.

At a special meeting of the Cranford township committee Township Engineer C. E. Vreeland submitted to the committee a map showing a proposed trestle to be erected on South avenue to bridge the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crossing for the Riker trolley line to cross. At present passengers on the trolley are transferred over the railroad tracks, and must walk to the other side in order to get a car for Roselle or Westfield.

The proposed structure is to be 18 feet in width, 21 feet in height at the crossing, and is to extend 300 feet on either side of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. It is proposed to narrow the sidewalks on either side of the structure to nine feet, leaving a roadway of 15 feet in width on either side of the trestle. According to the map pedestrians are to cross the railroad tracks on grade, and the bridge as designed will, if erected, be entirely devoted to the trolley. The matter will receive the attention of the Cranford township committee at its next regular meeting.

CHURCH IMPROVEMENTS.

Holy Cross Edifice Has Been Altered and Repaired So That It Presents an Attractive Appearance.

The work of repairing, altering and improving the Church of the Holy Cross is completed, and it presents a very attractive appearance. The edifice has been painted a light color, which shows to good advantage, while the building has been thoroughly overhauled and repaired inside and out, putting it in the best of condition. A new substantial slate roof has also been put on the church, something which has been needed for a long time, and the church can now be said to be in a thoroughly first-class condition throughout, much to the gratification of the worshippers.

The Old Fellows Won.

The Kids and the Patriarchs of the Park Club met on the club alleys Saturday night for an exciting contest. The teams were composed of six men each. The older generation found their opponents an easy thing and won the match without a great deal of trouble. The Patriarchs all rolled good games, much better than the average, while the Kids with few exceptions failed to distinguish themselves.

Special Salvation Army Meetings.

Special meetings will be held this and tomorrow evenings at the Salvation Army rooms. Brigadier Brengle will lead, assisted by Brigadier and Mrs. Scott. This evening the topic will be, "Great Salvation;" tomorrow evening, "How Far Does God Save.' Brigadier Brengle is an able speaker. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Sprained His Ankle.

John Coles, of Westfield, an employe of the local branch of the Paul T. Norton Company, of East Front street, was unloading some bags of feed from his wagon last Thursday. He slipped on the curb and sprained his ankle. He is now confined to his home in Westfield.

A New Avenue.

Michael Uhdal has a force of men engaged in grading an avenue for J. E. Martine. The avenue intersects Park avenue at the residence of F. O. Herring and will be known as Thornton avenue. It will extend from Park avenue to the Woodland Boulevard.

Flower and Fair Sale Made $300.

The flower sale and fair held last week at the Unitarian church netted over $300, and this amount will be placed in the fund to purchase a much-needed pipe organ for the church.

Executors of Mrs. MacDonald's Estate.

By the will left by the late Mrs. Sarah MacDonald her son, J. Fred MacDonald, and W. F. Arnold, cashier of the City National Bank, are made executors of the estate.

To be Sworn in Tomorrow.

The city officials elected at the municipal election last week will be sworn in tomorrow evening by the Mayor at the City Clerk's office.

WELL KNOWN IN WESTFIELD.

Fred Slater, Who Was Shot in Madison Square Garden Saturday Night, is Engaged to Miss Woodruff.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Dec. 11—Fred Slater, the young man who was shot at Madison Square Garden, New York, Saturday night, is well known here. He is engaged to be married to Miss Gretta Woodruff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Woodruff, of Broad street. Young Slater was in town Saturday morning and took dinner at the North Avenue Hotel. He left on an early afternoon train, saying that he was going to see the bicycle races in New York.

Miss Woodruff received word of his being shot yesterday morning and she and her father left at once for the hospital in New York. They report that Mr. Slater is not hurt as much as it was first supposed and that he will be able to return to his home in a few days. He was shot through the lung. He does not know the man who shot him, having met him for the first time just before the shooting. Mr. Slater is a bicycle racer of considerable local reputation. He has ridden several times on the Plainfield track.

Slater is improving in Bellevue Hospital. Rosser is held by the police to await the result of Slater's injuries.

IN TOO MUCH OF A HURRY.

Firemen Started Out Before They Knew What Box Had Been Rung in For a Fire.

For the second time since the new fire alarm system was established in Plainfield, part of the apparatus went to the wrong box yesterday afternoon. The alarm came in from box 15 sometime after 5 o'clock when Fred Breem, regular driver of the truck and William Townley, regular driver of the chemical engine, had just gone to supper. Harry Bush was on duty at the truck and Edward E. Vail at the chemical.

In their hurry to get to the scene of action without delay, they left the house before the entire round came in on the indicator. They heard 14 and drove to box 14, Watchung avenue and Front street. That box was locked and the crowd there yelled that the fire was out Front street. The chemical engine and the truck proceeded out East Front street for some distance when the mistake was discovered and the apparatus returned to box 15.

It is one of the rules of the department that the drivers shall remain in house until the first round is completed and, if there is any doubt then, they are to remain until the second round is given by the indicator. The men were cautioned in the future not to allow their zeal to be on the scene promptly to overstep the necessary delay in learning the box.

BISHOP BOWMAN SPOKE.

He is Eighty-five Years Old But Despite His Age He Delivered a Soul-Stirring Sermon.

The members and worshippers at Monroe Avenue church were favored yesterday in having present Thomas L. Bowman, of East Orange, Senior Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, who has been a Bishop since 1872. Despite the fact that he is nearly 85 years of age he is especially active and is able to preach a soul-stirring sermon.

Yesterday morning he gave a short talk to the Epworth League members, and in the afternoon he addressed the Sunday-school on missionary work in India, where the speaker was located at one time, and about which country he knows considerable.

In the evening he preached a sermon on the subject "To do Good and Communicate," in which he brought forth many points that are helpful to one in the endeavor to not only be good, but to help others to be good also. All the services were well attended and enjoyed.

A Deserving Girl.

Miss Aramoonie, the young woman who recently came to this country from Jerusalm, has a quantity of exquisite hand-made needle work and embroidery, made in her native country, which she is endeavoring to sell to the ladies of Plainfield, in order to pay the amount of money she borrowed to pay her passage to this country. She can be seen at the rooms of the W. C. T. U. every morning for a few days, where her embroideries can be purchased.

Plainfield Officials There.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Atlantic City, Dec. 11—The State Sanitary Association, which held its annual meeting at this place Friday and Saturday last, was attended by Mayor George W. Rockfellow, of Plainfield, and Rev. W. E. Honeyman, of North Plainfield. Several very interesting papers were presented for consideration.

DIED AS SHE WENT TO DOCTOR'S OFFICE.

Mrs. John H. Kitchen's Sudden Illness That Proved Fatal.

HURBAND WAITING FOR HER

WHEN HE ARRIVED AT HER SIDE LIFE WAS EXTINCT.

Mrs. Kitchen Had Gone Downtown to Do Some Shopping When She Felt Ill—Unable to Get Home—Had Been in Apparent Good Health—A Devoted Wife and Popular Among Neighbors.

The community was greatly shocked Saturday evening to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. John H. Kitchen, of Somerset street, which occurred about 8 o'clock at the home of Dr. Zeglio, where she had gone to seek medical aid for a distress about the heart. When she arrived at the doctor's office he was not at home and she decided to wait for him. In the meantime she experienced great difficulty in breathing. Her condition became so alarming that Dr. Jenkins, Mrs. Kitchen's physician, was telephoned for. He could not be found at the time and Dr. Pittis, who lives opposite, was called in. He at once noticed that Mrs. Kitchen was suffering from heart trouble. He prescribed the proper remedies and did all that was possible, but his efforts were futile. The patient's symptoms grew rapidly worse, resulting in death a few minutes later.

It was between 7 and 8 o'clock that Mr. and Mrs. Kitchen had decided to come to this city. It was arranged that he should precede her and then meet her near Crosby & Hill's dry goods store about 8 o'clock. Mr. Kitchen left his wife in her usual good health and soon afterward she left the house. A portion of the distance she walked in company with William Morrison, of the borough. After leaving him at Mountain avenue and Somerset street, she continued her journey.

According to a report she reached the city and attended to two or three errands. While doing this she began to feel distress about the heart. She started for home, but upon reaching Dr. Zeglio's home she felt so bad that she was compelled to stop, as told above.

During this time Mr. Kitchen was at the meat market of Adam Fritz, on West Front street, waiting for his wife. He was found there by Dr. Jenkins, who in the meantime had been to Dr. Zeglio's, and who was asked to find Mr. Kitchen and notify him of his wife's death.

The doctor informed the husband that his wife had been taken ill, and it might result seriously. The two then went to Dr. Zeglio's, only to find that Mrs. Kitchen was dead. The grief-stricken husband broke down under the great affliction.

Later the body was removed to the late home of the deceased at 262 Somerset street.

Mrs. Kitchen's maiden name was Irene Colthar. She was a native of New Market, and lived there previous to coming to Plainfield. She was 45 years of age, and is survived by a husband, John H. Kitchen, of the flour and feed firm of Nischwitz & Kitchen, and a son, William Kitchen, of the Campbell Press Co., of Taunton, Mass.

Mrs. Kitchen was very well-known and highly esteemed by all that knew her. She had a very jolly disposition. She and her husband expected to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage in January, and they were planning for a large time. She was a member of Trinity Reformed church, and a devoted Christian. Her death is a particularly sad bereavement to her husband who was thoroughly devoted to her. Among the residents of the borough, especially her neighbors, she was well liked. Her genial disposition, charitable characteristics and lovable manner had endeared her to many and her death is a sad blow to all who knew her. A telegram was sent Saturday evening to the son, William Kitchen, at Taunton, Mass., and he has arrived in Plainfield.

The funeral services will be held from Mrs. Kitchen's late home on Somerset street tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. Interment will be at Hillside cemetery.

The Dressing Maid.

During all of this week Doane & Edsall will have an expert dressing maid at their store who will dress ladies shoes free with Foeader's "Vici" dressing. All the ladies are invited to come in and get their shoes polished, and become better acquainted with this magic polish. Doll's Vici Kid slippers free on doll's day. See ad.

BRITISH BADLY DEFEATED

English Forces Meet With Reverses at Stromberg

WAR NEWS CONFIRMED.

Boer Guns Taken By Night Sortie—Further Details of the Shelling of Hospitals at Ladysmith—Middleburg is Threatened—British Are Beaten at Stromberg.

London, Dec. 11.—The War Office publishes the following dispatch from Gen. Forestier-Walker at Cape Town:

"Gatacre reports: Deeply regret to inform you that I met with a serious reverse in the attack on Stromberg. I was misled as to the enemy's position by the guides and found impracticable ground."

Here followed the list of the casualties, including 2 killed, 26 wounded and 605 missing, with the statement that additional casualties would be sent as soon as learned.

Despatches Are Confirmed.

London, Dec. 11.—The papers Saturday afternoon displayed in big type despatches from Boer sources stating that a sortie had been made by the garrison at Ladysmith, and that a big Creusot gun and a howitzer had been put out of action. Nothing to corroborate this news was received till Sunday, when a despatch from General White was given out.

Everything seems to point to the immediate advance of the relief column from Frere. The new trestle bridge to take the place of the destroyed bridge has now been finished, and trains with war material are running over it.

Another significant indication is the news from Durban and Pietermaritzburg that twenty-two hundred stretcher bearers are being enlisted there by the military authorities.

The greatest enthusiasm at the prospect of action is manifested at the camp. The soldiers are said to be in the highest spirits.

General White's position seems now much improved as the result of the dissension among the Boers, who are quarrelling over the division of their loot, and the moral effect of Gen. Lord Methuen's successes. An early termination of the siege is now generally expected.

Further confirmation has come to hand of the story about the Boers shelling the hospitals at Ladysmith. That the numerous casualties among the wounded soldiers and the hospital attendants could not have been a mere accident is considered certain.

Indignation here has been raised to a white heat by news from Durban that General White sent a message to the Boer commander informing him what had taken place and that Gen. Joubert's answer was that the British had no right to use any building in the town as a hospital, a neutral camp having been set aside for that purpose.

From Naauwpoort camp it is reported that Gatacre's general forward movement will probably not be made until the Queenstown column reaches Burghersdorp.

Middleburg is threatened but is alert. The commander appears to have taken every precaution to protect that place and the important stretch of railway to Port Elizabeth.

Wouldn't Obey the Labor Union.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 11.—President Burns of the Window Glass Workers' Union recenty ordered D. O. Cunningham & Co. to deduct the Union's 25 per cent. assessment from the workmen's wages, whether the men liked it or not. The firm refused on the ground that it had not the right. Burns declared the factory non-union and ordered the men out. They refused to strike and at a meeting Saturday afternoon decided that Burns's action was unjust and they would remain at work.

Woolen Mill Destroyed.

Enfield, N. H., Dec. 11.—The most disastrous fire ever seen in this section borke out Sunday on the upper floor of the Baltic Mill, owned by the American Woolen Mills Company, and before it was under control had destroyed the whole of the main building, in which was the finishing department and a large quantity of manufactured goods, causing a loss of $100,000. The loss is covered by a blanket insurance policy.

Heavy Wool Sales in Texas.

Austin, Tex., Dec. 11.—Two of the largest sales of wool that have occurred in Texas for some time are reported from Tomgreen county. Jackson & Richardson, wool buyers of San Angelo, sold to J. H. Koshland of Boston 500,000 pounds of wool for about $70,000. C. N. Hobbs sold to C. Palmer 250,000 pounds, the consideration being about $35,000.

Explosion Felt For Miles.

Bradford, Pa., Dec. 11.—The nitroglycerine magazine of the Pennsylvania Torpedo Company, in Bolivar Hollow, one and a half miles from this city, blew up Sunday afternoon, with a report that was heard for thirty-five miles. The shock was felt in Olean, Salamanca, Ellicottville and other surrounding towns. No one was killed.

Steel Works May Shut Down.

Altoona, Pa., Dec. 11.—Unless the Standard Steel Company of Lewiston, Pa., can get a consignment of coal within the next few days the entire works, employing 2,500 men, will be forced to shut down because of the scarcity of fuel.

No Truth in the Story.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 11.—So far as can be learned here the story in regard to Major John A. Logan having been killed by his own men is without foundation. Nobody here seems to know how the story became circulated.

Americans in University.

Berlin, Dec. 11.—The Berlin University shows 6,478 enrolled students, besides 4,843 auditors. The Americans enrolled number 120, and there are 406 American women among the auditors.

MILLER AND WALLER WIN.

Finish of the Six-Day Bicycle Race in Madison Square Garden.

New York, Dec. 11.—With a broad smile on his face, Charles W. Miller, long distance champion cyclist of the world, sprinted to the tape amid the plaudits of twelve thousand spectators in Madison Square Garden Saturday night, the winner, with Frank Waller, his team mate, of the race which had been in progress there since midnight on Sunday, Dec. 3.

It was a thrilling finish to a contest that was exceptional in many particulars. Only a mile separated the first and sixth teams, neither one of which had been able to alter its relative position since the commencement of the third day of the struggle.

From that period in the race to the moment that the official gun signalled that the 142 hours of toil awheel was at an end each of the six teams had battled against nature and against one another for mileage and prizes that aggregated only $4,000.

In the final dash to the tape Miller was first away, with McEachern, Pierce and Chevalier next in order. The line was crossed without any change in positions, a few yards only separating the first three.

Miller and Waller made 2,733 miles and 4 laps and they were only 2 laps ahead of Maya and McEachern.

MOLINEUX'S ADMISSION.

It Followed the Finding of His Former Servant Girl.

New York, Dec. 11.—The admission of the defence that Roland B. Molineux wrote the "Burns" letter is the most striking feature of the trial so far. Upon it rests, the prosecution asserts, the whole question of the "Barnet" and "Cornish" letters. The prosecution has a number of letters, about a dozen, written to various patent medicine concerns all requesting the same kind of remedy. Some of them are signed "H. Cornish" and some "H. C. Barnet." All are written on paper of a robin's egg blue tint, bearing a crest of three interlaced crescents. A letter of the same nature, and written on exactly the same sort of paper, and signed "Roland Molineux," was discovered in the files of a patent medicine firm at Moodus, Conn. Up to Saturday the defence has steadily denied that this letter was written by Molineux. The admission that it was his therefore made a considerable sensation.

The handwriting in this letter is apparently not like that of the "Barnet" and "Cornish" letters, but the prosecution's experts say it is the same hand nevertheless. The main point is that it is written on precisely the same sort of paper as the others. This paper is comparatively rare. It was sold, the prosecution asserts, only at four stores in this city and two stores in Newark, Molineux's place of business. The reason that the defence admitted the authenticity of the Molineux letter is said to be that the prisoner's counsel realized that the prosecution would be able to prove that Molineux was in the habit of using this peculiar robin's egg, crescent-crested paper. Mamie Melando, a young woman who was employed by Molineux to attend to his rooms in Newark, had said that she had bought for Molineux this kind of paper.

Only a few witnesses have testified so far. Nearly 100 more remain to be called, and there seems no reason to doubt that Feb. 1 will see Part II of the Court of General Sessions still hard at work upon the trial of Roland B. Molineux.

The Counterfeit Plot.

Philadelphia, Dec. 11.—The most gagantic swindle ever unearthed by the Secret Service detectives of the United States Government has developed step by step, until its stupendous proportions were revealed by an official of the Treasury Department.

The plot was spoiled by the haste of two of the conspirators, who put some of the bills into circulation too soon, and by the sensitive thumb of a Sub-Treasury expert, which detected a counterfeit that his eyes and his microscope failed to detect, and which was subsequently declared to be genuine by Treasury experts in Washington who had never been fooled before.

So far, then, the following men have been seized by the Government:

Ellery P. Inghams, former United States District-Attorney.

Harvey K. Newitt, former Assistant United States District-Attorney.

Samuel B. Downey, Deputy Collector of Customs.

William M. Kendig, cigar manufacturer.

William M. Jacobs, cigar manufacturer.

Arthur Taylor, engraver.

Baldwin Bredell, engraver.

James Burns, constable.

Wed at 15, Divorced at 18.

New Brunswick, N. J., Dec. 11.—Lizzie Miller Ecker, who was married when 15 years old, is divorced at 18. The girl is the daughter of Mrs. Jacob Miller, who keeps a hotel in Sayreville. On October 18, 1896, she went to Spottswood and was married to Wood Ecker, 22 years old. The marriage was without her mother's consent. When it finally was announced Mrs. Ecker lived with her husband until March 20, 1897, when he left her. Recently Mrs. Ecker brought suit for divorce on the ground of desertion, and Chancellor McGill has granted the divorce. She resumes her maiden name and has returned to live with her mother in Sayreville.

Naval Cadet Dies of Consumption.

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 11.—Naval Cadet W. P. Giles, formerly of the United States battleship Oregon, is dead at Fort Worth. He contracted consumption on the famous trip of the Oregon around Cape Horn to take part in the battle of Santiago. He was a native of Hill county, Texas.

LEADER'S TRAIL LOCATED

General Pilar Reported to have Been Killed in a Recent Engagement—Major Batchelor in a Position to Check the Filipino's Progress—A Message From Otis.

Manila, Dec. 11.—Released Spanish prisoners have informed Gen. Young that on Dec. 3 Major March's battalion of the Thirty-third Volunteer Infantry defeated a guard accompanying Aguinaldo, which was commanded by Gen. Gregorio del Pilar. The battle, which lasted four hours, took place on a fortified trail eighteen miles northwest of Cervantes. The Filipinos lost seventy in killed and wounded. The American casualties were one killed and six wounded. It is reported that Gen. Pilar was killed. Major March, at last accounts, was pursuing Aguinaldo and his guard into the mountains.

The Igorrotes, who are friendly to the Americans, are doing everything they can to help them. They are building roads, transporting food and doing many other things to make the work of the American troops easy.

Gen. Young holds Bangued. Six hundred Spanish prisoners are with him, including twenty officers.

Despatch From General Otis.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Gen. Otis has cabled the War Department as follows:

"Manila, Dec. 10.—Despatch from Young at Vigan yesterday says that escaped Spanish prisoners report four hours' engagement on the 3d inst. between his troops and Aguinaldo's guard near Cervantes, fifty miles southeast of Vigan, with heavy loss to the enemy, who is being pursued. Our loss was one killed and six wounded. Inhabitants of their own accord join the soldiers in repairing the trail and carrying subsistence. Have pushed column to San Jose, south of Bangued. Gen. Howse's column on rear trail. Batchelor's battalion of the Twenty-fourth Infantry is out of reach, north of Bayombong, evidently descending the river. Natives report fighting occurred twenty miles north. Navy reaches Aparri to-morrow. Column of MacArthur's troops, Twenty-fifth Infantry, reported near Iba, near west coast of Zambales. Grant's column is near Subig Bay. Lawton is in Bullucan Province to-day with sufficient troops to overcome opposition and scatter the enemy.

"Information received that Negros revolt of minor importance. Byrnes is in rapid pursuit of disaffected party. Hughes is in mountains of Panay, en route to Capiz. OTIS."

Advices received at the War Department from Gen. Otis within the past few days indicate that the American troops have succeeded in practically disintegrating Aguinaldo's army. All reports agree that the insurgent forces now consist only of small bands, which are operating in different parts of the islands. War Department officials believe that Aguinaldo is wildly endeavoring to discover a loophole or avenue of escape from some one of the ports of Luzon. He was last heard of in the vicinity of Cervantes, and the report received here that a part of General Young's command had had an engagement with Aguinaldo's guard shows how closely pressed the Filipino leader is.

In order to cut off the retreat of the Tagalo leader Major Bachelor's battalion of the Twenty-fourth Infantry has been sent up the River Magel from Bayombong and is now, according to the latest despatches from Gen. Otis, descending the river. This battalion whose record was second to none at El Caney, where the Twenty-fourth lost more heavily than any regiment in the Spanish-American War, is in position to intercept Aguinaldo, as he must cross the Magel River to reach Baler. Major Batchelor is out of telegraphic communication with Gen. Otis and the general officers in the field, and this is the cause of some anxiety here, as he may not know of Aguinaldo's movement toward the east coast. To reach Baler Aguinaldo must cross a mountainous country, where his dangers will be increased by the presence of tribes unfriendly to the Tagalos.

Baler is the place where Lieut. Gilmore and a boat's crew from the Yorktown were captured by the natives last April. It is so situated that it cannot be approached within convenient firing distance by vessels of war. The Filipinos hold the place, and it is the belief here that Aguinaldo will make his last stand there unless he succeeds in escaping from the island in some vessel. The navy will attend to this last contingency, however.

They Blame Coghlan.

Manila, Dec. 11.—Colonel Julio Del Rio, who is among the released Spaniards Just arrived here, gives an interesting version of the famous Irene incident in Subig Bay in July of last year. He was in command of the Spanish troops in the Olongapo district. His narrative is corroborated by Rafael Rosello, a wealthy Spanish merchant, who also fell into the hands of the Filipinos.

Both declare that the Spanish surrendered to Captain Coghlan of the cruiser Raleigh on an express agreement that they were not to be given up to the Filipinos, and they assert that the Spanish Government has promised to press their claims against the United States for their long imprisonment.

The Liberals Lose in Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Dec. 11.—Elections for the Provincial Legislature held throughout the province of Manitoba resulted in the election of twenty-four conservatives and fourteen liberals. The liberal party, under Thomas Greenway's leadership, has been in power for many years, and the result is a surprising turnover. The conservatives have as their leader Hugh John MacDonald, son of the late Sir John MacDonald, for many years Premier of Canada.

THAT'S THE IDEA!

You ought to see what we can do for you before doing anything for yourself. Painting depends upon the paint and the painter. Better preparations than ours were never put on by a brush. Wherever paint is put, it should be put there to stay long enough to make it worth while to do the job. The warring elements have no effect on our durable mixtures.

"Ripans Tabules have done so much for me that I want to let other people know it," writes a constable of Ithaca, N. Y. "I had catarrh of the stomach in the worst way, and my digestion was very bad. I tried about all the doctors in the city, but they did not do me any good. I was so bad I could not work or sit up more than part of the time. My sister had been using Ripans Tabules, and they had done her so much good that I tried them, and, after taking them three weeks, my catarrh did not trouble me any, and I could work, and kept getting better all the time."

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

WIVES MAY BE WITNESSES

The Roberts Case to Cause a Hard Fight.

ACCUSED MAKES DENIAL.

The Representative-Elect From Utah Says He Has Not Lived a Polygamous Life—He Openly Denounces One of His Accusers—Women Are Likely to be Subpoenaed.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The House Investigating Committee has heard Representative-elect Roberts deny for the first time that he had been a polygamist since 1890, "in violation of law." He admitted a court charge against him in 1889. The investigation has taken such a turn that it may be necessary to send to Utah for witnesses or else compel the committee to go to that State for evidence. In this connection, it is pointed out that the second and third wives may be subpoenaed.

The last session of the committee was open, as will be remaining ones.

Mr. Roberts said that his statement was made for the purpose of joining issues, and he expected a ruling on his demurrer and time to present authorities. This caused a halt in the committee work.

When the proceedings opened Mr. Roberts was asked if he conceded the existence of the court record wherein he pleaded guilty in 1890 under the Edmundes-Tucker law. This he conceded. He was next asked whether about 1887 or since 1890 he had married plural wives and had lived with them since that time as wives. To the whole of this charge Roberts pleaded not guilty, and then demurred to the jurisdiction of the committee for the following reasons:

First—On the ground of violation of constitutional rights, in that it attempted to try him for a crime without presentment of indictment by Grand Jury and without trial before a jury and due process of law.

Second—That it was an attempt to deprive him of vested property that he held in the emoluments of an office for the full term.

Third—That the only evidence that could be considered in the committee was a court record establishing the guilt, confessed or proven, of the Representative-elect, and that the committee has no right to consider any other evidence.

Fourth—That the crime alleged, namely, that of unlawful cohabitation, even if proven, would not constitute a sufficient crime to bar a member or deprive him of his seat, because innocence of polygamy or unlawful cohabitation is nowhere enumerated in the Constitution as a qualification for the office of Member of Congress, nor is it named in any United States law applicable to Utah or any other State.

Mr. Roberts argued these points for nearly two hours. It was a legal controversy throughout. Mr. Roberts asked that his prima facie right to a seat be considered at once.

The first of the public hearings began at 2 o'clock. The committee room was crowded. Chairman Taylor announced that persons who had participated in framing the charges were present, and he asked that they be heard.

A. T. Schroeder, one of the Gentile delegation from Utah, was about to testify when Mr. Roberts protested. "I object," he said, "to this witness if he comes here as an attorney. I object to him if he comes as a witness on the ground that he is unworthy of confidence. I propose to establish by the records of the Supreme Court of Utah that he is utterly unworthy of belief."

Mr. Tayler said that Mr. Schroeder was not present as a witness or as counsel, but merely to give the committee such information as he could. Mr. Roberts did not press his objection further, and Mr. Schroeder proceeded.

Mr. Schroeder said it could be established that Mr. Roberts had maintained, and is maintaining, the status of a polygamist; that in 1889 he pleaded guilty of unlawful cohabitation, and has since that time continued in that relation.

Mr. Tayler said, after an executive session, that the committee was considering whether it should go to Utah or have the witnesses come here.

It is understood that the opposition to Roberts has suggested that the wives be summoned as witnesses. The first wife would be exempt from testifying against her husband, as she has a legal status as wife.

Express Companies as Brokers.

Washington. Dec. 11.—A delegation of bankers, representing the American Bankers' Association, and an attorney, representing the American Express Company, have had a hearing before Attorney-General Griggs. The hearing was held on account of the complaint of the Bankers' Association that the express company is practically evading the recent decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The bankers represented that since the commissioner declared that express companies selling foreign exchange and letters of credit were liable to pay taxes as brokers at each office where such business is conducted, the American Company has transferred all its foreign exchange business to a few offices. This, the bankers say, avoids the payment of a large amount of taxes.

The attorney for the express company argued that it had the right to transact its business in its own way as long as the laws and its charter are not violated. Attorney-General Griggs withheld his opinion.

IT FLOATS.

COPYRIGHT 1898 BY THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO. CINCINNATI

IS GIVEN UP FOR LOST.

No Tidings Yet Received From the Niagara or Her Crew.

Buffalo, Dec. 11.—There are still no tidings from the Canadian steamer Niagara, supposed to have foundered in Lake Erie in the gale of Tuesday with a crew of sixteen men. The Inland Lloyds have searching parties watching the Canadian shore over a sixty-mile strip extending to Long Point, where the steamer last was seen. Haines & Co., lumber dealers, consignees of the Niagara's cargo of shingles, say they have practically abandoned hope for the vessel's safety.

The names of the missing, so far as known, are:

Capt. Henry McGlory, master, Port Colborne, Ont.; Archie McDonald, first mate, Toronto; Thomas Mills, first engineer, Toronto; Duncan McCauly, second engineer, Toronto; Mrs. Annie H. Morrow, stewardess, Marine City; Andrew Leheup, Kingston, and James A. Davey, Kingston.

Mrs. Morrow's husband is the mate of the M. T. Greene, which left this port Saturday, and which was one of the vessels to report the discovery of the wreckage of the lost boat.

Captains Hutchinson and Frick of the steamers Centurion and Fedora, respectively, who arrived here Saturday afternoon, reported having passed through wreckage, and say there is no doubt that the Niagara has gone to the bottom. That also is the general opinion in marine circles.

Captain MacIntosh of the Majestic, when asked if there was any possibility that some of the crew might have reached shore by clinging to the wreckage, said:

"Not one chance in a thousand. The sea was something fearful, and a man would not have lasted five minutes in it. Then, too, if any had been saved they would have been heard of before this."

GLASS WORKS WILL RE-OPEN.

Over 10,000 Men to Return to Work on December 30.

Pittsburg, Dec. 11.—After an idleness of more than six months the window glass workers of the country will go to work December 30. The last settlement of the scales has been accomplished. Cutters will receive an advance of about five per cent. and flatteners about six per cent. There were no material changes made in the shop rules and usages.

After the settlement was made the directors of the American Glass Company announced that all men going to work in their factories would be given two weeks' wages, "market money," in advance. The settlement will give employment to about ten thousand men who are now idle.

With the settlement comes the announcement by the American Window Glass Company that there is a cut of thirty-three and one third per cent. in the price of single strength and forty per cent. on double strength window glass, effective forthwith and on all orders now on hand. This is a tacit announcement that war is to be waged upon the independent and co-operative manufacturers.

Philadelphia's Ballot Frauds.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 11.—The commissioner appointed by the Court to open and count the ballots in the box of the Thirteenth division, Seventh ward, has completed his task. All that is shown is that there were 238 ballots in the box and the tally sheets showed the same number of voters. The only thing that appears to be suspicious is that many of the ballots follow each other numerically and the voters alphabetically, making it look as if the voters had been voted according to the letter of the alphabet with which their name began. It is probable that the District Attorney will now attempt to have the voters, as they appear on the list, summoned into court to tell as nearly as possible at what time they voted.

Thinks Consul Should be Recalled.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Dec. 11.—S. P. Young, formerly United States Consul at Moscow, Russia, has arrived here. He had been to Washington to see Secretary Hay and Congressman Wadsworth of this district relative to the present United States Consuls at Moscow. While in Washington Mr. Young called the attention of the Secretary of State to the condition of affairs at Moscow, which in his judgment would warrant the recall of the present Consul, who is Thomas W. Smith of New Jersey. Mr. Young would say nothing beyond the fact that the matter under discussion relates to the personal and not the official conduct of the Consul, and it is from this alleged personal conduct that relief is sought.

Arizona Looking for Statehood.

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 11.—An enthusiastic mass meeting has been held here, to start a movement to obtain Statehood at the present session of Congress. Prominent men from all parts of Arizona were in attendance and took part. Governor H. O. Murphy was elected chairman of a Committee of Thirty, which will go to Washington early in January to advocate Statehood.

Plans For $3,000,000 of New Buildings

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 11.—Eight new buildings are to be erected on the campus of the Northwestern University at Evanston, if the $3,000,000 necessary can be raised by the faculty, trustees and their Methodist friends. A chapel, German building and a costly school of technology are planned. The law school will also be moved to Evanston, if possible.

Trolley Line to Republic Camp.

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 11.—Ex-Senator Warner Miller, of New York, and J. F. McNaught, of Seattle, have taken an option on the water power at Kettle Falls, on the Columbia River, north of this city, and contemplate the building of an electric railway from the Spokane Falls and Northern Railroad to Republic Camp.

Died in a Dentist's Chair.

Danbury, Conn., Dec. 11.—Mrs. Edund Lahey, 42 years old, the wife of a prominent contractor, living at 7 Clark street, dropped dead here as she was taking a seat in a dentist's chair. The excitement of the visit to the dentist and probably the dread of the ordeal brought on an attack of heart disease.

COSTLY BLAZE IN AUGUSTA.

Fire Eats a Blocck of Stores, a Hotel and Masonic Temple.

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 11.—The worst fire that Augusta has had in years started Sunday, and caused $1,000,000 damages. It began in the heart of J. B. White's big dry goods house. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is surmised that an electric wire may have come in contact with the woodwork after the insulation on it became imperfect, or possibly a spark from a sputtering arc light may have tumbled into the dry goods.

The Arlington annex and the stores beneath, all a part of the old Central Hotel property, abutted the store of J. B. White, and all were involved in the first onslaught of the flames after getting outside of the White store. Next came the handsome Masonic building. Into this the flames ate their way from the rear. When this became ablaze there was no longer any possibility that the Arlington Hotel could escape. It has always had the reputation of being exceedingly vulnerable, and it soon was ablaze.

The fire ignited the roof and windows of the Schneider building, across Eighth street, on the next block, but is was arrested here, and, barring a few thousand dollars damage to stock, the main loss was confined to the original block, bounded by Broad and Ellis streets, north and south, and Seventh and Eighth streets, east and west.

Many Soldiers Poisoned.

Helena, Mont. Dec. 11.—According to a letter just received here, 200 of the 1,360 men of the Thirty-fifth Regiment were poisoned while en route to Manila on the transports Rio de Janeiro and Sikh, by eating fresh beef supplied the vessels at Honolulu. One man, a private, whose name is not given, died from the effects of eating the meat, despite heoric efforts of the surgeons.

The writer of the letter, a Lieutenant in the regiment, attributes the poisoning to a faulty refrigerating plant whereby some of the acids used in making ice came in contact with the meat, which to the eye and taste was apparently in first-class condition. A number of narrow escapes are reported.

Reform in Scotch Plains.

Once again reformation of the town morals fills the air in Scotch Plains. To read of the activity and purpose of the Citizens' League of that place one would think that the old town was almost on the brink of perdition, but to the casual visitor in the community it possesses a most serene and settled appearance—a contradiction to common reports. But what there is below the surface—ah, there is the rub.

The Citizens' League, with the energetic and aggressive Rev. Mr. Shott standing on the parapet, has fired its first load of amunition. It is aimed at the local bar rooms—to which the reverend gentleman attributes the major portion of the Scotch Plains sinfulness. In seeking an effective way to combat the legalized license of these places the League has struck for the most pregnable point in going for the signers of the applications for license. Without the signers to their applications, recounting and avering the qualifications the law demands as necessary, the barroom-keepers would find it impossible to secure a license.

Here, then, is the meat in the nut that the Citizens' League has got to crack.

If the reformers can prevent the hotel keepers from getting the necessary number of signers they will thwart the traffic at the very outset Whatever difference of opinion people may have as to the public welfare being served by the granting of liquor licenses in Scotch Plains, it is a fact that the Citizens' League has made a strong move to oppose the licenses by attempting first to influence those whose signatures are necessary to get the applications before the court. And in announcing their intention to compel each signers to testify in court to the details of qualifications recounted in behalf of the applicant, a condition is placed in front of those who have heretofore stood ready to aid the hotel keepers that may act as a deterrent to accomplish the results sought by the League.

The Newark Sunday Call says that the daily newspaper gossip of opposition to Assemblyman Jones for the Speakership is not to be credited. It argues that Essex has eleven votes in the Assembly, and several attributes of strength and importance, and the Republican leaders are well aware that with the united voice of the county desiring the Speakership, at this time, the only wise and politic action is to concede the position without hesitancy or dickering. There is said to have been considerable opposition to Essex candidates from lobbyists, who have had more control over State officials at times than was at all safe. It is possibly reflected in some of the paragraphs recently published. But Essex can afford to welcome such criticism and opposition.

Our esteemed friend of the News has the faculty of twisting the facts very easy when it serves his purpose. In his senseless prattle about the trolley franchise in Elizabeth he says that we have upheld the City Council's firm action simply because The News has taken the opposite stand. Now, as a matter of fact, The News editor, so far as we have been able to observe by a careful perusal of his culinary-editorial department, did not refer to the matter once until Thursday of last week. On the other hand The Daily Press assumed its present position at the very outset of the matter several weeks ago.

Congressman Howell, of the Third district, will probably fail to land the chairmanship of the committee on arid lands and irrigation, as he had hoped. Mr. Howell was the leading member of the old committee who was re-elected. An equally important chairmanship will probably be given him instead. He will not be a member of the river and harbor committee, but will probably remain on the committee on public buildings and grounds.

Congressman Daly came home from the seat of government long enough to spend Sunday and give the press his impressions of Congress. What is most anxiously awaited in Mr. Daly's case, however, is his expressions in Congress.

Two weeks from today Mr. S. Anta Claus will have made his calls.

Three weeks from today it will be written 1900.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The little sketch that Life once published about the precocious scholar who described the rock of Gibraltar as the property of the Prudential Life Insurance Company—doubtless getting that idea impressed on his mind by constantly seeing the famous and historical rock displayed in the advertisements of the insurance company—is equalled by the following published in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, which will bring a smile to every one who reads it:

A certain Sunday-school teacher was questioning her class.

"Where was Christ born?" she asked of Willie."

Willie pondered awhile, and finally announced, "Mauch Chunk."

"Mauch Chunk!" exclaimed the astonished teacher. "You ought to know better than that. Why little Georgie knows where Christ was born. Where was Christ born, Georgie?"

And the treble of the four-year-old answered:

"Beth-le-hem."

"That's right," said the teacher.

"Well," said Willie, pouting, "I knew 'twas somewhere on the Lehigh Valley Road."

Recruiting for the army is on the wane everywhere throughout the country. Until recently there were three stations in New Jersey, in Newark, Jersey City and Paterson. A week or so ago the station at Paterson was closed. Previous to the filling up of the volunteer regiments each of these stations had an officer at the head of it. As soon as the volunteer ranks were full two of the officers were assigned to other duty, and since then all three have been in charge of Captain Van Ness, of the First artillery, who, for over a year, has had charge of the Newark station. It is probable that the Jersey City station will be closed soon, and it is more than probable that the Newark station will not be kept open much after the close of the year, although this is but a surmise. Recruits are now being received from the regular army only, and as Uncle Sam does not need more men for duty anywhere the impression throughout the regular army is that all the recruiting stations save a few in the very largest cities will be shut up. Recruiting began in Newark at the outbreak of the Civil War and in all something like 300 men have been enlisted for all branches of the army service in and immediately around Newark, since that time.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Raymond Hodge, of Plainfield avenue, is detained at home with an attack of chicken pox.

Edson C. Martin conducted a service of song at Warren chapel last evening which was very helpful.

Mrs. Frank Putnam, of East Fifth street, has returned from a visit with her parents at Scotch Plains.

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Mellick, of LaGrande avenue, will give a dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Marshall, Wednesday evening.

There were several small parties of Plainfielders who attended the matinee or evening performance of "Ben Hur," at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, Saturday.

Fred Townsend, who has been in the employ of E. A. Laing, of Park avenue, resigned his position Saturday evening to accept a position in New York. He will reside at the latter place.

Tomorrow at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Ribble, East Millstone, will take place the marriage of Miss Anna Ribble and Former Assemblyman VanDoren, also of that place.

GRAIN-O! GRAIN-O!

Remember that name when you want a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it. Grain-O is made of pure grain, it aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder and the children as well as the adults can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee. 15c. and 25c. per package. Ask your grocer for Grain-O.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 11.—For the purpose of securing funds for a new organ, an entertainment will be held at the Randolphville school house at New Market next Wednesday evening. Stanley Joyce, the humorist, will be the principal attraction.

Superintendent Meseroll's monthly report shows 227 scholars in the public schools. He also reports having suspended one scholar for smoking on the school grounds.

A mother's meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Teel Thursday afternoon next when an interesting programme will be carried out, followed by refreshments.

The tax collector has received a check for $126.84 from the county superintendent, being the amount of the State appropriation for public schools.

New flagging has recently been laid in front of the properties of the Titsworth estate and that of McNabb & Larkin on Main street.

S. Frank Tinsman, a former resident, but now station agent at Finderne, has been appointed postmaster at that place.

The recent Tom Thumb entertainment netted the Lincoln school $18 50. It will be placed to the credit of the piano fund.

A social will be held at the home of Miss Emma Nelson at New Market Thursday evening by the Twilight Club.

Mrs. T. C. Bodine has been entertaining her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Hamilton and husband.

Mrs. W. H. Terry has been entertaining Mrs. John B. Terry and daughter Jennie, of Brooklyn.

The vacant lot opposite the Lincoln school has been rented at $12 per year for a play ground.

The recently organized whist club meet Tuesday evening at the home of W. S. Fredericks.

W. H. Vogel is occupying his new house recently built for him on the Sisty property.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rogers, of New Market, are the happy parents of a daughter.

George Hummer has bought the McNabb property on Main street.

Miss Lulu Davis has been visiting in New York the past week.

PLAINS AND FAN WOOD

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 11.—One of the trolley cars jumped the track Saturday afternoon about 5 o'clock while taking the Park avenue switch. The crew tried for nearly two hours to get the car back but were unsuccessful. Help was finally secured from Plainfield and the derailed car was soon ready for business again. The accident broke the evening schedule up and cars coming and going were very uncertain. But the patrons of the road are beginning to get used to taking their lunch with them when they start to take the trolley.

Rev. Mr. Woodruff, of the Methodist church, preached two very interesting sermons yesterday. In the morning the text being "A Reasonable Service," and in the evening, "The True Ambition."

Mrs. Agusta Miller and daughter, Miss Cora, have returned from a pleasant visit with relatives and friends in Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Scriven, of Westfield, were the guests yesterday of Mrs. Scriven's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Hand.

Miss Hannah Hayes, of Fanwood, has returned from a month's visit with Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Braker at Walthham, Mass.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed at the close of the morning service in the Baptist church yesterday.

Colonel Stegeman and family, of Stout avenue, entertained friends from Brooklyn yesterday.

Miss Trautman led an interesting young people's meeting in the Baptist church last evening.

John Haskard, of Grant avenue, Plainfield, was the guest of his mother yesterday.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Dec. 11—The chief attraction among the bowlers of this town just now is the head-pin bowling tournament at the Social Club and every Tuesday and Friday evening the alleys are crowded by those seeking one of the four handsome prizes. The tournament is of the progressive order and there are four classes. The standing of the contestants is as follows: In the first class, 250, are W. S. Smith, 234; Fred Condit, 232; E. C. Moody, 231; C. E. Pearsall, 230; S. J. Patterson, of Roselle, 221. Second class, 209, E. J. Whitehead, the originatior of the progesive hand-pin bowling, 209; Chauncey Smith, 209; W. M. THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

"On The Suwanee River," the drama of southern life to be given at Music Hall tomorrow night has a guarantee of excellence possessed by few companies now on the road. "On the Suwanee River" has been before the public for three seasons and is a delightful blending of poetry, romence and Southern chivalry. It tells a story that is full of heart interest. The characters are strong and sketched from life. Stella Mayhew as "Aunt Lindy" gives one of the best impersonations of an old colored woman on record and introduces an excellent specialty. Willie Simms plays a beautiful and pathetic part, that of the blind girl. While the play introduces some colored people in the plantation scene, it does not in any way depend upon them to attract attention to the disadvantage of the story, and the interest of the audience. The scene is, a perfectly natural one and in it are introduced the songs, dances and pastimes of the plantation hands.

"The Heart of Chicago," the newest comedy drama to make a bid for the popular favor, at Music Hall Thursday night, offers enough scenic inducements to make it worth while seeing. The plot itself is said to be of more than ordinary merit. Of course it appeals to those who dote on sensationalism, but it is said in its favor that its sensational incidents while exciting in the extreme are perfectly logical and follow as a natural sequence to the portions of the story already revealed. The author is said to have been particularly fortunate in his comedy situations. Among the scenic features are a representation of the down town district of Chicago during the great fire, a illumination in the Court of Honor at the World's Fair Grounds, a new railroad scene unlike any other event presented, the Masonic Temple roof garden at night, and a complete panoramic view of the business portion of the south side at night, the streets being brilliantly lighted and the principle buildings and features accurately set forth.

If the financial results are to be taken as the point from which to judge, "Sister Mary," at the Bijou Theatre, in New York, has adequately proven itself to be the greatest success May Irwin has had. The first five weeks show a great increase over the first five weeks of the engagement of "Kate Kip," "The Swell Miss Fitzwell," "The Widow Jones" or "Courted Into Court." In this new play Mr. McDonough seems to have given just the proper mixture of melody and mirth which the subtle chemistry of an Irwin farce demands Board of Health Notice.

At the last meeting of the Board of Health the following ordinance was advanced to its third reading and adopted:

"An ordinance to further prevent the spread of contagious or infectious diseases.

Be it ordained by the Board of Health of the City of Plainfield as follows:—

Section 1. Any physician who shall be called to any person whom he may suspect to be suffering from cholera, yellow fever, typhus fever, leprosy, plague, trichinosis, small-pox, varioloid, enteric (or typhoid) fever, diphtheria, membranous croup, or scarlet fever, but of which he shall be in doubt, shall report the same to the Board of Health in writing as provided by the State law on becoming satisfied as to its being one of the said diseases, and shall in any event report the case to the Secretary, the Inspector or the Clerk of the Board of Health as a suspected case of one of the foregoing described diseases within twenty-four hours from the time of his first professional attendance, unless by that time he shall be confident that the person is not suffering from any disease included in the foregoing, provided that in the case of suspected typhoid fever or suspected trichinosis the report may be delayed for five days. Any physician who fails to make such report shall forfeit and pay a penalty of twenty-five dollars for every such offense.

Section 2. Any householder in whose house there is any person suffering or suspected to be suffering from any of the diseases enumerated in the foregoing section, and on whom no physician is in attendance, or any person in charge of such sick person, shall make the report to the Board of Health as provided in the foregoing section Any person who fails to make such report shall forfeit and pay a penalty of twenty-five dollars for every such offense.

Section 3. Any person wishing to enter any house which is quarantined must first obtain permission from the Inspector of the Board of Health or such member of said Board as may be authorized to act in his absence, and any undertaker who shall visit any house which is quarantined, for the purpose of preparing a body for burial or for arranging for a funeral, must first obtain permission from the Board of Health or said Inspector, provided that any undertaker may be granted a standing permit allowing him to visit quarantined premises for the above purposes on condition that he notify the Board of Health of such visit or visits as soon as possible. Any undertaker or other person violating the provisions of this section shall forfeit and pay a penalty of twenty-five dollars for every such offense.'

Our Holiday Display

The extent and variety of our holiday show is most comprehensive and includes nearly every conceivable kind of toys of foreign and domestic manufacture that are new and desirable. We are direct importers of toys and games, importing for our four "united stores" in very large quantities saving the jobbers profits procuring the choicest and best of everything and offering at very moderate prices a stock unmatched and unequaled. The price saving must be apparent to the consumers. Our facilities for buying, combined with our unequalled store service places us in a position where we are at once recognized as the only department store in the community and without a competitor. Juvenile books and games are very important items in our display for the little folks.

DOLLS

You can hardly conceive of a good kind of doll that is not shown in this immense display. Jointed dolls of every imaginable kind made by the best French and German makers. Kid body dolls of all sizes—dressed dolls in a bewildering assortment—dolls that represent all the heroes of the late war; in fact, everything in the doll line is here.

The more staple lines of useful and decorative articles for the people of more mature years are largely in evidence everywhere around the store. Solid brass goods in candlelabra, mirrors, inkstands and scores of useful and ornamental articles attract considerable attention by artistic beauty combined with moderate prices.

SILVER-PLATED WARE

Table ware is another very important item. We show a very complete line of Roger Bros. famous ware. Not the Wm. A. Rogers or any other of the Rogers imitations that are palmed off as equal to the genuine Roger Bros. goods, but the very best goods priced very moderately for strictly first-class ware. The staple line of goods have not been lost sight of in the great holiday rush. Handkerchiefs, gloves, umbrellas, neckwear for men and women, Hosiery, muslinwear and all the kindred lines are shown here in the largest varieties. We claim that the most liberal guarantee that any merchant can give with their merchandise is this—your money back anytime you prefer the money to the merchandise. That is our guarantee with every dollar's worth of merchandise we sell.

WANTED

and others to buy lots. We only ask for 25 people as that is all the lots we have left. Take our advice and buy a lot now and you will make money. The trolley running to Scotch Plains has created a demand and prices are advancing.

AND SAVE MONEY

Our facilities for making clothing enables us to place on our tables clothing ready to wear at prices below what the average retailer would have to pay for it, that is the secret of our increasing business.

Our $3.25 Men's suits are as good as the average $5.00 suit.

Our $4.25 Suits compare with the average $6.00 suit. And so on along the line—

Our $8.50, $9.00, $9.50, $9.75 and $10.00 suits are made from pure stock, they are stylish in cut and superbly tailored. We particularly call the attention of the dressers to this line.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Provinz Westfalen.

Anholt. In einem Kampfe zwischen Schmugglern und Grenzaufsehern wurde an der benachbarten holländischen Grenze einer der Ersteren erschossen. Die Beamten hatten von der Bande einen Knaben eingefangen. Bei dem Bemühen der Entflohenen, diesen zu befreien, fiel der Schuß. Der Getödtete war ein angesehener Landwirth aus hiesiger Gegend.

Recklinghausen. Der Bergmann Gersch war bei der Polizei wegen Diebstahls angezeigt worden. Nachdem er die Vorladung für ein Verhör vor dem Untersuchungsrichter erhalten und erfahren hatte, daß die Brüder Albert und Wilhelm Tomski ihn des Diebstahls angeklagt, bewaffnete er sich mit einem Revolver und stieß mehrfach die Drohung aus, dieselben erschießen zu wollen. Er traf die Tomskis in einer Wirthschaft. Nach kurzem Wortwechsel zog er seinen Revolver und schoß Beide über den Haufen, worauf er die Waffe gegen sich selbst kehrte und in der nächsten Sekunde, zu Tode getroffen, seinen Geist ausbauchte.

Sachsen.

Dresden. Der Transvaalkrieg ist auf einzelne Zweige der sächsischen Textilindustrie nicht ohne Einfluß geblieben. Die direkten Bestellungen von dort sind gänzlich belanglos, ebenso haben die durch englische Kommissionshäuser vermittelten Geschäfte ganz aufgehört. In einzelnen Artikeln, so in Wirkwaaren, scheint selbst der Absatz auf dem englischen Markt durch den Krieg beeinflußt zu sein.—Die sächsische Regierung verlangt zum Bau von Arbeiter- und Beamtenwohnungen von den Kammern 2,000,000 Mark. Die Häuser sollen an der Chemnitzer Stadtgrenze gebaut werden und sind namentlich für die Arbeiter der dortigen Eisenbahn-Werkstätten bestimmt. Vor geraumer Zeit hat der sächsische Staat dort für 105 Arbeiterfamilien Wohnungen gebaut.

Chemnitz. Neulich Nachmittags ist auf dem hiesigen israelitischen Friedhofe ein grober Unfug verübt worden. Mehrere Grabdenkmäler sind umgeworfen und theilweise beschädigt worden. Der Thäter, ein hiesiger Arbeiter, wurde bei der That abgefaßt und sieht einer strengen Bestrafung entgegen. Persönliche oder religiöse Motive irgend welcher Art liegen der That nicht zu Grunde.

Leipzig. Ein elfjähriges Mädchen sprang aus Unlust am Schulbesuch aus dem vierten Stock eines Hauses in den Hof herab. Es blieb merkwürdiger Weise ohne jede Verletzung.—Der 41jährige Maurer Hag kam in der Bauer'schen Brauerei einer Transmissionswelle zu nahe, wurde mehrmals herumgeschleudert und erlitt so schwere Verletzungen, daß er alsbald verschied.

Plauen. Die ehemaligen Schüler der früheren städtischen Fachzeichenschule und jetzigen königlichen Industrieschule werden sich zu Ostern 1900 in hiesiger Stadt zusammenfinden. Es ist geplant, in einem Saale „eine Stadt" aufzubauen, in welcher diejenigen Wirthshäuser vorhanden sein werden, in denen die ehemaligen Schüler gekneipt haben. Auf dem Marktplatze dieser Stadt wird ein Kommers abgehalten.

Thüringische Staaten.

Jena. Der Gemeinderath beschloß, zur Deckung der bereits genehmigten Grundstücksankäufe zur Errichtung eines Wasserleitungspebewerkes nebst Reservoirs, sowie des weiteren Ausbaues der Wasserleitung und zu anderen städtischen Zwecken eine Anleihe in Höhe von 1,000,000 Mark aufzunehmen.

Rudolstadt. Das Schwurgericht hat den Dienstknecht Hoffmann, der in Oldisleben den Landwirth Börner und ein Kind desselben ermordet, ein zweites Kind tödtlich und Frau Börner lebensgefährlich verletzt hatte, um eine Geldsumme zu rauben, zum Tode verurtheilt.

Hamburg. Zur Herstellung einer schnelleren Verbindung zwischen Hamburg und Kopenhagen ist die Einrichtung eines Dampftrajekts zwischen Aarösund an der Haderslebener Föhrde und Assens auf Fünen projektirt; die Reise würde, da der Umweg über Fridericia fortfiele, von 136 Kilometer auf 86 Kilometer verkürzt werden und dann nur acht Stunden dauern. Da der kleine Belt an dieser Stelle immer eisfrei bleibt, so würde das Meer keine Schwierigkeiten bieten. Vorbedingung aber ist die Schaffung einer Hafenanlage bei Aarösund, deren Kosten von der deutschen Marineverwaltung auf etwa 200,000 Mark veranschlagt werden. Dem dänischen Reichstage ist bereits ein Antrag in dieser Richtung zugegangen.

Bremen. Anfang Juni d. J. rief Rußland seinen Gesandten und Minister-Residenten v. Westmann und den russischen Vizekonsul Achelis ab, weil der Senat sich trotz aller freundschaftlichen Vorstellungen der russischen Regierung geweigert hatte, die Beamten, welche den russischen Popen Elias Sotikow und Frau aus New York wegen angeblichen Diebstahls eines Postbeutels unschuldig verhaftet hatten, zu bestrafen. Nach Ansicht des bremischen Senats rechtfertigen die Verdachtsgründe, wenn sie sich auch nicht beweisen ließen, die Verhaftung, die nicht über Gebühr ausgedehnt war. Jetzt ist dieser Streit geschlichtet und Rußland hat für Bremen einen neuen Vizekonsul, Namens Kozakewisch, ernannt.

JUVENILE STYLES.

Fashions Adapted For Little and Large Girls.

Some sacks are preferred as outside garments for little children, and even quite large girls wear them. The long cloak, like a sack, extending to the edge of the dress and closed with a double row of buttons, is also in vogue. For half grown girls the jacket of the half fitting variety remains the favorite. For warmer days the Carrick cape, coming only to the waist and composed of three scant pelerines, is well worn.

Grown up girls adopt the usual styles for women, with the more formal characteristics omitted. For example, the medici collar is not worn, as it gives too mature an aspect, and a young girl should remain young as long as possible. The capuchin also is usually avoided, except for golf or evening capes, where it is of some practical use. The great aim is to keep the entire wardrobe simple and girlish as may be, and in order to gain this end rich materials and trimmings must be eschewed and all mature styles which tend to add dignity and age to the appearance of the wearer.

The picture shows a girl's cloak of Russian green cloth. It is long and is cut quite straight, being closed at the left side by loops and large cloth buttons. A wide, stitched band of cloth ornaments the body of the cloak. The pelerine is covered with a black, braided design and is bordered with astrakhan, the collar being also of astrakhan. The sleeves have braided cuffs. The gray velvet hat is trimmed with green ribbon having a plaid border. JUDIC CHOLLET.

FANCIES OF FASHION.

Novelties For the Luxurious Woman's Wardrobe.

Panne, the beautiful new material which fashion has so eagerly adopted, is a sort of very thin, delicate velvet, something like antique velvet. It has a short, flattened pile, with a peculiar, lustrous quality, and comes in the most exquisite colorings. It is plain or is printed just as fancy silks are printed, the design being usually of a close, mixed character. There are moire effects also. Many exquisite evening wraps are made of panne, mingled with lace and fur, and it is also used as a lining for fur mantles and other luxurious garments. Neck and hat scarfs with fringed ends are also made of it.

The lining is becoming of more importance than the outside in the case of some garments. For example, a simple tailor made gown has a skirt lining entirely puffed in such tiny puffs that the effect is of a sort of mossiness. This puffing is all done by hand and is the work of great time and patience, intended to increase the expense and luxury of a costume which in itself is plain and quiet.

A picture is given which illustrates a typical winter hat. The crown is covered with bias folds of coral velvet. The brim is draped with a wide scarf of coral taffeta having fringed ends. The scarf forms a chou at the left side, from which the fringed ends droop. Points of velvet of the same shade are placed under the brim next the hair. JUDIC CHOLLET.

CHARITY.

How That of Women Exceeds the Good Deeds of Men.

During the past eight years 150 English women have disposed by will of something over fifty-two millions of dollars in personal property. Of this, more than 25 per cent. has been left to religious or charitable undertakings.

In the same period 310 English men have willed away more than three hundred and twenty-five millions of dollars, of which 11¼ per cent. only was left to religion or charity. These statitics we owe to the London Spectator. If woman disposes of money so well when she gets it, why not let her get it. Why not view with a friendly eye her efforts to capture "rights" that shall put her on a stronger competing plane?

If women go on improving in the future as they have in the recent past, we shall seriously consider making this a straight-out women's rights paper. It is not alone woman's way of leaving money in her will that makes us feel like growing long hair and a "woman's rights" expression. It is also the use she makes of money while she acts as trustee here below. Look at the Baroness Hirsh, at our Miss Helen M. Gould, at the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, and endless other noble examples. Three cheers for woman and her growing superiority! Let's let her vote.—New York Journal.

Ladies' Cape.

There are many women to whom comfort is the first consideration in selecting the different articles for their wardrobe. They prefer the easily adjusted capes to close-fitting jackets, and, in consequence, some very pretty models are shown for seasonable wraps.

Elegant black lamb's wool cloth is chosen for this comfortable cape. The novel feature is the introduction of an underlying box plait in the center back. This is narrow at the neck, and grows wider to the lower edge, where it gives extra fullness and better protection, which is acceptable at this season.

The upper part of the cape is fitted smooth by means of shoulder darts, and falls in soft, graceful folds at the lower edge. The high, flaring collar is edged with silver fox. The fastening down the front is made invisibly under an edging of fur on either side.

It is lined throughout with rich black satin, embroidered with tiny butterflies in delicate gray silk. Capes of this style may be made of pebble cheviot, melton cloth, beaver or double-faced cloakings, which in all colors come with brilliant plaids inside and do not require extra linings.

To make this cape in the medium size will require two and one-fourth yards of material fifty-four inches in width. MAY MANTON.

The Value of Pictures.

Pictures do more toward furnishing a house and determining the status of its inmates than anything else.

If you have a suspicion that you are not wise in choosing and hanging pictures get advice from some one whose taste need not be questioned.

Cheap pictures are not necessarily poor, but a poor picture is usually cheap. To be able to discern the difference is a quality with which every one is not blessed.

A good plan is to purchase copies of famous pictures, etchings and engravings. These are almost sure to be good.

In framing pictures, remember that gold frames are for oil paintings and dark pictures, white frames for watercolors, and black enamel or Flemish oak and modern oak for etchings and photographs.

To Cook Oysters in the Shell.

If one has an open fire-place the making of an oyster roast is both a delicious and novel way to prepare this sort of sea food.

See that the oysters have been nicely washed before being brought to the fire, then they are transferred from the shovel to the coals. When they open they are cooked sufficiently and are eaten with sandwiches and a salad.

Culinary Lore.

Dip sliced onions in milk before frying them.

Fried apples make an excellent breakfast dish.

Heat dry coffee before pouring on the water.

Put a little lemon juice in the water with boiling rice; it will whiten, lighten and separate the grains.

Steel Trimmings.

Never wear a dress with steel trimmings out in damp weather if you can possibly avoid it. The damp atmosphere makes the steel rusty. If it has got rusty, brush it with a paste made of crocus powder and spirits of turpentine, and afterwards polish with dry crocus powder.

Oil on the Carpet.

A careless person dropped a lamp, deluging the hall carpet with kerosene. Oatmeal was sprinkled quickly and liberally over the place and left until the next morning. When at that time the hall was swept, the oil was found to be completely absorbed, and the carpet rather the fresher for its treatment.

Hyacinths in the House.

For house-growing, hyacinths would better be planted in amalgamated cocoa-fibre and charcoal than in water alone. Press this mixture down in the glass bowl rather tightly, plant the bulb and cover with the same. Water about three times a week with tepid water until they are in bloom.

SOME QUEER FRIENDSHIPS.

Different Animals That Get Along Very Well With Each Other.

An intimate connection subsisting between different animals is known as commensalism, commesals being creatures which may be said to sit at the same table, but which do not prey upon one another. Of late years naturalists have become acquainted with numerous examples of this form of animal partnership. In one of the Chicken Islands, off the coast of New Zealand, a curious lizard, known as the tuatura, and certain species of the petrels were found inhabiting the same burrows, apparently on the best of terms. In rare cases the burrow, which consists of a passage two or three feet long, one foot broad and six inches high, is the work of the bird. As a rule, however, the lizard is the excavator. Each builds its nest on opposite sides of the chamber, the lizard almost invariably choosing the left and the petrel the right side. The lizard feeds partly on worms and beetles and partly on the remnants of fishes brought to their common table by the petrel, both animals being thus benefited by the partnership. This is probably more than can be said of the prairie dog, whose underground home is frequently shared by the rattlesnake and the burrowing owl. These were at one time supposed to form a "happy family," but considerable doubt has been cast on the point by the discovery of young prairie dogs in the stomach of the rattlesnake, which seems to indicate that commensalism in this particular case has been a one-sided affair, so far as the benefits were concerned.

It is among marine animals, however, that the most striking examples of commensalism have been observed. A feeble fish called the remora owes its success in life to the powerful alliances it forms. One of its fins have been transformed into a sucker placed right on top of its head, by means of which it attaches itself firmly to any passing shark, whale, or even ship, no doubt mistaking the latter for some huge sea monster. By these it is transported without any exertion on its own part over great distances, meanwhile picking up such food as may come in its way.

Several small fishes have been found also to habitually lodge in the mouth cavity of a Brazilian catfish, sharing such food as the latter succeeds in capturing.

Other instances might be given, such as that of the little pea crab, found in mussels and other bivalve shells, which, in return for the protection given them by the malluocan shell, gives its host a share of the food it captures.

The Trooper Stuttered.

Howard K. Brown of Syracuse, N. Y., who was in Porto Rico with Troop A, First Cavalry, tells some clever yarns about a fellow trooper who stuttered very badly.

One night while in the mountainous district it was very cold. This trooper could not find any of his outer clothes. So he went from one place to another, asking if anyone knew where they were.

"H-h- has a-a-ny one s-s-seen m-my blanket?"

He was told that no one had.

"Has a-a-ny one s-s-seen m-my p-p-poncho?"

"No."

The trooper scratched his head for a moment.

"W-w-well, I'm g-glad th-th-that I h-h-have g-g-got a w-w-warm p-p-pair of s-s-susp-p-penders on."

Again he lost his carbine. He hunted high and low for it, but could not find it. He put in his application for a new one, but could not get it in time for the inspection that followed

When the troop lined up he was the only one who had no carbine. The lieutenant saw the lack and glared at him, making up his mind to make an example of him, thinking that he had been too late to catch up his gun.

"Where the blankety-blank-blank is your carbine? How dare you come this way? What has become of your gun?"

"Lieut-t-tenant," said the trooper tranquilly, 'th-h-that i-i-is th-th-the q-q-question."

Guard-mount must always be on the minute or there is a howl from those who have been on duty. One morning the trooper was two minutes late and the sergeant called him down.

"N-n-never m-m-mind, s-s-ergeant," was the reply. "W-we are h-here- f-f-for t-t-two y-years, n-not t-t-two m-m-minutes."

Coming home on the transport it was terribly hot. The boys were swearing and howling. The trooper looked reflectively at the swirling waters.

"B-b-boys, I'll n-n-never l- l-love an-n-nother c-c-country!"

A Touch of Blarney.

Nobody can pay a prettier compliment than the Irishman, when he chooses. His tongue and wit are never nimbler than when he employs them in the service of "blarney."

A young professor from Dublin was entertained over night by an American professor at his summer home on the coast of Maine.

At breakfast the next morning, the little daughter of the house, who sat next the young Irishman, saw with amazement that he put no sugar in his tea.

"Wouldn't you like even one lump of sugar in your tea?" she asked, solicitously. My papa likes three lumps."

"Since you have looked into the cup, my little, maid, the tea is quite sweet enough," responded the young professor, gallantly.

No More Sleep-Walking.

A device to prevent sleep-walking is to lay upon the floor, by the side of the somnambulist's bed, a sheet of iron zinc, or other metal, wide enough to ensure that he will step upon it. When the sleep-walking fits comes upon him, his foot touches the cold surface of the metal, and he instinctively draws that leg into the bed again. After two or three attempts the somnambulist gives it up and settles down in bed.

Can't Be "Downed."

Ropes that will not sink when thrown into the water are proving very useful. They are made of a core composed of pieces of cork, covered with cotton.

VALUABLE WALKING STICKS.

Interesting Historical Facts About Some Famous High-Priced Canes.

In a hairdresser's window at the bath resort of La Bourboule, in France, some little time ago an ugly, ungainly cudgel, worth about six pence, was displayed, together with the notice, "A stick of genuine olive wood from Jerusalem. It formerly belonged to Pontius Pilate in the year 27 of our era. Price, 7,000 francs." Any one desirous of wasting a little time might have asked the vendor for proof of his veracity, but we, having duly recorded the existence of this remarkable stick, will pass on to that of Dr. H. Hale, of Detroit, which is, to the best of our belief, the most valuable stick extant.

It was formerly the practice of physicians, as old prints prove, to carry canes in the hollow heads of which some disinfectant was placed, which the doctor smelled through perforation in the gold top. Dr. Hale's famous staff, however, boasts of a head containing a fine chronometer, and is, with its jeweled ornaments, worth about $2,000.

It is somewhat of a co-incidence that two of Queen Victoria's most famous walking sticks should be intimately connected with the Stuart regime, but such is the case. The staff of the stick she habitually uses, we learn, is of stout English oak, and was made for and presented to Charles II by a loyal subject at Worcester, the wood being culled from a branch of the famous tree whose leafy boughs gave the wandering king shelter from the Cromwellian soldiery.

The Prince of Wales, who possesses no fewer than 172 walking sticks, is obviously a collector, but we very much doubt whether he possesses a more interesting specimen than that purchased at the Culloden sale by her majesty, the Queen, in July, 1897. The stick in question was made of hazel wood, and the head was fashioned so as to represent Wisdom and Folly, but the special interest it possesses is the fact that it was once the property of "Bonnie Prince Charlie." Her majesty became its owner by an outlay of $800.

A stick of more than ordinary interest is one fashioned from an oar belonging to one of the most famous vessels of this half century, the Confederate steamer Alabama, that eventually cost England some $17,000,000.

In July, 1890, a walking stick, once the property of George IV, and before him of George III, was sold by auction for $90.

It is somewhat strange that the stick of Napoleon Bonaparte, Great Britain's terrible opponent at the time of the regency, should be sold during the reign of the fourth George for $190—the stick, by the way, was of tortoise shell.

His Reputation Second to None.

Little knot of lawyers were swapping yarns in an office on Corondelet Street New Orleans, when somebody mentioned an attorney, now dead, who enjoyed a great reputation in his day for rough and ready repartee.. "The old Major," as we used to call him, said one of the party, "certainly had a handy tongue. I remember, years ago, there was a riverman who had made his headquarters here, and who was especially famous for two things—his enormous appetite and his tendency to draw the long bow. On one occasion he got into a wrangle with a cotton factor over some alleged tampering with a consignment that turned up short, and a lawsuit was the result. The Captain told a pretty damaging story on the witness stand, and the other side, knowing his reputation for romancing, attempted to impeach his evidence. Among others called for that purpose was the old major, who came with extreme reluctance and proceeded to dodge all the questions asked him. Finally the young lawyer who was doing the examining got mad. 'Look here Sir!' he exclaimed. 'I want a direct answer without any further evasion. What do you know about this man's reputation for truth and veracity?' 'Well, Sir, replied the Major deliberately. 'I can't say as to his reputation for truth, but his reputation for voracity is second to none in New Orleans.' There was a roar of laughter and the case collapsed.

Doing Too Much.

"That is the fourth paper I have seen that has a department headed, 'What Women Are Doing,'" he exclaimed, throwing down the newspaper.

"Well, what of it?" she demanded aggressively, for she was one who might properly be classed as an advanced woman.

"What of it?" he exclaimed. "It's altogether too broad and sweeping. Eight or ten years ago it might have been all right for a department, but now such a heading as that includes the whole paper. If they want to get up something off in one corner of the sheet somewhere they ought to head it 'What Women Are Not Doing.'"

One Follows the Other.

"After all," said the bachelor, "the difference between love and dyspepsia is purely relative. It is a matter of time only. One is future and the other is past."

"How do you mean," asked the bewildered maid.

"The lover doesn't want to eat and the dyspeptic wishes he hadn't," answered the bachelor, thereby thinking he had scored one on the sex that was continually disturbing his peace of mind.—Chicago Post.

A Helmet for Headache.

A French doctor has invented an electric helmet, inside of which is a small motor that vibrates strips of steel, the motor making 600 turns per minute. This whizzing is supposed to cure nervous headache and put the sufferer to sleep.

With the Procession.

An ingenious mechanical device pastes paper labels on 100,000 cans in ten hours. Down a chute rolls a ceaseless procession of cans, and each picks up a label as it passes.

But Not as Good.

A quart of oysters contain, on the average about the same quantity of untritive substance as a quart of milk or a pound of very lean beef.

MISS ELIZABETH

"So Miss Pyser's got to go to the poor farm," said Mrs. Green. "I'm surprised that's she's kep' out of it so long."

"Yes," said portly, pompous Mrs. Barker, wife of the chairman of the selectmen, "my husband told me this noon that she had applied to the town for help, and of course they can't support her in her own house."

"I said 'twas flying in the face of fate when she took those two children to bring up; one died and t'other ran away, and now she's all alone."

The vinegar-faced dame who had thus delivered herself settled to her work with a self-congratulatory look, as if she thanked the Lord that she was not as others were.

Mrs. Barker crossed her hands in stately idleness; it did not become the wife of the richest man in Bayville to sew at the fortnight circle; her presence was all-sufficient.

Miss Berry, who sat beside her, looked up from her seam. Her sallow face was a trifle pale.

"You don't mean to say that the Willowdale people are going to allow Elizabeth Pyser to go on the town after all the good she's done?" she asked.

"Why not?" returned Mrs. Barker. "It ain't their fault that she's wasted her money. She's shiftless—always givin' something to somebody; and meek—meek as Moses; you'd think she dasn't say her soul's her own; but she's deep!" And with a sigh of commiseration at the unworthiness of poor little Miss Pyser, she closed her mouth with a snap. She had never forgiven her for being Mr. Barker's first love, and she half suspected that he would be quite willing to exchange his energetic and short-tempered wife for the sweetheart of his youth. "But you musn't whisper that I told you this, for Mr. Barker says women never know enough to keep anything to themselves."

"I'm sure we never gossip here," said Mrs. Green.

"Where are you goin', Miss Berry? Ain't you goin' to stop to tea?"

"No, I guess I'd better be gettin' home early to-night; Bessie'll be waiting for me."

"Now I'll bet Clarindy Berry's gone straight over to the millin'ry store to spread the news; so afraid she won't be the first to tell it. Thank Heaven, I know enough to keep things to myself!"

But Miss Berry was not going to the store nor to spread the news; she knew that it was unprecedented for her to leave the sewing meeting before tea time; but as she listened to the talk the days of her girlhood rose before her when she and Elizabeth Pyser were "chums," and told each other all their secrets; then came a foolish little quarrel, and they had not exchanged words for twenty years.

She walked straight down the street, turned the corner, and without giving herself time to change her mind, entered Miss Pyser's garden and went up the walk bordered with bouncing-bets, or "old maid's pinks." When, in answer to her knock, Miss Pyser opened the door, neither knew what to say, but straightway fell into each other's arms and began to cry.

The door closed on them. An hour after when Miss Berry left the house to go to her own home, there was a springiness in her step, and a smile playing about the corners of her thin lips, that betokened unusual excitement.

Her pretty niece, Bessie, was about to sit down to her lonely tea when Miss Berry made her appearance.

"Why, auntie! What brings you home so early?" she asked pleasantly.

"Oh, I couldn't stand the clatter of those old women. Now you needn't laugh, Bessie Berry; I know I'm no chicken myself; but if I'm as heartless as them I left behind, I hope I'll die before morning."

"Well, what's the matter? You seem to be excited."

"No, I ain't! I'm just as calm as you are. But I've been makin' calls this afternoon. I went to see Betty Pyser. I kep' questionin' her till she told me all about how she lost her money in the bank that failed over to Coveton; the man that owned the house, he let her stay in it out of pity; first she earned a little by sewin' but lately folks didn't seem to want any work done, and she just shut herself up there to starve. But human nature got the best of her, and she had to go to the town. She's always been hoping that that good-for-nothing Johnnie would come home, but she's about giv' him up now. I asked her how much of the furniture was hers, and kep' a hintin' and a hintin' till I found out everything that she could tell me; and I enjoyed every minute."

She paused, out of breath with excitement, and remained for some time in deep thought. Bessie, too, was silent. She divined what was passing in her aunt's mind.

"Say, Bessie," said Miss Berry at last, "do you think we could contrive to keep another? I can't bear the thought of having Elizabeth go to the poor farm. There's that back chamber with nothing in it, and she's got her own furniture——"

She looked appealingly at the girl, who did not immediately answer. To undertake the care of another meant additional sacrifices, more rigid economy. She sighed a little; life was hard enough for her already. Should she add to her burden? Would she be just to herself in doing so? Then she thought of the days when she and John Pyser were boy and girl lovers, and made wonderful plans of what they would do when they grew up. She had never lost faith in John; some day if he lived, she knew he would come back to them. A light sprang into her pretty blue eyes, and she met her aunt's look with a smile.

"Miss Elizabeth musn't go on the town, auntie. There's plenty of room for her here, and we'll drive over this very evening and bring her home."

After her guest had departed, Miss Elizabeth sank to the old lounge that had witnessed so many confidences, and the tears flowed down her thin cheeks. She thought she had hardened herself for what the morrow would bring; but now she was a forlorn old maid, crying because she must become the companion of Crazy Jane and Witless Will. How little she had dreamed of this in the days when she was young and pretty, and every one called her Bess. One there was who swore she was the apple of his eye; but he would not undertake the care of her orphaned nephew and niece, and she would not desert them; so he left her for another. Now he was an important person in the town, a selectman; and she gave a little gasp, and hoped he would not be the one chosen to come for her to-morrow; she really didn't think she could bear that.

This was the last night in her own home, and she could not swallow the morsel of bread that formed her evening repast; something would rise in her throat and choke her every time she tried.

Hark! a wagon was rumbling up to the gate; could it be that the last night at home was to be denied her? A loud knock brought her trembling to the door. A burly teamster stood there, and by his side Miss Berry and Bessie; what could it mean?

"Betty, you are coming home with Bessie and me. Tell us what furniture to take, and let this man get it," said Miss Berry; and she drew the dumbfounded woman aside and in a few words explained matters.

Almost dazed Miss Elizabeth sank on the old lounge, while Miss Berry went from room to room selecting the articles needed. Then Bessie brought the bonnet and shawl that lay ready for to-morrow's journey, and together she and Miss Berry led her to her new home.

Could it be possible that the poor house was a thing of the past? She must be dreaming. By to-morrow, surely, she would wake up to the awful reality.

But it was no dream, and the next morning Miss Elizabeth awoke with the feeling that an awful catastrophe had been averted and the sword which had been hanging over her head for so long a time had been prevented from falling by the kind intervention of her old-time friend.

As Bessie had anticipated the coming of another into the little home circle meant more self denial for herself. New frocks and hats were out of the question; but she ripped and sponged and remade her winter dress, and her nimble fingers and good taste soon brought out of the ruins of last season's wardrobe a brand new outfit in which she looked as pretty as a pink.

As for the two old friends, they fairly worshiped the girl who was the joy as well as the sunlight of their home. So this happy family dwelt together in peace and harmony, independent of outsiders, until an event happened which broke up the home circle.

One day a stranger strode into the town father's office and asked in a voice that commanded instant attention—

"Where is Miss Elizabeth Pyser?"

The clerk answered that she had become somewhat reduced in circumstances, and had applied to the town for aid; and so—and so—

"And you sent her to the poorhouse! Was there no one in this God-forsaken hole to pay her back a little of the kindness she had always shown others?"

"Yes," the young man said. "Miss Berry took her in." And he told the stranger where to find her.

It was Miss Elizabeth's turn to be electrified when a prosperous looking man soon presented himself at Miss Berry's house and inquired if his Aunt Bess lived there.

"I am Elizabeth Pyser, sir," she inquired in response to his inquiries.

"Why, auntie, don't you remember Johnnie?" he exclaimed.

Miss Elizabeth had grown very white, and slipped into a lifeless heap on the floor; but joy never kills, and when she recovered it was realized that her troubls were over, for Johnnie was well-to-do and able to take care of her for the remainder of her days.

The old house was bought back and refurnished, and Johnnie and his aunt soon settled into the old life. She petted him to her heart's content, and he alternately fondled and teased her, just as he had done years before when he wore pinafores, and she had sent him to bed without any supper, and then carried him up sandwiches for fear he might be hungry.

And Bessie Berry also returned to the old routine, and was as busy and cheerful as ever though her aunt thought she seemed rather quieter than of yore, particularly when John Pyser came to see them, as he did more frequently as time rolled on.

"Aunt Bess," said John one day, in rather a shamefaced manner, "don't you think you should have some young person in the house to do the work?"

"O Johnnie!" cried the little woman in fear and trembling. "Don't I please you? I know I am getting old, but I thought you was used to my ways and we could get along. I don't want a girl botherin' round."

"Of course I'll do anything to make you happier, Johnnie, though I don't see how a servant can make home any pleasanter for you. As for me, I should just rust out and die if I didn't have something to do."

The dear old lady was almost in tears.

"Auntie, it isn't exactly a servant I want; it's—in fact—"

Johnnie really couldn't say the words; he hardly dared think them as yet; but he crossed the room to Aunt Bess and whispered in her ear.

"Oh, John," she cried delightedly, "how stupid of me! It's just the thing! And I never thought of it before!"

Miss Elizabeth was in a flutter of pleasure. She urged her nephew to go at once on his errand.

"I'll sit up till you come home. Won't it be like a story if Bessie becomes your wife?"

"Perhaps she won't have me, Aunt Bess."

"Pshaw! Go along! What's worth having is worth asking for. Have you? Of course she will! She's sensible, Bessie is."

And Miss Elizabeth looked with pride on the stalwart young man, who, although he was not handsome, had an honest manly face that a woman could trust.

Aunt Bess was right. And now the two families are one, and the "old maids" vie with each other in petting and spoiling their grown-up children, who in return for the kindness shown them in their youth, make their lives one long happy dream.—Masachusetts Ploughman.

Food of Poor Russians.

In some parts of Russia the only food for the people consists at present of acorns, leaves and the soft bark of trees.

THE ARMY CHAPLAIN.

Different Ways of Reaching the Hearts of the Soldier Boys.

While military men and office-seekers of almost every other sort are using every effort to secure commissions in the new volunteer regiments, no large and loud clamor for the positions of chaplain have been made public. The regiments in the Philippines are not overburdened with these black-coated officers as it is, and it is entirely probable that most of the ten additional regiments will leave without them. The chaplains are appointed by the President, but their assignments are usually to posts rather than regiments, and they are a function of peace time.

Dr. S. S. Turner, who is one of the examining surgeons at the Chicago recruiting station, was talking a few days ago about the chaplains he had known in his long experience upon Western posts and Indian reservations. He inclines to the theory that an army chaplain can do more good by example than active campaigning. He has seen some of them try to "convert men on the spot," as he says, and most of them fail. He is heartily in favor of them as an institution, however, because of their excellent assistance and benefit to the enlisted men. The surgeon and the chaplain have opportunities to do good outside the strict lines of their professions, which most of them are quick to seize upon and many a soldier in trouble has found a friend in them.

"The best chaplain I ever knew," said Dr. Turner, "served at Fort Randall for nearly twenty years. He was a Catholic priest, who had lived all his life at a community down in Ohio some place, and was appointed from there. His whole experience in life was drawn from those two close neighborhoods—the monastery and the army post. He knew absolutely nothing about the world outside, and was the most guileless man I ever saw. Yet he was one of the best things we had around that post. He was broad in his religious views if he was narrow in his observation in life, and had no hesitancy in reading the Episcopalian morning prayers occasionally at his services or of using the forms of the other churches in burials or the few weddings he officiated at. He did his greatest good in just living there in his quarters. He was a quiet, studious man, and his quarters were visited many a time by the men who were in trouble, and needed a friend's advice. The officers cannot always help the men out of their scrapes, but this man could. He considered that that was the example of that simple old man, living there alone, doing good, and with a kind word for everybody, saved more of the wild young fellows from going to the devil than all the preaching he could have done on week days as well as Sundays.

"That is what I think a chaplain ought to be like. Men who are in the army don't usually cotton to preaching. The rules and articles of war keep them pretty well supplied with precepts and the chaplain finds his greatest usefulness in other things. I knew one chaplain who used to stop the men on the parade or anywhere else he might meet them and talk to them about their souls. But they never seemed to like him much, and he wasn't popular about the post. I have known several of the other type. They were just as religious and good as this active campaigner, and they got along lots better. The good ones don't preach dogma. They talk about the correct way of living, and watch out for chances to befriend the men. The best way to a soldier's soul is through his heart."

A BOER CAPTURE.

How a Correspondent Was Taken Prisoner and Treated.

We got through safely as far as Elandslaagte, but at that point the signal was dead against us and the driver pulled up. The signal had been cleverly manipulated by a party of Boers numbering about fifty who had been lying in wait for us. The moment we slowed down the driver was covered by their rifles and we were called upon to alight. The passenger train we learned afterward, had managed to "rush" the station. The Boers had fired upon it, but the plucky engine driver put on full steam and went safely ahead, though he was compelled to leave the guard behind. The Boers had taken possession of the station, and ordered the man in charge to set the signal at "stop" in order to check our train. Our driver ran right into the trap, and we found ourselves prisoners before we well knew what had occurred.

Directly they had secured the train, the Boers cut the telegraph line and tore up the tracks. We ourselves were treated well, though the field cornet in command warned us that any one attempting to escape would, if discovered, be immediately shot down. At the same time, he assured us that the Boers were not savages. Those under his charge consisted of Transvaalers, Free Staters and Dutchmen from Cape Colony who were British subjects. My enforced stay with the enemy was not without its amusing features.

General De Koch with a few guns and 1,500 men, including a German contingent, arrived in camp the same night. It was evident to us from the conversation of the leaders that a battle was impending. I and my fellow prisoners were strictly warned to remain within doors under guard. During our confinement the proceedings of one or two of the more turbulent Boers caused us some anxiety. Two of them actually came to blows in our room, and had to be separated by force. But the leaders were on the whole particularly careful to place us under the charge of well disposed and trustworthy men. On Friday night our field cornet, although nodding in his chair for want of sleep, presided for an hour over another smoking concert, when the utmost jollity prevailed. We prisoners slept on the veit, while the majority of the Boers withdrew to a short distance from the railway.

On Saturday morning we were startled by the sound of the British guns, and began to hope that there might be a prospect of rescue or escape. Our desire was soon realized. The Boers, including our guards, speedily found enough to occupy their attention without troubling about a handful of civilian prisoners, and in the course of the morning we made our way unmolested to the British lines. There we were enabled to follow the whole course of the battle of Elandslaagte.—London Standard.

SIZES OF SPROCKETS.

From Small to Large and Now Smaller Again.

It is on the card that big sprocket wheels have had their day; and while this is meant to apply mainly to extremes, it is by no means unlikely that a reaction will shortly set in that will once more bring in smaller and possibly small chain wheels. The evident desire for somewhat lighter machines is likely to do much to bring this about.

With the coming of the safety machine, and the consequent necessity of gearing up to obtain even a moderate degree of speed, the bicycle sprocket wheel made its appearance. As at first fitted it was neither large nor small. Weight had not become a burning question at that time, and makers naturally pursued the happy mean in the matter of sprocket-wheel sizes. They were too much occupied with other problems of a pressing nature to descend to such trivialties as the proper number of teeth sprocket wheels should contain.

After most of the problems had been settled—a process which took some years—the weight question assumed great importance. In looking about for ways to lighten machines, the sprocket wheels and chain could not long be overlooked. Widths of chains ran the whole scale—from five-eighths to three-sixteenths, and even, in a few cases, to one-eighth; thus covering the two extremes and finally settling at about one-quarter inch. At the same time the number of teeth in the chain wheel was cut down. Instead of nine and ten-tooth rear sprockets that formerly ruled. They came down to six and even to five, while the front chain wheels underwent only slight alteration, for the demand for higher gears partly kept pace with the increase that resulted from the use of small rear sprockets.

The craze for light weights and small sprocket wheels reached a period at practically the same time. Straightway both began to retrace their steps, but sprocket wheels cut a much faster pace than did weights. They climbed steadily upward, until nine and ten-tooth rear wheels became customary once more. As gears had been climbing also, the front spockets had to be increased in proportion, until twenty-five teeth ceased to be unusual, and even larger sizes than this were not abnormal. On "freak" machines thirty teeth were not at all uncommon.

The additional weight necessitated by the use of such chain wheels was considerable. Chains were much narrowed, of course but the additional length—four and one-half feet being required in some instances—almost counterbalanced this gain. As to the sprocket wheels themselves, there was nothing to set against the additional weight, and had it not been for the complacence of the riding public in the matter of weight the use of such large chain wheels would not have been tolerated. This apathy as regards weight and the advantage, real or supposed, obtained by the use of large sprockets, made it possible to fit them.

Once more the time seems ripe for a change. Extremely large chain wheels are no longer in favor, and there is some danger that even the medium ones—say nine and ten-tooth rear and twenty-three to twenty-five front—will have to go. They have been in use so long that they have lost their novelty, and many riders would hail a drop with acclamation. At the same time it should be borne in mind that this is a matter which depends very largely on the question of weight. Any considerable reduction in this respect must be brought about partly by the use of smaller sprocket wheels.—Bicycle World.

Light Tires For Winter.

Rather a curious theory, one directly opposed to generally accepted ideas, is advanced by an English rider. He contends that light tires are better suited for winter than for summer ridin. His reasons have much to comtion of riders at this time, when many are contemplating changes of equipmend them and are worth the attenment for winter riding. He says he finds the light road racing tires are good in the mud of winter, do not cut on freshly laid stone patches, do not side slip as much as big tires and are not uncomfortable, because most of the time in winter the roads are "padded" with mud. On the other hand the narrow hard tires, except the best of them, bump distressingly on the dry roads; they puncture easily. Vibration, it is agreed, is the chief thing suffered from small tires.

As one rides longer distances and at a higher rate of speed in summer a tire of 1⅝ inches diameter is therefore better than one of 1⅛ inches for summer use, unless one desires to scorch, while for cutting through the mud of winter the "speed" tires will lessen the exertion and the side slip. While the road conditions in England differ from our, and there are several things to be said on the other side of this proposition, the points made are too well taken to be unheeded.

Billiards While Riding.

Impossible as it may seem, a billiard match has been played on bicycles, the opponents on the occasion being a prominent Parisian journalist and an equally well-known artist. This proved a greater test of skill than the match between players on horseback, as the bicycle players were compelled to make their strokes while the bicycle was in motion, it being one of the stipulations of the match that if either of the players halted during a stroke or allowed his bicycle to touch the table, the score, if any, was to be accredited to his opponent. The artist ultimately won easily, and enriched himself by a new bicycle in consequence. The most unique billiard match on record was that in which a German crack defeated a well-known English amateur, the conditions stipulating that the German must not let any of the balls touch a cushion during the game of 200 upon peril of forfeiting the prize. If the balls were left against the cushion they were to be moved three inches out in a straight line. The German succeeded in winning without violating these conditions, making a break of 67 in the course of the game, a marvelous performance under the circumstances.

Jeffries now talks of taking on Corbett before he does Sharkey.

THE CROWNS OF KINGS.

Their Intrinsic Value and Interesting Histories—The Brummagem Crown.

There are few things which appeal so largely to the imagination as the crowns of kings, which, though lying lightly on the palm, are worth many tons of gold and almost every stone of which is a chapter of history. One of the most interesting of European crowns is that of Hungary, a curious composite crown in possession of the Emperor of Austria, which disappeared for several years in mysterious fashion and reappeared as mysteriously.

The crown consists of a circle of gold, richly jewelled with pearls and other costly gems, to which has been attached an old Byzantine crown, bearing an enormous sapphire in a setting of green stones. Just half a century ago this historic crown came into the hands of Kossuth, and, in spite of the most diligent search, nothing was heard of it for five years. At the end of this time it was discovered by a peasant in a hollow tree and restored to the Emperor's keeping.

The famous iron crown of Lombardy, which is now treasured in an Italian cathedral, is the oldest and most sacred of all the crowns of Europe. It is fashioned around a circlet of iron made from one of the nails with which Christ was pierced at the Crucifixion, and from its sacred character is held in the highest veneration. Although through all the centuries the iron band has remained untouched, it is said that no spot of rust has ever been seen on it.

There is no crown quite so imposing as that with which the Russian Czars are crowned. It is fashioned in the form of a mitre, to typify the spiritual sovereignity of the Czars, and it is crowned by a dazzling cross of enormous diamonds with a ruby centre.

In marked contrast to the magnificence of the Russian crown is the simple design of the crown of Denmark. This crown, which is of the most delicate and exquisite art, consists of a gold circlet, wreathed in leaves. Each leaf is traced in precious stones and bears one gem of almost priceless value.

The German crown, which is appropriately militant in design, contains eight shields bearing alternate black eagles and jewelled crosses, while poised on four arches blazing with diamonds is a globe crowned by a cross of gold.

The State crown of Great Britain was made sixty-one years ago for our queen's coronation, and is among the lightest of European crowns. Although it weighs only two pounds, seven ounces, its value is $1,600,000 or at the rate of nearly $50,000 an ounce, and it contains 3,000 stones, many of them historical.

One enormous sapphire came from the signet ring of Edward the Confessor, and, from this sacred association, is reported to have the power of healing disease. One of the rubies, however, has a sadly tragic history. It was at one time in the possession of one of the Kings of Grenada, whom Pedro the Cruel, invited to his palace, and basely murdered out of greed for his gem.

In the Pope's treasure house are two crowns, which together are valued at $2,500,000. One of them, the gift of the great Napoleon to Pius VII., has the largest emerald in the world, and the other, the gift of Queen Isabella of Spain to Pius IX., weighs three pounds and is worth $1,000,000.

It is interesting to note that the crown has no part in the coronation of the Kings of Spain and Belgium and the Sultan of Turkey. Its place is taken in Turkey by a sword, which is regarded as the symbol of Divine authority.

In ludicrous contrast to these miracles of gold and gems with which European monarchs are invested are the "Brummagem" crowns under which African chiefs love to strut and posture. These are manufactured by hundreds in Birmingham, and are a blaze of mimic gold and paste "stones" of all the colors of the rainbow.

Their prices range from $5 to $500 or $1,000, and even Solomon in all his glory pales before the vision of an ebony chief in the discarded apparel of a Lord Mayor's footman, and wearing in all its paste brilliancy a ten dollar Brummagem crown.

Best Place to Be Robbed.

Of all cities in the world, if a person must be robbed, Vienna is the town in which to have the performance enacted. Some time ago a Boston gentleman had his watch, a valuable gold one, and a sum of money stolen from him while in that city. He offered $50 reward for the recovery of the property. The watch did not appear, and on returning to America he left his name and address and the number of his watch, together with the amount of the reward, with the police. A short time ago the gentleman received his watch, together with the reward intact, and a polite note from the Director saying that it was against the rules for policemen to recive money rewards; of course if a civilian had recovered the watch the reward would have been paid. The only charge was 50 cents, the expense of transporting the watch from New York to Boston. The thief had been arrested in Vienna, the watch had been found upon him and forwarded by the City Government of Vienna free of charge to New York. There is a degree of innocence about the Vienna police that suggests odious comparisons.

Struck the Right Attorney.

Owing to good crops and other causes, the prosperity of Kansas has been very great during the last year or two, and thousands of farmers have ben enabled to remove the financial encumbrances that rested upon their broad acres.

A man in one of the interior counties, having disposed of his crop to good advantage and finding himself possessed of several thousand dollars in cash, went to the county seat one day, and while on his way to the courthouse stepped into an attorney's office to obtain a little legal advice.

"You're a lawyer, ain't you?" he said, addressing the only occupant of the room.

"Yes, sir," answered the other. "What can I do for you?"

"What's your name?"

"My name is Derrick."

"You'll do." rejoined the farmer, nodding his head. "I want your help, Mr. Derrick in liftin a mortgage off my farm."—Youths' Companion.

MASCULINE FASHIONS.

Dress Suits, Sack Coats and Trousers and House Coats.

Extremists in dress are endeavoring to introduce the wearing of braided seams on evening dress trousers. This attempt must be classed with the recent one to create a vogue for velvet collars on dress coats. Both are vagaries of fashion that will be eschewed by men of taste, who are jealous of the severe simplicity of evening clothes, endeared alike by custom and tradition Occasionally a fad of this sort may be tacitly sanctioned by correct dressers, but they quickly tire of it. By most men braided seams, velvet collars and like innovations in evening attire are regarded as a species of grotesqueness in apparel to be treated with amused tolerance.

Stripes and checks in sack suits are little approved by the fastidious. Dark mixtures in rough fabrics, such as cheviots and unfinished worsteds, are very stylish. Serges, except rough cloths, have been relegated to the background. Cheviots with a sprinkling of red, brown or green in the patterns are eminently correct. Sack suits are cut loose, and hence keep their shape easily Trousers are wider than heretofore, and will doubtless before long attain the English standard of fullness.

Smoking jackets and house coats have not escaped the reaction from gaudy colors that prevails in most branches of men's apparel. At one time recently the design was so aggressively loud as to induce a belief that the limit had been reached through sheer inability to go further. Fashionable house coats are sold for $5 to $25. They are made of fancy worsteds with silk figures, plaid vicunas, Bedford cords, velveteens and broadcloth, prettily adorned at the cuffs, collars, lapels and pocket flaps. They are to be had in plaids, checks and velvets, lined and unlined, with silk cording, satin binding or quilted satin facings. The range of prices is wide.

Merchant tailors who are indisputably the arbiters of fashion in men's clothes, have decided to revive braided edges on frock and cutaway coats. During the last few years raw edges held sole sway. It is predicted that the change will be gradual.

Horseshoes have given a decided fillip to the popularity of riding whips, spurs, horses' heads, crops, stirrups, buckles, whiffletrees and other articles of jewelry emblematic of equestrianism. Needless to add, the fewer and plainer the ornaments worn the clearer the proof of their owner's good taste.

Wives and Mothers.

I cannot close this paper without a reference to the unjust laws relating to wives and mothers, which disgrace the statute books of most of the states and which should be annulled Only a very small proportion of the states of the American federation allow the married father and mother to be equally legal owners and controllers of their minor children Their legal ownership resides in the father; the mother who bore them, who won them at the risk of her life in the valley of death, is denied a share in them. The laws in many states not only give to the father the minor children, but the legal ownership of the wife's person and earnings, which practicaly reduces her to slavery. To the husband is given the right of choosing the domicile of the family, regardless of the wishes of the wife. If the husband dies intestate the law divides his property among his heirs, and very often in such a way as to cause great hardship to his wife. These unjust statutes are an inheritance from a long-gone past, and were not formulated by the legislators of the present. The majority of American husbands and fathers are better than these laws, and never enforce them, and many are entirely ignorant of their existence. Still, their influence is felt in the community, and their practical results are always disastrous to the home and the family, when interpreted by men who lack an ideal comprehension of the worth and glory of motherhood and home.—Mary A. Livermore in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for December.

An Unbroken Rule.

"Look at that bicycle," exclaimed the woman as she identified it in the cloakroom and saw that it had been knocked about badly.

"Yes'm, I've been looking at it," was the humble reply of the official.

"It's all smashed to pieces."

"Yes'm,"

"And it was done on this line."

"Yes'm."

"Well, what do you propose to do about it?"

"I'll report it to the foreman, ma'am, and he'll report it to the station master, and the station master to the general manager, and the general manager to the Board of Directors, and some day, three or four years hence, a lawyer will call on you and want to know why you didn't travel with your bicycle in a properly made case. That's our routine, ma'am, and we never deviate—not even when the guards forget to leave us a piece of the machine."—Exchange.

Study of Forestry.

The report of the first year's work of the School of Forestry at Cornell shows that this course has become attractive and popular. The state made an appropriation for instruction there, and devoted a further sum to the acquisition of a tract of 30,000 acres in the Adirondacks, during a period of thirty years, for practical demonstrations. The academic year began under some disadvantages, as this area had not then been transferred, yet notwithstanding that fact the class rolls in the foresty course shows thirty-one, thirty-five and fifteen students for the fall, winter and spring terms respectively.

Where Smoking Is a Crime.

France's Anti-Tobacco Society is going to make Negus Menelik a member. The society has learned that smoking is almost unknown in Abyssina, and is punished as a crime when practiced. French explorers have to smoke their cigarettes in secret.

ful possibilities of spiritual attainment before them.

"4. And shows that they are created in Christ Jesus unto good works and that as believers they are united 'in one living body destined to be brought into full comformity to the image of Christ.' He dwells upon the importance of living rightly day by day."

Mr. Shelton then dwelt upon other remarkable qualities of the epistle.

After Mr. Shelton concluded his remarks, Mr. Travell called the attention to those present to the meetings to be held every evening this week at the Y. M. C. A., commencing at 7:45 o'clock. He urged all to be on hand promptly. If the place of meeting is found to be too small for the attendance, the meetings will be held at the First Presbyterian church.

Preceding each lecture during the week Mr. Shelton will give a ten minute address on "How To Study the Bible." The conference will include five studies in the Epistle to the Ephesians as follows: Monday evening, "The View given by the Epistle of God the Father;" Tuesday evening, "The View given by the Epistle of the Person and Work of Jesus Christ;" Wednesday evening, "The View given by the Epistle of the Work of the Holy Spirit;" Thursday evening, "Standards of Duty;" Friday evening, "The Panoply of God."

The first regular meeting of the Bible Conference will be held this evening at 7:45 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. The session will open with a prayer and praise service, Mr. Shelton will speak briefly on "How to study the Bible," and the regular subject for the evening will be "The View of God the Father given by the Epistle to the Ephesians."

—There will be election of officers this evening at the meeting of the Camera Club.

—Next Friday afternoon in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church Mrs. J. F. Pingry, of New York, will address the members of the Woman's Home Missionary Society.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even set up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong I can say too much in it praise." This marvelous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all Throat and Lung Trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed.

What Can You Do With It?

This is a question we can answer better after we have seen the garment you want dyed. When our wagon is in your neighborhood, let it bring your goods to the store and then, at your convenience, come in and let us tell you just what we can do and the cost. Don't be prejudiced against dyeing. Ofttimes you can't tell the goods from new.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

The Leal School sent its best football team to Westfield Saturday, but the boys of the Westfield High School proved too much for them and they were defeated by a score of 10 to 0. There was a big crowd on the Broad street grounds to see the game, which proved to be one of the most interesting seen so far this season.

COUNTY WILL NOT PAY

Policemen Who Served at Polls Must Look Elsewhere for Pay, Says County Attorney Codington.

County Attorney Codington has rendered an opinion to the Board of Freeholders that the county is not liable for the pay of policemen who were on duty at the various polling places in the county at the November election and who demand $3 each for their services.

Attorney Coddington says that they must look to the various municipalities where they were employed for their compensation and not to the Board of Freeholders. Mr. Coddington has learned that this is the rule followed in all other counties.

In accordance with this opinion all bills from officers were rejected last week at the regular meeting of the Board of Freeholders.

WILL COME DOWN.

Trolley Fare From Westfield to This City is Eventually to be Dropped to a Nickel.

The Hon. Chandler W. Riker, president of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company in talking with a representative of the Elizabeth Journal regarding the ten cent fare being charged from Westfield to Plainfield depot, informed the Journal representative that the ten cent fare was not to be a permanent thing, but eventually the rate would be five cents.

Mr. Riker said his company had not selected a terminal at Plainfield. When this was done the fare would be five cents. Just where the terminal will be located is not yet known, but it will probably be in the vicinity of Plainfield depot or in some other section of the shopping district.

To Fix Blackford's Bail.

John L. Blackford, the New Jersey Central detective who was arrested in New York on a charge of bigamy and taken to Elizabeth Saturday, is in the county jail. He will probably be arraigned before Judge Vail in the Union County Court of Special Sessions Wednesday and his bail fixed. Blackford has declined to discuss the case.

Death of Fred Miner.

A Pure and Simple Poker Story.

This is a poker story pure and simple. It was a particularly naughty game, too, because it was played by a young woman of high social standing against her own father, and the cheating that went on—but that comes later in the tale.

The thing really began last summer. This particular girl began to tease her respected papa for a new horse and trap.

Papa pleaded poverty, but the young woman kept on until the other night the thing was at last decided.

"I think it's mean," she cried almost tearfully. "You and Uncle Tom and the boys were playing poker last night, and I know you won. You might give me that trap."

Papa laughed and said something about penny ante, but one of the aforementioned "boys" who happened to be present suddenly looked up at the woebegone maiden with a sly wink.

"I tell you what, Uncle Ned," he drawled, "suppose you play her for it. If you win she's never to mention it again under penalty of starvation, and if she wins she can have it."

Papa poo-hooed a bit, but Uncle Tom came in and joined against him, the girl herself was willing, and so, as her luck on the few occasions when she had played poker had been proverbially bad, at last her stern parent relented, and the game began.

But he had counted without his host. There were three, not one, against him, and "the cards they were stacked in a way that I grieve."

He began to lose and kept on losing. He held fair hands, but his daughter's were always a little better, and for such a greenhorn at the game she played them with a skill that was remarkable.

Of course she won. The game was got up with the express purpose that she should win.

And equally, of course, she got the trap. She has it now. They meant to tell papa the "little joke," but they haven't yet, because he is heard to use improper language whenever the dainty vehicle comes in view. Also, incidentally, he has left off playing poker. Says he can't afford it. Whereat his wife is joyful. So wasn't that a case of one small wrong making two rights?

THIRTY-TWO ARE DEAD.

Latest Report of the Mine Horror in Washington.

Colonado, Wash., Dec. 11.—Stunned by the suddenness of Saturday night's horror, the people seem too dazed for any expression of grief of a demonstrative nature.

Thirty-two is the number of dead. Two men were rescued after being entombed in the mine all night. One of them said:

"I was working on the fourth crosscut when the explosion came. After that I went to sleep, and somebody came and woke me up and took me out of there."

That was the total measure of his period of consciousness. He had lain in the cool depth for eighteen hours and had not the least conception of this length of time. The other man had been groping around in the darkness all night on his hands and knees, seeking for some avenue of escape. The injured number five. Governor Rogers will conduct a searching examination as to the cause of the explosion. He telegarphed State Mine Inspector Owens to attend the inquest and examine witnesses. The question of insufficient ventilation of the mine, in accordance with the state law, will be gone into. Coroner Hoskel has gone to Tacoma to selest his jurors.

The theory of Superintendent Davies is that a small pocket of gas was opened, became ignited and caused the terrific explosion of dust. The total number of men in the shaft was seventy-six, of whom forty-four are alive.

Almost Killed by Strikers.

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 11.—Jacob Takakjian, a silk weaver, was almost beaten to death Sunday afternoon by four strikers from the Summit Silk Mill, at Summit, because he went there to work. The strikers came to Paterson in search of him, knowing that he would spend the day here with his family. They knocked him down and beat and kicked him until he became unconscious. Then they threw red pepper into his face. The strikers then jumped on a trolley car to escape, but the alarm was given and the car was stopped. The conductor and motorman held the men prisoners until the police came.

An Express Company Robbed.

Cheyenne, Wyoming, Dec. 11.—The office of the Pacific Express Company in this city was robbed Saturday evening of several thousand dollars. When Agent O. C. Brownlee entered the office he found the safe open and the money gone. The robbery has been kept very quiet and only became public Sunday night. The express company officials refuse to state the amount of money taken, but it is reported at from $10,000 to $15,000. Agent Brownlee and the entire office force are under surveillance pending the result of an investigation now in progress.

Indians Will Play in California.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 11.—Manager Muma of the University of California football eleven has announced that he has wired the Carlisle Indian eleven, accepting their proposition for a game either on Christmas of New Year's. The Carlisle Indians want $4,000 for the expenses of the trip. Mr. Muma stated that games with either Chicago or Wisconsin University were improbable. A dispatch from Chicago announcing that the Chicago University team was planning a Western trip was a surprise to the public here, as it had been understood all negotiations to that end were off.

WE EVER HELD.

If you wish to purchase an overcoat or an ulster for yourself or your boy, do not fail to take advantage of this opportunity. We buy and sell more clothing than any two stores in Plainfield; we purchase in very large quantities for spot cash and are able to buy it at our own prices. We recently bought over 1,000 Very Fine Ulsters and Overcoats from a financially embarassed manufacture far below his cost of making; not sample overcoats, but regular stock made for one of the largest clothing houses and rejected on account of the late delivery. The assortment are in all shades and sizes and as they are not likely to last long at the prices noted we advise an early selection.

MEN'S ALL-WOOL MELTON ULSTER at 4.00, that would readily sell in other stores at 8.50.

MEN'S FINE ULSTERS made of very heavy and Genuine Shamrock Irish Frieze, strictly all-wool, in greys and browns, regular 12.00 value, at 4.90.

Strictly all-wool men's beaver and melton overcoats at 4.25, honestly and truly worth 7.50.

MEN'S OXFORD GREY OVERCOATS, the new shade, a very handsome business overcoat, only 40 in this lot, we offer them for this sale at 5.25, wholesale prices was 8.50.

50 VERY FINE DRESS OVERCOATS, coverts, meltons, friezes and kerseys, these garments are very handsomely made up, have satin linings, silk velvet collars, full backs and are short cut, would easily command from 15.00 to 18.00, to be sold at this sale at 7.25.

CHILDREN'S REEFERS and OVERCOATS, sizes from 3 to 8 years, at 1.00, worth 2.00; 1.50, worth 3.00.

Very fine blue and black chinchillas, made with either velvet or sailor collars, at 2.25, regular price 4.50.

BOYS' OVERCOATS from 8 to 16, at 1.75, 2.25 and 2.75. This selection is worth double the price.

YOUNG MEN'S OVERCOATS, ages from 14 to 19, at 1.75, 2.50 and 4.00, worth from 5.00 to 7.00.

Remember this is a very special sale and it will pay you to attend for your own interest, as this will positively be the best chance you will have between now and Christmas.

If for any reason whatever you are not satisfied within 3 days you can have your goods exchanged or money refunded.

Hundreds of other overcoats in our stock that are great bargains that are not mentioned in this advertisement.

LOOKING AFTER THE WELFARE OF FIREMEN.

Annual Meeting Firemen's Mutual Benefit Association.

OFFICERS WERE ELECTED.

DINNER FOLLOWED AT THE HOTEL KENSINGTON.

Delegates Present From the Cities That Maintain Paid Departments—Business Was Mostly of a Private Nature—Stirring Speech by James Clifford—Thomas O'Neil Elected President

The annual meeting of the State Firemen's Mutual Benefit Association was held in this city yesterday afternoon in the Exempt Firemen's Association Hall on Park avenue. Every city in the State that has a paid fire department was represented with the exception of Orange. There were about thirty delegates present. The business to be considered was mostly of a private nature and was not made public.

It was arranged to have Mayor Rockfellow present at the meeting and make the address of welcome, but being out of town and unable to get home in time, his place was filled in a highly creditable manner by City Judge William N. Runyon, who gave the delegates a cordial welcome to the city.

Thomas O'Neil, of Jersey City, president of the association, presided over the deliberations. The objects of the association, that of looking after the interests and welfare of the paid firemen, was the general topic under consideration. This is the main purpose for which the association was organized, so that the politician, who oftentimes has an axe to grind, cannot cause the removal of an efficient fireman for trivial cause. Another object is to care for the widows and orphans of deceased firemen. This is an especially worthy object and the association has established a well deserved reputation for itself in this respect.

There are cases on record where a death claim has been paid within six hours after death. It is the purpose of the members to advance every interest that is for the betterment of the fireman, yet every effort made to break rules, etc., is promptly discouraged and not tolerated. It was along these lines that the various members talked at the meeting, and the members were highly interested in a stirring speech by Captain James Clifford, of New York, who is the father and founder of the association. He advanced some excellent suggestions and created considerable enthusiasm among the members. Another distinguished guest was Lieut. Hayes, of New York, and there were two firemen present from Boston, for a short time to learn something of the association. Fred Markoe and Chas. Maxwell, of the Philadelphia association, were also present.

There is a membership of about six hundred in this state and the association is composed entirely of what is termed the privates in the fire department, no officer above an engineer being allowed to join.

The business of the afternoon included the election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, Thos. O'Neil, Jersey City; vice-president, Michael Ryan, Paterson; secretary, J. McCarron, Newark; treasurer, Michael Campbell, Trenton; sergeant-at-arms, J. Beasley. The general legislative committee of the association, representing every branch, was re-elected. The Plainfield members selected are L. M. Dunavan, Harry Bush and Wm. Townley. At the close of the meeting the association received and accepted an invitation to meet in Paterson next year.

After the meeting adjourned the delegates retired to the Kensington Hotel, where a course dinner was served by Proprietor Staats. The menu was one of the usual excellence for which this hotel is noted and the service was of a superior kind. In addition to the delegates and the committee from the local branch of the association, who were the hosts for this occasion, there were present Chief T. O. Doane, Assistant J. W. Murray, Councilman, B. Frank Coriell and City Judge, Wm. N. Runyon as guests.

The local branch deserve credit for the excellent manner in which they entertained the delegates and showed them about the city, and they were heartily thanked by the association. After the dinner the delegates adjourned to the hotel parlors, where they enjoyed themselves in a social manner until the time for departure arrived.

—This evening Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will meet to elect officers for the ensuing year.

END OF CRESCENT OVAL.

Fence Around Track and the Grandstand is to be Torn Down by Boice, Runyon & Company.

What will undoubtedly prove to be the end of the Crescent Oval grounds will follow the action which Boice, Runyon & Company have decided to take. When the track was established by the now defunct Crescent Wheelmen, Boice, Runyon & Company furnished the lumber necessary to build the fence that encloses the track, as well as to erect the grandstand and the bleachers. Over 100 000 feet of lumber was used in the work. The firm took a mortgage to secure themselves, but as it has never been paid and is in no prospect of being, they have decided to tear down the fences and grandstand and convert the material to more paying purposes. The work will be commenced in a short time.

AID FOR NEEDY AND WORTHY

Ladies Christian Work Society Has Sent Large Box of Useful Articles to a South Dakota Minister.

At this season of the year the many missionnries both at home and abroad have a prominent place in the hearts of the good people at home, who are mindful of their needs. Every year various societies send out barrels of clothing and useful articles for the missionaries and they do a great deal of good.

In this connection the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, has sent away two barrels of clothing, shoes and useful articles to the Shofield school, Aiken, S. C. They have also sent to Rev. E. F. Koerlin at Davis, Turner county, South Dakota, a large dry goods box filled with various articles for family wear and use, embracing clothing for husband, wife and children, new rag carpet, books, canned goods, etc. This is really the most valuable box sent by this society, and will no doubt be highly appreciated. The Young Woman's Mission Band of the church has also made a Sunday school at Wichert, Kankobee county, Ill., happy by sending a box filled with toys, games, etc., valued at $25.

FROM 16 TO 73.

That is How the Membership of the Seventh-Day Baptist Society Has Increased in Eight Years.

The eighth anniversary of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church was observed with a special service Saturday morning. Miss Bessie Fitz Randolph, president of the society, presided. Miss May Ross, secretary, made her report for the year and also gave a brief summary of the growth of the society during the eight years of its existence.

The membership has grown from 16 active members to 73 active, 25 honorary and 7 associate. One hundred and ninety-nine dollars has been raised during the past year, of which $150 has been devoted to missionary and tract society work.

The superintendent of the junior society, O. S. Rogers, made his report and showed the junior society to be in a prosperous condition. The places of the graduates in the senior society has been filled by new members.

The address of the morning was made by Rev. C. L. Goodrich, who spoke on "The Grammar of the Christian Life." A collection was taken for the benefit of the society. The church was prettily decorated with palms and lilies. The music was rendered by a special choir.

No New Work Till Spring.

Though the Plainfield Street Railway Company has accepted the terms named in the franchise granted it by the Common Council for the extension of its line out Arlington avenue, Randolph road and Park avenue to the edge of the city limits at Middlesex county's line, the work of building the branch will not be commenced before next spring. The company has been troubled greatly in securing material to complete and open its Elizabeth-Plainfield line on time, and it is averse to commence any more new work till it is assured of getting material so that there will be no delay after the work is once started. Under the terms of the franchise the extension will have to be in running order by July 1, 1900.

Has Not Given Up His Position.

A few days ago there was published in the Daily Press a story concerning Stephen A. Brown, of Dunellen regarding the loss of eyesight. Mr. Brown is an engineer on the Jersey Central, and in consequence of an affection of the eye he has been obliged to lay off for a time. He has not lost his position, as stated, but it is being held open until there are further developments so that it can be learned definitely whether he will lose the sight of his eye.

ONE YEAR ON THE ISLAND FOR DANTES.

Drug Clerk Sentenced for Forgery in New York.

UNDER INDICTMENT HERE.

WILL BE ARRESTED AGAIN WHEN HE LEAVES THE PRISON.

He Stole the Diploma of C. H. Hall, Substituting His Own Name—For This the College of Pharmacy Will Prosecute Him—Rev. Mr. Buck's Testimony Saved Him From a More Severe Sentence.

Edmund Dantes, the forger and embezzler, has finally been placed where he will do less harm to the community in which he resides than formerly. Yesterday in the Court of Special Sessions at Centre street, New York, Dantes was sentenced to one year's imprisonment on Blackwell's Island, having previously been convicted of forgery preferred by Isadore Meyer, a druggist of Washington street, by whom he had been employed.

It will be remembered that while in this city Dantes forged the name of Druggist Hepburn to a small check, which was cashed by Dr. Leonard. He was arrested on this charge and held in the sum of $150 to await the action of the grand jury, for issuing a worthless check.

For a time Dantes worked for Charles H. Hall, the Watchung avenue druggist, during his absence abroad. While in Mr. Hall's employ Dantes became too familiar with the cash, and when Mr. Hall returned he found that he had been robbed of more than $200.

When Dantes left Plainfield after his arrest on a charge of forgery preferred by Mr. Hepburn, he secured a position with Isadore Meyer, passing himself off as a graduated pharmacist. To substantiate his claims Dantes exhibited a diploma which bore the endorsement of the faculty of the New York College of Pharmacy. Later developments devulged that the diploma which Dantes had in his possession had been stolen from Mr. Hall, of this city, and that he had in some manner obliterated Mr. Hall's name and substituted that of his own. For this crime the College of Pharmacy has procured a bench warrant, and when Dantes is released from prison he will be arrested for practicing pharmacy without a license and prosecuted for the crime.

Rev. Mr. Buck, of this city, who has taken an interest in Dantes, was in court yesterday and testified to Dantes' previous good character. It was on the strength of Mr. Buck's pleading in the young man's favor that the court was lenient in passing sentence.

NEARLY A CENTURY OLD.

Runyon Walker, a Well-known Stelton Citizen, Died Sunday at the Age of Ninety-two Years.

Runyon Walker, one of the oldest and best known residents of Stelton, passed away Sunday after a short illness. He had suffered from pneumonia. Mr. Walker had passed the age of 92 years.

He was born on the old homestead in Piscataway township October 25, 1807, the son of Robert and Jane Walker. He attended the Piscataway township schools until he was fourteen years of age, when he was apprenticed to the carpenter trade. He followed this trade for over sixty years, when he retired.

The deceased had been a strong Jackson Democrat and had always taken a prominent part in the politics of the day. For six years he served on the township committee, while for twenty-four years he was a member of the school trustees.

Mr. Walker was a life-long Christian, having been a member of the Stelton Baptist church during the past fifty-eight years.

In October last Mr. Walker celebrated his ninety-second birthday. The event was the occasion of a notable family gathering at the home of Dr. Nelson, New Market.

Rev. Mr. VanKirk's Dates.

Rev. W. VanKirk, of New York, will speak as follows this week: This evening, South Plainfield Baptist church; tomorrow evening, Mt. Olive Baptist church, Liberty street; Thursday evening, Reform Hall; Friday evening, Washingtonville. These meetings are open to all and a cordial invitation is extended to the public in general.

Through Working on trolley.

All of the laborers on the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway were discharged Saturday except about forty. The discharged men will be paid at the Westfield office this afternoon.

SENIORS' BIRTHDAY TEA.

CLASS OF 1900 OF PLAINFELD HIGH SHOOL IN CHARGE.

Gave a Successful Tea in Assembly Hall of Franklin Building Yesterday Afternoon—Informal Programme.

The Senior class of the Plainfield High School gave a "Birthday Tea" yesterday afternoon in the Assembly Hall of the Franklin School building. Its object was to raise the necessary funds to meet the Christmas celebration expenses but it proved a decided social success as well.

The hall was prettily decorated with the class colors, red and green, in bunting and with palms and potted plants. Red shades were placed over the the electric lights. The table was prettily decorated in the prevailing colors. There Mrs. George Weeks Sandford and Miss S. Lena Bass poured tea and chocolate. A booth, bedecked with bunting and banked with palms, was in charge of Miss Marion Woodcock and Miss Emily Runyon, who sold homemade candy Their trade was excellent until the supply was entirely exhausted.

An informal programme was rendered. A. B. Meredith, of the faculty, acted as master-of ceremonies. The programme included piano duets by Miss Beatrice Miner, Miss Helen Brown and Miss Emily Runyon. A recitation, "The Freckled Faced Girls," was given by Miss Edna Burr.

The tea was well attended by the young people of the High School and by a number of their friends. The faculty was well represented by Superintendent H. M. Maxson, Principal I. W. Travell, Miss Ellen E. Niles, Miss S. Lena Bass, Mr. and Mrs. George Weeks Sandford and A. B. Meredith.

Albert Schomp had charge of the door where the "birthday gifts" were received. The committee of arrangements consisted of Miss May Ross, chairman; Misses Emily Runyon, Pauline Denton, Edna Burr and Iola Moore, Albert Schomp and Walter Squires. The committee on entertainment consisted of Miss Beatrice Miner, chairman; Miss Josephine Lapsley and Miss Helen Brown. Miss Pauline Denton was chairman of the sub committee on decorations. Miss Marion Woodcock, president of the class, was a member of all the committees and had general charge of the affair. The net receipts of the tea will amount to about $20.

DIED AT THE HOSPITAL.

Clarence Purdy, of Martine Avenue, Unable to Survive an Operation for Apendicitis.

Clarence Purdy, of Martine avenue, died at the Muhlenberg Hospital late last evening after a brief illness. Apendicitis was the cause of his death. He leaves a wife and three young children.

Mr. Purdy moved here about six years ago and resided on Westervelt avenue for a time. Then he moved to his new residence on Martine avenue. He was engaged in the interior decorating business in New York. He was a man of domestic tastes and spent most of his time while in Plainfield at home with his family. He was universally liked by those who knew him.

Last Thursday he was taken ill and the physicians pronounced it apendicitis. He was then taken to the hospital to have the necessary operation performed. He died there last evening.

A Little Tot's Trip.

Dr. Gaston's little four-year-old daughter, Dorothy, failed to return to her home on West Fifth street yesterday afternoon after the kindergarten. Her mother finally notified the police and Roundsman Flynn went in search of her. He had just started when the missing child was brought home by Samuel Goff and a lad named Higgins, who found the little tot standing under the Central avenue railroad bridge.

Instruction in Languages.

Rev. H. C. Eyme, formerly pastor of the German Lutheran church in the borough, is prepared to receive pupils for instruction in German, French, Spanish, Greek and Latin. Mr. Eyme is thoroughly competent to teach these languages, as he is a graduate of the Universities of Heidleberg and Gettengen. His address is 78 Duer street.

Want Trains to Stop

An effort is being made by the people living at Graceland, between Westfield and Fanwood, to have the railroad stop trains at their station again. When the last schedule on the Central Railroad was published it was found that all the trains stopping at that station had been discontinued, and the name taken from the schedule.

—An entertainment will be given soon by the primary department of the First Baptist church Sunday-school to raise funds for the annual Christmas entertainment.

HE WAS SELLING PANTS TOO CHEAP.

Led to Apprehension of Thief Who Robbed Mantz Bros.

CAPTURED IN EASTON, PA.

WILL BE KEPT IN CUSTODY AND BROUGHT TO NEW JERSEY.

Chief Grant and John Mantz Went to Easton Yesterday, and the Latter Identified the Remainder of the Stolen Property—Captured Man Says That He Did Not Steal the Clothes.

One of the gang of thieves who broke into the establishment of Mantz Brothers, wholesale clothing manufacturers on East Front street, election night, is now under arrest at Easton, Pa., and part of the booty has been recovered. The capture was accomplished when an attempt was made to dispose of the property.

As was told in The Daily Press at the time, the burglars forced the door to the establishment the night of election and helped themselves to an overcoat and a number of pairs of trousers. There was no clue as to the identity of the thieves.

Saturday Chief-of-Police Bohr, of Easton, noticed a strange young man on the streets of that city trying to sell a pair of trousers. Chief Bohr arrested the man on suspicion as his answers were evasive and unsatisfactory, he was questioned more closely and finally admitted that the trousers came from Plainfield. Then he admitted that they had been stolen but he protested that he had nothing to do with the theft but had just been selling them for two other men. He gave his name as James O'Donnell and said that he came from Illinois. He gave his age as 22.

Chief Grant, of this city, was notified of the capture and went to Easton yesterday. It happened that John Mantz, junior member of the firm that was robbed, was going to Easton on business, so he accompanied the Chief. Mantz easily identified the trousers as those stolen from his place. Of the goods stolen, the Easton police found six pairs of trousers. The rest had been disposed of. The total value of the goods stolen amounted to $75.

O'Donnell was committed to the county jail by the Police Magistrate on the charge of vagrancy to allow Chief Grant the necessary time to secure requistion papers. This morning Justice Nash, of this city, issued warrants for O'Donnell and his two unknown companions on the charge of burglary. Chief Grant went to Elizabeth this morning to confer with County Prosecutor English with a view to securing the requisition papers from Governor Voorhees.

POWERFUL AND SPEEDY.

New Type of Jersey Central Locomotive Gives Satisfaction Under a Severe Test.

One of the new Jersey Central engines, No. 584, is now being used on one of the early morning Royal Blue Line runs to Washington. The engine was under a severe test for several days, and it was finally learned that she was up to the standard and could make the speed required. While under test two engineers and two firemen accompanied her, one of the former being the chief engineer of the road. The engine is a beauty and attracts favorable comment from all who see her. The drivers are larger than on the regular style engine, and their are many improvements that are desirable. One handy arrangement is that which rings the bell by a turn of a small wheel, the work being accomplished by steam.

Fifteen Dollars Collected in Fines.

Theodere Wilson, of the borough, was arrested Saturday evening by Marshal Winn for being drunk and disorderly. He was arraigned before Recorder Long last evening and fined $5. Messrs. Palmer and Henderson, motormen on the street railway, were also arrested Saturday evening by Special Marshal Block, who charged them with being drunk and disorderly. The Recorder fined them $5 each All three men paid their fines.

Entertained Ministers' Association.

A meeting of the Plainfield Ministers' Association was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Rev. W. E. Honeyman, of Lincoln place. An interesting paper on "John Bunyan and the Pilgrim's Progress" was read by Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes. A discussion of the subject followed. The clergymen were then entertained at dinner.

Mrs. Edsall's Brother Dead

Mrs. Seely Edsall received word of the death of her brother, William H. Ball, of Newark, who died this morning at 8 o'clock.

TO WIDEN STREET.

Public Hearing Planned to Get Expression of Those Interested on Somerset Street.

The street committee of the Borough Council held a meeting last evening, when it was decided to formally bring before the people the project of widening the roadway of Somerset street. The Borough Council will hold a public hearing some day next week, when the full details will be explained. H. C. VanEmburgh was ordered to prepare a map showing the property required to make the change. It is estimated that the cost of the widening of that thoroughfare will amount to $5,000.

Councilmen Clark and Coddington were present, but Councilman Valiant was unavoidably absent. Mayor N.B Smalley and Borough Counsel C. A. Reed were also present.

MURDER TRIAL WITNESSES.

Mrs. Fingerhuth to be Put on Trial for Her Life in Somerset County Court Next Week.

The Paul Roericht murder trial will be called at Somerville next week Monday before Judge Magie, and already considerable interest is attached to the preliminary proceedings. Thus far for the prosecution there has been witnesses subpoened as follows:

Emil Dembrosky, Wm. Titus, Emil Clemmins, Augustus Clemmins, Wm. Demier, G. M. Steward, R. M. Clark, Wm. N. Pangborn, Edward O. Clark, Harry Dreier, Harry Ryan, Thomas Quinn, Drs. Zeglio, Buchanan, and County Physician Wagoner, John Y. Barrett, Mrs. Louisa Demarest, of Stone street, has been secured as interpreter for the trial. There are about fifteen more witnesses located in various parts of Somerset county that will be subpoened.

This trial will come under the September term of court, and not December, as commonly supposed. This is due to the fact that it was adjourned. The December term of court commences December 26th.

SMOKING IN BED.

Spark Dropped From Pipe and Set Fire to Bed Clothes Which Made a Lively Blaze.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Dec. 12—What came near being a destructive fire occurred here yesterday morning. William Waters, an old man, who is the father of Mrs. H. C. Cook, of Westfield avenue, was smoking a pipe while lying on the bed in his room when a spark flew onto the bed clothes and set them afire. Mr. Waters left the room without discovering the fire and the flames had gained headway when Miss Lizzie English, a waitress employed by the family, smelled the smoke and upon investigation found the bed in flames.

She called for help and J. J. Schmitt, ex-chief of the fire department, who happened to be passing, and Mr. Foot, who lives across the street, hurried to the house and threw the burning bed out of the window just as the firemen arrived on the scene.

The loss is slight but the house, which is one of the largest and finest in the town, would surely have been consumed but for the prompt action of Miss English.

Cut Glass Bottle Worth $500.

There is on exhibition at Randolph's drug store, West Front street, a cut-glass bottle of great value. It is the property of Lazell, Dalley & Co., and is one of thirteen that was used in their exhibiton of perfumes at the World's Fair. It is the largest cut glass bottle in America, requiring seven hundred pounds of crystal before the work of cutting began. The entire set cost $3,500 and this bottle alone cost $500. The stopper weighs fifteen pounds, and the bottle sixty pounds. It is considered to be one of the finest pieces of cut-glass work yet seen. It will be on exhitition here for sometime.

A Lodge Carnival.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

South Plainfield, Dec. 12.—The local lodge of the Patriotic Order Sons of America held a carnival last evening, at which time they entertained several neighboring camps. There was a large attendance and a good time was had by all. The local members proved to be good hosts, and they gave the visitors a good entertainment in the shape of a minstrel show. There was also a band of music present. After the entertainment a banquet was served and at a late hour the guests departed for their homes.

Reception to Bridal Party.

Mrs. A. A. Cannon gave a reception Saturday evening to the members of the bridal party at her marriage. It was held at her parent's home on Somerset street. There were twenty present. Most of the evening was spent in dancing. A collation was served.

BIBLE CONFERENCE IN Y. M. C. A. HALL.

Don O. Shelton's Meeting Attracted a Large Audience.

EPISTLE TO THE EPHESIANS.

TALK PRIOR TO REGULAR LESSON HAD TO BE OMITTED.

Mr. Shelton Treated the Topic by a Carefully Arranged Plan, Which Included the Asking of Questions to be Answered by Those Able to Do so in the Audience—What He Taught.

There was a large audience in attendance at the Y. M. C. A. Hall last night to participate in the first of Don O. Shelton's studies in the Epistle to the Ephesians. In spite of the threatening weather the first night of the Bible Conference was a decided success. Nearly all of those present had brought their Bibles, and a large majority had read the Epistle at least once before coming to the meeting.

L. H. Biglow, Jr., and a chorus choir, with Miss Lillian A. Force at the piano, led the introductory song service, which was joined in heartily by the audience. Rev. J. O. McKelvey then conducted the devotional exercies, offering prayer, leading a responsive reading, and calling for a repetition of the Lord's Prayer. A vocal solo, "The Golden Threshold," was sung by Mrs. George W. Gardiner, with a violin obligato by Dykeman Winckler, and prayer was offered by I. Winthrop Travell, Frederick H. Andrews and Mr. Shelton. An offering for the expenses of the Conference was received, Mrs. Gardiner singing "In the Secret of His Presence" during the offertory.

Mr. Shelton had expected to give a ten-minute talk on "How to Study the Bible," prior to the regular lesson of the evening, but the time for the opening exercises had been more than used up, so the preliminary talk was omitted, and the subject of the meeting entered upon at once.

"The View of God the Father given in the Epistle to the Ephesians" was the topic assigned for this first session. Mr. Shelton treated the subject by a carefully arranged plan, aiding his listeners in following this plan by notes upon a blackboard. He called for the reading of many references, and asked many question, which were answered by any who were prepared. "God as a Father" was the first division of the topic. First, said Mr. Shelton, He is Our Father. He is accessible to us: He provides for us; He protects us. In return we should reverence, honor, imitate and trust Him. He is the Father of Our Lord Jesus Christ. He is also the Father of glory, the Epistle states; by glory we understand celestial honor, of which He is the Source. Then He is the Father of all who believe.

"The Character of God the Father" was next dwelt upon. First, the Epistle states that He possesses great power. If we are to gain knowledge of this power, the leader said, it must be by exercise of the faith we have; it will grow by use. He is love. One reason for which the Bible is given to us is to show us this fact. He is also wise and righteous, and can impart wisdom and righteousness to us.

The Epistle, Mr. Shelton went on to say, is a revelation of God at work. What does it tell us of what He has done and is doing? First, He chose Paul. And it is the privilege of everyone of us to feel that we are what we are and where we are because God has chosen us for it. Rev. F. B. Meyer has given us a good rule for learning what God's will for us is: when inner conviction, the Word of God and a providential opening all point one way, we may feel assured that that is the way in which God would have us walk. The reason for His choosing us, the Epistle tells us, is that we should be holy and blameless before Him. But the Epistle tells us of other things He has done. He has accepted us in Christ; He has raised Christ from the dead; He has manifested His mercy and kindness to us; and He has made us to sit in heavenly places. If we have the spirit of heaven in us, heaven begins for us here below; and we shall not fail of the heavenly inheritance at last.

A brief prayer by Mr. Shelton, the singing of a closing hymn, and the final words of prayer from William D. Murray brought the meeting to an end.

Mr. Shelton is simple, clear and easy in his manner of teaching, and his talk was practical, interesting and thoroughly helpful. His object is not so much to impart a certain amount of instruction as it is to interest in Bible study, and to give a new impetus to the real "searching" of the Scriptures.

UNIFORM HOURS OF LABOR

Senator Hoar Presents a Resolution on This Line.

MATTER OF IMPORTANCE

Resolutions From the Massachusetts Legislature on the Subject Are Referred to Committee—Mr. Mason Addresses the Senate on His Resolution Presented Last Week.

Washington, Dec. 12.—In the absence of Mr. Frye, president of the Senate pro tem, Mr. Platt, of Connecticut, presided over the Senate at the session of that body Monday.

Resolutions of the Massachusetts Legislature, favoring a constitutional amendment giving Congress authority to establish uniform hours of labor in manufactories, were presented by Mr. Hoar, read and referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Resolutions of the Connecticut Legislature favoring the exclusion of polygamists from membership in Congress were presented by the presiding officer and referred to the Judiciary Committee.

A bill for the coinage of the American product of silver was introduced by Mr. Pettigrew, (Sil. Rep., S. D.).

Mr. Morgan (Dem., La.) introduced a joint resolution to prohibit combination between corporations to control interstate commerce and said that he would call it up hereafter. It prohibits contracts, agreements or combinations having for their purpose the control of the price of anything which is the subject of interstate commerce, or the increase of the cost of transportation, or discrimination in favor or against any class of dealers, traders, or customer, or any localities.

Mr. Hoar introduced a joint resolution for a constitutional amendment to make the Presidential and Congressional terms end and begin on the last Wednesday in April instead of March 4. It was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Mr. Chilton (Dem., Tex.) introduced a bill to prohibit the transportation of goods controlled by trusts, and it was laid on the table temporarily.

Mr. Pettigrew (Sil. Rep., S. D.) offered a preamble and resolution concerning Gen. Merriam's action toward the miners of the Coeur d'Alene mining district in Idaho, and calling on the Secretary of War for copies of all instructions to Gen. Merriam on the subject, and of his reports.

Mr. Chandler (Rep., N. H.) objected, and the resolution went over.

The resolution offered last week by Mr. Mason (Rep., Ill.) declaring the sympathy of the Senate with the Boers in the South African war, was laid before the Senate, and Mr. Mason spoke in support of it. Its language is:

"Resolved, That we watch with deep and abiding interest the heroic battle of the South African Republic against cruelty and oppression, and our best hopes go out for the full success of their determined contest for liberty."

In advocacy of his resolution Mr. Mason quoted at much length from Daniel Webster's speeches expressing sympathy with the Greeks in their insurrection against Turkey. He denied that the English Government had been friendly to the United States in the late war with Spain. The English people, he said, had been, because they were a Christian people, but the English Government had never been the friend of the United States.

Proceedings in the House.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The attendance in the galleries of the House Monday to hear the opening of the debate on the currency bill was not large. Immediately after the reading of the journal the House, under the special order, went into committee of the whole (Mr. Hepburn of Iowa in the chair), and consideration of the bill was begun. Mr. Overstreet (Indiana), who is to be in charge of the measure on the floor, opened the general debate.

Mr. Overstreet made a speech of considerable length on the bill and then yielded the floor to other members who wished to take part in the discussion.

"In my judgment," said Mr. Gallinger, "this is a bill that ought not to and probably will not receive the favorable consideration of the committee. The promoters of the bill are deluding thousands of poor persons, and are merely trying to keep the agitation alive for their own benefit."

Mr. Mason (Illinois), who had introduced the bill in the last congress, expressed his belief that it was being exploited for a bad purpose.

War Prize Was a Blank.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The Supreme Court, in an opinion read by Justice Peckham, has released the Spanish steamship Bueno Ventura, which had been seized as a prize in the Cuban war on the ground that she had been captured before May 21, the limit allowed Spanish vessels to leave American ports. She left Pascogoula, Miss., April 19, two days before the declaration of war. The District Court held that she was a lawful prize and was not included in the proclamation giving vessels thirty days to leave American ports. Chief Justice Fuller and Justices Gray and McKenna dissented from the decision of the Supreme Court. The Pedro, captured by the New York off Havana April 22, was declared by the Supreme Court a lawful prize.

Found Money in Her Cabin.

Kansas City, Dec. 12.—Mrs. L. Hunnicutt died on her claim in the Cherokee strip, near Hnunewell, Kan., a few weeks ago, and Attorney John Davis, who has charge of her estate, has just been informed that $11,000 in currency has been found concealed in various places in Mrs. Hunnicutt's cabin. Until the discovery of this money it was supposed that Mrs. Hunnicutt died in need. She left no will, and it is said that the expense of taking the body to Greencastle, Ind., her former home, for burial, was paid by relatives.

A Legal Hanging in Kentucky.

Paris, Ky., Dec. 12.—Clarence Williams, a negro, who killed Josie Tillman, his sweetheart, has been hanged here in accordance with his sentence.

ANOTHER SCHEMER ARRESTED.

Oscar W. Roper, of Newark, N. J., is Held for Fraud.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 12.—Operations resembling in many respects those of the Miller syndicate were interrupted Monday afternoon when Oscar W. Roper of No. 9 South Seventeenth street, East Orange, was arrested. His operations extended all over the country, and the authorities say his scheme must have netted him over $100,000.

A few months ago Roper hired rooms Nos. 84 and 85 in the Globe building, in this city, and another office in No. 183 Market street, and started business on an extensive scale, sending thousands of circulars all over the country.

In these circulars he said he conducted the Realty Corporation Company of New Jersey, Realty, Loan and Trust Fund, Realty, Loan and Title Company and Four Per cent. Mortgage Company. His circulars, which were addressed to would-be borrowers of money, were of an attractive nature.

On behalf of the Realty Corporation Company he offered to make loans at 4 per cent. on advantageous terms. If the person to whom the circular was addressed did not wish to borrow he was requested to turn over the circular to somebody who did.

When he received responses he would write back, saying that the would-be borrowers would have to forward $10 for appraisement fee and an additional sum for costs of search, etc. These amounted in all to about $50. When the sum was received he wrote, telling them the loans were sold to the highest bidder, as in building and loan associations. He requested them to bid, and, under the rules, forward $5 on every $100 they wanted to borrow.

Newark, he said, was an excellent place to borrow money, as rates were low.

After he received the $5 on each $100 to be borrowed he would write that the money had been put up, but that his customers had been overbid. He then would request them to bid again.

When they got tired of bidding, and wrote to know whether he was going to get the money, after all he would tell them they could withdraw only under condition that they receive not more than 15 per cent. of the 5 per cent. advanced. The other sum they had sent could not be returned.

Roper was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal John Garside on complaint of Post Office Inspector W. B. Snow. The charge is using the mails illegally, with intent to defraud. He was held in $5,000 bail by United States Commissioner Whitehead, to appear before that official on next Thursday for examination.

Among the victims are the Zion Baptist Church of Knoxville, Tenn., to which he owes more than $400, and other churches in various parts of the country.

$20,000,000 Mine For a Woman.

Syracuse, Dec. 12.—The Supreme Court of the State of Durango, Mexico, has rendered a decision restoring to Mrs. Mary D. Grace of this city, and principal of Tompkins School, the rich Vacas, San Marcos and Bismarck silver and lead mines in Durango. The mines are said to be valued at $20,000,000. Mrs. Grace and other Americans invested in the mines several years ago, but through the scheming of the Mexicans lost possession of them. The matter has been in litigation for years. She obtained the interests of the other Americans and pushed the case in the courts to a successful issue. Mrs. Grace declares that ore valued at from $1,500 to $2,000 a day has come out of the mines.

Must Not Wear Short Skirts.

Cincinnati, Dec. 12.—An order issued by the Board of Education of Louisville, Ky., has created a great deal of comment in Cincinnati. The order prohibits all teachers from wearing short skirts while on duty. It probably emanated from a desire to prevent the example being set before pupils. Of course "rainy day" skirts are included in the order. These reach to the shoe tops, and in no place have they become so much the fad as in Cincinnati. Numbers of teachers wear them, and if Cincinnati should follow in the wake of Louisville the order would create quite a sensation.

Gen. Brooke to be Summoned.

Washington, Dec. 12.—Major General Wood having given his views to the President on the best method of providing for the future government of Cuba, it is understood that Major General Brooke will be summoned to Washington for consultation. No change in the Governship will be made by the President without General Brooke's advice, as his administration of the affairs of the island have been satisfactory in every way.

Tried to Swallow Silver Dollar.

Charlestown, W. Va., Dec. 12.—G. R. Lynch, who is insane and resides near Dawson, Greenbrier County, attempted to swallow a silver dollar a few days ago, the coin lodging in his throat. Several attempts were made by his friends to obtain the dollar, none being successful. A physician was called in and after an operation removed the coin.

They Favor Chicago.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The Philadelphia contingent, asking for the next Republican National Convention, has arrived in force, and more are coming. The Chicago delegation is expected on Wednesday. Several of the New York delegation, including Lemuel E. Quigg, are here. Chicago is the favorite city so far with the committee.

Artist Gill-Martin Wins.

New York, Dec. 12.—Gill-Martin, the landscape painter, has been given a judgment for $10,000 damages against Patrick McInerny, a prominent dry-goods merchant of Brooklyn. Gill-Martin brought suit charging McInerny with alienating the affections of Mrs. Gill-Martin.

For New York's Postoffice.

Washington, Dec. 12.—A bill probably will be introduced in Congress this week appropriating $2,500,000 for a new post office in New York city. This sum will include the cost of the site, building, 100 clerks, 100 carriers, added pneumatic tube service and letter-box posts

HARD TO EXPLAIN.

If This Had Occurred Anywhere Else Than in Plainfield There Might be Grave Doubts About it.

If this were published anywhere else but in Plainfield, that is, if the statement given below went the rounds of the press, readers in Boston or New Orleans would not believe it. In the very nature of things men and women will not believe that a simple little pill would have any effect on humanity when the subject is in a serious condition. When it has that effect; when the party is a living witness, perhaps neighbor, Plainfield people at least cannot possibly deny it, particularly so when investigation is courted. Now ask Mrs. R. Wortmen, living with her daughter Mrs. S. E. Cook, of 204 Somerset street, and see if she will not corroborate the following:

"I used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results for severe pain across my back and hips, which no doubt was caused by the kidneys being out of order. It was painful for me to stoop or bend forward and I could not sit ten minutes in one position but had to be constantly changing about. It was the same way at night time. I used many different kinds of medicine recommended for kidney troubles but I could not see that any of them benefitted me. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured for me at L. W. Randolph's drug store and it is the only remedy I ever used that gave me any relief. I always keep a supply of them on hand and would not think of being without them. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and advise all who suffer from a lame back to give them a fair trial."

Doan's kidney Pills 50 cents a box. Mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Defeat at Stromberg Increases British Courage.

PREPARED FOR ATTACK.

Particulars of the Boer Ambush Near Stromberg—A Great Disaster to the British Arms—English Joy at the Ladysmith Victory Turned to Sorrow in a day.

Molento, Cape Colony, Dec. 12.—Though deeply chagrined by its defeat by the Boers at Stormberg, Gen. Gatacre's army is not disheartened, but is preparing to give the Boers a warm reception if they made an attack. Every effort is being made to put the camp in shape to meet an onslaught from the enemy, as it is believed the Boers, flushed with their success, and thinking the British forces are demoralized, will push their advantage and attempt to carry their camp by assault.

Reinforcements for Gen. Gatacre are being rushed upat breakneck speed. His army hopes the enemy will attempt an attack, for the men are smarting under their defeat and are eager for a revenge that will wipe out the memory of the ambuscade in which such serious and humiliating losses were suffered.

The worst feature of the reverse that is feared is its probable effect on the Cape Colony Boers and the feeling of confidence and enthusiasm that will spread through all the enemy's laagers.

It is believed that the hesitating Dutch farmers throughout Central Cape Colony will flock to the Boer standard in great numbers unless a speedy British victory is won to offset the defeat at Stormberg.

Gen. Gatacre has the sympathy of all his officers and men. The reverse is particularly hard for him bear as it came as the result of his first movement against the enemy.

The British total loss is now placed at 633, killed, wounded and missing. Two men were killed, it is known 17 officers and nine men were wounded and 9 officers and 596 men are missing.

A disquieting feature of the situation is the possibility that among the missing there may be a large number of of killed and wounded. Hopeful ones expect that most of the missing will soon straggle into camp, but this is hardly likely.

After the first surprise of the ambuscade it looked for a time as if Gatacre's army would be captured or annihilated. It was only by heroic efforts that he managed to extricate himself from the ambush.

The wily Boers led the British into a trap by furnishing Gatacre and his spies with the false information that the enemy's camp at Stormberg could be easily taken by surprise and captured. Gatacre was told that the Boers there only numbered 2,500 and were in a weak position.

That a rout did not follow this awful ambush speaks well for the courage of the veterans who led the way. The Fusileers were ordered to seek shelter behind a friendly kopje, and the others followed suit. But the Boers had the range of their shelter perfectly and soon were dropping shells among the British with relentless accuracy. The retreat was sounded, and while the British artillery did what it could in the struggling light of the dawn to cover the retreat, little could be done against a foe whose whereabouts could only be guessed at and who were finely sheltered among the rocks and hills.

Buller Nearing White.

British Camp, Frere Station, Natal, Dec. 12.—Buller and White are almost in touch. It will not be long before the former's troops will be marching into the camp so long and magnificently defended. All night long the signal flashes illuminated the sky, exchanging messages in cipher between the two generals.

The troops in Ladysmith were reported to be boiling over with enthusiasm and ready for any sort of fighting. Not the least of the joys they looked forward to when the investment is broken is a full meal of victuals in place of the short rations they have been living on.

A combined movement may soon be expected. The horses of the commands of Gens. Schalk-Berger and Louis Botha comanding the Boers, whom they will encounter, are reported to be in very bad condition.

British Missing Are Prisoners.

Pretoria, Dec. 12.—Six hundred and seventy-two British prisoners were taken at Stromberg. In the fighting at Modder River Sunday evening General Cronje maintained his position and captured fifty British soldiers.

Town Under Military Rule.

Corbin, Ky., Dec. 12.—This town is under the protection of the military, in conseuence of the killing of Deputy Marshal Henry Hartford while in pursuit of the participants in a saloon fight. It is not known who killed him. Floyd and Edward Chadwell are under arrest. Their younger brother is said to have been the ringleader in the fight, and they interfered when the officers attempted to arrest him. There is danger of further trouble.

Germany Will Double Her Navy.

Berlin, Dec. 12.—In the Reichstag Prince Hohenlohe, the Imperial Chancellor, has announced that the Federal Government had come to the conclusion that the present navy was insufficient for the country's needs and that estimates for doubling the present number of warships would be submitted.

PLEA MAY BE SUCCESSFUL.

Little Jennie McLaren Asks a Pardon For Her Father.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 12.—Ten-year-old Jennie McLaren, of Hoboken, petitioning for the release from Trenton State Prison of her father, who was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment for murdering her mother, is the piteous spectacle presented to the New Jersey Board of Pardons. McLaren, who has served seven years of his sentence, is said to have consumption.

There is a special session of the Board of Pardons being held and Governor Voorhees will lay the matter before them.

The daughter of the prisoner, who, despite her youth, is exceedingly self-possessed, called upon the Governor and presented the petition to him. She said that she had been unable to get the signature to her petition of Prosecutor Charles Winfield, of Hudson, who tried him, as Mr. Winfield was dead; but that she had obtained the signatures of Mayor Fell, of Hoboken, and of Judge Lippincott, who sentenced her father, and also that of Judge Hudspeth. Law Judge of Hudson county who was on the bench at the time.

Governor Voorhees promised her he would do all he could for her, but said that the pardoning power did not rest with him. All he could do was to present her petition to the Board of Pardons.

The little girl was delighted with the Governor's favorable reception of her mission, and was profuse in her thanks before departing. The Governor is inclined to think her petition may prove successful.

THE MOLINEUX CASE.

Why the Defence Made a Certain Admission.

New York, Dec. 12.—The credit for the luring of Mamie Melando into this state from New Jersey belongs to District Attorney Gardiner. He put up the job that ended in the bringing of the girl to this city. Colonel Gardiner as a Federal prosecutor, years ago successfully played a similar trick in the trial of an army officer.

It became known in the District Attorney's office this morning that Col. Gardiner intends to sum up the Molineux case.

The District Attorney summed up the trial of William A. E. Moore, badger, and it was due to this, so Moore's lawyer says, that Moore was convicted. Col. Gardiner will be in court each day during the remainder of the trial to absorb the evidence.

Much comment has been made on the admission of Mr. Weeks that Molineux wrote the famous "Burns" letter. It has been printed that Weeks made this admission in order to forestall the testimony of Mamie Melando.

The real reason for Mr. Week's action was, it is said, to save his handwriting expert, David N. Carvalho from being impeached by the prosecution.

Mamie Melando, said to be one of the star witnesses for the prosecution, went on the stand when the trial was resumed.

Mr. Weeks objected to the girl's testimony before he had finished with expert Kinsley, but Recorder Goff overruled him.

She testified that she had been employed by Molineux for several years, and he had the blue-crested paper in his room at the Newark factory.

Test of the T. A. M. Craven.

Bath, Me., Dec. 12.—The United States torpedo-boat T. A. M. Craven, which has just been finished by the Bath Iron Works, has gone out to begin her official tests over the course off this place. Captain W. H. Emery, Chief Engineer C. R. Roelker, Naval Constructor W. L. Capps and Lieut. Richard Henderson, U. S. N., of the naval board were on the Craven to take charge of the trials. It was planned to devote one day to progressive tests and finish the work with an hour's speed trial.

No Pardon Yet For Clifford.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 12.—The Court of Pardons met at the State House and refused to take any action in the case of murderer Edward Clifford of Jersey City until he has been sentenced by the Hudson county court. Ex-Attorney-General John P. Stockton and Counsellor Warren Dixon appeared before the court and argued in Clifford's behalf. The court decided, however, that it would await the result of the appeal in the United States Supreme Court before taking up the case.

Anti-Trust League Organized.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 12.—The Anti-Trust League of Indiana has been organized under the direction of C. M. C. Peters, representing the National Democratic Committee. Charles F. E. Mass, C. A. Basnett and John T. Brennan were elected an Executive Committee.

WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS

THEY ARE FILTERS FOR THE BLOOD.

IMPURE BLOOD CAUSES DISEASE.

Few people understand the important part performed by the kidneys in filtering the blood. As the blood in its circulation through the body passes through the kidneys, its impurity is left in the kidneys, which in turn empties the secretions into the bladder in the form of urine.

If the kidneys are blocked and filtration of the blood from poisonous or diseased germs prevented thereby, the result is one or all of the following: Sleeplessness, Nervous Prostration, Weak Back, Pains in the Back and Loins; Scalding, Dark and Cloudy Urine; Dizziness, Rheumatism, Diabetes, Congestion of the Kidneys, Bright's Disease and Inflammation of the Bladder.

Unhealthy Kidneys Must be Treated.

A medicine is needed that will properly promote the filtration of the blood and check the over-secretion of urine.

DR. HOLTIN'S KIDNEY TABLETS

is the only remedy absolutely and unconditionally guaranteed to cure every form of Kidney or Bladder Complaints. Price, 25 and 50 Cents.

THAT'S THE IDEA!

You ought to see what we can do for you before doing anything for yourself. Painting depends upon the paint and the painter. Better preparations than ours were never put on by a brush. Wherever paint is put, it should be put there to stay long enough to make it worth while to do the job. The warring elements have no effect on our durable mixtures.

TEETH.

If you have any to be extracted remember you will not be hurt in the slightest. My local anæsthetic is the best that can be obtained and is not known to the other dentists in this city. Gas strictly fresh administered by an expert if you want that. If you need artificial teeth you may rest assured that the greatest care will be exercised in selecting shape and color to harmonize with the face, also to restore the features to their natural expression and fullness. This is most important.

A boss burner in a sewer-pipe factory at Alton, Ill., had such a severe pain in his right side that he could get but little sleep or rest. His doctor told him the trouble was a disordered liver. The man had always been healthy before, and doubted what the doctor told him, but he knew something must be done, and took the physician's advice and treatment. He got relief, but it was not lasting. His subsequent experience is given in a letter, in which he says: "I read some of the advertisements about Ripans Tabules, and concluded to try them, and had used less than one-half dozen Tabules when the pain disappeared. Of course, I felt a little doubt as to whether it would return or not, so took a few more to be sure. The result has satisfied me that one dollar spent for Ripans Tabules will accomplish more than five dollars spent for so-called advice and treatment as meted out by the ordinary practitioner."

A new style packet containing THE RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (12 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will go an. for five cents.

SHIPS ARE SENT TO SUBIG.

Admiral Watson is Now Co-operating With General Grant.

Manila, Dec. 12.—Capt. Sturges with a troop of the 11th Cavalry surprised forty Filipinos of Gen. Pandos' command at Norzgary.

Three natives, including a Major, were killed, four, including a Lieutenant, were wounded, and fourteen were made prisoners. A number of rifles were also captured. None of the Americans were hurt.

The indications are that the Filipinos are trying to reach the district south of Manila.

March Without Ammunition or Food.

Manila, Dec. 12.—Despatches dated December 2, from the detachment in pursuit of Aguinaldo have just reached here by messenger.

According to the despatches, General Young was at Condon November 29. The strength of his command has been reduced one-third by sickness.

His horses are worn out. The infantry had marched from a point one hundred miles beyond San Jacuto without shoes. The men were compelled to live upon the country.

The troops had no ammunition, the despatches added, except that contained in their belts.

General Young had been without communication with General Lawton for ten days, but had pushed steadily forward.

General Young divided his forces. He himself pushed on to Vigan. One of his columns marched for thirteen hours without food.

Cable Message From Watson.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The Secretary of the Navy has received from Admiral Watson, at Manila, a cable despatch telling of the sending of warships to Subig Bay. Admiral Watson, under date of Dec. 11, says:

"Morning 9th, about 11, received telegram from Schwann asking for MacArthur for co-operation with Grant's troops scouting toward Olongapo, Subig Bay. Suspended Charleston Court of Inquiry, started same evening 9 for Subig with Baltimore, Oregon and company marines from barracks. Arrived daylight 10th with landing parties organized; found Major Spence in possession of Olongapo, having arrived at dark 9th. Relieved army forces by 100 marines, Myers commanding. The army detachment transported to Subig. Town abandoned on arrival; Gen. Grant arrived afternoon. Left Oregon, Gardoqui and Mindora and returned Cavite 11th. Olongapo navy yard machinery fair condition. Shops damaged only by previous attack."

Movement of Transports.

Washington, Dec. 12.—Gen. Otis has cabled from Manila, announcing the arrival there of the transports Conemaugh and Leelanaw, having on board five officers, sixteen enlisted men, seventy-eight civilians and 492 horses. Gen. Shafter has informed the War Department of the arrival of the transport Zealandia at San Francisco with ten military passengers, including Maj. McClure, paymaster; Capt. Potter, of the Corps of Engineers, and one discharged soldier. The transport brought the body of Capt. McGrath 4th Cavalry, and Privates H. A. Hopkins, Company F, and Frank J. Murray, Company A, 1st Cavalry.

The New Orleans Beaten.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The New Orleans has arrived at Singapore, three days behind the Brooklyn, en route for Manila. The little cruiser lost fully two days to the Brooklyn on the run across to Singapore from Colombo. Both vessels are due at Manila in about a week.

She Had Lots of Money.

Marquette, Mich., Dec. 12.—Monday a woman named Eliza Runnells was sent to the county jail on a charge of being a disorderly person. She has been begging persistently around Negaunee and Ishpeming for years. The Sheriff discovered that she had sewed in her filthy clothes $1,000 in cash and $1,290 in bonds. On further investigation the jail officials were almost stunned when they found 19 Government bonds and bills amounting to $2,400. In all it amounts to $4,790. The house she had been living in and her general appearance was so shocking that the county officials sent her to the County Jail and were thunderstruck when they found such a large amount of money in her possession.

Pistol Carrying in Virginia.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 12.—John M. Whitehead, of Lee county, will shortly introduce in the House of Delegates a bill designed to eradicate the widespread practice of pistol carrying in Virginia. There have been many shooting affrays lately, and the Legislature realizes that something more than a fine is necesary to put a stop to them. The bill will provide that any magistrate or justice of the peace may search a person whom he suspects of having a weapon, without a search-warrant. If his suspicions are correct, the guilty person is to be punished with $20 fine and thirty days in jail. Should the offence be committed on election day, the fine is to be $500 with two years in the penitentiary.

After Democratic Convention

Washington, Dec. 12.—Elliot Danforth, National Committeeman Frank Campbell and Norman C. Mack are here from New York to consult with Senator Jones, of Arkansas, relative to the holding of the Democratic Convention in New York City. The political situation in the Empire State was discussed in all its details, and the New York delegation assured Chairman Jones that the New York Democracy is not wavering in its allegiance to William Jennings Bryan and the Chicago platform.

TOILERS MEET IN DETROIT.

Nearly One Million Workmen Are Represented.

MR. GOMPERS PRESENT.

Nineteenth Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor Opens in the City of the Straits—Two Hundred Delegates Present—Gompers' Address.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 12.—Almost 200 delegates, representing all branches of trade unionism, with an estimated total membership of about 800,000, assembled in Harmonie Hall when the nineteenth—annual convention of the American Federation of Labor was called to order. Samuel Gompers, the president of the federation, said, in his annual address:

"Comrades—With the close of another year, we, as trade unionists, should compare the conditions which now confront us with those existing at the beginning of the twelve months just passed. We should view the situation as it is, and ascertain whether we have gained or lost in our struggle for the amelioration of the condition of the workers. Are we justified in renewing our efforts or shall we by lying dormant allow the benefits and advantages gained to slip from our grasp, and permit ourselves to fall back into the old rut of isolation, helplessness and dependence? We cannot doubt but that the latter alternative is one of only imagination, and that it cannot exist in reality. The organized labor movement not only works for the material, moral, political, and social improvement of the organized workers, but it is the lever by which these conditions for the unorganized are improved, and constitutes the most potent factor in ameliorating the conditions of the whole human family, and bringing the day of final deliverance from all injustice and wrong so much the nearer.

"The revival of industry which we have witnessed within this last year is one for general congratulation, and it should be our purpose to endeavor to prolong this era of more general employment and industrial activity. In this effort no power is so potent as organized labor, if we but follow a right and practical course.

"When the present industrial activity first manifested itself employers generally sought to increase the hours of labor of all, and, had it not been for the determined stand made by our fellow unionists as large a number would be unemployed during this period as were unemployed during the period of industrial depression. It is beyond question that the wages of the organized workers have been increased, and in many instances the hours of labor either reduced or at least maintained. Practically the only advantage which has come to unorganized labor from the industrial revival has been longer hours of daily labor, with additional burdens to bear."

President Gompers then discussed at length the conditions of labor and industry in the United States and considerations relative to the status of workingmen.

Chambermaids Out on Strike.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Chambermaids, hall women and other female help of the Powers Hotel to the number of nine have gone out on a strike. The girls' side of the story is to the effect that they were given poor and insufficient food, coupled with low wages. A grievance committee was organized and the delegates waited on a representative of one of the proprietors with a request for better food, which was refused. The strike was the result. The girls did not ask the male help to go out with them, as many of the latter have families depending upon them and jobs are scarce for men, while the strikers profess themselves able to get work at will.

Not Scarlet Fever at Wellesley.

Wellesley, Mass., Dec. 12.—Two cases of scarlatina have developed among the girl students at Wellesley College. The patients have been received at the hospital, not because of the dangerous character of the disease, but simply as a precautionary measure. When the rash first developed it was taken to be scarlet fever and for a day there was talk of closing college ahead of time. College affairs, however, have returned to their normal state.

That Curfew Edict.

City Judge Runyon's recent edict to the police to arrest precocious youngsters who loiter about the streets after 9 o'clock, has attrected considerable attention throughout the State. The cadi's order was the nearest to the curfew bell idea that has yet been promulgated.

In discussing the action of the City Judge, the Elizabeth Journal thinks he did not go quite far enough. The Journal says:

"The order is a proper one. The street is no place for boys after 9 o'clock. But the Judge's excellent order should be extended to the boys' parents. They should be made to account for their boys being allowed to run the streets after reasonable hours. The parents are, as a rule, the ones who ought to be punished. Often the boys find the streets much more of a home to them than the wretched homes their dissolute or indifferent parents provide for them. It is not the improverished home that is the least homelike by any means, but the homes of those who willfully neglect their children or drive them into the streets by their brutal conduct."

The Newark Evening News takes an entirely different view of the order, however. It points out that "Plainfield has no curfew ordinance, and as there is no State law authorizing such arbitrary action, the policeman who obeys the Judge's instructions is likely to get himself in trouble. In the absence of statutory prohibition a boy of twelve years, who is not committing a breach of the peace, has as much right on the street after 9 o'clock as has a man of mature years, and is entitled to the same immunities."

Whatever constitutional privileges those of immature age may possess, it is a fact that there is altogether too many street gamins in Plainfield, and that some such action as the Judge has taken is necessary to compel their absence from the public thoroughfares at unseemly hours when naught but badness can be imbued by those of tender age.

A Trenton correspondent points out that the Democratic office holders in the State are fast thinning out. The few remaining county Judges and prosecutors of the pleas of that political persuation must soon make way for Republican successors. Then perhaps, for the first time in the history of the State, all such offices will be occupied by Republicans. Six years ago the situation was the reverse and then the "outs" made vigorous complaint that the county benches were packed with Democratic partisans. The last Democratic Judges to go are Woodruff, in Mercer; Conover, in Monmouth, and Bartine, in Somerset, and the last prosecutors are Stagg, in Bergen; Budd, in Burlington; Acton, in Salem; Dungan, in Somerset, and a Democratic vacancy will be filled in Camden.

Richard Croker's political domain has extended considerable by the voluntary retirement of Hugh McLaughlin from the leadership of the Democracy of Brooklyn. This leaves Croker the only really powerful and prominent politician of that once powerful quartette of Democrats made up of Hill, Murphy, Croker and McLaughlin. While the influence of all four has received setbacks in the last five years, Croker is the only one that today stands out as conspicuous as he did once.

The life of a Congressman will soon reach the trying period, that of distributing his quota of free Government seeds to his agricultural constituents. The job is always a ticklish one for the Representative whose dis is largely made up of farming communities. This year the seeds for distribution to all parts of the country will consist of 13,000,000 packets of vegetable and 1,508,000 of flower seeds, besides field and lawn grass seeds.

It is expected that a few days after the organization of the Legislature a joint meeting will be held for the election of a State Treasurer and a State Comptroller. There seems no doubt whatever of the re-election of the present incumbents—George B. Swain and William S. Hancock—each for another term of three years. There is no opposition to them in their own party.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Postmaster Bird is determined that order shall be maintained at the postoffice afternoons. It has been the practice of a crowd of young men of fresh dispositions to congregate there and make life miserable for others. Their enthusiasm knows no bounds and they have carried their jokes too far. Mr. Bird has decided to break up the practice and will have the assistance of policeman in his efforts.

* * * * *

The Association for the preservation of the Rights of Unmarried Young Women has been organized in Boston with the fundamental principle that married women shall refrain from accepting employment in any of the various avenues open to women so long as any of the spinsters are without work. Who the officers of the organization are is kept secret by the members of the association, but they do not hesitate to express their views. They say the chief objection to married women is the fact that they are able and willing to work for less wages.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Lincoln's Trip.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I noticed in the columns of your esteemed sheet of the 5th inst. that two gentlemen have made a wager that Abraham Lincoln on his way to Washington in the spring of 1861 stopped at or passed through Elizabeth. One maintaining that he did and the other that he did not. You invite discussion. I distinctly recollect Mr. Lincoln's trip from Springfield to Washington. Lincoln left Springfield, Ill., February 11, 1861, making speeches at different points on the route in the States of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. I, as a boy, recollect reading those addresses at that time. I was intensely interested in that journey. Also stopping at Buffalo, Albany and New York, where he had a glad reception by Mayor Wood and the city authorities. He stopped at the Astor House.

Committees met him at Jersey City, Newark and Trenton. He was invited to address the Legislature which was then in session. He then continued his trip to Philadelphia, making an address in the old State House. The Legislature of Pennsylvania invited him to address that body which he did on Washington's Birthday. On his arrival at Harrisburg a rumor gained credence that he was to be assassinated on his arrival at Baltimore. Taking the advice of his friends he changed his plans and took a night train passing through Baltimore in the darkness. The next morning the supposed presidential train was besieged by toughs. He was already in Washington. I think the gentleman is right as to fact of his being at or passing through Elizabeth at the time mentioned.

--- THE GREATEST --

WE EVER HELD.

If you wish to purchase an overcoat or an ulster for yourself or your boy, do not fail to take advantage of this opportunity. We buy and sell more clothing than any two stores in Plainfield; we purchase in very large quantities for spot cash and are able to buy it at our own prices. We recently bought over 1,000 Very Fine Ulsters and Overcoats from a financially embarassed manufacture far below his cost of making; not sample overcoats, but regular stock made for one of the largest clothing houses and rejected on account of the late delivery. The assortment are in all shades and sizes and as they are not likely to last long at the prices noted we advise an early selection.

MEN'S ALL-WOOL MELTON ULSTER at 4.00, that would readily sell in other stores at 8.50.

MEN'S FINE ULSTERS made of very heavy and Genuine Shamrock Irish Frieze, strictly all-wool, in greys and browns, regular 12.00 value, at 4 90.

Strictly all-wool men's beaver and melton overcoats at 4.25, honestly and truly worth 7 50.

MEN'S OXFORD GREY OVERCOATS, the new shade, a very handsome business overcoat, only 40 in this lot, we offer them for this sale at 5 25, wholesale prices was 8.50.

50 VERY FINE DRESS OVERCOATS, coverts, meltons, friezes and kerseys, these garments are very handsomely made up, have satin linings, silk velvet collars, full backs and are short cut, would easily command from 15 00 to 18.00, to be sold at this sale at 7.25.

CHILDREN'S REEFERS and OVERCOATS, sizes from 3 to 8 years, at 1.00, worth 2.00; 1.50, worth 3.00.

Very fine blue and black chinchillas, made with either velvet or sailor collars, at 2.25, regular price 4 50.

BOYS' OVERCOATS from 8 to 16, at 1 75, 2.25 and 2.75. This selection is worth double the price.

YOUNG MEN S OVERCOATS, ages from 14 to 19, at 1,75, 2.50 and 4.00, worth from 5.00 to 7.00.

Remember this is a very special sale and it will pay you to attend for your own interest, as this will positively be the best chance you will have between now and Christmas.

If for any reason whatever you are not satisfied within 3 days you can have your goods exchanged or money refunded.

Hundreds of other overcoats in our stock that are great bargains that are not mentioned in this advertisement.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 12.—Some recent changes have taken place on the Central road in this division. John Logan has been promoted to the position of engineer, and Philip Eder takes the place made vacant by Logan's promotion. John Cole, of Fanwood, has been transferred to an eastern run and his place has been filled by William Murphy, of Grant Avenue. Fireman Book succeeds to Murphy's old place. William Miller, formerly employed at the round house, has been assigned to fire engine 67, having taken Philip Eder's old position.

There was a largely attended meeting of Court Dunellen, No. 1123, Independent Order of Foresters, last evening at Dunellen, the occasion being the annual election of officers. This organization is growing rapidly and now has about 100 members. Recently a number of applications have been received, several being sent in last night. Previous to the election of the officers one candidate was initiated into the mysteries of the order. Following are the newly elected officers who will be installed at the first regular meeting in January next: Chief Ranger, Theodore W. Day; vice chief ranger, Stephen O. Sutton; recording secretary, Chas. Carpenter; financial secretary, Wm Wyckoff; treasurer, John H. L. Peters; chaplain, Lewis Schneider; senior woodward, Magnus Johnson; junior woodward, J. Travis Sutphen; senior beadle, Robert Hunstone; junior beadle, Herbert B. Wyckoff; physician, Dr. P. W. Brakeley; trustees, L. T. Titsworth, J N Apgar; finance committee, F.T. Dickerson L. T. Titsworth.

Fowler Vail, who has charge of the parks along the Central Railroad during the summer months, is now at work with a gang of men barking the chestnut posts to be used to fence in the line.

There were no services at the Presbyterian church Sunday evening, that congregation uniting with the Methodist, where Rev. Mr. VanKirk delivered a lecture on temperance.

Mrs. John Terry and daughter who have been visiting at the home of H. L. Terry, have returned to their home in Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. George T. Schenck are the happy parents of a girl baby born to them early last Sunday morning.

There was a large attendance Sunday afternoon at the funeral of C. H. Adams. Interment was in Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Swackhamer were guests Saturday of Mrs. Swackhamer's sister in New York.

Garretson & Gray yesterday shipped eleven car loads of crushed stone to L. W. Serrell, of Roselle.

William Kuhn, a painter employed by the Central Railroad, is confined to his home by illness.

James Touzeau, a fireman on the Central Railroad, is recovering from a serious illness.

Mayor and Mrs. Swackhamer spent Sunday with the Mayor's brother at Whitehouse.

Percy Abbott has returned from Somerville, where he has been visiting relatives.

Mrs. H. L. Terry spent Saturday in New York shopping.

Walter Runyon had business at Port Reading yesterday.

Theodore Apgar visited friends at Cranford Sunday.

Mrs. John Herbert has been visiting in New York.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 12—Thieves broke into John R Marsh's butcher shop early Sunday morning and confiscated nearly all the knives, saws and cleavers in the shop. The burglars intentions were no doubt to make away with meat, but were fooled owing to the ice box being locked. Mr. Marsh knows who the parties are and promises to make it warm for the parties if the missing tools are not returned.

It is expected that a large audience will greet Dr. Henry at his lecture in the Baptist church this evening. Dr. Henry was formerly pastor of the LaSelle Avenue Baptist church of Chicago but gave up his pastorate to engage in the great temperance work. The speaker is said to combine the orator and humorist together and a very interesting and instructive lecture is promised. Admission will be free to all.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Morey entertained a few friends at their home on Front street last evening in honor of Mr. Morey's birthday. The pleasant little affair was arranged by Mrs. Morey as a surprise to her husband and was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The evening was passed very pleasantly with music and games after which refreshments were served.

Several of the young men from the village, together with several from Plainfield, are arranging for a ball and reception to be held at Emery's Pavilion Wednesday evening, Dec. 21st.

Fanwood Council, R. A., meet in their rooms tonight. A large turnout is desired, as the annual election of officers for the ensuing year will be held.

The Exempt Firemen's Association of Fanwood township held a regular meeting in the parlors of Excelsior Company last evening.

Miss Bertha Crooker, of Plainfield, has been visiting at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Henry Schreiner, of Mountain avenue.

Mrs. Ira G Walker led a large and interesting Epworth League meeting in the Methodist church, Sunday evening.

Abram Wade is spending two weeks with relatives at Lyons Farms.

Bismarck's Iron Nerve

Was the result of his splendid health. Indomitable will and tremendous energy are not found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are out of order. If you want these qualities and the success they bring, use Dr. King's New Life Pills. They develop every power of brain and body. Only 25c at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Symons, of East Third street, entertained company from New York over Sunday.

Alonzo Titsworth, of Boston, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Titsworth, of Madison avenue.

James Clarkson, of East Second street, is able to be out again after being detained at home by illness.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of West Seventh street, has returned after a two months' trip through the west.

Miss Belle Lewis, of the borough, has secured a position as typewriter and stenographer at the law offices of Nelson & Wm. N. Runyon, corner of Park and North avenues.

Exposure to a sudden climatic change produces cold in the head and catarrh is apt to follow. Provided with Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh. Price 50 cents at Druggists, or Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York, will mail it. The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation, cleanses and cures. Cream Balm quickly cures the cold.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

PERSONAL GOSSIP OF INTEREST TO CITY AND BOROUGH.

In Brief are Told the Daily Doings of Many Residents and Visitors Who Go and Come in a Social and Business Way

L. W. Niles, of Orchard place, is confined to his home with illness.

Charles Dunham, of Bound Brook, has been visiting borough friends.

Arthur Mosher, of this city, has returned from a visit with Brooklyn friends.

George Weida, the Front street confectioner, spent Sunday in Paterson with friends.

Andrew Huff, of Park avenue, has completed a contract job which he had in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Barron Brewster, of Woodbridge, have been visiting Plainfield relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Moynihan, of Bound Brook, were guests of Plainfield relatives over Sunday.

Mrs. George Weida, of West Front street, has been enjoying a visit from her father, of Elizabeth.

Mrs. Caspar and daughter, of East Front street, have returned from a visit with Newark friends.

Miss Etta Neuman, of New York, who has been visiting Plainfield friends, has returned home.

The Misses Emma and Agnes LaBoyteaux, of Fairview avenue, are ill at their home with the mumps.

W. W. Titsworth, of New York, was a guest of W. B. Mosher, of Madison avenue, over Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. Dr. A. E. Main has returned from Troy, N. Y., where he was called by the death of his father, Daniel C. Main.

Charles Graves, of Liberty street, is improving nicely from the injuries he received last week when his horse ran away.

The Rasores Club is being entertained this afternoon at the home of Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, East Front street.

Dr. H. W. Stillman, of Edgerton, Wis., is stopping at the home of Mrs. Charles Potter, of West Seventh street.

Miss Ida Demler, of Watchung, who has been severely ill for a long time past, seems to be gradually improving.

President Theodore Gardner, of Salem College, W. Va., has returned home after a visit of serveral days in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Tier, Sr., of Bank place, who have been visiting Rahway relatives, have returned to their home.

L. M. Dunavan, of the fire department, has entirely recovered from the accident to his leg, and now can get about without the aid of crutches.

Miss Edith Finney is a recent addition to the large force employed by Woodhull & Martin. Miss Finney's duties are confined to the toy department.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hamilton, of Alfred, have been spending a few days with Mrs. Hamilton's aunt, Mrs. Charles Potter, of West Seventh street.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ingalsbee and Mr. and Mrs. M. Moynihan, of Bound Brook, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Kenney, of East Second street.

Rev. Dr. George B. Shaw, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, of New York city, will exchange pulpits with Rev. A. E. Main, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, of this city, next Sabbath.

A few days ago Mrs. Saunders, wife of Patrolman James Saunders, underwent an operation for a trouble of long standing. Dr. Zeglio performed the operation assisted by Dr. VanHorn. It was very successful.

H. N. Searles, a former employe in this city of the Prudential Insurance Company, and now located at Lambertville, where he has charge of the above company's branch office, spent Sunday with friends in this city.

Mrs. Morrison, wife of R. W. Morrison, of Mountain avenue, arrived in New York on Saturday last on the Steamship St. Louis, and was immediately taken to the home of her daughter in Philadelphia, where she will remain. She is suffering from an incurable disease, and her condition is critical.

No Right to Ugliness.

The woman who is lovely in face, form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and all run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric Bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store.

Love and money are dear absent friends that almost never meet.

The pocket is the heart's thermometer.

Love may be a dream, but, thank God, it is a progressive and revolutionary dream.

Eternity will show self-love to have been a horrible illusion.

Creed crucifies love daily, not with a groan, but with a chuckle.

"Good stuff," says man to money; "stuff," says echo.

Every man thinks himself taxed for more than he is worth—and he generally thinks rightly.

To shift capital is no great hardship—to shift without it is the rub.

When you get down to the bottom of human nature what do you find? Wickedness? Not at all—only weakness.

A thousand dollars for your dreams—if you tell them true.

"Arise, let us go," is Bible. "Let's sit down and dream" is another book.

The timid soul is like the frog who dried up ashore for fear his colors wouldn't wash.

Go ahead! Help yourself! Nobody will stop you, man, woman or child (in the way of honesty, of course), provided you are bold enough, and not too bold.

No close time in "shooting folly as it flies"—if you see the game pull the trigger any day you like.

To look man in the eye is the art of the commander—to look him in the soul is the gift of the poet.

One half of the sum total of human energy is wasted in combatting its own inherent laziness.

If all the actors would stop and think and all the thinkers start and act, the world would be better presently.

Nature is too straightforward, man is too twisted.

Hearts are ventured once too often and are broken at last.

When two meet, one must yield—except in love.

We are being whirled along, like leaves in a gale, to tremendous issues—conscious, but careless.

Heaven gives us enough to experience, more to hope, everything to imagine.

Although charity cannot purchase heaven, heaven will gladly be given in exchange.

Thank God, it does not require strength to build up strength—only virtue and patience.

All sins are equal or the penalty would not be the same.

Some of the best souls have conquered the worst vices.

The finishing touches of goodness are often wanting, so that what is excellent is not charming.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Oldenburg.

Wildeshausen. Der Apotheker Jakobi wird in allernächster Zeit in Gemeinschaft mit einem Herrn aus Hannover hierselbst eine chemische Fabrik errichten.

Mecklenburg.

Schwerin. Der Magistrat hat die vom Bürgerverein mit über 200 Unterschriften eingereichte Petition um Oeffentlichkeit der Sitzungen des Bürgerausschusses dahin beschieden, daß derselbe nicht geneigt sei, auf den Antrag einzugehen.

Braunschweig.

Braunschweig. Die Stadtverordneten setzten die Gehälter der städtischen Volksschullehrer auf 1600 Mark Anfangsgehalt, steigend bis 3600 Mark fest. Bisher waren die Gehaltssätze 1350 bis 3100 Mark. Der Magistrat hatte nur eine Erhöhung von 1500 bis 3500 Mark vorgeschlagen.—Der Senatspräsident beim Oberlandesgericht, Hermann Ernesti, ein bekannter Jurist, ist, 57 Jahre alt, gestorben.

Großherzogthum Hessen.

Darmstadt. Der hessische Landwirthschaftsrath hat sich an die Eisenbahndirektion um Fahrpreisermäßigung bei der Rückbeförderung landwirthschaftlicher Wanderarbeiter gewendet. Das Gesuch wurde indessen abschlägig beschieden.

Mainz. Dieser Tage wurde von der Polizei in einem hiesigen Gasthaus ein Deserteur, Ludwig Reiß aus Baden-Baden, verhaftet. Reiß war im Jahre 1895 vom 81. Infanterie-Regiment in Frankfurt desertirt. Er hatte sich bisher in Frankreich und Italien aufgehalten.

Vilbel. In der Nähe unseres Ortes wird von einem Konsortium, in dem unter Anderen die Thüringer Akkumulatoren- und Elektrizitätswerke und die Aktiengesellschaft Görtzmühl-Saalfeld sind, die Errichtung eines größeren Elektrizitätswerkes projektirt, das an die nordwestlichen Orte des Landkreises Hanau Strom für Licht- und Kraftzwecke abgeben soll. Die Verhandlungen mit den Gemeinden sind eingeleitet. Als Centrale ist Vilbel in Aussicht genommen.

Worms. Das Schöffengericht verurtheilte den Redakteur Giesecke vom „General-Anzeiger" wegen Beleidigung des Stadtverordneten Pfungst zu 200 Mark Geldstrafe. Pfungst ist Eigenthümer der „Wormser Volkszeitung," die sich vom Freiherrn v. Heyl völlig unabhängig hält, während der „General-Anzeiger" zu den bekannten „Heyl-Organen" zählt. Pfungst war unter Anderem vom „General-Anzeiger" verhöhnt worden, weil er sich gestattete, eine Kiste persönlich zur Post zu tragen, in der sich ein krankes Hündchen befand.

Bayern.

München. Hier und in Landshut wurde je eine Rohstoffgenossenschaft der Schuhmacher gebildet.—Mit der dieser Tage erfolgten Wiedereröffnung der Eisenbahnstrecke Siegsdorf-Rühpolding ist nun die letzte der Staatsbahnstrecken, die durch das Hochwasser vom September unterbrochen, dem Verkehr wieder übergeben.

Fürth. Der verantwortliche Redakteur der „Fränkischen Tagespost" („Fürther Bürgerzeitung"), Georg Gärtner, wurde vom hiesigen Schöffengericht zu 30 Mark Geldstrafe, eventuell fünf Tagen Gefängniß verurtheilt, weil in dem Blatte die Buchdruckervereinigung „Gutenberg-Bund" als „Strikebrecher-Organisation" bezeichnet war.

Langenfeld. Die hiesige Gemeindeverwaltung und die Gesammtbürgerschaft haben den bisherigen Mitbürger Herrn Oekonomierath und Landtagsabgeordneten Heinrich Stöcker einstimmig zum Ehrenbürger der Gemeinde Langenfeld ernannt.

Löhrieth. Ein junger Bursche von hier wollte Abends zwei von Bildhausen nach Neustadt gehende Lehrlinge erschrecken und stellte sich mitten auf den Weg in's Dunkle. Er mußte aber seinen „Witz" theuer büßen; denn der eine vermeintlich Ueberfallene zog sein Messer und versetzte dem „Räuber" einen Stich in den Hals.

Marktbreit. Die Schiffmühle des Herrn A. Falk in Signitz wurde nach langen Verhandlungen vom Staate um 10,000 Mark angekauft. Diese Mühle war dem Betriebe der Kettenschlepp-Schifffahrt auf dem Maine sehr hinderlich. Sie wird abgebrochen und der Mühlenkanal zugeschüttet.

Nürnberg. Der nach Unterschlagung amtlicher Gelder flüchtig gegangene Amtsgerichtssekretär Fichtelberger von Heidenheim hat sich hier selbst der Polizei gestellt.

Scheinfeld. Hier fiel das dreijährige Töchterchen des Viehhändlers Abraham Adler in eine Schüssel mit kochend heißer Lauge. Das Kind erlitt furchtbare Brandwunden am ganzen Körper, denen es alsbald erlag.

Westheim. Hier kam Feuer aus und eine Scheune brannte total nieder. Die kranke Frau eines Ortsnachbarn erschrak darüber so, daß sie, vom Schlage getroffen, verschied.

EARN $10,000 A YEAR

THIS IS THE RECORD OF THREE ELEPHANTS IN THE LONDON ZOO.

These Huge Beasts Earn Their Money By Carrying on Their Backs Patrons of the Gardens—They Are As Jealous Hearted As Actresses.

Three elephants earn $10,000 a year. This is $2,000 more than the salary of a member of the President's Cabinet, and $3,000 less than the income of an admiral in the navy, a rank done away with because Congress thought the salary too high. These elephants are at the London Zoo, and they earn their money by carrying on their backs the patrons of the gardens. Every 'Arry takes his 'Arriet and hies him to the Zoo on bank holidays, and for five cents they can jog about the ring on the back of one of the elephants.

The elephants are stationed in different parts of the Zoo, and there seems to be a bit of professional jealousy between them. Apparently they are on very good terms between hours, but when business is brisk, and the largest one is coining money, for he is the favorite, the other two try to lash him with their trunks as he passes.

The largest elephant is a financial record breaker. He is the senior member of the firm, so to speak. On one holiday he carried 1,600 persons.

There are camels which are sought after by those left out in the scramble for the elephants, but the old patrons of the Zoo say the uneven motion of a camel is only appreciated by an old salt, who is most at home on an exceedingly choppy sea. The camels are too cultivated a taste for the ordinary mortal to affect.

Three camels earn about $1,200 a year, but they cost less to keep than their more successful brothers. The elephants eat up most of their profits. The greatest number of visitors to the Zoo in one day was 44,000, and an average of 500 pounds of dainties were fed to the brothers of the royal executioner of India.

The Migration of Robins.

For many years naturalists like Audubon and Wilson studied and wrote of this bird before it was known that there were "robin roosts," as well as pigeon roosts. Only within the last few years was the fact brought out that a bird more familiarly known than the passenger pigeon followed this mode of spending the night, although it adopted spring instead of fall for massing by hundreds in a high sheltered wood for a night's protection from cold, or because it is the period before pairing time, or for some other reason at present beyond man's ken. With what stealth must this well-known and much-observed bird have found its way in such numbers to the same patch of timber night after night in the early months of the year, according to locality coming from all directions so swiftly that a secreted observer could not count, keeping up a chatter that could be heard for a long distance, until the last bird, somewhat belated, perhaps, found shelter in the darkening grove, when all became silent as thousands of wings were folded to rest.

Another peculiar trait of the robin, unnoted except by so keen an observer of bird ways as Maurice Thompson, is that, with all its friendly and confiding relations with the human family during the time of nesting and rearing its young in the fall of the year, it becomes a wild bird, betaking itself largely to the woods and even the secluded parts of mountains, at this season showing little disposition to be on familiar terms with man, giving a note of alarm and flying high and swiftly when surprised at his approach. At this time they range over extensive tracts of country, but nearly always evince a tendency to seclusion. The writer has seen them in small flocks flying over a wide valley at such an elevation that only by the well known sharp squeak, rather than by the eye, could he surely determine that they were robins.

Even in its migratory habits this bird is somewhat peculiar. They seem to move southward in the fall with more tardiness than most other birds, allowing the increased severities of the cold season to push them off the winter's edge. Or are these late goers the birds inured to cold by a residence in the States further north, which, coming southward, take the place of others that have gone earlier in the season? The question of identity, always a difficult one, almost precludes argument on this point.

Novel Use for Japanese Newspapers.

A Lewiston man, a chemist, went into a well-known Lisbon street variety store the other day and began to pick out things of interest and tell where they were made and what they were made of. He found several things made in Japan, where he supposed that the newspapers, which he especially has no liking for, have no pull with the public.

It so happened that the storekeeper knew something about the forcefulness of Japanese newspapers, and he took up a little white skeleton, made in the exact shape of the human one, and a good specimen of Japanese art. This the Lewiston chemist thought was odd, and he couldn't guess what it was made of, but said that he would like to see what it was made of. He went away saying that Japan was destined to be a great country because it was not overridden by newspapers.

When the chemist got home he put the little Japanese plaything into the water and soaked it out. Gradually it unrolled till it peeled off, bone by bone, and the little rolls were found to be closely printed paper, evidently old Japanese newspapers, used by the makers of the little playthings. The chemist took the rolls to a friend of his who has been studying Japanese a little, and he picked out sentences here and there such as:

"The Chinese army was cornered at Port Arthur," and "Fearful slaughter of the Orientals—on both sides." The next time he went into the variety store, says the Lewiston Journal, he found his friend, the store keeper grinning out of his eyes at him. "What were the Japanese skeletons made of?" asked the store man. "Newspapers," said the chemist.

WHAT IS WORN.

Mantles, Capes and Redingotes—An Evening Gown.

Capelike mantles are much worn with the more ceremonious class of gown, as they are easily put on and off and do not crush the costume as does a coat. There are all varieties of mantles, from the plain tailor made style finished with stitching to those of velvet, satin or damask trimmed with fur and passementerie, not to mention evening wraps of the most elaborate and brilliant description.

The short capes of the last few years are out of date. They may still be utilized if they are in good condition by rounding the front corners and adding one or more circular ruffles. If the goods cannot be exactly matched, velvet may be employed. In that case velvet ornaments must be used on the body of the cape also, the collar and revers being of velvet.

EVENING GOWN.

Redingotes are having a growing success, and the loose sack is also making its way by dint of appearing in modest, tailor made guise and not rendering its ugly, undress aspect conspicuous by rich materials and trimmings. Prettiest of all are the little boleros of cloth or fur, well fitting and smartly trimmed.

The evening gown illustrated has a trained skirt of black velvet. Over this is a princess tunic of guipure de venise, cut square at the top and with long, tight sleeves. The decolletage is bordered with black velvet set with crystal buttons, and two bands of velvet are tied across the top of the arm, forming a bow. A spray of flowers is placed at the left shoulder and a large butterfly at the front of the bodice. JUDIC CHOLLET.

MOURNING STYLES.

Fashions For the Several Stages of Mourning.

Mourning apparel is divided into two classes—first and second mourning. The first is always of dull wool and crape, and only black wood, dull jet or crape stone ornaments are permissible. Preferably none is worn during strict mourning. The gloves are of black wool, castor or suede.

For the second period of mourning fancy black weaves are used, and silks and black lace are also admitted, and fur may serve as trimming. Ornaments of bright jet or gun metal are appropriate, as are glace gloves.

These two stages are followed by half mourning, when combinations of black and white and all shades of gray and violet are proper. Flowers are worn in the hat—scabious, heliotrope, irises, pansies, lilacs, periwinkle and, in addition, white cyclamens, which are now very charmingly and naturally made.

MOURNING CAPE.

The fashion of making mourning costumes is the fashion of the moment modified and robbed of all oddities and striking effects. There is no special style for mourning garments different from the usual one.

An illustration is given which shows a mourning cape of black cheviot. It has a deep border of English crape, headed by stitched applications of the cheviot. The valois collar is of English crape, the lining of wadded dull finished silk. Astrakhan may be used instead of crape. The hat of English crape has a drapery of crape, and black flowers and feathers form the trimming. JUDIC CHOLLET.

BUYING THE DINNER

USEFUL HINTS FOR CHRISTMAS OR ANY OTHER DAY.

The Color of Meat—Age of Fish and Fowls—Selecting Vegetables—Facts About Good Fruit—Choice of Butter, Coffee and Milk—Canned Goods.

Market by personal visits rather than by giving orders.

Do not confine your patronage to any particular firm. Each mercantile firm has its specialties.

There is probably no branch of marketing that so puzzles an inexperienced housewife, nor one in which she is often worsted, as in buying meats.

The young housekeeper may always be sure that meat that is bright and red is young and tender. If the color be of the shade she sought so earnestly for her ox-blood gown, she may be certain that the meat is old. The age of a beef can safely be determined by its color. If light red it is young; if dark red, old.

It is well for economic reasons to buy a large roast, say ten pounds, at a time, if your family is large enough to dispose of it. By so doing you can get a fine cut of tenderloin and a good fillet for a separate dish for another meal. By combining a rib and tenderloin thus you can buy them both for the same price you would for either alone.

There are only about two good sirloin cuts of a beef. They should be cut to include the flat bone, for the adage that "Nearer the bone, sweeter the meat," is strictly true. A good test of the age of meat is the color of the fat. If white it is young; if yellow it is old. The color of meat is a good guide, but it is one that is almost indescribable. The sense of smell is quick to detect the difference between the fresh, blood-like smell of new meat and the stale, rancid odor of the old.

Fresh fish is firm outside and is crisp and shiny and rather dry. If stale it is likely to be slimy and flabby nad pliable to the touch. The blood of a fish is an infallible indication. If a bright red, it is of pristine freshness if the blood be muddy and brownish the fish is too stale for use.

The wings indicate the age of a fowl. If they bend easily at the touch they belong to a young fowl. Grasp the wing at the upper part where the bone is largest. Its power of resistance is a criterion of the age of the fowl. If it is soft and cartilaginous, the meat will be tender. If the wings are hard, the meat will be tough. Pressing the thumb firmly upon the breastbone of a fowl is another reliable test. The meat is as old as the breastbone is hard.

The color of the skin of a chicken, duck, turkey or goose determines largely its age. The skin of the young is a very light yellow, almost white. As it gets older the skin gradually darkens. The fat of an old chicken grows a dark yellow. If a chicken has been on ice long the flesh gets flabby and the skin bluish. It may be taken as an invariable rule, however, that by their breastbones and pinions you shall know the age of chickens, ducks, turkeys and geese.

As to potatoes, the golden mean is best. They should be light in color, thin skinned and of medium size and weight. The medium ones are more likely to be solid before cooking and mealy afterward.

The quality of most vegetables may best be tested by weighing them in your hands. A head of cabbage, for instance, may look plump when it is really shrivelled at the heart. If by lifting it you learn that it is lighter than it looks you will know that the leaves are withered and the heart, perhaps, coarse and pithy. Cabbage should be crisp and compact. You should look beneath the outer leaves to be sure that the inner ones are all they promise.

Test celery by breaking it to see whether it is crisp. Do not throw away the root, which has the choicest flavor in the plant. The stem is the best indication of the condition of cauliflower. If it is tough, stringy or discolored the same condition is true of the head of the cauliflower. Select the smaller radishes always. The large ones will be coarse if they are not pithy. The color is a good indication of their quality. They should be of a bright red or pink.

Cranberries may be tested by the eye, taste and touch. They should be crisp and solid, very pungent and of medium red. If too dark a red they are overripe and soft. Remember that the medium sized, thin-skinned fruits are the best.

Don't touch the apples you expect to buy. Their red or yellow plumpness is very deceptive. The touch of the fingers no matter how light, bruises the apple, and starts the process of decay. You must be educated in apple lore to buy intelligently, for tasting the fruit is not always practicable or convenient, and touching is forbidden. You must know what varieties are tart and which are sweet, which are of firm and which are of soft pulp. In the meantime, until the lack of education has been supplied there is nothing to be done but to blindly follow the greengrocer's, or fruiterer's, lead in the matter.

Oranges should be thin-skined and of a light, almost transparent yellow. Lemons should also be of the thin-skinned, pale yellow, plump, firm variety.

Many housekeepers who pride themselves on their discretion and economy buy fresh eggs for table use and packed eggs of an age that inspires reverence for cooking. It is a great mistake. The taste of a stale egg can be detected as quickly in a muffin as though broken into a glass before your plate. It is impossible to disguise the taste of stale eggs, and foolish to try.

Be exceedingly fastidious in your choice of butter. Call into your service both taste and smell. It is well to buy it in small quantities. Be sure to learn who are the best butter dealers and buy only their best brand.

It is best to buy coffee in the bean and roast and grind it yourself just before using. Be sure that the coffee bean is crisp, not leathery, and that it is roasted only to a rich, dark brown, not black. One-third Mocha and two-thirds old Java mixed make the best brew, to my taste. Oolong and English breakfast tea in equal parts is an excellent mixture.

Avoid blue milk. If you use the sort which comes in bottles, be sure that there is a finger of cream in each bottle, which proves that the milk is of Use butter, not oleomargarine.

Be extremely particular about selected canned goods if you use them at all.

WISE WOODPECKERS.

How They Drive Worms From the Inside of Trees.

A Chicago professor who was in the Maine woods last summer tells an interesting story of the intelligence of a family of woodpeckers which he encountered near the headwaters of the Allegash, and which were most uncommonly bright birds. As every one knows who has observed these birds at all, they feed on the worms which burrow into trees. Any worm with a fair amount of activity can bore a gallery three or four feet long in a tree in a single season, so to find his prey the woodpecker has to make several holes in the tree in order to get at his victim. This particular family of woodpeckers having some difficulty in getting at the worms after they have drilled a hole into his gallery, proposed to save themselves unnecessary work. And what do you think they did? In the Allegash woods grows the "Indian poke," a plant with berries possessing an alkaline juice particularly disagreeable to all animal life. And so these Allegash woodpeckers, having made an entrance into the domain of the borer, proceed next to drop berries of the Indian poke into the opening. And so much does the worm dislike the odor of the poke berries that he comes out to get away from it, and incidentally to see who has had the impertinence to cause him so much discomfort. He never gets any further than the entrance, because Mr. Woodpecker is waiting there, and that worm is gobbled up so quickly that he never knows what happened to him. This seems like a good deal of a fairy story, doesn't it? But Prof. Eastman J. Clarke says he saw it with his own eyes.

Saved by Her Dog.

The picture is a very good likeness of Dot, the life-saving fox terrier, and her mistress, Helen Huber. Dot is the property of George P. Huber, of Newport, Ky. Helen is his daughter. The two are great friends. Several days ago Helen and Dot were playing around the brink of a fountain in the rear of the house, where the water is about two feet deep. The little girl lost her balance, and fell into the water. She would have drowned in a few minutes had it not been for Dot, who displayed unusually good sense at a very critical time. No one was near, and the dog, not being large enough to pull the little girl out of the water, decided on the next best plan, that of summoning help. She began to bark furiously, at the same time jumping around and looking into the bed of the fountain. Dot soon managed to attract the attention of Mrs. Huber, who came out to investigate. When the little girl was pulled out her flesh was blue, and she was all but unconscious. She soon recovered, however, and now she and Dot are inseparable.

Easy Experiments.

Write upon an egg with melted tallow some sentence, as "This is the egg of the little blue hen." Let the egg stand in very strong vinegar from 15 to 20 hours, and the letters will be found to appear raised. This is the result of the vinegar's eating away all of the shell except that protected by the grease. This is particularly interesting for Easter.

Secure two penknives of nearly equal weight. Stick them firmly into opposite sides (not ends) of a pencil, handles down, and with the points of the blades entering the pencil about two inches from the point of the pencil. Stand the pencil on its point on your finger, and it will not fall. Upon this same balancing principle rope-walkers extend their arms when on the rope.

Years ago I read a description of a game which was always a source of fun on rainy days. Take a pane of glass—a broken one will do—and secure it by placing the ends between the leaves of two large books, letting the glass be two or three inches from the table. Cut from light-weight writing paper, or, better still, from tissue paper, dolls, dogs and other figures. Place them on the table beneath the glass. Rub the glass vigorously with a silk handkerchief and the figures will cut all kinds of antics.

Proof That Our Early Ancestors Were all Cannibals.

HISTORIC BONES DUG UP.

A Report That Has Caused a Great Sensation in Scientific Circles.

Marks of the Teeth—The Use They Made of the Aged—The Cooking Utensils—Beliefs of the Cannibal—Dining off a Wise Man's Brain.

Prehistoric man dined off his parents, says the Vienna correspondent of the Chicago Herald, when the latter had outlived their usefulness; he cooked and ate his friends when he got the chance, as well as his enemies; he considered the flesh of infants and of children the daintiest of morsels; he would punish the one who injured him, first by slaying him and then by eating him. All this has been proved conclusively by the discovery in prehistoric caves recently unearthed near Knovize, in Bohemia, of a great collection of bones, which Dr. Matelgka, who has made a careful examination of the relics declares to be the unmistakable debris of the cannibalistic feasts of prehistoric man.

In his report on the subject, which has caused a great sensation in scientific circles in Europe, Dr. Matelgka says: "The position in which the bones were found leaves no doubt they were the remnants of cannibal banquets. I examined many compartments of the caves and in twelve of them found human bones, part of which comprised the complete skeleton of a child, skulls and fragments of skulls, thigh bones and arm bones, parts of the human jaw, shoulder bones and pieces of the bones of the foot. They seemed to be the remains of at least eight persons.

"The skeleton of the child was perfectly preserved and on the edges of the bones were the unmistakable signs of the teeth that had gnawed at the bones in the dreadful feast. Such teeth marks could only have been made by a person biting greedily at the bone in picking off the flesh. On all the bones these same significant marks were visible, but a more important sign of the use to which the remains had been put was to be noted in the burned edges of the bone, which showed clearly that they had been cooked over a pile of ashes. There was no possibility of mistaking the marks for the fire of a sacrificial burning. The marks pointed only to a fire of ashes such as would have been used for slowly cooking flesh destined for eating purposes. In one case the skull had been only burned a little and was in a perfect state of preservation. On this skull the marks of the teeth were plainly to be seen."

It may be contended that the bones were buried in the usual way after death, but the position of the remains, as well as the fact that they were in such peculiar fragments proved this idea to be erroneous, for the parts of the skulls and bones were only those that would have been brought to the cave for a cannibalistic feast. The small bones that would naturally have been thrown away by those who prepared the feast were missing, except in the case of the child, whose body was probably cooked entire.

Another circumstance that confirms this view is that the bones and fragments were found mixed with the remains of earthenware jars that prehistoric man must have used for eating utensils. Still additional proof was found of the cannibalistic habits of prehistoric man in the fact that the skulls in every case had been opened, evidently with the intention of extracting the brains, which the eater of human flesh always considers a dainty. The manner in which the bones were broken also disclosed the fact that the diners had a liking for the marrow and the bones had been broken with the intention of extracting this. In some of the bones this evidence was clearer than in others, but it was in every case so clear from a close examination of the edges of the bones that there could not be the slightest doubt about the breaking being done for the purpose of getting at the marrow. So much importance was attached to this point, that the bones were submitted to other scientists for the purpose of getting their opinion regarding the cause of the breakage of the bones and in every case it was pronounced to have been done intentionally by those who were engaged in a feast of human flesh.

A close study of the conditions existing at the time these bones were left as remnants of a cannibalistic feast shows that they were eaten first from necessity. Food was scarce and the same motive that impels a shipwrecked mariner to slay his fellow castaway to allay the pangs of hunger induced these prehistoric cannibals to dine off their fellows. In some cases the objects of the feast were the friends and relatives and parents.

When they had outlived their allotted span of life and had become a burden upon the younger generation it was not at all an unusual thing for the old folks to be killed, cooked and eaten. But the principal supplies for such horrible feasts as those of prehistoric man were the remains of enemies killed in battle. It was looked upon as adding terrors to the fight when it was known that the killing of an enemy was not the end of him, but that he would be afterward consigned to the pot or spread on the ashes of the cooking fire and eaten with avidity by the victors.

Another inducement to eat his fellow that had weight with the prehistoric man was that certain portions of the human makeup, if eaten by another, were supposed to supply missing attributes that were coveted by the eater. Thus the heart of a brave man was eaten by one who had slain him or could carry off his body, after he had been slain, for the reason that the eating of his heart was supposed to give additional courage to the one who devoured it.

To dine off a wise man's brain imparted additional wisdom to the diner, and to make a meal of a man of muscle and sinew gave strength to the cannibal who satisfied his hunger with the strong man's remains.

To those parts of the world where cannibalism is still in existence some of these theories are believed in to this day, which proves that the prehistoric man was very little different in his likes, dislikes, tastes and disposition to the modern savage. It is not surprising to find that prehistoric man was a cannibal. The interest in the matter lies largely in the fact that the discovery of the bones gives to us the actual remains of a cannibalistic feast at a time so far removed as to be lost in the shadows of antiquity.

A NEW REPUBLIC.

Evolution of a South American No Man's Land.

A republic of two hundred thousand square miles (one and a half times the size of Great Britain and Ireland) has suddenly arisen in the heart of South America, writes a Buenos Ayres correspondent of the London Daily Mail. This is the Republic of Acre, so called from the river of the same name (a tributary of the Amazon) which flows through it.

The circumstances which gave rise to this new State are somewhat novel. The territory of which the Republic of Acre is composed has long been disputed by Bolivia and Brazil without being effectively occupied by either. It is a thinly peopled region inhabited by less than fifty thousand souls, who make a living principally by the collection of rubber, which grows wild in the forest in great abundance.

An adventurer named Rodriguez Aries took it into his head to proclaim himself President of this no man's land. The new government was formally created, Ministers of State appointed, and the capital fixed at Antimairi, a small hamlet which is a depot for the shipment of rubber. The new State of Acre contains no large cities; indeed, it contains no town larger than a small village.

The new President is a man who has seen much of the world. He is a Spaniard, and was formerly a banker in his own country, then theatrical impresario in the United States, clerk of works in Paris, and merchant in Brazil, settling down later as a broker in Buenos Ayres, where he made the acquaintance of the gentlemen who to-day are his Ministers.

The new government is no mere fiction, for it has caused no small consternation among the neighboring States, Bolivia in particular being much concerned and about to send an armed force to cause her flag to be respected in the new Republic.

The Argentine papers are full of accounts of Acre, some of them giving maps and illustrations.

The new President of Acre does not reckon upon raising a revenue by the sale of titles, nor yet by the establishment of gaming tables, methods which were adopted under like circumstances by Baron Harden Hickey, erstwhile monarch of the barren island of Trinidad, but expects to fill the public exchequer by levying export duties on rubber, which at present is the sole source of wealth to the country.

Whether the new Republic of Acre will have a more lasting existence than the government of Trinidad remains to be seen.

A New Fad.

Scientists are recommending the electric light bath. It is free from the exhausting effects of Turkish baths and is soothing to sore muscles and joints. Nervous headache yields to this treatment, and the bath is of great benefit to persons of sedenary habits, such as teachers, doctors, lawyers and professional men generally. Combined with a cold shower it is said the electric light bath is positively rejuvenating.

Not Throwing Money Away.

"It will cost you $1," said the jeweler, inspecting the works of the time piece through his eyeglass, "to put this watch in thorough repair."

"Hand it back," haughtily replied the young man on the outside of the counter. "I can get a new one for 98 cents."—Chicago Tribune.

How to Fasten the Thread.

The best way to fasten the thread at the end of a sewing machine seam is to turn back on the seam just sewn and stitch for half an inch or more; then you can cut the thread and not stop to tie, which take a great deal of time and is absolutely necessary if you would not have your thread ripping out all the time.
